NEW HAVEN, Nov. 6.—(AP)—For the first time in several years, the Bulldog varsity eleven will begin practice for the Princeton game with its first string aggregation intact. The same team that took the measure of Brown, the Army, Dartmouth and Maryland on successive Saturdays will face the Tiger lineup, baring possible injuries this week.

Sid Quarrier, tackle, and "Firpo" Greene, guard, received superficial bruises in the Maryland game yesterday, but they were fully recovered today. Brillhardt will be out of the hospital tomorrow and he will probably be used in the Princeton game. All other varsity players were in fine physical condition.

Practice will be light for the week, but no chances are to be taken. Only one scrimmage is planned which will take place on Wednesday. The rest of the week will be devoted to signal drill, dummy scrimmage, kicking and running back punts, and forward passing drill.

Princeton faces Yale next Saturday, a background of two consecutive victories for the last two games played against their ancient rival. Last year's game was won by the Nassau team in a closely contested battle by a score of 10 to 7. Eli adherents say that Roper's charges are "jinxed" this year in that they have not won three times in a row for many years.

An undefeated Tiger eleven will face a Blue team, that reached apparently unbeatable form after their 14-10 defeat at the hands of Georgia.

BEARS AND STEAMROLLERS PLAY SCORELESS TIE

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—(AP)—The Chicago Bears, leading National Football league, encountered the stiffest opposition of the season today and were held to a scoreless tie by the Providence Steam Rollers. Seven times Providence stopped the Bears inside the 20-yard line. Two forward passes were grounded twice the Bear ball carriers being tackled so fiercely they dropped the ball, and line smashes were checked without gain.

Paddy Driscoll, the Bears' star kicker, tried five field goals, two from the 20-yard mark and three from back of the 45-yard line. Wildcat Wilson, the Providence leader, completed two forward passes for sixty yards at the start of the game but the Bears checked the visitors, in their most serious scoring threat. Wilson's punts, averaging more than 50 yards, helped to keep the Bears at a distance.

ACADEMY BEATS BULKELEY IN CROSS COUNTRY RUN

The Academy's cross country runner defeated Bulkeley of New London in the first meeting with their ancient rivals in this sport. The score was 24 to 31, the affair being held between the halves of the football game with the finish at the north goal post after the te nrunners had traversed a rugged two mile course through Mohegan park.

Belden of Bulkeley finished first with time of 13 minutes, ten seconds. Weisgraber of Norwich was second and Ward of Bulkeley wa sthird. The next four places went to the Red and White with Bulkeley's three remaining harriers bringing up the rear.

This was the Academy's second win in as many starts this season, their second at the sport, while it was Bulkeley's second start and loss in her first season.

The Academy expects all kinds of tough opposition this Friday in the interscholastics.

YALE AND PRINCETON LOOM AS LEADING TEAMS IN EASTERN FOOTBALL

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—The first gusty blasts of November have swept the college gridirons, chilling some championship hopes while carrying others forward.

In their swirling wake today, Notre Dame's light cavalry found its drive toward a national championship at least partially checked by a tie with Minnesota while the University of Washington was toppled from the Pacific coast conference peak, through defeat at the hands of Stanford, and Southern Methodist's Mustangs ousted from the southwestern conference lead by the Texas Aggies.

Meanwhile Princeton and Yale, two of the east's greatest arrays, showed increasing strength in intersectional triumphs that cleared the decks for the renewal of their ancient rivalry at New Haven next Saturday. Major claims to the mythical championship of the east may depend on the outcome of this fray for Princeton, with Ohio State as its latest victim, has an unblemished slate while Yale has come forward by leaps and bounds, taking Army, Dartmouth and Maryland into camp since being defeated early in the season by Georgia's powerful eleven.

It will be a battle between rival All-American backfield candidates as well as mighty scoring machines when the Tiger clashes with the Blue. Eddie Wittmer, the Princeton sophomore flash, tallied all three of the touchdowns by which the Tigers smothered Ohio State, 20-0, in the outstanding intersectional clash of the day, while Bruce Caldwell, the Eli ace, dominated Yale's 30-6 victory over Maryland.

Seven teams which had been neither beaten nor tied went into Saturday's battles but only three of them emerged with their slates still clean. Princeton was one of these while the other two, University of Georgia and Tennessee, kept up their unbeaten marches and strengthened their positions at the top of the southern conference heap. Georgia blanked Florida, 28-0, but Tennessee had to come from behind to trounce Sewanee, 32-12.

Washington's defeat by Stanford 13-7, and Notre Dame's 7-7 tie with Minnesota marred two other unblemished records while Washington & Jefferson and Pittsburgh kept each other out of the "perfect record" class with a scoreless deadlock.

It would be difficult to find any two aggregations closer matched than W. & J. and Pitt. This is the second successive year they have ended their duel in a 0-0 tie and failed to break the deadlock in their series, which stands at 13 victories apiece. They went into Saturday's conflict with identical decords, too, neither having been beaten or tied.

In the western conference Illinois kept the pace-setting position among the "Big Ten" by conquering Iowa, 14 to 0, while Missouri remained at the top of the Missouri valley conference, keeping its unbeaten conference record intact while taking the measure of an intersectional opponent, West Virginia, 13-0.

In the Pacific coast conference, Stanford and Southern California, who fought each other to a tie earlier in the season, share the top ranking although Stanford has one more conference victory. On the other hand Pop Warner's Cardinals lost a non-conference game to St. Mary's while Southern California has not been defeated.

The title contenders in the southern conference, led by Georgia and Tennessee, dwindled through the defeat of Washington & Lee by Virginia and another of the day's numerous ties, a scoreless battle between Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech, previously neither beaten nor tied in conference competition.

Pennsylvania's sensational 24-0 victory over Harvard, in their first battle since 1905, marked a sharp return to form by the Quakers and furnished one of the east's outstanding upsets.

Army, Navy, Penn State and New York university all were victorious by decisive margins but a flock of tie games upset the dope, Cornell being held to a 6-6 deadlock by little St. Bonaventure, Syracuse held to the same score by Ohio, Wesleyan and Columbia tied, 7-7, by Johns Hopkins.

Wesleyan with a 12-0 victory over Williams after a previous triumph over Amherst, captured the New England "Little Three" title for the first time in a decade.

CHARLIE M'GRATH FEATURES AS TIGERS BEAT BLACKSTONE

The battering, smashing line plunges of Charlie McGrath, the Greeneville Tiger fullback, proved too much for the Blackstone A. C. eleven Sunday afternoon at the J. B. Martin field and the Tigers won 13 to 0. Twice did McGrath crash and squirm his way across the Blackstone goal line, once after a 30-yard pass from F. McGrath to Gay had put the ball on the 10-yard line, and again after he had plunged his way down the field. Manning of the Blackstone team played a neat defensive game and his sharp tackling brought down many a Tiger who was essaying an end run.

The day was chilly and the play was hard there being a number of injuries, one Worcester player returning home minue two perfectly good teeth.

Shatters All Speed Records

UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

All existing speed records were shattered in the Schneider Cup Races at Venice, Italy, when Lieut. S. N. Webster completed the 217-mile course at an average speed of more than 281 miles an hour. He flew a Super-Marine monoplane, with a Napier engine.

BETTER PRO FOOTBALL SEASON FORECAST AS TWO GROUPS UNITE

COLUMBUS, O. Nov. 6.—(AP)—Joe F. Carr, who has been smoothing out difficulties between quarreling athletic factions since the time when he was a sport writer on a local newspaper, has completed the most ticklish bit of diplomacy of his career.

Carr, president of the National Football league, has succeeded in bringing C. C. Pyle's American league under the banner of the outfit presided over by him. Consequently this season there will not be two national professional football aggregations bidding strenuously for the public's favor, with a division of patronage, as there was last year.

With "Red" Grange under his wing, Pyle last year petitioned the National league for a franchise for his New York Yankees. The Giants represented New York in the national league and protested that there might not be enough fans to go around for two active teams, so Pyle's application was turned down, and he forthwith organized the American league.

The result, it was freely admitted, was a remarkably poor season for professional football, with two leagues battling each other all over the country.

Carr pointed out that the only hope lay in a merger and eventually he restored peace.

JOE F. CARR

Carr headed the National league when it was a straggling outfit, too poor even to pay him a salary.

EXPECTED FALL REVIVAL OF BUSINESS IS MISSING IN MANY HEAVY LINES

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—The long expected fall revival of business was still delayed at the beginning of November. Nevertheless, if industry, particularly the so-called heavy lines, was slow in getting into its autumn stride, there were no further recessions of consequence.

Pig iron output was reported at the lowest level of the year during October, and further softening of pig iron prices were reported. Signs of stiffening in the steel division, however, tended to offset this unfavorable symptom; while inquiries, and actual orders have indicated progress in that phase. Buying by railroads and implement interests picked up a little, but the automobile makers had not yet come into the market with any great force.

The automotive trade, indeed, continued to mark time pending the appearance of the new Ford, which has become an increasingly absorbing subject of comment. "Specifications" of the new car appear every few days, only to be characterized as "unofficial" in messages from Detroit. The automobile business was reported slightly slower during the week, with sales of old and new cars continuing to lag.

Warm weather was a deterrant factor in some lines, notably the fuel trade. Bituminous coal has felt the effect of unseasonably high temperatures, which have added somewhat to the softness of prices following the end of miners' strikes in Illinois and Indiana. Large amounts of the fuel are reported on middle-western sidings awaiting billing.

Car loadings were at the peak for the year, but they continued to fall far behind the record for 1926, revenue freight shipments for the first 10 months of the year have dropped more than 500,000 tons below the figures for the same period of last year, although showing a gain of more than 1,000,000 tons over the same 10 months of 1925.

Textiles moved rather slowly, with the mills showing strong persistence to price concessions. Cotton goods again were quiet, reflecting the unsettled condition of the speculative cotton market.

The warm weather was reported as excellent for the corn crop, and seeding of winter wheat was advanced. Cotton picking was progressing in practically all sections of the belt. Prices of both wheat and corn stiffened in reflection of increased grain exports.

Retail trade was somewhat retarded by the warm weather, but mail order sales continued to mount. Little change was recorded in the lumber industry. Lower tire prices featured the week's developments in the rubber division.

Credit conditions were little changed, although money was somewhat more plentiful in the leading financial centers, largely owing to huge interest and dividend disbursements at the beginning of the month.

Bank clearings were materially above those of the preceding week, as well as the corresponding week of last year.

EXPECTED FALL REVIVAL OF BUSINESS IS MISSING IN MANY HEAVY LINES

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—The long expected fall revival of business was still delayed at the beginning of November. Nevertheless, if industry, particularly the so-called heavy lines, was slow in getting into its autumn stride, there were no further recessions of consequence.

Pig iron output was reported at the lowest level of the year during October, and further softening of pig iron prices were reported. Signs of stiffening in the steel division, however, tended to offset this unfavorable symptom while inquiries, and actual orders have indicated progress in that phase. Buying by railroads and implement interests picked up a little, but the automobile makers had not yet come into the market with any great force.

The automotive trade, indeed, continued to mark time pending the appearance of the new Ford, which has become an increasingly absorbing subject of comment. "Specifications" of the new car appear every few days, only to be characterized as "unofficial" in messages from Detroit. The automobile business was reported slightly slower during the week, with sales of old and new cars continuing to lag.

Warm weather was a deterrant factor in some lines, notably the fuel trade. Bituminous coal has felt the effect of unseasonably high temperatures, which have added somewhat to the softness of prices following the end of miners' strikes in Illinois and Indiana. Large amounts of the fuel are reported on middle-western sidings awaiting billing.

Car loadings were at the peak for the year, but they continued to fall far behind the record for 1926, revenue freight shipments for the first 10 months of the year have dropped more than 500,000 tons below the figures for the same period of last year, although showing a gain of more than 1,000,000 tons over the same 10 months of 1925.

Textiles moved rather slowly, with the mills showing strong persistence to price concessions. Cotton goods again were quiet, reflecting the unsettled condition of the speculative cotton market.

The warm weather was reported as excellent for the corn crop, and seeding of winter wheat was advanced. Cotton picking was progressing in practically all sections of the belt. Prices of both wheat and corn stiffened in reflection of increased grain exports.

Retail trade was somewhat retarded by the warm weather, but mail order sales continued to mount. Little change was recorded in the lumber industry. Lower tire prices featured the week's developments in the rubber division.

Credit conditions were little changed, although money was somewhat more plentiful in the leading financial centers, largely owing to huge interest and dividend disbursements at the beginning of the month.

Bank clearings were materially above those of the preceding week, as well as the corresponding week of last year.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

It is a good thing for the Broad- way theatre that the laughs in the nonsense opera "Now We're in the Air" are so evenly spaced. Hysteria, with possible serious consequences to the patrons, would be the result if they were not. Beery and Hatton have done the impossible and topped all their previous successes. "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now," and "Firemen, Save My Child."

Beery and Hatton become aviators when their clothes are blown off when they get in front of a battery of air- plane propellors on the testing blocks at a flying field.

They fall in love with twin sisters, one of whom has been raised a Ger- man, the other a French girl. Many of their difficulties arise over their inability to tell their sweethearts apart, which is not surprising when it is considered that the same Louise Brooks plays both parts capably and charmingly.

The gags are new and frequent throughout the picture and will raise Beery and Hatton to a still higher plane as laugh purveyors. They have splendid support in the cast, which includes Malcolm Waite, as the Ger- man spy, Duke Martin as the top ser- geant, hardboiled as usual, Emile Chautard and Russell Simpson.

"Now We're in the Air" is good for a laugh in any language. Don't miss seeing it. It will be shown at the Broadway theatre until Wednes- day night.

Bijou Theatre.

For two years we have waited for the William Fox film version of "What Price Glory"—and it was worth wait- ing for. At the Bijou theatre last night, where this magnificent dramat- ic comedy of the war opened a week's engagement, the packed theatre fair- ly shouted its approval.

With the limitations of the stage play cast aside, with Raoul Walsh set- ting his camera to visualize the hates, passions and loves of the war, there is a necessity that we place this screen entertainment at the top of the list of best motion pictures of the year.

"What Price Glory" is marked by one of the greatest performances ever flashed upon the screen, that of Vic- tor McLaglen, the hard boiled cap- tain of the Marines, who gives a por- trayal which is astounding. In fact, you cannot imagine anyone else in this marvelous role after seeing Mc- Laglen's performance. Edmund Lowe, as the shifty Sergeant Quirt, also g

CARELESS NEW LONDON MERCHANTS INVITE VISITS FROM BURGLARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 6—Another burglary was discovered this forenoon when the store of Harry Plomaritis, 128 Willetts avenue, was found to have been entered during Saturday night. From the nature of the burglary it is evident it is another of the many breaks perpetrated by youths of late. The loot obtained is so trivial that more than a passing investigation will probably not be made. The police received a telephone message this morning that the Plomaritis store had been broken into. Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case and went to the store where he found Plomaritis. He said that so far as he could determine the only plunder obtained was a quantity of candy and about $1, which was taken from a cash register. An inspection of the store showed that the crooks gained access by means of a lavatory window that had not been locked when the store was closed last midnight.

The carelessness of merchants or their employes in not securing their respective places of business when the stores or offices are closed at night was revealed Saturday morning when officers reporting off duty at police headquarters gave in reports of several instances of this form of carelessness. Patrolman Lewis Tooker had found two windows in the office of the Pequot Coal company, Howard street, open and he had aroused the watchman and caused the place to be made secure. Patrolman Elwood Bailey had discovered the entrance to the Overland Sales service, 367 Bank street unlocked and had remedied that condition. The officer also discovered the door of the gasoline dispensing tank of the Federal Tire company, Bank street, unlocked and had secured in so that autoists could not help themselves to supplies of fuel.

TELEPHONE MEN GET FRESH, LATER GET FINES OF $25

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 6—John A. Saunders and John Heroley, were in the police court Saturday charged with intoxication and breach of the peace and were fined $25 and costs, each. Saunders and Heroley are employed by the Southern New England Telephone company. Friday night they were in front of the Crown theatre when the last performance was concluded. They started to amuse themselves by accosting young women as they emerged from the playhouse. They approached Mrs. John M. Mallon Jr., and her companion and annoyed them by their attentions. The two men annoyed another couple. Saunders and Heroley were arrested by Patrolmen Michael Dorsey and Elwood Bailey, being compelled to occupy cells at police headquarters until the convening of the police court.

CAR TOOK ZIG ZAG COURSE, SO DRIVER WAS ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 6—James E. Sweet, 40, a machinist in the employ of the New London Ship & Engine company, and residing at the Nelseco hotel, Groton, was arrested last night charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor. He furnished a surety on his bond of $150 and was released pending the convening of the police court Monday morning. Sweet was driving on Main street about 11:30 o'clock when the course taken by the car attracted the attention of Acting Sergeant William Graham and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin. The officers halted Sweet and discovered that Sweet was intoxicated. He was taken to police headquarters and locked up and his auto was placed in storage.

The work of painting the exterior of the city hall has been completed, the painters occupying but a week to perform the task, which has resulted in a noticeable improvement to the building.

The smallest crowd of visitors to Ocean beach in many months was that at the shore this afternoon. There were but few autoists and they did not remain long because of the disagreeable weather conditions. The wind was cold and damp and penetrating. The number carried by trolley was also small. During the morning several mussel fishermen were at the westerly end of the beach but they were not very successful in their search for this variety of sea-food.

In the police court Monday morning a case is scheduled to be tried, the result of which is awaited with interest by operators of public service automobiles. The Union Cab company will fight the action of the police who arrested one of their drivers, who parked the cab of which he was in charge in front of the company's office, State street and refused to drive the cab away when ordered to do so by the police. The cab company is represented by counsel and the day after the arrest of the driver, a continuance was ordered until tomorrow in order that the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky could study the city's ordinance regulating the parking of public service cabs. The driver arrested was John Ramistella, who drove to the Union station for the purpose of parking his cab. When he arrived at the stand, designated by ordinance for the parking of public service vehicles, the stand was occupied so that Ramistella could not enter the stand with his cab. Ramistella then drove to State street, near the corner of Bank street, where he parked the auto, but in front of his employers' office. Patrolman Lawrence Fardy, who had orders to compel drivers to refrain from parking their cabs at that point, ordered Ramistella to drive the cab away and when he refused to do so he was arrested. The cab stand will accommodate about nine autos and as the Union Cab company itself has 15, to say nothing of a score of other public cabs, often several of the cabs cannot be parked at the designated stand and that is what occurred which brought about the arrest of Ramistella. If the police are right in arresting Ramistella, then it becomes necessary for a cab driver to drive his cab to a garage if the public service stand is occupied for if it is a violation of the law for a public service auto to be parked on State street, anywhere other than the public service stand or a section of that space in the rear of the Soldiers and Sailors monument, is unlawful to park the auto on any street of the city, whether the cab is being used for public hire or for private business. In fact it would be a violation of the law if a driver of a cab parked the automobile in front of his residence while he partook of his breakfast, dinner or supper. Attorney Thomas E. Troland, director of law in the employ of the city, is the attorney who represents the Union Cab company. The company pays into the treasury of the city several thousands of dollars in taxes and its officials declare that they are entitled to certain protection, if for nothing more than as taxpayer for a large sum.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

BODY OF DROWNED WOMAN FLOATING OFF ORIENT PT.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 6—The body of a woman was found floating off Orient Point beach tonight and the police of this city have been requested to make inquiry in an effort to ascertain the identity of the woman. The body is described as that of a woman being about 50, gray hair and wore a house dress and night dress, black button shoes and black stockings; upper false plate in mouth and arch supporters. The police of Greenport have taken charge of the body and in a report made to the New London police they state that the body had been in the water but a short time. The police here have no knowledge of any woman by the description of the drowned woman as missing from this city, in fact no woman has been reported missing except a married woman about 30, who disappeared from her home about a month or six weeks ago and who, since, has been reported as being with relatives in Massachusetts. If the woman had been in the water but a short time when her body was recovered there is every reason to believe that she was some one who resided on the Long Island shore.

An automobile owned and driven by William J. Stanton, of Waterford, was struck by an unidentified automobile on the New London-Norwich turnpike tonight, the auto driven by Stanton being driven off the highway and into a lot. Stanton identified the colliding auto as being a Chrysler machine, but was unable to secure the registration because of the driver speeding away. He made a report of the accident at police headquarters and stated that his auto was a complete wreck and that he had suffered an injury to his hand.

Henry Burd, Lieutenant United States Coast Guard, of Wachapreague, Va., and Miss Elizabeth Farrington Clark, of this city were married Saturday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

Fred Horn, of 109 Golden street, reported to the police this evening that his daughter, Hazel, 9, is missing from home and requested that he be given assistance in finding her. When the girl disappeared she had a black and white coat with gray fur collar, tan hat, brown shoes and tan stockings. She was in the vicinity of her home at 8 o'clock this morning, but since then all trace of her has been lost.

JULIAN L. WILLIAMS' CAR IS FOUND ABANDONED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 6—A Buick sedan found abandoned off Mohegan avenue, Friday by Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray has been determined to be the property of J. L. Williams, Norwich Town. The car has been placed in storage and is awaiting claiming by the owner.

Guests at the Hotel Mohican, especially those occupying apartments from season to season, made a note of the fact Sunday that the date was the third anniversary of the arrival at the hotel of Mrs. Mary T. Johnson. Mrs. Johnson had come from Chicago to visit relatives in Lenox, Mass., when she became ill with appendicitis, undergoing a serious operation. On her recovery it was arranged by her son that she should occupy one of the very choice apartments in the hotel, a corner suite, comfortably and handsomely appointed. Here her health has greatly improved and every pleasant day she takes a long drive in her Packard car and otherwise is well and active. She received many congratulations Sunday. When in Norwich, Mrs. Johnson resided at 248 Broadway.

The traffic beacon, corner of Crystal avenue and Winthrop street, is out of commission. The beacon is located at one of the most dangerous traffic sections of the city and repairs will be made without delay.

Merrill company, Dexter, Me., communicated with the New London police, Saturday night, making inquiry whether a firm by the name of Harry J. Frank company, was doing business in this city. There is no such concern in New London and the Dexter company was notified to that effect.

The New London police Saturday night were requested to maintain a lookout for the driver of an automobile carrying Connecticut registration, 7952. The state police, Groton barracks, are seeking the arrest of the driver. Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolman Frank Philopena were detailed to the corner of Crystal avenue and Main street, for State Police Officer George Webber, who made the request said that the auto was headed toward New London. The officer did not see the car and it is believed that it did not come to New London, but if it did it took a course around the outskirts of the city.

Carl Hutchings, 361 Broad street was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Elwood Bailey charged with violation of the city's ordinances in parking his auto on the east side of Bank street, which is restricted to parking this month. Hutchings furnished a bond for his appearance in the police court Monday morning.

The authorities of Coventry have requested the New London police to be on the lookout for two runaway boys, Frank Bennett, 16, and Frank Duza, 17, who ran away from home Friday.

Mrs. Howard Bishop and infant daughter, of 21 Huntington street; Earl DeWolfe, 22 South Ledyard street; Alfred Kabanuk, 13 Twelfth street and Mrs. Kirby Potter, 107 Pequot avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

An automobile owned by Mrs. Leroy N. Nash, of Riverview avenue and a big auto-truck of the Gardner Storage company driven by Earl Parks, 46 Raymond street, collided on Truman street, near Blackhall street, Saturday afternoon. The pleasure auto bore the brunt of the damage. The accident occurred when the truck was being driven from the storage company's driveway to the street.

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless and reliable, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill throughout the system. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, and without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. Castoria is delicious! Your own tongue will tell you why "Children Cry for It." Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's the least sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea. Or whenever there's need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Only one word of warning: the above is true of genuine Castoria.* Fletcher's is the original. Other preparations may or may not be as pure, as free from a single doubtful drug. Physicians tell parents to get Fletcher's Castoria, and no child of this writer's is going to test any other kind. I'll save a dime some other way.

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

MONTVILLE INJUNCTION SUIT BEFORE COMMON PLEAS

The injunction suit and $500 damage action instituted by Peter Doroshevich of Montville, against Mike Koleda, of the same place was tried in the court of common pleas at New London Saturday before Judge Charles B. Waller with Attorneys Perry J. Hollandersky and Foster K. Sistare, representing the defendant.

The plaintiff complains on two counts, one that on July 15, 1927, the defendant centered upon his property and erected seven posts and planned to erect seven more for the purpose of building a fence. The plaintiff claims that this was done "intentionally, without right or title."

The second alleges that the defendant on July 14, 1927, tore down a fence.

Judge Waller some time ago issued a temporary injunction restraining the defendant or his agents from entering upon and placing any more posts on the plaintiff's property.

The plaintiff seeks a permanent injunction and an order of the court compelling the defendant to take the seven posts from the property.

The defendant denies the allegations.

The Bravery of Mrs. Peter.

You'll find where danger is most grave
The timid often are most brave.
— Old Mother Nature.

Little Mrs. Peter was feeling a whole lot better. Now that she had company, she didn't miss Peter so much. In fact, for two or three days she almost forgot what she had come up to the Old Pasture for. You see, she had found one of her grown children, Little Peter, and with him was Mrs. Pete. She and Mrs. Pete had become the best of friends. While Little Pete was off exploring in the Old Pasture, Mrs. Peter and Mrs. Pete spent their time together hunting for good things to eat and gossiping. Already Mrs. Peter had become very fond of Mrs. Pete.

Now, in places in the Old Pasture are patches of sweet clover. Some of these places are quite open. Late one afternoon Mrs. Pete had gone out to one of these open places for some sweet clover. Mrs. Pe er was on her way to join her there. Just as she was about to leave the shelter of the bushes, she caught a glimpse of a sharp nose among the bushes, a little bit to one side. It seemed to her that her heart stopped beating for a minute. She knew that nose. There was no mistaking it. She had seen it too many times to be the least bit in doubt. It was the nose of Reddy Fox.

Mrs. Peter looked over to where little Mrs. Pete was eating sweet clover. Her back was to Reddy Fox. The wind was from her to Reddy. It was clear that she did not suspect danger. Mrs. Peter looked back at Reddy. He was just beginning to steal out. His whole head was beyond the bushes now. His eyes were fixed on Mrs. Pete, and such an eager, hungry look as there was in those eyes. He was grinning just a little. His black ears were cocked forward. He moved ever so slowly. Each black foot was put down so carefully that there wasn't the slightest sound. A few feet more and he would be within jumping distance. Even now it was doubtful if Mrs. Pete would have time to reach safety if she were given a warning. Mrs. Peter could thump the danger signal, but she knew that Reddy Fox would understand that signal also and that he would waste no time when he heard it.

He crouched flat down and waited

"Oh dear! What can I do? What can I do?" cried Mrs. Peter under her breath.

Then she did a very brave thing. She hopped right out in the open. She hopped exactly as if she didn't see Reddy at all. At the first move on her part, Reddy turned. Such a queer look as there was on his face. He crouched flat down and waited. It was plain that he didn't know just what to do. Here were two rabbits, either of which he might get. He didn't know whether to keep on after the one he had started for, or whether to lie still where he was and wait for this other one to come nearer.

He decided to wait, for little Mrs. Peter had begun to nibble clover and was nibbling right straight toward him. Very slowly, very carefully, he managed to turn partly toward her.

"I declare," said Reddy to himself, "that looks for all the world like Mrs. Peter Rabbit. But what is she doing up here? I didn't suppose she could be induced to leave the dear Old Briarpatch. Well, it looks like a rabbit dinner for me this time. If Mrs. Reddy had only come along, as I wanted her to, we would have two rabbits instead of one."

Now, as Mrs. Peter slowly hopped along, stopping between hops for a bite of clover, she was hopping toward Reddy, but she was also moving nearer to the bushes. If Reddy should remain right where he was, and she should keep right on where she was heading, she would pass between Reddy and bushes. When she saw out of the corner of her eyes that Reddy was giving all of his attention to her, she felt greatly relieved. She was getting to the danger point now. She reached out and nibbled a leaf of sweet clover. Then, suddenly, with her hindfeet, she stamped the danger signal with all her might, and darted for the nearest bushes.

Patrick Downing of Derby is spending a few days at the home of his sister Mrs. Dennis J. Sullivan of North Main street.

Louis Geer and Wallace Atterbury of Fourth street attended the Dartmouth-Brown football game at Providence Saturday.

Saturday morning the housewives in the village were informed by a local milkman that he had decided to ship his milk to a Hartford creamery. This man's daily milk output was 350 quarts. On hearing the sad news and unprepared for such, men, women and children were seeking milkmen to take them as r gular customers. Some of the milkmen had to go to nearby towns to get extra milk.

Tyler Stanton, a traveling salesman for a large paper concern in New York city is spending a few days at his home on Boswell avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stephenson have returned to their home on Boswell avenue after enjoying a ten day automobile trip through the states of New York and New Jersey, taking in points of interest in both states.

John McCarthy of Southbridge spent the week end at his home on Hickory street.

Mabel McKinley of Providence spent the week end calling on friends in the village.

Merton Rangeford of Southbridge spent the week end at the home of his aunt, Mrs. G. Church of Mowry avenue.

The Misses Mary and Elizabeth Mallon of the Baltic Academy spent the week end at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mallon of Convent avenue. They had as their guest, Miss Eleanor Seward.

John Goldblatt, George Morris and Maurice Piche attended a dance at the community house in Plainfield Friday evening.

A number of local people witnessed the disaster caused by the break in the dam at Sterling. Through traffic to Providence was completely cut off at this point. Jewett City people recalled the flood of '89, which did similar damage to the borough at that time.

Mrs. Raymond Russell of Providence has returned to her home after spending a few days with Miss Rose Malone of Central avenue.

Miss Gertrude Fontaine has returned to West Hartford after spending a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fontaine of Central avenue.

People were taking pictures Sunday on the Preston bridge of the Greeneville dam, which is at present a pretty site. The water is eight feet over the dam, owing to the trouble north of Greeneville. A man is on duty at the gate house in case of an emergency. The rising of the river kept up Friday and Saturday, but on Sunday it lowered to some extent. Minchan's Island for the past two days has been under water but the tree tops could be seen Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith of New Britain spent the week end with relatives on Tenth street.

Stanley Boyd of Fifth street attended the Yale Maryland game at New Haven Saturday.

Frank E. Halyburton of Fourteenth street and Harry Conklin of Central avenue left town on Wednesday for a ten day trip to Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, Md. While in Baltimore they will visit Mr. Halyburton's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mellar, former Greeneville residents.

Mrs. Charles Levitsky and daughter Viola, were recent visitors in Hartford.

Milton Osborne of Sixth street recently purchased a two tenement house which was formerly owned by Mrs. C. D. Browning.

The Greeneville Hunting club, which for the past few years always plan to be in the woods of Preston the first two weeks of November left Saturday for their hunting grounds. They will make their headquarters at Mrs. Johnson's home in Preston City.

Miss Helen Drescher, clerk of the probate court has returned to her home at 359 Central avenue after spending two weeks vacation visiting relatives in Springfield, Pittsfield and Boston. She also had a delightful automobile trip over the Mohawk trail and to the Berkshires.

William Carey and Amos Miner attended a coon supper Friday evening in Lisbon.

TAFTVILLE

The monthly business meeting of the St. Jean Baptiste society was held Sunday afternoon at Parish hall. There was an unusually large attendance, and the president, Desire J. Dufresne of Norwich was in the chair.

The carnival being given for the benefit of the Sacred Heart church under the auspices of the Army and Navy club was continued Saturday evening at the Parish hall. A large crowd attended to patronize the various booths and enjoy the dancing, for which Dave Lyons orchestra played until midnight.

Castle Perilous, No. 3747, Knights of King Arthur have received notice of the sudden death of Dr. William Byron Forbush, founder of the order and holder of the office of Page Merlin. The death of Dr. Forbush occurred quite suddenly, and details are lacking at this time.

The members of Troop 3, Boy Scouts held a meeting Friday evening in the recreation room of the Taftville Congregational church. Scoutmaster Victor H. Davis was in charge and there were 18 of the troop present. The evening was devoted to the study of games and recreation from a new text book received by Scoutmaster Davis.

Thurston Campbell of Germania avenue has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the local mills.

Miss Elsie Heap of South Second avenue left Sunday to pass the second week of her annual vacation as the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Heap of Adams, Mass.

Hunters who were out in the woods over the week end reported that the shooting has become somewhat better as large quantities of the leaves have fallen. Because of the heavy rain, however, the brooks and larger streams are overflowing, and many of the meadows and fields have been turned into swamps, making travel difficult for sportsmen.

Robert B. Schmidt of Bilsville has entered the employ of the Schwartzenbach-Huber corporation of Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hindle and son Edmund of North Third avenue spent the week end with friends in Providence, R. I.

Special music was sung by the choir under the direction of Miss Nellie S. Howes, organist and choir leader. The regular weekly meeting of the members of the Young Peoples' society of Christian Endeavor was held in the evening in the church vestry. The topic discussed was "War" and the leader was Robert B. Schmidt.

George Serus, the president, presided at the monthly meeting of the members of Branch 98, Polish Workers Mutual Sick Aid association held Sunday afternoon at their rooms on Norwich avenue.

VOLUNTOWN WOMAN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE ON ROAD IN GRISWOLD

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Henry Hindon, 39, of Voluntown was instantly killed Sunday evening while walking on the road near Asher Popples' home in Griswold. Andrew Gauthier, 22, of Glasgo, who drove the automobile which hit her stated that she stepped into the road from behind a machine which was parked beside the road. This machine was parked halfway onto the highway and when the accident occurred disappeared, going toward Jewett City. The driver apparently knew that he was at fault in causing the accident.

Gauthier summoned Dr. H. T. Thurber of Voluntown who found that the woman was dead and called Medical Examiner G. H. Jennings of Jewett City. The body was brought to Gilbert's undertaking rooms here where Dr. Jennings performed an autopsy. Coroner J. J. Desmond was notified and will investigate. Deputy Sheriff Dolan was notified and took the statements of Mr. Gauthier and the three young men who were with him in the machine.

Mr. and Mrs. Hindon came to Voluntown from Douglas, Mass., last spring. Mr. Hindon operates the sawmill which is cutting the timber sold by the Briggs Mfg. Co. to Childs and Whipple. A daughter, Mrs. Henry Ballou, lives in Voluntown. Mrs. Hindon has made many friends who speak of her in the highest terms of regard.

PUTNAM MAN TO BE ARRAIGNED FOR SENTENCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 6.—Peter Lee, 19, of Farrows street, Putnam, Conn., found guilty of driving an automobile in a manner so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public in connection with a fatal accident, will be arraigned late this week or early next week for sentence before Judge Arthur F. Butterworth in the Worcester county superior criminal court here.

Lee was the driver of an automobile which left the highway in Dudley, Mass., crashing into a tree while traveling at a high rate of speed, and inflicting injuries which resulted in the death of Sheldon W. Carpenter, also of Putnam, on March 6 of this year. Gordon Caffrey, 20, and Delbert Woodis, 18, both of Putnam, who were also in the automobile at the time, were witnesses in the trial here last week. The defense maintained that the accident was caused by the locking of a wheel when the machine skidded on a curve.

PLAN CITY DECORATIONS FOR CHRISTMAS SEASON

According to an announcement from the office of the Norwich chamber of commerce plans are now underway for decorating the city and business session section for the Christmas holiday season. The special committee in charge of the work comprises John M. Lee, chairman, Roy D. Judd, and H. B. Cory. Arrangements have been made with a reliable concern for the sale of Oregon pine for the decorations. This material is put up in streamers and strung from pole to pole. Wreaths are to be intersected between the poles. This material has been tested by the fire underwriters and approved from a safety standpoint. It has a life of about six weeks and it is expected to complete the installation not later than December 3d.

Colored lighting in Franklin square has been arranged for through the courtesy of the Norwich gas and electrical department.

G. AND S. WITHDRAWS APPEAL OVER HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

Due to the fact that the construction work on the new concrete highway between Stonington and Westerly has progressed so far that any changes in the bed now would incur prohibitive costs, officials of the Groton & Stonington Traction Co., which had appealed an order of the highway commission relative to changing tracks and wires of that company at a cost of about $15,000, have withdrawn the appeal and accordingly a hearing before the public utilities commission scheduled at Hartford was not held Friday.

Contending that the state highway department could have constructed as good a road without affecting the trolley company property so seriously led officials of the company to make the appeal and was set by the public utilities commission for the hearing.

President Robert W. Perkins, together with counsel for the company and other officials recently made a survey of the situation and came to the conclusion that the work had progressed to such an extent now that any changes in the road bed would be out of the question. In view of this opinion it was decided to withdraw the appeal and make the best of the situation, despite the fact that the financial condition of the trolley company is not any too healthy and an expenditure of $15,000 at this time, without specific benefit to the trolley company, might meet with stiff opposition by the stockholders.

According to officials of the trolley company the proposed changes as ordered by the highway commission are stretched over a distance of about 4,000 feet. In some places along the new road the trolley grading is changed with the new road as much as six to eight feet and in some instances it will be necessary to move the trolley tracks as much as 50 feet.

The understanding is that the trolley company has to pay the total cost of moving its wires and tracks and half the cost of grading, the other half being paid by the state.

BOYS TO COMPETE IN Y. M. C. A. AQUATIC MEET

The town and country branch of the New London Y. M. C. A. is planning for its annual aquatic meet, to be held in the swimming pool of the central branch there Saturday afternoon, Dec. 3. The state meet will again be held in Torrington this year, and will come Saturday, Dec. 10th, and the meet in New London will be in the nature of a try-out for the boys of this section for entries in the state meet. There will also be ribbons for the winners of the first three places in the meet, and the possibility of a cup for the team making the most points.

A charge in the policy of the meet will be inaugurated this year in that each entrant will come as representing some organization, either a school, church, class or club, and the points by individuals will be credited also to the organization he represents and an award given the winning organization.

Entrants will be divided into the usual three classes of juniors, intermediates and seniors, according to age, weight and height, and the events to be run will include for the juniors 40-yard breast stroke, 40-yard back stroke, 40-yard free style, 160-yard relay for four men and diving events; for the intermediates: 80-yard breast stroke, 80-yard back stroke, 80-yard free style, 160-yard relay for four men and diving events, and for seniors, 40-yard free style, 100-yard breast stroke, 100-yard free style, 100-yard back stroke, 220-yard free stroke, 160-yard relay for four men, a medley relay for three, the first to swim 40 yards breast stroke, the second 40 yards back stroke and the third 40 yards free style, and the diving events.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE TO SELECT DIRECTOR CANDIDATES

The appointment of a nominating committee has been announced by President James L. Case of the Norwich chamber of commerce. Those on the committee are Edwin A. Harris, chairman, C. Edward Smith, Arthur L. Peale, A. M. VanWagenen and Guy B. Dolbeare. The committee will make a complete study of the chamber roster in making their selection of the six candidates to be voted on for directors. Members who have suggestions to offer have been requested to make them known to the committee within the next few days.

The annual meeting is scheduled for Monday evening November 21st.

LOSES SUIT FOR DEED TO "COLVER HOMESTEAD"

Lawrence Thompson of Groton who sues Lizzie L. Sheldon of Ledyard to oblige her to give him a deed of the so-called Colver Homestead at Center Groton had decision rendered against him by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court Friday, when the judge handed down judgment for the defendant, without costs.

Thompson claimed that he made an agreement on Nov. 12, 1926, to buy the property for $5,500, that he tendered the money on Feb. 13, 1927, but the defendant declined to produce a deed for the property.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Brown says:

In this action the plaintiff seeks a decree of specific performance to compel the defendant to convey to him real estate in Center Groton, consisting of a farm and an adjoining store property. The vital question raised by the defense is as to whether the agreement is within the statute of frauds. It reads: "Nov. 12, 1926, Lawrence Thompson bought farm known as Colver Homestead located at Center Groton—store included—at the price of $5,500, fifty-five hundred dollars, cash to be paid as soon as papers are made out. Sold by Lizzie L. Sheldon."

That this writing was signed by the defendant; that there were at the time three places in Center Groton known as "the Colver Homestead;" that she then owned one of the three and owned no other real estate in the town; that there was a lot with a store building thereon known as "the Lester store" which on two sides adjoined the Colver Homestead property owned by her, and was separated therefrom by a stone wall, are contradicted facts upon the evidence.

By the decisions in this state some very refined distinctions have been drawn in applying the statute to the various sets of facts presented. Had the words "store included" been no part of this agreement, upon the facts of this case, I should have much doubt whether to hold it to be within the statute, in the light of the supreme court's opinion in Gendelman vs. Mongillo that the description "a piece of land in M" is "clearly within the statute," or to reach the opposite conclusion, having in mind its expressed approval of the conclusion of the Massachusetts court that the description "a house and lot in Amity street, Lynn," where parol evidence disclosed that the vendor owned but one house and lot on Amity street, was not within the statute.

The agreement as written, however, obviously has as its subject matter two items, "the Colver Homestead" and "the store." Whatever doubt there may be as to whether the former item is within or without the statutes, it is clear that the latter is within it and therefore the plaintiff cannot prevail in this proceeding. Under our rule, in order to take such a case out of the statute the memorandum must "contain a sufficient description to evidence a common intent of the parties to deal with a particular piece of property as distinguished from other property. This insofar, at least as the store is concerned, the memorandum here fails to do.

Judgment may be entered for the defendant, without costs.

WEAK-KNEED CATHOLICS REBUKED BY FR. REILLY

Taking his text from the gospel for the twenty-second Sunday after Pentecost, Matt. 22. 15-21, which he had just read, "Whose image and superscription is this?" Rev. John J. Reilly, preaching at the third mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, likened to the Herodians of old those modern Catholics who show themselves time-serving, apologetic. It was one of the most dramatic of moments when Jesus put the query to the disciples of the Pharisees and the Herodians, as though He were unaware of the existence of Caesar in his palace on the Palatine. Roman gold was then the standard of the known world; but it was not for information the Saviour inquired of those in the multitude—rather to give them a rebuke.

As the Jews had their Herodians, there have been those of similar type down to the present day, when certain weak, timid Catholics appear to revel in the sunshine of the friendship and approval of those outside the Catholic church. They seem to apologize for their faith, their church, its doctrines and practices. He urged such to remember that they had the prestige of faith, background, church, religion. The church needs no apologists for its doctrine, its history; for both it has its authority in such leaders as St. Thomas, Leo XIII. In modern examples it has such outstanding figures as the ambassador from France, the British ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, both edifying Washington by being daily communicants. They bear the image of Christ in act and influence. Father Reilly's hearers were admonished to be real Catholics, not by boasting, but through lives of piety, purity, temperance.

Later Father Reilly assisted Rev. Myles P. Galvin in giving holy communion to nearly two thirds of the great congregation. The cards signed by those intending to join the new Catholic Mission Aid society for the propagation of the world-faith were collected in numbers, at the offertory.

Given Birthday Party.

A birthday party was held Friday evening on Cahoon street, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Rogers in honor of their daughter, Virginia. A supper was served at six o'clock, followed by games and music by an orchestra consisting of Mary Louise Hull, and Virginia Rogers, piano, Robert Glasberner and Charles Rogers, violin.

Those attending the party were Elizabeth McMahon, Shirley Aldrich, Pearl Weisgraber, Mary Louise Hull, Dorothy Ladd, Mary Love, Madeline Plaskett, Janis Treat and Virginia Rogers. There were also relatives from New London, Mr. and Mrs. Jay W. Rogers, and Mrs. Charles Moore of this city. Miss Virginia received many presents.

Judgment in $2,500 Suit.

Judgment in the amount of $2,500 and costs not to exceed $75 was granted the Yale Tire and Rubber Co. of New Haven by Judge John R. Booth in the superior court here in a suit to recover payment for goods purchased against William Milesky of this city, former tire dealer, who has discontinued his business.

The New Haven firm's claim was for tires and other rubber goods purchased by Mileski while he was in business, but for which it was alleged, he failed to make remittance.

GAS METER BLOWS UP, FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED

Saturday morning at 11.18 o'clock the fire department answered a telephone call for a small blaze at No. 110 North Main street in the building owned and occupied by Morris J. Anderson. The fire was caused by a water seal on a gas line not having any water in it to prevent pressure from an oxygen tank which is used in conjunction with the gas to increase the heat supply. Although the gas meter was blown to pieces the damage to the building was slight. Six gallons of chemical were used on the blaze.

Halloween Party.

A delightful Halloween party was given Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Rose Lusignan, 19 Dunham street, for their daughter, Eunice. Games and musical selections were enjoyed, prizes being awarded. Those attending were Eunice Lusignan, Mary Gross, Pearl Fowler, Stella Leobeiz, Patience Parker, Desire Parker, Doris L'Heurux, Blanch Gadue, Walter Burgess, Normand MacQuarrie, Melvin Fowler. The guest of honor was Junior Morris of Richmond, Va.

POETRY

The Vision Splendid

He had a vision splendid,
This youth of common clay;
He dreamed, and then set out to be Uncommon all the way—
Uncommon in his private thought,
Uncommon in his aim,
Uncommon in his daily life,
All in The Master's Name!
For years he struggled day and night
To make the vision fact,
To make it his and his alone,
Conscious of much he lacked!
And when at last he had attained,
And fame was his to own,
He bowed his head, "Dear Lord," he said
"The praise is Thine alone,
The vision Thine, Thou gavest it,
Time, strength, and all to be
The human agent of the task
Thyself hast wrought through me!"
And thus the vision splendid
In the yearning soul of man
Has led the race to do and dare
Since history began.

OUR OLD VERMONT THORN-APPLE TREE.

Down through the pasture near the brook
It grew to tall perfection;
I went this way year to look
And test my recollection,
And get a line upon my heart
And note my soul-reaction,
And see if that old tree would show
Disdain or satisfaction.

There stood the tree my youth had known.
But wider spread and older grown;
Across the brook I made a sign
And neared it as I would a shrine;
I threw my cap upon the ground
And heard a sort of silent sound,
A whisper, as if that old tree
Expressed a wish to speak to me.

Said I, "Old Tree, please talk right on,
And do not call me Mister;
Just tell me how the world has gone
Since you beerthched my sister;
She had her playhouse 'neath these limbs
That o'er me now are bending,
Her little dishes and her dolls,
Her 'sewing' and her 'mending'."

The old tree's leaves began to stir,
It plainly asked some word of her;
It also made me understand
The graveyard near was once our land;
"I see few people now," it said,
"Excepting mourners with their dead,
And it's a fact—I must be frank—
I'm mortgaged to the savings bank."

"Old Friend, my sister dear is well,
But far away is dwelling;
She hears no more than I can tell
Whose call was so compelling;
She bade me bring her of your fruit
So ruby and so spicy
And tell you that her heart's not old,
Indifferent nor icy."

The old tree bowed its aging head
And with a farewell murmur said:
"Retain the thought and guard it too,
That in your father's field I grew;
Remember that his children played
Beneath my cool and brook-lulled shade,
And that upon my trunk I wear
The once-loved name you sculptured there."

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Shall we have the table duty?"

"No, I think I'll order carte blanche."—Lift.

"I should like to give my fiance a surprise. What do you suggest?"

"Tell him your age."—Pele Mele, Paris.

Help—But I haven't asked you for more salary before.

Boss—Of course not, and I never had reason to fire you.—Life.

Wife (looking up from magazine)—John, what is the meaning of "sophistry?"

Hub—Sophistry, my dear, is the other fellow's argument—Boston Transcript.

"Would you marry for wealth?"

"No," replied Miss Cayenne, "I still have a little old fashioned sentiment that resents regarding matrimony merely as a get-rich-quick scheme."—Washington Star.

Employer: (punctuating as he dictates): "Please ship us one carload of furniture, period."

New Stenographer (helpfully)—Don't you mean, "One carload of period furniture," Mr. Settle?—Wall Street Journal.

Coal Merchant—We'll have to stop mixin' slates and stones and old iron and other things with our coal.

Assistant—Why, sir? Any complaints?

Coal Merchant—No. The stuff won't burn. A ton lasts a customer nearly two years.—Weekly Scotsman.

They were quarreling, and the wife said to her husband:

"You were bright and sweet enough in summer at the seaside, you old bear! I'd just like to know how many girls you made love to at the hotel before you met me."

"Twelve," the man groaned, "but I didnt remember to count them until it was too late!"—Tit-Bits.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Some kinds of weeds may live as long as twenty-five years under favorable conditions.

It is a curious fact that of Mr. Dawes' twenty-nine predecessors in the vice-presidency the only one who survives is Calvin Coolidge, now president.

All workmen employed in constructing the new vaults of the Bank of England are sworn to secrecy as to the various methods employed to guard the treasure stores.

Saratov, Russia, a provincial city on the Volga, claims to have the greatest Esperanto library in the world. It contains about 10,000 volumes, compiled by a prominent Esperantist, Davidoff, and confiscated at the beginning of the revolution.

Ragusa, Dalmatia, a walled and battlemented town dating from the seventh century, has become a popular watering place. The town once had the reputation of being the sleepiest, laziest place in the world. Today the square is crowded with Germans.

Twenty-one stories of a twenty-two-story office building just completed in Chicago extend ten feet farther than the ground floor. The explanation is that the property carried a deed providing for a ten-foot runway along its west end for the convenience of the former owner's cow. Batteries of lawyers have never been able to break the clause.

FLOOD SUFFERERS DISPLAY REMARKABLE FORTITUDE

They Are Attacking the Task of Reconstruction in an Orderly Manner—Airplanes Continue to Deliver Medicine and Food to Dozens of Towns Struck by the Flood—Snow, Cold Winds and Fire Have Added to the Discomfiture of Residents of the Flooded Area—In Vermont a Blanket of Snow Has Covered Slimy Residue Left by the Receding Water.

BOSTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—Many agencies lending a helping hand in flood-damaged New England, with Vermont towns the chief objective, have turned from rescue to relief. Efforts to feed and clothe the sufferers bore increasing fruit today as those on the outside seeking to help the victims fought and won over many obstacles.

Trucks supplemented the faster airplanes of slight carrying capacity which have played a lone hand in the first rescue, flying with medicine and food to dozens of towns struck by the flood.

There are no roads in many places for the trucks to use but they pushed on anway and relieved several acute situations where food was at a minimum.

Bolton, one of Vermont's chief sufferers, however, remained practically cut off and faced a problem of going hungry unless a way can be found to furnish relief.

Major General Preston Brown, commanding the first corps area, who completed a survey from the air of the situation in northern Vermont, said tonight that the problem has become one of administration.

General Brown called the flood disaster the most serious that has come to the affected section. He paid high tribute to the spirit of the people. With an absence of anything approaching disorder he found the people attacking the task of reconstruction.

A pressing need, said the army officer, is to restore roads and railway tracks that communication may be re-established and supplies transported to those in need. He praised the early and effective coordination of relief agencies and threw the forces of the army into the effort of the Red Cross and state and municipal authorities.

Troops are assisting civil authorities in the emergency and the army is furnishing blankets, bedding and food. The efforts of all relief agencies were centered today in the Winooski valley where the need was greatest.

Many persons found themselves homeless in the lower reaches of the Connecticut river but their troubles were slight compared to those of their neighbors in the north.

Newport, Vermont—Isolated since Thursday, reported today that troops had been called to duty and the town was badly in need of yeast for bread making.

To add to the difficulties of two flooded towns today fire added its burden. At Ludlow, in Central Vermont, and Cambridge in the northwest, widely separate places, flames for a time presented an added menace. At Ludlow, the bakery an institution it could ill afford to lose, was burned.

Richford, too, found its bakery flooded when a check up was made.

The people were still too busy coming back to estimate losses and "millions" continued to be the only guess. General Brown after his flying trip of inspection refused to hazard a guess of the property damage he saw. Rutland, after taking stock in a superficial way, estimated its losses at more than $5,000,000.

Weeks of work lie ahead of repair workers who are trying to patch highways and piece together broken stretches of railroad track. Marooned passengers have been brought from the stalled railway trains and many of them sent on their way by improvised routes. Thirty-five passengers fled from a train at Mount Holly, Vt., when the flood waters approached and found safety in a farmhouse on a hill.

SUFFERING INCREASED BY SNOW AND BITING WINDS

WATERBURY, Vt., Nov. 7—(AP)—Snow and biting winds today added their share to the discomfort of hundreds and the actual suffering of many in the Winooski valley flood district of which this village is the center.

Over the slime that lies across these towns so deep that it is almost impossible to move from one to another even on foot, snow during the night laid a beautiful but treacherous mantle.

Mud holes that before could be seen and avoided became shielded from sight so that stumbling relief workers are tramping with food and medicine to outlying districts found their task made even more difficult than on preceding days.

In towns such as this the most of the population is living, huddled together by the hundreds in churches and school houses. The cold was not so great a problem, but between the towns, many of the isolated farm houses were entirely without heat and were still oozing water from the walls of rooms where men, women and children, some of them breaking in health from the strain of their suffering, had to live and sleep.

Emissaries of the Red Cross were circulating as quickly as they could among these houses with quinine, food, and kerosene, but the distances were great and the going hard. Many families, it was believed, must be suffering terribly and as yet had received no aid at all.

The snow also made the task of bringing in supplies and medicine over Smugglers Notch, in trucks, a perilous passage before, almost an impossibility now.

REPORT OF CONDITIONS OF FLOOD IN CONNECTICUT

Low-lying meadows lands and broadening span of the river banks had materially spent the volume and strength of the Connecticut river flood peak in this state today. As the high level continued towards the mouth of the river, much at its volume became spent in the extensive low areas along its course from Hartford on southward.

In the capital city, the flood was on the ebb and increasing droppage was registered as the water gradually fell away leaving exposed the battered water-logged homes in East Hartford and Hartford. Families there today, driven from more than 300 homes, were amply provided for in relief centers and they awaited anxiously the moment when they might return to their dwellings and survey the extent of their losses.

Although the river had reached 26 feet above normal in Middletown, the highest level in 50 years, less than 100 persons were forced to vacate their homes. The main part of the town is wel elevated and only the section along the river front suffered badly. Last night the town lay in darkness except for the feeble sputter of a few candle sand oil lamps, but it was hoped that power would be brought in from Leesville before darkness settled in today.

The main crest of the flood had advanced as far as Deep River, where the rise was reported to be within three inches of the 29 foot mark set in 1354. Transportation by rail and water was out of the question, but manufacturing operations had not been interrupted and power plants were operating all of their circuits.

RELIEF HEADQUARTERS IN EAST HARTFORD FILLED

HARTFORD, Nov. 7—(AP)—Snow flurries and northwest winds today drove from their marooned homes many people in the flood district who had planned to remain on guard over their dampened belongings. Relief headquarters in East Hartford were filled to capacity, and a block of five had dropped six inches and at 6 o'clock tenements has been engaged. The river stood at 28 feet six inches.

Community nurses, Red Cross workers and a charitable public have combined their forces to allay the suffering, hunger and misery. Physicians went about by boat visiting patients who could not be moved.

CARCASSES OF COWS ARE PLENTIFUL IN VERMONT

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 7—(AP)—The carcasses of dead cattle destroyed in the flood in the Winooski valley are mute evidence of the stunning loss to farmers along the lowlands. The Vermont Rendering company's disposal plant, which serves the entire state, has received requests to handle over 3,000 dead cows from a comparatively small area embracing Richmond, Williston and other towns.

Bad roads and the destruction of many small bridges make it impossible to handle the carcasses in many cases. Champlain Transportation company steamers are transporting people from Burlington to New York state and those coming to the city, taking care of usual Rutland railroad and Central Vermont passengers.

SOVIET CONSULATE AT SHANGHAI ATTACKED

SHANGHAI, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Celebration here of the tenth anniversary of the bolshevik revolution of 1917 was marked by an attack upon the soviet consulate by "white" Russians, with the resultant death of at least one person and the injury of 11 others.

With the attacking mob dispersed, police tonight were patrolling the neighborhood of the consulate and no further disorder was expected. However as an additional safety measure heavy police patrolmen were stationed in the Chapei district, which is heavily populated by Russians, in order to prevent the gathering of further mobs.

The riot began during a reception in the consular building in honor of the anniversary. A group of white Russians, representing the classes that were expelled after the bolsheviks gained control, gathered about the building. As the crowd grew and began surging toward the doors of the building, some of its members hurling bricks at windows and attempting to break in the barred door, shots were fired from inside over the heads of the crowd.

When the first pistol shots failed to disperse the crowd, the aim was lowered and individuals began to fall. Police said tonight that one man was killed and one woman and ten men were wounded.

OBITUARY

John Franklin Wade

BRISTOL, Conn., Nov. 7—(AP)—Mayor John Franklin Wade died this afternoon from heart trouble with which he had suffered acutely since last night. Earlier in the day it was thought by his attending physicians that he would recover but a relapse at noon brought the end at 2 o'clock.

Mayor Wade was seized last night with what was first thought to be indigestion. His condition became worse and a physician was summoned from Hartford by his own doctor for consultation it was found that the heart was involved in the attack.

Mayor Wade had served three terms and last month had been re-elected in spite of his desire not to run again for his fourth term. He was also Bristol's first mayor, after the city was incorporated in 1910.

Mr. Wade was born in Georgia 67 years ago. He came here in 1889 as a laborer and worked for the New Departure company advancing until he was superintendent in 1904.

A widow and four children survive.

William Henry White

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Nov. 7—(AP)—William Henry White, 76, prominent in mill circles in Rhode Island, died at his home at Oakland Mills tonight.

He was superintendent and part owner of the Oakland Worsted company and superintendent of the Mohegan mills, of the Wanskuck company.

Reports reached Manchester, N. H., that a 50 ton boulder rolled 400 feet down the side of a mountain in Crawford Notch late yesterday, tore a freight train in two and continued down the mountainside, mowing down trees like grass.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BERLIN, Nov. 7—(AP)—Reaction to the memorandum of S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations, handed recently to the minister of finance, and the German government's reply took the form today of a hectic flurry on the bourse, where leading stocks slumped in various degrees, some losing 38 points as compared with Saturday's closing quotations.

OFF-YEAR ELECTIONS IN VARIOUS STATES TODAY

By The Associated Press.)

Today's off-year elections call for showdowns at the polls in less than a score of states, with interest centered chiefly in state and local issues.

No United States senators will be chosen, although three vacancies in the house of representatives are to be filled.

Two states—Kentucky and Mississippi—will elect governors.

In two others—New York and New Mexico—voters will pass on constitutional amendments, and by referendum in Ohio and New Jersey on enactments of the legislatures.

New legislatures will be selected in New Jersey, Virginia and Kentucky.

In less than a dozen states there will be elections of county, municipal and other local officials. Among the cities having bitterly contested mayoralty fights are Philadelphia, Detroit, San Francisco and Louisville. The vacancies in the house of representatives were caused by the Representative Magee, of the 35th New York district, and Stephens, of Second Ohio, and by the resignation of Representative Hazlett, of the First Pennsylvania, all republicans.

The republican candidate for congress in the first Pennsylvania is James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States. He has the support of Senator-Elect Vare, whose leadership also is challenged in the Philadelphia mayoralty contest.

As the democratic nominee for governor in Mississippi, Theodore G. Bilbo is assured of election as the voting today is the usual formality in that state of ratifying the democratic primary selections.

In Kentucky, however, J. C. W. Beckham, twice governor and once United States senator, as the democratic gubernatorial nominee, has a fight on his hands. His republican opponent is Judge Flem D. Sampson, of the court of appeals, the state's highest tribunal. The horse racing question entered into the campaign, Backham advocating repeal of the parimutuel betting law.

Among the constitutional amendments to be passed upon by New York voters is one providing for four year terms for governors and other elective state officials instead of the present two year terms, state campaigns to coincide with presidential. Gov. Smith and his supporters have been active in opposition to this proposal.

In New Mexico there is a proposal to increase the terms of state officers from two to four years, and, among other constitutional amendments, one to increase the pay of legislators from five to ten dollars a day and their traveling expenses to ten cents a mile.

In Ohio the recent supreme court decision curbing the powers of "Kangaroo" courts has an echo in the referendum on the new state law which would give mayors and justices of the peace authority to collect $250 a month in fees from criminal cases. The proposal has the support of the anti-saloon league and the opposition of automobile clubs.

MAN WHO SUED HENRY FORD HAS BECOME FORD'S FRIEND

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Herman Bernstein, New York author, editor and playwright, whose libel suit against Henry Ford, based upon articles appearing in the Dearborn Independent, former Ford weekly magazine, was settled out of court recently, paid a visit to the manufacturer at his Dearborn offices today.

"We met as old friends," Mr Bernstein told The Associated Press, "and with regard to his (Mr. Ford's relation of the Dearborn Independent articles), Mr. Ford, said, 'I never had any animosity against the Jewish people. My retraction was made absolutely without any mental reservation.'"

"I showed Mr. Ford," Mr. Bernstein said, "that his manly and vigorous repudiation of the Dearborn Independent articles on the International Jew he has dealt a deadly blow to bigotry and race prejudice everywhere."

Mr. Bernstein had not met Mr. Ford since the latter's famous expedition to Europe in his "peace ship." The libel suit was filed in the federal court in New York state four years ago, based upon later repudiated articles dealing with "The International Jew."

"Mr. Ford was most cordial and we had a delightful conversation," Mr. Bernstein declared. "He said he had intended calling upon me in New York but had been delayed by the many duties which are his."

"Yes, I saw the new Ford car," Mr. Bernstein said. "It is a fine car."

RACED THROUGH FLOOD AREA TO BEDSIDE OF SICK SON

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 7—(AP)—Z. R. Alderman, won a race against death through the heart of the flood district today when he completed the 260 miles from Hartford, Conn., where he is employed in an aircraft factory, to the bedside of his three year old son here.

It took him 60 hours of almost constant driving to get through the devastated regions and just after he arrived the doctors reported the baby passed its crisis and on the road to recovery. Alderman drove by way of Holyoke, Northampton, Deerfield, Pittsfield, North Adams, Pownal, Bennington, Arlington Sunderland, Manchester Depot, Danby, Wallingford, Clarendown, Rutland, Pittsford, Middlebury and so home.

In two places, a road washout on the Berkshire trail near Deerfield and a rickety bridge at North Adams, the authorities at first refused to let him pass. When he explained his mission, however, he was allowed to try at his own risk and cleared both obstacles at 60 miles an hour, trusting to speed to carry him across.

Tonight, with the doctor's assurance that his son was no longer in critical danger Alderman started back over a more leisurely route to his work in Hartford.

MARKETS AND BANKS IN NEW YORK CLOSED TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 7—(AP)—The New York Stock Exchange, the cotton exchange, the curb market and all other securities and commodities markets will be closed tomorrow for election day, a legal state holiday. The banks also will not be open for business.

Shot by robbers, Edward J. Anderson, an American business man of Mazatlan, was reported near death at San Dimas, Durango, Mexico.

Colorado Strike Leaders Arrested

State Police Also Have Rounded Up a Score of I. W. W. Agitators — Strikers Are Without Leaders.

DENVER, Colo., N[illegible] Striking miners in C[illegible] coal fields tonight found [illegible] without a directing he[illegible] a concerted drive b[illegible] which ended in the a[illegible] known strike leaders including [illegible] score of I. W. W. agitators.

Imprisonment of 30 of the strike heads effected a total stamping out of picketing in the southern strike area. The state's determination to suppress such activity by the strikers was emphasized by the strengthening of a special state law enforcement unit. Governor W. H. Adams revived this department last week to meet the strike emergency, exercising a statute that had ben unused for many months.

Among the strike leaders incommunicado, in jail tonight were Roger Francezon chairman of the national executive committee of the I. W. W., and Kristen Svanum, in charge of all I. W. W. activities in coal and metal mines.

Members of the I. W. W. at Walsenburg hurled back at the state a declaration that "five new leaders will spring up for each one arrested."

While order prevailed in the southern section following the arrests, first reports were made of organized picketing in the mines, north of Denver. Pickets prevented an attempt to operate the Imperial mine which had been leased by 35 miners.

Nearly 200 pickets also blocked a road leading to the Columbine mine in Weld county, but miners reported for work without trouble.

Twenty additional officers were sworn into the state law enforcement today when word was received by state officials that the strikers intended dividing their forces into a number of small groups tomorrow to start methodical picketing.

Mines in the southern fields reported increased working forces.

INSINUATION OF LOBBY AT THE TAX HEARINGS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—A promised investigation of the expense account sof tomorrow's witnesses and rough handling of the treasury's plan to continue to collect a tax from the thousands of persons who buy new automobiles enlivened today's tax hearings by the house ways and means committee.

While Governor Green of Michigan, was advocating repeal of the estate or inheritance tax, Representative Rainey, democrat, Illinois, interrupted to ask if he knew anything about a lobby seeking such action.

"The governor said he did not, and added:

"I paid my own expenses to Washington."

"I'm glad of that," snapped Rainey. "There's going to be an investigation of who's supporting that lobby."

The committee tomorrow will hear a group of witnesses on the inheritance tax, including members here attending a three-day session of the national council of state legislatures, which seeks, among other things, repeal of this levy.

Governor Sorlie of North Dakota, spoke today, favoring repeal of the inheritance tax. He said it was no longer a war measure, but was a regulatory law.

Representative Rainey declared after today's session of the ways and means committee that he would introduce a resolution to ascertain who was paying the expenses of the estate tax witnesses unless some republican member of congress should do so.

Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile association said he voiced the views of that organization's 1,000,000 members in advocating repeal of the levy.

CREDIT INVESTIGATOR IS CHARGED WITH BURGLARY

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 7—(AP)—Raymond E. Delaney, 26, of 1022 Howard avenue, this city, a credit investigator, was returned here this afternoon from New Haven where he was arrested, charged with burglary. He is held under bond of $5,000. Bridgeport police officials declare that he has confessed to robbing 13 Bridgeport residences and they suspect him of others.

Delaney had pawn shop tickets for all of the articles taken. He had pawned practically all of the loot in New Haven and New York shops and it will be possible to recover most of it, police officials say.

He formerly lived in Wallingford where his parents reside.

COURT DECIDES SEIZURE OF MALT WAS ILLEGAL

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 7—(AP)—Government efforts to stop sales of malt and other materials for use in home brewing were partly rebuffed in federal court today.

Federal Judge William A. Cant held illegal the seizure of the $15,000 stock of the Cleco Supply company here October 8, and ordered it released, subject to a libel proceeding also brought by the government.

The search warrant under which the seizure was made was held technically illegal by the court, and for this reason, it was indicated Judge Cant also would grant release of the stock from the libel action under the proper request.

ALBERT B. FALL SHOWS STEADY IMPROVEMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—The steady improvement of Albert B. Fall, suffering here from congestion of the lungs, was disturbed temporarily today by coughing spells which materially weakened him. Although no significant set-back was apparent his physician said that he had lost much rest. Later in the day, however, Mrs. Fall reported that her husband was resting comfortably. The former interior secretary, co-defendant, with Harry F. Sinclair in the oil conspiracy case which recently ended in a mistrial, appeared more cheerful, she said, and was impatient to return to his ranch in New Mexico where the warm sun was said to agree with him.

President James Rowland Angell, of Yale niversity, yesterday announced the appointment of Charles P. Howland, Lt. B., M. A., of New York city, as research associate in government at Yale, with the rank of professor.

Disclaimers Made By Detective Burns

Asserts That the Only Man in Contract With Juror Was Not an Employe of His Agency.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—Back fires were started today from two different sources by those who have come under grilling in the government investigation of charges of jury tampering in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial.

William J. Burns, founder of the detective agency bearing his name, gave life to the first with a charge that the only agent who made contact with any member of the now dismissed jury was not a Burns' man, but an employe of the federal government itself. That employe promptly gave the "lie" drect to that accusation.

Edward J. Kidwell, Juror No. 11, got back into the limelight by filing a petition with Justice Siddons asking for a contempt rule against the street car conductor and newspaper reporter who said he talked freely about the case during the trial and expressed the hope of getting an automobile a block long.

While these events were occurring on the outside, the grand jury inquiring into formal charges of attempts to influence the jury laid against Harry F. Sinclair and his confidential agent, Henry Mason Day, examined eight witnesses and prepared to continue its inquiry.

Burns, chief under Harry M. Daugherty of the department of justice bureau of investigation, the first of the day's witnesses, came from the grand jury bubbling over with conversation.

The internationally known detective lauded the virtues of his men and demanded to know why the district attorney has not made public a "complaint and affidavit" filed by his agents with Justice Siddons last Friday making charges against a government man.

"The only person who has made contact with one of the jurors was a government employe and a newspaper reporter," he declared.

Justice Siddons, who was holding court, said he had received no such "complaint and affidavit" in the case. District Attorney Gordon asserted he had never seen anything like it and that Burns was in error.

Burns then made public copies of what purported to be affidavits of two of his operatives, William V Long and F. J. O'Reilly. That by Long told of following an automobile bearing the license P-1738 to the Potomac flying field across the Potomac river from Washington, where the occupant talked with Norman J. Glascock, Juror No. 10, on October 22.

O'Reilly's affidavit was that the car bearing the license P-1738 was owned by Harris R. Lamb, a special assistant attorney general, who, reports showed was shadowed for days and nights, or at least the car bearing the license was.

Lamb, summoned and sent before the grand jury, declared when he came out that the allegations respecting him made by the Burns men were "lies"; that he never had been at the Potomac flying field in his life; that on October 22, the day it was claimed his car was there, the car was in a shop for repairs.

Neil Burknshaw, assistant district attorney directing the grand jury inquiry, said the Lamb matter was a piece with many other things found in the reports of the operatives; charges which when run down proved to be without any foundation in fact.

Burns freely conceded to newspaper men that Henry Mason Day employed the detective agency now conducted by his son to shadow the members of the oil conspiracy jury; declared that ths was a proper thing for "the defense" to do and asserted that such employment was justified by "the facts" obtained as to a government employe making contact with a juror.

MISSING VICE-CRUSADER RETURNS TO PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—(AP)—William L. King, vice-crusader, missing for several weeks, returned to Pittsburgh today, it was revealed when announcement was made that King had resigned as executive secretary of the Citizen's League of Pittsburgh and Allekheny county.

The announcement, made by league officials, said that King would not immediately sever al connections with the organization but would be retained "in a minor capacity" to assist in the prosecution of all cases developed by the league in its intensive drive upon vice in Pittsburgh and Allegheny county.

Detective William J. Kane, member of the Pittsburgh police department for 21 years, has been appointed executive secretary to succeed King, whose brief career as a vice crusader here has been marked by two sensational "disappearances."

King, an object of a nation-wide search for several weeks, returned to the city unnoticed this morning and immediately was closeted with league officials. Questioned as to where he had been, he said he had realized his usefulness to the league was at an end and that he had gone out west to seek another position.

MILLICENT ROGERS WEDS ARTURO PERALTA RAMOS

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Nov. 7—(AP)—After a sudden and closely guarded secret change in plans, Millicent Rogers, Standard Oil heiress and former wife of Count Ludwig Salm, was married today to Arturo Peralta Ramos, wealthy Argentine, to whom she had been engaged since last August.

The wedding, which had not been expected to take place until Wednesday, was announced at the close of the ceremony by the bride's father, Col. R. H. Rogers. He explained in a statement given out by his secretary that the change in plans had been decided upon owing to the critical illness of the bride's grandfather, G. Hilliard Benjamin.

Earlier in the day, Col. Rogers had said he knew nothing of his daughter's plans for a fashionable wedding on Wednesday.

The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and Mary, and immediately afterward Mr. and Mrs. Ramos left for New York, where they planned to stay until they sail for South America on Thursday.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

Philip Doran, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Doran, of Greenwich, was missed from his boat Friday night and search is being made for him.

Albert J. Mativier and John King, of Burlington, were found dead in their overturned automobile between Middlesex, Vt., and Moretown.

TWO CHINESE MURDERERS EXECUTED AT WETHERSFIELD

Chin Lung, 33, and Soo Hoo Wing, 22, Had Been Convicted of the Murder of a Laundry Helper in Manchester—The Slaying Was Regarded as a Part of Tong Warfare—Both Condemned Men Professed Christian Faith and Received Visits From the Baptist Chaplain.

WETHERSFIELD, Conn., Nov. 8—(AP)—Chin Lung, 33, and Soo Hoo Wing, 22, early this morning paid with their lives on the gallows at the state prison here for the murder of Ong Ging Hem, Manchester laundryman, during a tong war outbreak, March 24.

Pale and bewildered, as he has appeared ever since his arrest, Chin Lung entered the death chamber at 12:08:10. The rope was quickly adjusted about his neck and he was swung aloft at 12:08:40.

He was pronounced dead at 12:22:30.

Then came Soo Hoo Wing, convicted instigator of the slaying. He appeared at the door of the execution room at 12:27:50, a minute later he stepped beneath the noose, the machinery of the gallows spring him to his doom at 12:28:15. At 12:42:40 he was pronounced dead.

Chin Lung, 38, and Soo Hoo Wing, 22, were convicted in Hartford county superior court May 18, for murder of Ong Ging Hem, laundry helper in Manchester, Conn. It was the state's contention that this slaying was an episode in tong warfare which March 24 broke out after a two years' peace between the On Leong tong and the Hip Sings.

Chin Lung was an On Leong while the defense contradicted the state's claim that Ong Ging Hem was a Hip Sing. Soo Hoo Wing denied long membership but San Francisco police said they knew him as Edwin Soo Hoo, Suey Sing tongman and gunman. Both condemned men professed Christian faith, claimed membership in the Baptist denomination and received visits from the Baptist chaplain.

Chin Lung was the Chinese whom the state contended pushed into Sam Ong Jing's laundry, entered a bunk room, ordered Ong to get up and shot him before he could hardly rise. Sam was Ong's uncle.

Soo Hoo Wing was charged with giving Chin Lung a gun ten days before the murder, and waiting in a taxi cab near the laundry while Chin Lung did the killing. Both Chinese took the cab to Meriden, changed it for another and were caught while passing through New Haven. They were indicted March 29 and placed on trial April 26 before Judge Newell Jennings who had presided in the Gerald Chapman case.

Trial was delayed thrice by illness of Juror Willis W. Hall, of Marlborough, who was later made foreman. On May 18, after deliberating two hours and forty-one minutes both Chinese were found guilty of first degree murder. November 1 was set as the date for hanging.

"You are destroying an innocent life," Soo Hoo Wing told the court when sentence was passed. "I have nothing to say," was Chin Lung's remark.

Neither man showed any emotional reaction to the verdict or the sentence. Both had refused to discuss the case in any way with the authorities from the time of their arrest.

Former Attorney-General Frank E. Healy, who with Attorney F. P. Rohrmayer had defended the men, was joined by Attorney Homer S. Cummings of Stamford in the appeal to the supreme court of errors. That body, sitting at Bridgeport, handed down on October 26 a decision dismissing the appeal and finding no errors in the rulings of Judge Jennings on the admissibility of evidence at the trial.

Kitty Wing, 22 year old wife of Soo, besought the intervention of Governor John H. Trumbull for her husband but was told that the matter was out of his hands. She was advised, however, that with the consent of counsel for Wing and Lung she might appear before the board of pardons when it met at the state prison November 7. A reprieve was granted, extending the time for the execution, to November 8 so that the pardons board might consider the petition for commutation of the sentences to life imprisonment.

PARDONS GRANTED THREE LIFE TERM CONVICTS

HARTFORD, Nov. 7—(AP)—After refusing the petitions of Chin Lung and Soo Hoo Wing for commutation of their death sentences to life imprisonment, the board of pardons today granted three full pardons and three commutations of sentence.

The pardons were granted to Charles H. Bishop, Tolland county, Edward Schirrmann, Fairfield county and Vincenzo Sansivero, New Haven county, all serving life sentences on convictions of second degree murder. Bishop had served since December 20, 1926, Schirrmann since November 24, 1926, and Sansivero since June 30, 1926.

The minimum sentence of John Drew, of Windham county, sentenced on September 2, 1925, for automobile theft, was reduced from five to three years; that of Anthony Perrotta, of Bridgeport, serving three to four years for statutory burglary, was reduced from three to two years. A pardon was granted to Rosario Di Profio, of Fairfield county on the second of two counts, relieving him of a sentence of from 12 to 15 years.

The appeal of Bishop for pardon was seconded by his brother-in-law David Butler, of Chelsea, Mass., a Salvationist, who told of the care he and his wife had given to other men who needed it, and begged for the opportunity to restore Bishop to self-respect and usefulness.

FLOOD CONTROL HEARING BEFORE HOUSE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—The machinery of congress to devise ideas of controlling floods, particularly in the Mississippi valley, was set in motion today with the opening of hearings by the house flood control committee.

Before approximately 1,000 persons, representing the Chicago flood conference, Chairman Reid of Illinois, reviewed the various phases of the problem, emphasizing that its solution was a national question of primary importance.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago, the first witness, described the hardships of flood victims which he witnessed during the floods while on a boat trip to New Orleans. He said the city of Chicago realized the necessity of immediate relief of the problem.

Mayor O'Keefe of New Orleans, and Governors Small of Illinois, and Sorlie of North Dakota, also stressed the necessity of action by the national government.

Representative Reid declared that the "problem of flood control will not be solved by following any single theory or form of defensive works," and added:

"I believe that a combination of the best and most practical elements of the various plans that have been suggested will be worthy of incorporation in a valleywide national plan."

ADMIRAL MAGRUDER NOW ON "WAITING ORDERS"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, relieved Saturday of his command of the Philadelphia navy yard because of utterances since publication of charges that the navy was over organized and extravagantly operated, was placed in the status of "waiting orders" today by Secretary Wilbur "until such time as the department is prepared to give him a permanent assignment to duty."

While Secretary Wilbur declined to amplify this statement it was understood that Admiral Magruder will be allowed to remain in this status until his own conduct has decided the future course of the navy department.

Although Mr. Wilbur would not say whether his action was disciplinary, it was so regarded by many at the navy department. Admiral Magruder will continue to draw his full pay of $8,000 a year and $1,700 in allowances.

NO TROUBLE OVER DAM ACROSS THE BLUE NILE

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Nov. 7—(AP)—The mystery which has attached to the reported negotiations of an agreement between an American Engineering corporation and the Abyssian government for the construction of a dam across the Blue Nile, which has stirred the Egyptian government and the British press, is all a "a tempest in a teapot" declared Dr. Wargneh Martin, Abyssinian representative at the negotiations who arrived here today aboard the steamship Laconia.

Dr. Martin, interviewed on landing, insisted that the Blue Nile dam project was for the British government itself, that no contract had been signed and that if the British government disapproves of it "that's the end of the matter."

MAN RELEASED ON BONDS AGAIN ATTEMPTS MURDER

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 7—(AP)—James Mamona, 35, storekeeper, who surrendered to police when he learned he was being sought for an attempt to murder Patsy Santone alias Santone, 35, of Stratford, on August 13, 1927, and released under bonds of $5,000 is again locked up today as an aftermath of a second attempt upon Santone's life Thursday by three men armed with sawed off shotguns.

The re-arrest of Mamona was made on a bench warrant, the second shooting having convinced the authorities that Mamona's bond should be raised from $5,000 to $10,000. He was brought into superior court this morning to have his bond raised. Santone was arrested as a material witness Friday afternoon after being discharged from St. Vincent's hospital when it developed that he was not seriously wounded in the attack made upon him Thursday morning.

In the first attempt upon Santone's life he was struck in the abdomen by a bullet. In the second attempt he was cut on the face by splinters of glass when a fusilade from the shotguns, loaded with heavy slugs, shattered the door and windshield of his automobile.

CONTEST AT NEW HAVEN CITY ELECTION TODAY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 7—(AP)—Terminating in a "whirlwind" finish, the municipal campaign in this city wound up tonight with every available speaker making last minute appeals to voters to uphold the banners of their candidates.

Mayor J. B. Tower, up for re-election, reviewed his administration over the radio; while Philip Troup, his democratic opponent, made his final appeal for support to those in his home ward.

Democrats, pointing out the extreme personal popularity of Mr. Troup were confident in their predictions of a victory at the polls tomorrow.

Republicans declared that Mayor Tower would be returned to office through the efforts of their superior organization. Mayor Tower carried the city two years ago by better than a 4,000 majority.

KITCHEN OF BERKOWITZ HOME

Where Mathvink Shot Mrs. Anna Berkowitz. Black Specks on Curtain and Cabinet Are Pieces of Flesh, Scalp and Brains of Victim Spattered There By the Slug from Mathvink's Shotgun.

THINKS THAT WIFE OF WILLIMANTIC MURDERER ALSO FIRED SHOT AT HIM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 7—Further evidence being uncovered in the shooting of Mrs. Anna Berkowitz, wife of Jake Berkowitz, local realtor, at her home on Prospect street shortly after six o'clock Friday night, tends to reaffirm the conviction that Savva Mathvink, 40, held for the killing, had carefully planned his dastardly revenge over alleged money losses. In addition to the 12 gauge single barrel shot gun which was loaded with a slug shell and a loaded revolver for which he carried nearly 100 additional bullets, the belief is now held that the big Russian also carried a hatchet. Berkowitz, who was the intended victim of the enraged Russian, was chased from the house by the killer of his wife. The chase followed down Prospect street and down Walnut street to its intersection with Valley street. In the chase Mathvink, who had dropped the shotgun after killing Mrs. Berkowitz, carried a revolver from which one shot was fired. At 6.35 o'clock the evening of the murder, Charles Flubacher, local mason contractor, found a hatchet in the center of Walnut street about 25 feet from Prospect street. The police were notified of the find and Officer William Hurley secured the hatchet. It was not spotted with blood and up until today the theory that it had formed part of Mathvink's murdering equipment was discounted. It was learned today, however, that the hatchet had been quite thoroughly identified as being one owned by Mathvink.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson, resumed his inquest into the murder at police headquarters here today. Witnesses summoned for the inquest follow: Merrill P. Ide, Andrew J. Carey, Marion Wells, Lewye G. Gerry and L. N. Gerry, photographers, Leroy M. Roberts, Hormisdas Cyr, Jacob Berkowitz, Gertrude Berkowitz, Marjorie Barrows, Dr. F. E. Wilcox, Dr. B. J. Ottenheimer, Dr. M. D. Riordan, John F. Collins and Robert E. Mitchell, engineers and Officers Arthur Hurley and Roderick Lariviere.

Berkowitz Tells His Story

Jake Berkowitz, the intended victim and husband of the murdered woman tells the following story of the shooting. Miss Marjorie Barrows, a neighbor, was dining with the family. Miss Barrows and Mr. Berkowitz sat at the table facing the kitchen door which opens from the rear yard. Mrs. Berkowitz was sitting with her back to the door. Their daughter, Gertrude was sitting with a side view of the door. It was then shortly after six o'clock. Suddenly the kitchen door was thrown open. Mrs. Berkowitz started to arise from her chair and was partly turned around when there was a terrific report. The entire right side of Mrs. Berkowitz' head was blown open. Blood was gushing out in great quantities as she dropped to the floor. Mathvink stood in the door with a shotgun which he held to his shoulder. Berkowitz' story then continues to state that as he and the two girls stood terrified the Russian uttered in his native language a remark to the effect that he was going to kill all three in the room. Mathvink started to reload the gun, according to Berkowitz, who states that he grabbed the gun away. In doing this he was bitten on the finger. While this was taking place the Barrows girl rushed to the upstairs tenement and informed Mrs. Harry S. Gaucher of what had happened. The latter immediately notified the police. The Berkowitz girl remained in the room and did not leave the house until the police investigation was well underway.

Claims Mrs. Mathvink Fired Shot

Berkowitz and his daughter claim that they saw a woman answering the description of Mrs. Mathvink standing on the porch with a revolver in her hand. After wrestling the gun out of the killer's hands, Berkowitz states that he ran from the house and as he did so Mrs. Mathvink fired a shot from the revolver which missed its mark. He believes that the woman then handed the gun to her husband who chased Berkowitz down Walnut street. Berkowitz claims that he was struck over the head by Mathvink during the chase by the butt of the revolver or some other weapon. The Russian grabbed him at the corner of Walnut and Valley streets and Berkowitz believes that he would soon have been killed but for the timely appearance of Merrill P. Ide, 19 year old Spring street resident. Ide was soon joined by Hormisdas Cyr, Leroy M. Roberts and Andrew J. Carey. Mathvink gave Carey the revolver and the latter turned it over to young Ide, who escorted the man to police headquarters.

Mathvink Confesses

Mathvink calmly confessed to the shooting at the preliminary inquest held shortly after the murder and as far as is known no definite plan for his defense is underway as yet, the matter resting thus far with County Protector Charles L. Torrey of Putnam. It was said today that a widely known local criminal lawyer had refused to be retained as counsel for the man. Mrs. Mathvink is being held under orders of the coroner and while an endeavor is being made to identify her as an accomplice to the crime, her attorney, Samuel B. Harvey is summoning an array of witnesses to show the woman's whereabouts at the time of the shooting. Joseph Mathvink of the U. S. coast guard, stationed at New London, was at police headquarters today and he said that he could produce at least 25 witnesses to show that his mother was in the vicinity of their home on Chapman street from 5.30 o'clock Friday afternoon to the time she was taken into custody by the police following the shooting. County Detective William E. Jackson is heading the investigation for the state. Upon adjoining the inquest today Coroner Bill held a conference with Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher. Coroner Bill announced that further testimony would be taken in the case. This afternoon considerable testimony was taken from the three minor children of the Mathvinks, Andrew, Helen and Marion, all students at the Natchaug grammar school.

Self-Confessed Murderer of Mrs. Berkowitz

TO INSTITUTE SANCTORUM OF A. M. O. S. HERE IN DEC.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 7—Yembo Sanctorum of the Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans, a branch of the Odd Fellows will be instituted with an elaborate program here December 9 and 10. Korum Sanctorum of Hartford will have charge of the arrangements and the institution work. The institution takes place on December 9, at Odd Fellows' temple followed by a public installation at 8 o'clock in the town hall and closing with a dance. John McIntyre and his seven Daughters of Korum will have charge of the installation. Mr. McIntyre is past grand monarch of Korum and field supervisor for a Hartford entertainment bureau. About 1000 Orientals, the name applied to members, will attend the ceremonials on the 10th. There will be a band concert and street parade and a ceremonial in the town hall followed by vaudeville acts. Notables who are expected to attend include Circuit Court Judge Edgar S. Mosher of Auburn, N. Y., supreme monarch of the order and a past grand master of New York state, John L. Hayden of Schenectady, N. Y.; supreme secretary, Frank M. Whiton of Hartford, supreme councillor and past grand master of Connnecticut, Past Grand Masters Fowler to Thompsonville and Lillie of Hartford and other prominent Odd Fellows.

Disrupted train schedules caused by the flood of the Connecticut river at Hartford caused a one hour delay in the arrival of train No. 116 due here at 10 a. m., today. The mails arriving here on train No. 122 Sunday and train No. 112 this morning contained no parcel post matter. A large accumulation of this class of mail for Willimantic arrived at 10 o'clock on passenger train No. 1014 over the Air Line division from New Haven. On the whole, however, there has been little effect here as a result of the closing of the rail bridge over the Connecticut river because of flood conditions. Trains on the Hartford division are run as far as East Hartford station and passengers to Hartford and points beyond are then transferred by auto busses into Hartford.

For the convenience of those in the Willimantic telephone exchange, I can be reached at the home of Charles F. Brown, Scotland, Wednesday, Nov. 9, from 11.30 a. m. to 1.30 p. m. Telephone Willimantic 342-12. F. L. Davis, county agent.—adv.

Members of the Windham county bar have been summoned by Edgar M. Warner, clerk of the Windham county superior court to meet at the court library here Tuesday at 9.45 o'clock to take action on the notifications of Henry N. Benoit and Hector Arthur Plessis of Putnam and L. P. F. Fitchthorn of this city, who are to take examinations for admittance at Hartford in December, and that of Henry H. Handfield of this city who gave notice of making application for admission without examination. At ten o'clock a short calendar session and assignment of cases will be held with Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin on the bench.

The store at 822 Main street is being renovated and equipped for an office to be used by the Vanderbilt Automotive Bus line and the Gary Transportation company, adding two to the already generous supply of bus lines having terminals in this city and tending to confirm the prediction that Willimantic would become as central a highway point as it was a railroad center some years ago. H. O. Eccleston will have charge of the bus line office.

James B. Fullerton has received a night letter from his niece and her father who reside in Waterbury, Vt., stating that several feet of water is flowing down the main street of that city. For a mile stretch the water has reached the second story of several buildings and the residents have sought safety on hillsides.

A snow flurry about seven o'clock this morning brought home the realization that winter was indeed approaching and that the ideal November told about in the almanac and other sources could be improved upon.

A party consisting of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam, Attorney Harry Back of Killingly, County Detective William E. Jackson and Gerard E. Loisell of this city attended the board of pardons session held at Wethersfield today, the attorneys attending in the interest of the pardon pleas of John Drew of Moosup and Charles Dansereau of the Grosvenordale.

WESTMINISTER

The following pupils were neither absent nor tardy in Westminster Hill school during October: Annie Vitiaz, Nick Vitiaz, Vasika Vitiaz, Robert Joselyn, Manfred Moody, Harry Helstrom, Violet Helstrom. A number of the children were kept at home because of an all-day extremely hard rain storm.

A wedding of interest to many friends took place Thursday evening in the United Congregational church, Norwich, when Oscar, oldest son of Salve Olsen, of this place, was united in marriage with Miss Florence B. Whitehead, of Norwich, for a long time head nurse in Backus hospital. An engagement reception and shower was given the young people at Grange hall about a year ago. The three unmarried brothers and four sisters, with the four children of the two sisters who are married, were among the relatives of the groom present at the ceremony, beside others from Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York.

The silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Moody, married in Mt. Klaco, in 1902, was celebrated Saturday evening. They were genuinely surprised by having their home taken in possession by a number of neighbors and friends, giving a gift of money in silver quarters. Checks from Mrs. Linden, of Westbury; Miss Jacobsen, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Moody, of Wisconsin, bought the total money gift to between forty and fifty dollars. Among the evening guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Gustave E. Carson, of Woodstock, the latter a friend of Mrs. Moody's girlhood, in Sweden, while her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave A. Karlson, of Nooseneck Hill, R. I., were dinner guests, bringing a cake with white frosting flecked with brown bearing 25 silver quarters. Cakes were also brought by the evening guests.

Oswald Olsen, of New Jersey, has been making a brief visit at Longview, his father's home.

Monday morning of last week the ancestral home and contents, uninsured, of Amos Green was totally destroyed by fire. As a result of Mrs. Walt Davies' effort, about a hundred dollars has been given in cash as a means of making the only building saved, a small shed, fairly comfortable, until he and his son, away working on the new road at the time of the fire, can provide something better. Considerable has also been given in clothing, bedding and articles immediately necessary.

Mrs. Albert Church, Mrs. Thomas Colburn and Charles Colburn were recent visitors in New London.

Nellie Colburn has been for some weeks in the Kilpatric family, in South Canterbury.

The remaining child of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown is ill with infantile paralysis. The home is quarantined by the health officer.

Sunday of last week was observed as the world's temperance Sunday, both in church school and in morning worship.

The W. C. T. U. is to meet Thursday at 2 p. m., with Mrs. Nina Hansen, at the Plains

Mrs. Jessie A. Meade was elected a delegate, in addition to the pastors, to attend the sixtieth annual meeting of the Congregational churches of Connecticut, at the United church, Bridgeport, November 8 and 9.

A delayed letter from the Ekonk pastor states the decision of her church to have its six church fellowship Monday, November 28, Westminister's to be the 15th.

The store of A. T. MacLeod has been moved back from the road.

A new application of tar oil and sand was made last week on the new state trunk road, now nearing completion.

STAFFORD

Mrs. Mary Soule has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Howard.

Rev. John Canven, of Hampden, occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church Sunday morning.

The annual business meeting of the Baptist church was held Friday evening.

Harold Moseley, of Hartford, was the guest of his grandfather over Sunday.

Mrs. Henry Thresher has received word of the death of her only sister, Mrs. James, of Springfield.

Friday the local Red Cross started its annual enrollment. One dollar makes one a member. The Red Cross is doing good work in the town.

Henry Lyon, of Woodstock, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. E. Goddell.

Mr and Mrs. T. P. Batchelder, of Boston, are at the Batchelder homestead for a short time.

Mrs. Eva Bughee has been the guest of relatives in Eastford.

PENDLETON HILL

Everything now stands under water even on top of this hill, said to be the highest elevation between New York and Boston, except Lantern hill.

Nasturtiums, zinnias, argeratum, asters, cosmos, petunias, sweet allysum, Canterbury bells and poppies are still in bloom here.

At the town meeting Saturday night, it seemed impossible to carry a vote to purchase land for a building to house the town machinery and tools. It was a mistake to have sold the old town house, where tools could and should have been stored for the last twenty-five years.

Scrap the scraper and use dump carts and gravel, is what we need.

Mrs. Elsie Harrington Brearley, whose obituary appeared in last week's paper under the head of Westerly, was well known and much beloved throughout this vicinity, where she had lived many years.

The funeral services for Amos Prentice Miner, were held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30, at his residence near the Miner meeting house, with a large attendance of friends and neighbors. Mr. miner had spent a life time of almost eighty-nine years in this town and in the house where he died. All of his family were present at the funeral with the exception of Roscoe, the youngest son, whose home is in California. Three sons and their wives; two daughters, and seven grandchildren were present at the funeral. Mrs. Belle Miner Estman and her husband motored from Akron, N. Y., to attend the funeral and have remained for a week with Mrs. Estman's mother, Mrs. Miner.

Mrs. Cecile Palmer is much improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thompson now have a fine, cemented, three-car garage.

Thomas E. Wheeler is sowing five acres to rye. Stanislaus Anyszeske has about the same number of acres already sowed to rye.

Miss Carrie Ryder is still confined to the house.

The storm of Thursday night has so washed the roads and let down the bridges, that a force of men and horses is at work repairing damages. Friday, market day, the hill farmers, experienced considerable difficulty in getting to town with their loads of produce. Rocks are being carted to fill the gullies.

YANTIC

One of the most enjoyable evenings during the Hallowe'en season was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stelzner of Yantic. Decorations of corn stalks, autumn leaves, pumpkins, ghosts and skeletons met the eye at every turn. Many games were played and a stunt punch-board furnished the guests plenty of novelties. Dancing was enjoyed and a musical program followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jarvis with Mrs. John Hafner and Miss Jennie Hafner, pianists, Frederick Burberich, violinist, and William Maynard, banjoist.

The costumes were striking and original, the most unusual being worn by Mrs. Frederick Stelzner, Miss Anna Blue and John Meehan. The best dressed gentleman present was William Ortmann. An unexpected guest was Charles Shaw (Dad Shaw) of Passaic, N. J., who helped to keep things moving.

The refreshments were those associated with the season and were served from a gaily decorated table. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. William Ortmann, Mr. and Mrs. John Meehan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jarvis, Mrs. John Hafner, and Misses Jennie Hafner, Elizabeth Stelzner, Edna Judson, Anna Blue, Betty Toth, Marion Duhaime, Louise Duhaime and Nellie Connolly, Alfred Hafner, William Maynard, Charles Meunch, Frederick Berberich, Brendan Meehan and Charles Shaw.

Withdrawal From Superior Court.

Withdrawal without costs from the superior court has been filed with the clerk of the court in the $2,000 damage suit brought against Edwin R. Rice of Groton by J. R. Whipple corporation of Boston. The plaintiff sued to collect a judgment obtained in the superior court on Oct. 30, 1925, for $1,580.24 and costs of $34.37 against Rice.

Worthy of Eastern Dairies' Ice Cream

$1500.00 in Prizes

WE are making a sincere effort to find a name worthy of Eastern Dairies' Ice Cream.

The men who organized Eastern Dairies, several years ago, had a vision of an ideal far above the scope of their individual efforts. So they pooled their knowledge and their resources the better to make that ideal come true.

The foundation of Eastern Dairies made available, through expert personnel and efficient equipment, facilities for the utmost quality in Ice Cream—perfection of formula, a uniform product, improved methods and the skill for blending cream, and fruits, and nuts, and syrup into a wholesome, taste-thrilling combination.

And such facilities, with which only a large organization is endowed, have been diligently at work toward the ideal upon which Eastern Dairies was founded. There has been achievement deserving of recognition—a product which warrants the acknowledgment of Eastern Dairies as their own.

But to announce this Ice Cream to the public, and popularize it throughout New England it must have a name—symbolic of its purity, its goodness, and flavor—an expression which has the ring of quality.

Avoid Poorly Balanced Breakfasts

Start the day with Quaker Oats—food that "stands by" you.

IF you feel tired, hungry, "fidgety," hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. Thousands have unenergetic mornings because they start the day with wrong breakfasts.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 65% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

DANIELSON

CARON-BROWN WEDDING BRILLIANT AUTUMN AFFAIR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 7—This morning at 9 o'clock there was a large congregation at St. James' church at 9 o'clock to witness the wedding of Miss Winifred Agnes Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Jabez Brown of Brooklyn, and George Rene Caron, son of Mrs. George Caron of Hawkins street. Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., performed the ceremony and was celebrant of the nuptial mass.

Miss Lucile Caron, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid and Edward Brown, brother of the bride, was best man.

The bride's gown was of white taffeta and she wore a veil with pearls and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore a gown of blue crepe and velvet and her bouquet was of yellow chrysanthemums.

A very beautiful musical program during the service was played by the Flagg Instrumental quartet, with Mrs. Joseph Gareau organist, Dr. William Levin, violinist, Henry Flagg 'cellist and Mrs. S. H. Perry violinist. Their processional number was The Priests' March by Athalie followed by Mendelssohn's Spring Song, the Serenade by Moskowski, the Wedding March from Lohengrin, Shubert's Serenade, Nevin's Venetian Love Song, the Andante from the Serenade by Bethoven, for string trio and, at the consecration, I Love You Truly, with Mendelssohn's Wedding March for the recessional.

Following the service a wedding breakfast for about 50 was served at the Mortlake house in Brooklyn, where the newly wedded couple were thrilled upon being unexpectedly met and congratulated by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, owner now of the old colonial inn, and by Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, who had arrived only a short time before from New York to remain for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Caron left by motor from the Mortlake house for their wedding journey, after which they will make their home here. Both the bride and groom are very well known in Danielson, Mr. Caron being the office manager here for Powdrell and Alexander. The bride received many beautiful gifts.

For those who may have reason to traverse that route, as many from this section do on business trips, motorists are advised to shun the route leading into Woonsocket and on to Boston from Chepachet via Mapleville, R. L. Frank J. G. Bailey, who with Mrs. Bailey and his mother, Mrs. Hattie Bailey of School street were in Boston and at East Braintree Sunday to visit with Mrs. Helen Lathrop, said that the trip between Chepachet and Woonsocket is too hazardous to attempt with an automobile, and likely will be for some time to come. At one place the road was in such terrible condition that Mr. Bailey managed to get his car around it by taking down a section of fence and going through a field, as he had seen a state highway truck crew do.

Four big buses of the New England company will bring the reserve officers battalion from the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs to Danielson early Friday afternoon that they may participate in the Armistice day parade. The contingent numbers about 125 men, it was stated here this afternoon, and includes a band. They are expected to arrive here about 1:30 p. m.

The condition of Napoleon Gosselin, 18, of the West Side, a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, was regarded by his relatives as critical today. The young man was seriously injured Saturday night when the forward tire on the motorcycle he was riding blew out and caused the machine to swerve and crash head-on into a pole. The accident happened on the state highway south of Bishop's crossing. The young man has a serious injury at the back of the head and is believed to be seriously injured internally. The ambulance from the Backus hospital at Norwich conveyed him to Putnam. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Gosselin. His motor cycle is badly wrecked.

Sunday afternoon funeral services for Daniel Burlingame were conducted here by William Mason of the Nazarene church, burial being in the Smith family cemetery. Louis B. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Mr. Burlingame, a native of Putnam, but resident hereabouts for many years, died Friday at a hospital in Norwich on the 75th anniversary of his birth. He leaves his wife and a son, Leon.

Damase Boulais, Attorney Louis A. Woisard, Gaston A. Maindon, Henry P. Dubuc and Henry Woisard were in Hartford Sunday as representatives of this section at a meeting of the Hotel Garde of men from various sections of Connecticut who are interested in plans for the formation of French Republican clubs throughout the state. Another similar conference is scheduled for a date in January. Incidentally, the Danielson men viewed the flood scenes at and near Hartford, and relate that there was such a traffic jam on the Connecticut river bridge that 45 minutes were required to get across the structure on the home-bound trip.

The work of repairing Killingly's storm-damaged highways was in full swing today. Crews of men with horses and teams were at work in various sections of the town, and they will be for weeks to come, or at least as long as the weather permits. Most seriously damaged places on the most used of the more than 100 miles of dirt highway in town will be given attention first. Bridges across streams that raging torrents last Friday will be given careful examination to determine wheather they have been dangerously weakened. As in Killingly, repair work was underway in other nearby towns today.

Joseph Lavecque, 63, a native of Canada, is dead at his home in Attawaugan, having passed away Sunday. Some few days ago Mr. Lavesque was seriously injured by falling down a flight of stairs.

At Goodyear funeral services for Walter Lord, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Albert Lord, were conducted by Rev. Charles A. Downs, and burial was in the Putnam Heights cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements. The little boy was a victim of diphtheria.

There were patches of snow—the first of the season—to surprise Danielson people arising early this morning, and if there is anything to an old saying, which there probably isn't, there will be but seven snowstorms the coming winter, this idea being based on the fact that the first snow came on the 7th of the month.

George DeForest, injured in a motor cycle accident some time ago, expects to be able to leave the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam within a few days. A foot injury necessitated the removal of a piece of bone from one of his feet.

Dance every Tuesday evening at Kum-Along-Inn—warm and comfortable, good music.—Adv.

Charles Hopkins of Hutchins street is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic and was scheduled to undergo a surgical operation today.

Agent John F. Gardner, Jr., of the Quinebaug company said this morning that the big plant will be closed at noon on Armistice day for the remainder of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Amadee Breayea of Bristol, this state, and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Goldmitzer of Manchester were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur DeForest.

Harvest supper, King George catering, auspices Men's club, St. Alban's parish house Wed. eve., Nov. 9, 6 p. m. —Adv.

Mr and Mrs. Arthur Lacombe will leave Danielson Tuesday to motor to St Cloud, Fla., for the winter season.

After having had his car wrecked and being so injured that he had to go to the hospital for several days following a recent automobile collision at Dayville Four Corners, Augustin Pechie of East Killingly will come into the town court here Thursday to answer to a charge that the accident was caused because he did not grant the right of way.

Today, it is recalled was the anniversary of the fake Armistice day of November 7, 1918, and what a celebration it was—fake or no fake!

John A. Gateman of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Lively interest was shown by those registered for the course at the opening of the night school at the high school this evening. The registrants are representative of both Killingly and Brooklyn.

Truckmen are wary these days of taking their heavy vehicles over little bridges on back country roads because of the possibility of their having been weakened by the flood water of last week.

PUTNAM

ARMISTICE DAY PLANS HAVE BEEN COMPLETED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Nov. 7.—The plans for the celebration of Armistice day have been practically completed by the joint committee of the local posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The parade is to start from Union square promptly at 12:30 and the line of march is to be: Union square to Grove street to Soldiers' monument, Ring street to the square, Pomfret street over the Memorial bridge, Church street, Woodstock avenue, Marshall street to Providence street to High schol grounds where the patriotic services will be held. Major Arthur D. McIntyre, veteran of two wars, will act as marshal and the mounted aides will be Dr. Edward F. Parry, representing the legion, and Ernest J. Durand, commander of the Veterans of Foreign wars. A platoon of police will lead the parade, followed by the marshal and his aides. East Woodstock band, Headquarters Company, 43rd Division, C. N. G., A. Wilder Merriam post, U. S. W. V., World war veterans, Anselm Mayotte American Legion Post, Civil war veterans and Women's Relief corps in automobiles, the Garde Foche and other Franco-American gardes followed by the high school students, civic and fraternal ordes and possibly the fire department.

Thomas deCoudres, president of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce will preside at the high school grounds and the superintendent of schools, Ralph C. Jenkins, will have charge of the singing. The committee in charge have promised an instructive and interesting speaker.

Church bells and mill whistles will be sounded promptly at 11 o'clock and at that time will be closed for the day and the stores will also close. Invitations to participate in the exercises have been extended to the patriotic orders of the surrounding towns, to veterans generally and to all of the local fraternal orders. The high school parade which had been planned to advertise their bazaar, has been abandoned at the request of the committee and will be an added attraction for an afternoon parade. The marshal, Major McIntyre, says that that parade will start promptly at 12:30, if he has only the police and the band in line at that time.

Dr. S. B. Overlock, who is a member of the State Board of Pardons, was in Hartford today to hear the applications of about seventy inmates of the state prison for parole. One of the principal cases was the plea for clemency by counsel for the two Chinese, Soo Hoo and Chin Lung, convicted of murdering a fellow countryman last March at Manchester and sentenced to die Nov. 1. The governor had already granted a reprieve until November 8 in order that the board of pardons might hear the plea.

Miss Marjorie Bradford was in Hartford on Saturday to hear the applications of fifteen citizens who wish to become citizens of America. Miss Bradford is the deputy clerk of the superior court for Windham county.

The Junior French class at the Putnam high school is having a "proverb contest." At the end of the year a prize is to be awarded to the pupil who can remember the most proverbs in both French and English.

The police department of the state of Rhode Island is to establish police barracks at Chepachet, just over the Putnam line. The men stationed there will patrol the Putnam-Providence pike to the Connecticut border, thence to a point on the ancleson-Providence pike to the Connecticut state line. Both of these routes are said to be used by criminals wishing to flee from one state to the other, and also for the transportation of liquor. It is thought with the police from the Danielson barracks and the one from the Chepachet, the two states will be able to accomplish much good.

At the Second Congregational church on Thursday evening there will be a stereopticon lecture entitled "Beautiful Foochow." This lecture will be very interesting especially to the members of the church, as scenes of the missionary activities of for more than a generation will be shown, and Dr. Hardmon Kinnear, the medical missionary of the local church is located at Foochow. Anyone interested is cordially invited to attend.

On Sunday, Rev. Henry Smith Leiper of New York, who is associate secretary and editor for the Commission of Missions, will occupy the pulpit at the Second Congregational church. In the evening there will be a motion picture service with "The Magic Garden" taken from the well known book by Gene Stratton Porter, for the picture.

Putnam saw its first snow of the season today. Early this morning enough snow fell to cover the roofs of houses and other buildings but by 8 o'clock it had disappeared except in shaded places and by noon even that had melted.

On Armistice day there will be a football game at the Putnam high school grounds between the Putnam team and Mt. Charles, beginning at two o'clock.

Through the courtesy of the Putnam Rotary club, the local football team has been carried to their out of town games this season. The boys feel that this fact not only helps their treasury, but that they are in much better condition for playing than they would be if traveling by bus. Among the members of the Rotary club who have offered their cars and services are William Wheaton, Rev. Fr. Bellerose, E. C. Rogers, E. L. Robinson, E. L. Beebe, S. Nikoloff and Chester Elliott.

Miss Nellie C. Bloxham, matron of the Day Kimball hospital, ha returned from her annual vacation which she spent visiting relatives in Canada and New Jersey.

Mrs. Joseph Clark Hoppin has closed her summer home, "Courtlands," at Pomfret, and will spend the month of November at the Ben Grosvenor Inn.

Teddy Brousseau of Boston spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Brousseau of Wilkinson street.

Mrs. Stephen Tuppe of Main street has returned fom a visit with relatives in Webster.

Walter LaCroix of Hartford spent the week-end with his sister, Mrs. Wilfred Maynard.

Misses Sadie and Mildred Rosenberg of Main street have returned from a visit with relatives in Worcester.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Alpert and two children, Master Bobbie and Little Sonia, spent the week-end with relatives in Worcester.

Misses Anna and Margaret Weeks have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGinnis at Pawtucket.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis have returned to their home in New York city after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bevis, South Main street.

Harold Arnold, a student at Worcester Tech, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Arnold.

PLAINFIELD

The calendar of the First Congregational church was given Sunday by Herman A. Johnson in memory of his father, Deacon David A. Johnson. The decorations were furnished by the Camp Fire Girls. New members received were Clinton Ralph Peterson, Stephen Wilcox, Mr. Albert William Woodmansee, Ella Elizabeth Woodmansee. The sermon was by Rev. William C. Prentiss on "The Measuring Line."

Special Christian Endeavor service was held in the church auditorium. Subject, What Should be the Christian's Attitude Toward War? The leader, Cecil L. Butler, was assisted by the Laymen's league. The speakers were Irvin Libby, Paul Roper, William Hill. Special music was sung by the quartet. The organist was Robert Bethel and the cornetist Henry Leach.

William Prentiss of Providence spent Sunday with his father, Rev. Wm C. Prentiss.

The Lawton mills were closed Friday morning on account of the high water.

Mrs. J. M. Sullivan is home after spending a few days in New York with her son's, John F., and Stanley Sullivan.

The cabinet of the First Congregational church has engaged the noted concert reader and entertainer Nan L. Lagerstedt for an evening in December. The entertainment will be given at the Community house. Special committees have ben chosen to look after the project.

The Ladies' Aid society is to meet Wednesday at 2:30 with Mrs Fred Greenswood and Thursday evening at the fellowship meeting in the vestry of the First Congregational church. There will be a special Armistice day program, with readings by Alfred Royle, William Hall, in Experience in the Service, by Richard Hetherston, a solo by Rev. George H. Reese and selection by a quartet, in charge of Alfred Royle. The pastor will show pictures in keeping with November 11th. Every organization of the church has been invited to be well represented.

When a party was given the other evening by the O. J. S., the program included Helen Kramer, reader, Mrs. Carl Gallup, sketch by four boys, Donald Gallup, Sidney Gardner, Raymond Roode and Hillard Smith. A selection was sung by Mr. Royle and a reading was given by Mrs. Ernest Wilde. Refreshments and candy were for sale.

Mrs. Frank Young, 63, who died at her home in Chepachet, R. I., last week, was a former resident of Central Village. She leaves besides her husband, two daughters and a son.

SOUTH WINDHAM

Saturday morning, about 1 o'clock fire broke out in the home of Mrs. Edna Hatch. The South Windham Fire company was promptly on hand and after a hard and stubborn fight subdued the fire.

CREOMULSION

FOR THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Your Cold May Develop Speedily into Pneumonia

If you've a cold, it's your danger signal. Pneumonia can follow speedily. Don't tolerate a cold. It too frequently leads into a fatal disease. Stop it; get over it. Creomulsion will help you do it. It is pleasant, easy to take. It is decidedly helpful. It can help you to avoid the dangerous diseases that usually follow coughs or colds that hang on.

If you've a "runny" persistent cold; if you've a deep, hollow cough that tears and hurts your throat; or, a cold that just won't get well, go and get a bottle of Creomulsion.

Take it like we tell you to take it, and we guarantee relief. We know what it can do. Millions of users know how it helps. Your money will be refunded if your cough or cold is not relieved, when you follow directions.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR CREOMULSION

Headache?

Instead of dangerous heart depressants take safe, mild and purely vegetable MATONE'S REMEDY and get rid of the bowel poisons that cause the trouble. Nothing like it for biliousness, sick headaches, and constipation. Acts pleasantly. Never gripes.

Make the test tonight—

NR TO-NIGHT

Built for comfort, what I mean!

COMFORT and lots of it. I'm talking about Prince Albert, Gentlemen, the National Joy Smoke. Why, there's friendliness in the very aroma of P.A., as you open the tidy red tin. Some fragrance it is, too.

The first pull on a pipe packed with P.A. tells you the taste is equally friendly. Cool and long-burning. Sweet as grape-clusters, hanging on the vine. Mild as arctic sunshine, yet with plenty of good, rich tobacco-body to let you know you're smoking. So mild, in fact, that you can load-up and light-up from breakfast to bedtime.

Now, I'm not one to mix in on other people's affairs. But this pipe-thing is different, somehow. I can't resist tipping you off to what I consider the greatest pipe-tobacco in the world. Get some P.A. now and get some of this comfort I've been telling you about.

Quality and quantity both—TWO full ounces in every tin.

STREET SIGNS

Sooner or later the demand arises in almost every city for the erection of proper street signs to guide both the residents and the strangers. The larger cities, the greater the need for the residents, but there isn't a city of any size but which can render great assistance to those unfamiliar with the thoroughfares by putting up signs.

This is especially true in these days when there are so many visiting motorists. They invariably do not know one street from another, are not acquainted with the points of the compass in the cities they visit and are obliged to find their way about by inquiring or through the aid of signs. Many an auto party wanders about trying to discover which way they should go to find the street desired and may be obliged to ask a half dozen times before they get the information they seek, when much assistance would be afforded if a system of street marking were in effect.

There are those instances where weatherbeaten and discolored signs are in existence but it defies the powers of a stranger to find them. Corner standards which furnish the name of both streets at the intersection are of great convenience. They are invaluable guides and they help greatly in the elimination of traffic congestion caused by the auto drivers who are feeling their way along and wondering whether they are taking the right street in accordance with their directions.

It is probably too much to expect that all cities will hit upon a uniform scheme of street signs, or that they will select the same kind of a sign, but there is no escaping the fact that the city which conspicuously marks its streets for the guidance of all who may need such help renders a highly valuable service and creates the best kind of an impression. Like the well lighted city or the city with well kept streets, it contributes to the progressiveness of a community and marks it as one that is looking to the best interests of those who find themselves within its midst. Norwich has much to think about in this direction.

DAM INSPECTION

Many times it is the case that disaster or a large loss of life seem to be necessary in order to bring about proper provisions for the assurance of safety. This is being revealed in connection with the flood conditions in Western Massachusetts.

Following the bursting of a reservoir dam which resulted in the flooding of Becket, it was discovered that another dam had bulged and was leaking. Remedial steps were taken and to relieve the situation the gates were lowered and about six feet of water was let out of the pond. It had the desired effect and Becket escaped a second flood that would have been worse than the first.

The disclosed condition of these two dams resulted in an order being issued for the inspection of 152 dams in the county. No one had thought of the possibility of such a storm arise to test the stability of the dams, much less such a tidal wave of water that would carry them away and weaken another. It was a revelation that called for the giving of immediate attention to other structures of like character and undergoing a similar test at that very time.

It would have been an easy matter to have made an inspection of those dams during previous days. It doesn't appear that any regular policy exists for such work, but its importance was quickly realized after something had happened which disclosed the need of doing whatever was possible to prevent any further flood distress. Perhaps if the dam which gave away had been carefully inspected six months ago Becket would not have figured as it did in the recent flood news. If the other weak dam had undergone a rigid examination at the same time there might not have been any need for the alarm that was given and the relief measures that were adopted.

Dams undergo deterioration the same as other structures. They have no difficulty in withstanding ordinary strains but there's no telling when the unusual is going to happen. If they are periodically examined better protection can be afforded those who would be subjected to danger in case of trouble.

THE APATHETIC VOTER

State and city elections in various sections today will be the object of much interest. In each instance the situation is different but these contests are such as are needed for the purpose of testing the attitude of the people. If existing conditions in some of the centers are due to the apathy of the citizens in the past they have a chance to correct their mistakes. They cannot fail to understand what disinterestedness has been responsible for in the days that are gone and knowing that they should be eager to block it in the future.

This is said with particular reference to the situation in the city of Indianapolis. There conditions have been the subject of extended comment. They have found their way into the courts. The prosecution of the mayor has resulted in his exclusion from office, and yet there was a determined effort on his part to maintain control of the situation through the appointments he made under the authority of a mayor.

Here is a case where there is need of a thorough housecleaning. From all accounts there is an opportunity for the voters of that city to exercise their authority and place at the head of the city government a man who can be relied upon to faithfully discharge his duties. Because it hasn't been done in the past is one of the reasons why a new mayor is necessary at this time.

Too often it is the case that men in all walks of life will plead that it is useless to undertake to vote or to participate in public meetings where city affairs are at stake. They maintain that it is impossible to outvote the control which appears to exist, but they overlook the fact that many persons of a similar mind, acting in the same way, are simply playing into the hands of those they really oppose. They are failing to live up to their convictions.

"What's the use?" is a worn out plea. It is the easiest solution of any problem, provided there is a willingness to accept such a solution, but it carries with it undesirable and unpleasant results in the long run. It invites the very conditions which are deplored.

WOOD'S SUCCESSOR

President Coolidge has not as yet named a successor to the late General Wood as governor general of the Philippines. Several names of men who are familiar with the situation there and able administrators have been mentioned, but no appointment has as yet been made. Whether the post has been offered to some who are not desirous of going to Manila is not known. It is possible that the one wanted for the job is not as yet available.

In the meantime, however, the president has been visited by Filipino leaders concerning the islands and the next governor general. There are those who have not been disposed to give much encouragement to the efforts of the Wood administration, but they are desirous that the president accept their advice. They have been and will on future occasions be given considerate attention in regard to such suggestions as they make.

According to Washington reports, the president is not inclined to advocate the transfer of the control of the Philippines from the war to the interior department, or even to the state department. Such a move was urged while Governor General Wood was living but he was not in favor of it. He was desirous that there be a larger number of civilian aides to overcome somewhat the military effect of the administration, but he believed it should be under the direction of the war department, and if the president has not been misrepresented he leans strongly to the Wood opinion, the value of which cannot be lightly regarded. This may narrow somewhat the possibility of appointments for that important post in the far east.

ALTITUDE BALLOONING

For those who thoroughly understand the navigation ballooning seems to be an easy means of air transportation. There is a fascination about it for many, but even for the expert there is a peril which is not disclosed by the ordinary flight.

This is indicated by the case of Captain Hawthorne C. Gray, an able pilot, who gave up his life in an effort to attain a new altitude record. From all indications he probably went higher than any other person has ever been and yet there is a question as to whether he was alive when he reached that altitude. Just what happened no one knows. The balloon was found where it had descended and caught in a tree, and in it were his dead body and the instruments and equipment he carried. Because his oxygen tanks were empty it is believed that he met his death in the thin air about eight miles above the surface of the earth because his supply of air gave out. Whether it was a case where he took greater chances than were advisable because he was about to establish a record will never be definitely known, but his barograph recorded a height much greater than that which Gray had put in his log which supports the idea that he was still going up when his oxygen ran out.

The balloon came back to earth safely, possibly without any influence from its pilot. It was a case where a life was sacrificed in an endeavor to do something no one else had done and where elaborate provisions had been made for facing menacing conditions. It demonstrates of course that in altitude soaring by balloon there is an even greater peril than the actual risk of guiding the gas bag to an unknown goal and return.

THE PRICE OF NAMES GOES UP

Silver Pennyweight Coine shifted uneasily on the park bench as he drew his frayed coat collar closer about his scrawny neck. Spring might be here according to the calendar but the air was still too frosty for 60-year-old joints knotted with rheumatism.

A robust policeman walked menacingly up to Silver and glowered at him auspiciously. Shrinking involuntarily, Silver decided that he'd be warmer walking. As he moved his stiff and creaking joints into an upright position he looked for all the world like an old and battered wooden soldier.

Slowly he shuffled along the winding walk — head down, shoulders hunched, hands in empty pockets. And, as the sharp, darting pains increased, all the accumulated bitterness of the years welled up in Silver's heart and for the thousandth time he recalled his miserable past.

From birth he had been branded—branded with a name that had been a curse throughout his life. Silver Pennyweight Coine! What a name! How could a mother burden a child with such a handicap? Mothers, he had heard, were peculiarly sentimental; they had a weakness for naming their first-born sons after some blithering knight on horseback. But what knight would have had such a name as Silver Pennyweight?

The older he grew the more sensitive he became about his name and the more he withdrew within himself. He became silent and sullen, and within him grew a deep and burning hatred toward the world that jeered at a man because of his name. His only pleasures were those rare occasions when he found himself alone in the open, wind-swept fields, in the deep, shadowy glens or wandering along some cool, sparkling stream.

With manhood, however, came the resolve to succeed in life despite his name, which he abbreviated to S. P. Coine. And he was well on the road to success when he met "her." Thrilled, proud, yet humble, he had asked her the age-old question.

He could still hear her laughter ringing out upon the clear stillness of the night as she had answered:

"How could a girl marry a Silver Coine?"

After that nothing had mattered. Silver scarcely knew how the years had passed — drab years following each other like pickets in a fence. He was 60 now, little more than a beggar, earning for himself just enough to keep a roof over his head during the winter months.

Miserably he shuffled his shivering body toward the tenement house where he had a bed and a chair of his own. Slowly, painfully, he made his way up the dark, sagging stairway to the small corner that was his.

"Silver Pennyweight Coine?" A dapper small man seemed to dance in front of Silver.

"Eh?" ejaculated Silver in surprise. Here was a stranger calling him by his whole absurd name! "I am," he growled in angry sentiment. "What's that to you?"

"Rather an odd name you have," the dapper little man observed blithely. Silver cringed. "Do you know how you got that name?"

"Why—er—" Silver was baffled. Then, "Do you?" he asked bluntly, fiercely.

"Yes, sir," laughed the other. "Want to hear about it?"

"Well—sit down," muttered Silver, grudgingly pointing to his chair.

"Well," echoed the dapper little man, "once upon a time there was a wealthy man living in a town near where you were born. Three times he had married in the hope of having a son. But when his third wife died she left him with one child — the daughter of his second wife!

"Left a widower for the third time, he began to brood upon the unfulfilled desire for a son, for an heir to his name and fortune. It became an obsession with him.

"One day he learned that a son was born to John Coine, a blacksmith out Glendale way. As he thought gloomily about the good fortune of other men to whom sons are born a bright idea struck him.

"Like a wild man, he dashed out to your father's cottage on his fastest horse, and begged permission to see you, surprised but flattered by this stranger's interest in his new-born son, your father showed him into the room where you lay in your mother's arms.

"Delighted with you, the wealthy man asked if you had already been christened. Hearing that you had not he cried out excitedly: "I'll give you a dollar if you'll name him Silver Pennyweight after me." So, your mother and father christened you Silver Pennyweight Coine."

"I'll be d—!" Silver exploded. "Not even a knight on horseback! The curse of a lifetime bought for a dollar!" A dull flush of anger had crept into Silver's sunken cheeks.

"Well, it's not so bad as that," assured the dapper little man. "The fact is, Pennyweight's estates were sold some years ago, and ever since we've been trying to find the heir to $500,000. And"—in mock seriousness—"since the price of names has gone up, I'm afraid you're it!"

Now, if you're lucky enough to spend your winters in Florida and your summers in the mountains, you're very likely to meet a slender, prosperous-looking old gentleman who expands his sunken chest and smiles blandly as he informs you proudly: "My name's Silver Pennyweight Coine."—Chicago News.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

BALMORAL

"Balmoral castle, summer residence of the British royal family, is one of the chief points of interest to tourists in Aberdeenshire, Scotland," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geography society. "The castle is situated in the heart of the Grampian highlands, on the River Dee, about 50 miles from the point at which it enters the North Sea. The neighborhood is said to have the driest climate in the British Isles, and it is probably for this reason, as well as for the beauty of the mountain scenery, that English royalty usually resort there at the end of the London season in the latter part of July.

"Balmoral was a favorite of Queen Victoria, the castle itself having been constructed under the direction of her husband, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, about the middle of the last century. The royal pair are said to have selected this remote highland spot because Osborne House, in which they then spent their leisure, had become too easy of access. There was at first but a small manor house on the property, which was utilized as a residence until the present elaborate structure in the Scotch baronial style could be completed. From the top of its central hundred-foot tower the visitor looks out upon a magnificent panorama of the Grampian Hills and the River Dee.

"While this modern seat of kings lacks the romantic glamour of ancient strongholds whose roots go back into the history of the Middle Ages, it is, nevertheless, imposing in appearance. Its numerous wings and towers of light colored stone cover an enormous area, and the whole is surrounded by a handsome park stretching along the banks of the Dee.

"At the near-by village of Ballater are barracks for the king's bodyguard which accompanies him while he is in residence. Ballater is a well known tourist resort, where summer visitors enjoy splendid golf links and excellent mountain climbing. The village is also highland terminus of the Dee railway, which follows the stream to Aberdeen, on the coast.

"The city of Aberdeen, besides being seat of one of Scotland's most famous universities, is the most important seaport on the north shore. It has regular steamer service to London and other British ports, and is connected with England by two lines of railway. It thus forms an accessible gateway to the highland playgrounds which lie behind it, as well as to the rich agricultural province of Aberdeenshire, of which it is the capital. Aberdeen is also home port of a North Sea fishing fleet and is famous for the export of granite. These industries, together with weaving, manufacturing, and fruit canning have made the old university town fourth city of Scotland in wealth and importance.

"Commerce takes second place during the summer touring season, however. Thousands of visitors pour through Aberdeen to the near-by highland resorts. Quaint stone cottages and wild scenery, with golf, and salmon fishing thrown in, draw foreign as well as English visitors. It is said that one of the main attractions of the region to Queen Victoria and her husband was the free and cordial manner of the highlanders themselves, whose hospitable nature is unchanged to the present day.

"The peasantry around Balmoral are a cheerful lot, hard working and intensely religious. The white-washed interiors of their cottages, with open hearth and china-decked dresser form an appropriate background for life among rugged hills, severe yet hospitable. Royal visitors from the castle have often stopped in such simple surroundings when overtaken by storm or fatigue on some highland journey. This freedom of existence was even in Queen Victoria's day a feature of life at Balmoral. It is one of the charms which year after year draw Britain's rulers to their castle in the Scottish highlands for an August holiday."

Friends of Prince Hohenlohe Langeburg and Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, widow of the late Reginald Vanderbilt, whose engagement has been announced in Europe, will join in the hope that their marriage may result as happily as did the romance of Prince Charles of Hohenlohe Langeburg, relative of the bridegroom-elect. Prince Charles was heir to the family title and estates, but immediately after his father's death in 1860 he renounced all his rights for the purpose of marrying Marie Grathwohl, a beautiful girl of the people, who was then twenty-three years old. Their marriage was solemnized in Paris the following year. The couple lived for forty years in ideal happiness, which was ended only by the wife's death in 1901. The king of Wurtemburg had in 1890, ennobled her, conferring on her the title of Baroness Von Bronn. Prince Charles died in 1902.

YOUR HEALTH

CONTAGIOUS DISEASE, STAY OUT!

By Samuel D. Shull, M. D., Chambersburg, Pa.
Member Gorgas Memorial

By contagious we mean the transmission of a disease from one person to another by direct or indirect contact.

All persons want to keep well, because to accomplish the good results of business these days when competition is so great, men and women must feel fit.

As some of the most dangerous diseases are caused by infection, it is well to be alert and try to prevent coming in contact with the disease producing organism.

Influenza, or la grippe, is not a cold, as many people think it is; it is a definitely known disease. Its symptoms, however, are those simulating colds. La grippe is a dangerous disease, and efforts to escape it should be made.

Persons when coughing should shield others by covering the mouth. One should expectorate only in places provided for it. Handshaking to any extent in times of epidemics should be dispensed with for the time. The organisms causing disease are flying around through the air, and food should not be exposed at home nor in eating places. Dust carries the germs. Foods are often infected and disease is conveyed right into our systems.

Pneumonia, which often follows grippe, is now considered a contagious disease, and when we have a mixed infection the outlook is bad.

Thousands of cases of measles, scarlet fever, diptheria, chicken pox, etc., could be avoided if persons were more cautious and observed rules of quarantine more rigidly. Some of these diseases can be carried to others, and strict observance of quarantine rules should be maintained. The idea of fumigation seems to be unpopular with some people, but when well done it will kill contagion and combat the contagious and infectious diseases.

I have heard mothers say, "Well, if my children are to get measles, they might as well have them now." It is the wrong way to look at these matters. There have been many cases where no caution was observed when a child had a light attack of measles or scarlet rash and others in the family were exposed, became infected, and died.

A word on serums and vaccines now advocated is in order. Since the advent of toxin, which is given in five doses four days apart, scarlet fever will not get such a headway at any time. Results show that it is a definite immunizing treatment. With the vaccines of all kinds, we are in a better position to control infection than we were a few years ago. Be sure and consult your physician.

Stories That Recall Others

A Threat

Lois had been teasing her little sister Mildred, all day. Mildred thought she had stood about enough and said: "Well, Lois, I won't put any flowers on your grave."

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system Clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets will save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

The Luck of Mrs. Peter

It nothing takes from grit and pluck
To say there's such a thing as luck.
—Old Mother Nature.

When little Mrs. Peter stamped the danger signal up there in a clover patch in the Old Pasture, things happened. They happened with great suddenness and some unexpectedness. That signal was to warn Mrs. Pete, the modest young rabbit of whom Mrs. Peter had become so fond. Now Mrs. Pete showed at once that her training had been of the very best. When that danger signal was thumped, she didn't wait to find out what the danger was or where it was. She bounded away at full speed, lippety-lippety-lip, straight for the protection of the nearest bushes.

Now, like all rabbits, Mrs. Pete could look behind her as she ran. She rolled her eyes back now. She saw

They were angry as only yellowjackets can be

Mrs. Peter going at full jump for the bushes on the other side of the open place and she saw Reddy Fox leaping to his feet and bounding after Mrs. Peter. You see, Reddy had understood that danger signal just as well as she had. Because Mrs. Peter was nearest him and also because he was headed toward her, he bounded after her.

Now, Mrs. Peter had done a very brave thing, for even though she reached the bushes ahead of Reddy Fox, she would still have to do some smart dodging before she could reach a bramble-tangle. She is a good dodger, but so is Reddy Fox. So you see it really was a very brave thing that Mrs. Peter had done.

Some people think there is no such thing as luck. Perhaps there isn't, but it certainly looks as if there is sometimes. When Mrs. Peter thumped that loud, hard thump with her hind feet, she didn't know that she was right over a yellowjacket's nest. She was so intent on watching Reddy Fox that she didn't notice the yellowjackets going in in an out of a hole in the ground close by her. So when she thumped and ran, she was quite innocent of any intention of disturbing those yellowjackets.

But she did disturb them. In fact, she made them very angry. They came pouring out of the little hole in the ground just as Reddy Fox reached that spot. They were angry as only yellowjackets can be. They promptly blamed Reddy for disturbing their nest and they didn't take time to talk the matter over. One landed right on the end of Reddy's nose and Reddy almost turned a somersault, as he yelped with pain and suddenly rubbed his nose on the ground.

Meanwhile, others were whirling about Reddy's head and stinging whenever they got a chance. My, my, my! such a lively time as there was right out there in the Old Pasture! Reddy knew just what the trouble was. He had had experience before. He pushed his face along through the grass to brush them off. He struck at them with his paws. And then he took to his heels. He had forgotten all about a rabbit dinner. Rabbits didn't interest him in the least. All he cared about was getting away from those sharp little lances of the yellowjacket.

No, perhaps there isn't any such thing as luck. But Mrs. Peter thinks there is. You see, she knows that, while she might have escaped, it is also true that she might not have escaped had it not been for those yellowjackets. So she sees it was lucky that when she thumped that danger signal she happened to be right over that hole of the yellowjackets. What do you think about it?

Doctor Claims CAMPHOROLE Stops Agony of Rheumatism

How the New Discovery Brings the Marvelous Secret of a N. J. Doctor to Every Suffering Man or Woman.

Thousands are suffering from this terrible condition, which is mostly caused by deposits in the joints. The reason for these deposits is because the blood flows more slowly, and the little spaces in these joints where the arteries end, and the veins begin, are smaller than any part of the body. Therefore, the deposits in the blood are more liable to lodge in the joints of the shoulders, elbows, wrists, knees, ankles, toes, hands, etc.

CAMPHOROLE, the new powerful penetrating treatment of Dr. Brigadell's is rapidly absorbed in these areas and aids the joints in driving out these deposits that cause you trouble. From the first application of CAMPHOROLE you will feel a soothing, healing sensation as it penetrates the tissue, going deep into the joints, easing the trouble, stimulating circulation.

The funeral of Miss Susan F. Tinkham, 92, of Hanover, was held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon from the undertaking parlors of George G. Grant in Taftville, Rev. Dwight C. Stone of Hanover, officiating. Relatives from Norwich, Providence and Hanover were in attendance and there were many floral tributes. The body is to be taken to Boston today (Tuesday) for cremation.

MIDDLETOWN CUT OFF EXCEPT VIA DURHAM ROAD

Transportation by river at Middletown has been brought to a close because orders were issued Sunday to cease operating the draw on the Middletown and Portland highway bridge. This was deemed necessary because the officials feared if the bridge were opened they could not close it because water might get into the mechanism. The bridge is old and it is said will have to be replaced soon. The bridge will not be opened until its danger point has been passed.

Automobile traffic between Middletown and Portland has been cut off except as one pays $2 to have his car drawn through water three feet deep in the underpass on Hartford avenue by a pair of white horses attached to an ox cart. The water reaches the bellies of the horses and if a car attempts to go through on its own power it stalls. Many cars tried it and had to be pulled out. The charon with the white horses earned a month's wages in no time. Many Portland people who work in Middletown and drive over parked their cars near the bridge Monday morning and left them there during the day.

The water i nthe underpass also cut off access to Cromwell and Hartford. The state highway is inundated near the Little River bridge. The road by way of West Cromwell is covered with water near Newfield.

The South Farms causeway bridge is under water so that that section of the city is cut off. Men in rowboats take passengers from one section to the other. This means that access to the state highway down the county is cut off at that point. This holds true also of the road to Meriden, Middlefield and Rockfall, where the flood has covered the road. This means that the only egress from Middletown is south by way of Durham. If this were closed it could be said that Middletown was an island.

RECKLESS MOTORIST WILL APPEAR IN LEDYARY COURT

As a result of an automobile crash on the Military highway near Breakwater Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock Franciscio Tiscione of East Haven was arrested by State Policeman J. H. Smith of the Groton barracks, charged with reckless driving and ordered to appear in the town court of Ledyard this (Tuesday) evening.

Tiscione's car crashed into an automobile operated by Mrs. Ruth Chaffee of Springfield, Mass. There were several passengers in each car, and all were severely shaken up, but otherwise uninjured. Both cars were extensively damaged. It is claimed that Tiscione's car, traveling toward New London, sideswiped the other car, which was traveling in the opposite direction.

DEFEAT ATTEMPT TO EXTEND ROOSTER ORDINANCE TO OTHER FEATHERED FOLK

The so-called "crowing rooster" ordinance, proposed as an amendment to the present poultry ordinance, met with considerable opposition from a number of local poultry men at the November meeting of the court of common council Monday night and was disapproved by the council. Although the proposed amendment was disapproved by the council, the present ordinance, enacted five years ago, remains in force. The amendment was proposed in order to include not only crowing roosters, but other poultry as well, geese, guinea fowl, etc. The main opposition to the amendment was that, according to the view held by the poultry men, and their attorney, possible complainants, by wording of the amendment, would be the sole judges as to whether they were being annoyed by poultry.

Lee Roy Robbins, prosecuting attorney of the local city court, and Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., did not share this opinion, they contending that the city court judge would be the person to decide any cases that might be brought up under the ordinance. However, the proposed ordinance failed passage.

Milk Ordinance Disapproved.

One other proposed ordinance, regarding the sale of milk, and providing that milk sold locally, should either be pasteurized or from T. B. tested cows, was also disapproved by the council.

At 8:20 o'clock, when the council was called to order by His Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, the council chamber was crowded with poultry men, who were present in a body in opposition to the proposed ordinance. Extra chairs had to be provided for the spectators and even then about a score had to stand during the hearing.

City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read his certificate of publication of the two proposed ordinances, one affecting the sale of milk and the other regarding the dumping of rubbish on city land and on crowing roosters. The city clerk then read the poultry ordinance which has been in effect for the past five years and also the proposed amendment. He also read a statement signed by Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve regarding the physical condition of Mrs. J. L. Tourtellotte who has been a hospital patient.

After Mayor Waters had declared the poultry ordinance hearing open, City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins took the floor. "I didn't come strictly in favor of the new ordinance," he said. Mr. Robbins went on to state that he had brought the matter to the attention of the corporation counsel in order that the present ordinance might be changed to include not only roosters but other birds as well. He had had a good many complaints about other fowl than roosters. In two or three cases it was geese and in one case it was guinea fowl. Five years ago it was not thought that there was any other fowl in the city that would make a noise to disturb sick people.

He said he felt quite sure that people who have complained to him rather expected him to speak in favor of the proposed ordinance. He said that, up to 10 days ago, he had never heard any objection to the present ordinance, whatsoever, he said, and added "We have had to act on it in a general way."

The prosecuting attorney went on to say that in almost all instances owners have been only too glad to take care of crowing roosters when they have been a source of disturbance to the sick. He spoke of other laws on nuisances and said that the proposed ordinance was not at all radical. "This ordinance doesn't mean that a person can't keep roosters in the city," he said, "And it doesn't mean that they must keep every rooster from crowing." In concluding, Mr. Robbins said he would be pleased to answer any questions on the working of the ordinance.

In answer to a query from the mayor, Mr. Robbins said he had not had as many complaints lately as he did the first year the ordinance was in effect. The mayor, in substance, had asked him if the present ordinance had aided in abating nuisances.

James L. Tourtellotte said he had kept fowl for years. A neighbor of his keeps geese and they are "going all the time." His wife is home from the hospital and the geese disturb her.

Opposition To The Ordinance.

The opposition side was then heard from. Attorney Thomas J. Kelly, speaking on behalf of the Norwich poultry association, asked Mr. Robbins if he could give offhand the names of recent complainants. Mr. Robbins said he could not remember receiving any complaints this year.

"Why not have the complainants resort to the civil court?" asked Mr. Kelly. "Why make criminals of people who keep fowl or birds that make any noise that any invalid thinks is disturbing the invalid?" The invalid is the sole judge, said Mr. Kelly. To illustrate the provisions of the proposed ordinance, Mr. Kelly said: "A hen that has laid an egg, cackles; some invalid thinks it is disturbing him and we have to chop the head off the chicken."

Mr. Kelly called attention to the valuable flocks in the city. He said that any person might say that a neighbor's flock is a nuisance. During a discussion on the ordinance it developed that the barking dog law requires that an investigation be made by the chief of police on a complaint and that no such investigation was incorporated in the proposed ordinance on poultry.

Speaking to the council, Mr. Kelly said, "Bear in mind that if you pass this ordinance you are jeopardizing thousands of dollars worth of poultry." "I think I live as near the geese Mr. Tourtellotte spoke of, as he does," said Mr. Kelly. "They don't disturb me and I am a nervous man."

Mr. Sandisky, who owns the geese referred to by Mr. Tourtellotte said the geese did not make any noise, only in the morning when they are feeding.

Poultry Man Had To Move.

Frank E. Fitch, president of the poultry association, spoke of one case where a local man was obliged to get rid of his male birds. He sold his place and moved so that he could continue in the poultry business, Mr. Fitch said. He went on to state that the Norwich Free Academy is teaching a poultry course and trying to get boys and girls to keep a few chickens. He said that the poultry association has had as many as 150 paid up members and that this was nothing compared to the number of poultry owners in the city.

Carl A. Ricker, secretary of the poultry association, said that a good many people keep "back lot" chickens to help supply the house with fresh eggs, and meat. It also provides recreation for the owners. He said the chief opposition to the proposed ordinance is that the complainant is the sole judge. In answer to a question from Mayor Waters, Mr. Ricker said that he knew of only one case that has come up under the present ordinance.

"Do you know of any person who has been made a criminal under the present ordinance?" Mayor Waters asked.

Mr. Ricker said he did not.

Mr. Barry, a local poultry raiser, and that he has stock valued at about $400. If he had to get rid of his birds it would mean a loss of about $50 a bird.

Mr. Tourtellotte, again speaking for the opposition, said "Mr. Kelly doesn't live as near those geese as I do."

Mr. Kelly said that the zoning system might have some bearing on the matter. He said he thought a man should have the right to keep a few hens. The objection is to the wording of the ordinance. "I do not think this ordinance should pass," he said. "In fact I think the present ordinance ought to be repealed."

"When Mr. Kelly tells this court of common council that this ordinance leaves the whole question to be decided by the complainant alone he is making a mistake," said Mr. Robbins. He went on to explain that a complainant must write to the poultry owner informing him that he has a crowing rooster that is disturbing him (the complainant). The owner may say that it is a valuable bird and that he is not going to get rid of him. What happens? There is a court hearing. Every man has his say, and everyone who goes before the city court gets a square deal before a fair judge, Mr. Robbins went on to explain.

All the complainant has to do is to raise up his hand and say "I am disturbed," said Mr. Kelly.

"Yes, but the judge doesn't have to believe him," retorted Mr. Robbins.

Mr. Kelly then appealed to Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr. for an opinion, and the corporation counsel coincided with Mr. Robbins.

Read Barking Dog Law.

The barking dog law was then called for by Mr. Kelly, and was read by Mr. Shields. Mr. Kelly still maintained that the complainant is the only person who could determine whether he was disturbed. After some discussion regarding crowing roosters and noisy automobiles the hearing came to a close.

Mr. Kelly suggested that a show of hands for and against the proposed ordinance might be taken, so the ordinance was reopened for that purpose. Some 25 or 30 of those present, residents of the city, voted against the proposed ordinance with only one man voting in favor.

Hearing on Milk Ordinance

The hearing on the proposed milk ordinance was then called. This ordinance provided that milk sold locally should be either pasteurized or from T. B. tested cows, and according to the date incorporated was to have gone in effect November 15th.

Dr. E. J. Brophy, health officer, stated that he had introduced the ordinance at the request of the state department of health. He spoke briefly in favor of the ordinance which is aimed to protect those who drink raw milk against tuberculosis. He said that he did not believe the ordinance, if passed, should go into effect November 15th. He sugested that it go into effect a year from now in order to provide time for testing the cows. There was some discussion between members of the council and Dr. Brophy regarding the cost of pasteurization and testing herds and as to who would have to pay for the testing of the cattle. There was also a discussion as to whether pasteurized and T. B. tested milk would mean an increase in the price of milk.

After this hearing had been closed the council recessed to the mayor's office and on reconvening both ordinances were disapproved.

Petitions Received

With the two hearings out of the way the council proceeded with its ordinary business. Petitions were received as referred as follows:

From John Donegan, et al., for a bug light on Maple Grove avenue, between Washington street and Goldberg avenue; referred to police committee with power.

From Charles A. Levitsky and five others, asking the city to accept Margerio street; referred to the public works committee.

From E. T. Connelly and five others, asking that a bug light in front of No. 101 Central avenue be replaced by an arc light; referred to the police committee with power.

From T. J. Murphy, and a score of others asking the city to establish Tyler avenue, its whole length, as a city street; referred to the public works department.

From A. L. Peale, asking the council to establish a grade for a sidewalk on the easterly side of McKinley avenue, in front of his property; referred to the public works committee. (The council later in the meeting, on recommendation of the public works committee, established the grade petitioned for).

From Frank Blinderman, et al., asking for an arc light and a bug light on Grant court; referred to the police committee with power.

From D. Sadinsky, for an electric light off No. 218 West Main street; referred to the police committee with power.

From Geo. W. Armstrong, et al calling attention to the poor drainage conditions on Prospect street at Howard avenue and asking that the situation be remedied; referred to the public works committee.

Claims Against City

Two claims were received as follows: From J. Stankewitz, who complained that the storm of October 13 flooded the gutters which overflowed and damaged his property at No. 99 Rose street to the extent of $600. Referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel.

From Mary Suplicki claiming the flooding of the cellar and property at No. 167 Cliff street, for which she asks $1,000; referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel.

Reports and recommendations were received and adopted as follows:

Police committee report, granting petition of William H. Shields, Jr., for a bug light on School street.

From finance committee, refunding soldier exempt taxes as follows:

Harry Sabrowski, $28.18; J. W. Blair, $25.40; Margaret E. Mueller, $20.75; Mary T. Peacock, $25.87; Terrence Hogan, $24.87; Leo L. Jacques, $24.87.

The monthly reports of the city treasurer and street department and auditor's statement on the water department's cashier's account for the quarter were received and accepted.

Disclaims Responsibility

The finance committee, reporting on the Disco claim, for damages owing to water leakage into the Disco building on Main street, stated that they did not find the street department responsible and recommended that the claim be turned over to the gas and electrical department. The recommendation was adopted.

The city clerk was instructed to notify Peck-McWilliams and the Max Gordon Corp., to move any property they have on Hollyhock Island. (Hollyhock Island, so-called, was some time ago set apart as a community recreation field.)

$40,000 Bond Treasurer, Tax Collector

The mayor and aldermen (the councilmen not voting, according to provisions of the law) voted that hereafter a $40,000 bond be furnished by the city treasurer and a similar bond be furnished, annually, by the tax collector of the city.

Department bills were approved as follows:

Water, $5,015.25; gas and electric, $49,616.32; police, $6,591.60; street lighting, $5,765.47; cemeteries, $1,290.71; public works, $32,406.34; Deep River reservoir, $43,754.33; finance, $78,574.20; fire, $7,160.07; park, $817.42.

Mayor Waters announced his appointment of Mrs. Elizabeth Drew as a member of the city recreation commission for a term of seven years, beginning October 1st last. This is a reappointment. The council adjourned about 10 o'clock.

LIFE SAVINGS CORPS IS TO BEGIN CLASSES

On Tuesday evening the regular monthly meeting of the local Red Cross life saving corps will be held in the new corps headquarters at the Y. M. C. A. Through the courtesy of the directors and general secretary of the Y this room has been turned over to the corps, and is being furnished with lockers, etc., for the use of the corps members and also with life saving and first aid equipment. At the meeting plans will be completed for the running of the first series of life saving classes. It is hoped by those in charge that three series of classes of about two months duration each, will be conducted.

On Friday evening, Nov. 11, the corps will celebrate the opening of the annual roll call of the American Red Cross by starting their regular winter life saving classes. These classes are to be held every Tuesday and Friday evening. Juniors from 7.15 to 8.00 and seniors from 8.15 to 9.15. The junior classes are restricted to Y. M. C. A. members between the ages of twelve and sixteen inclusive, but all young men seventeen years of age and over whether members of the Y. M. C. A. or not may enter the senior classes.

The subjects taken up include the methods of breaking holds of drowning persons, carrying rescued subjects to shore, recovering bodies under the surface of the water, undressing in the water, and the very important one of resuscitation, by which one person may restore to consciousness, and often to life, one who is apparently dead, and who might actually fail to recover unless prompt first aid measures are taken. Men, especially those interested in the work of the Red Cross, are welcome to inspect this branch.

It is believed that many more local swimmers will take advantage of these classes, for while a good swimmer is usually able to take care of himself, few, without training, are qualified to rescue, carry to safety, and if necessary, resuscitate another person.

There is no cost attached to this instruction, all work done by the corps is volunteer. Inquiries regarding the classes may be made at the desk at the Y. M. C. A.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVER HAS HIS FOREHEAD CUT

William Stanton of Waterford, received a painful gash on the forehead and his automobile was extensively damaged when it was run into by another automobile on the Norwich road near Connecticut college Sunday night at 10 o'clock. The driver of the other car failed to stop but a person who witnessed the accident gave Mr. Stanton a registration number that he said he thought the car carried.

It was found that the car bearing this number was registered in the name of Paul Epps, 10 Barrows court, New London, and, upon complaint of Stanton, Auto Patrol Oicer Clarence Martin later arrested Epps, charged with reckless driving and evading responsibility. The man was released in bonds of $100 furnished by Louis Eifersbein, but Stanton withdrew the complaint Monday morning and Epps was not presented before the police court. The latter denied that his car had been in the vicinity of Connecticut college at the time the crash occurred.

REPORTED FOREIGN WORK TO Y. M. C. A. BOARD

The November meeting of the local Y. M. C. A. Monday evening was more largely attended than for several months and there was a healthy and encouraging interest.

The meeting was given over almost entirely to the consideration of the foreign work of the Y. M. C. A. and Frank Lenz, one of the foreign secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. National Congress gave a very unusual and most inspiring address on "The world wide outlook of the Y. M. C. A." Mr. Lenz told of the wonderful influence the "Y" is having in many countries, and the information he gave to his listeners was what might be called "an eye opener." The leaders of many of the countries including Mexico are greatly interested in the work the association is doing, and they are assisting the movement in practical ways. Because of this meeting a much greater interest in the Y. M. C. A. foreign work will doubtless be evidenced.

TWO TAFTVILLE ARRESTS ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Reald Bouchard, 24, of Merchants avenue, Taftville, was arrested Monday night by Constable Maguire of Baltic on the charge of violation of the liquor law and was brought to police headquarters in this city, where he was locked up in default of $2,500 bonds. It is understood Bouchard will be accused as a second offender.

While Constable Maguire was still at headquarters with Bouchard, Joseph Troland, 26, came there to inquire about the arrest of Bouchard and was himself placed under arrest by the constable. It is claimed that Troland has been associated with Bouchard in the conduct of the place on Merchants avenue. Troland was also held in default of $2,500 bonds for appearance in the city court.

LIQUOR VIOLATION CHARGE AGAINST ANDREW ZAWACKI

Andrew Zawacki, 28, who runs a bottling works at 26 Sixth street, was arrested Monday night on the charge of violation of the liquor law and will be presented in the city court, having given bonds of $2,500 for his appearance. The arrest was made by Sergeant Matthew Delaney, County Investigator William Lewis, Officer Quinn and others.

This is said to be the third time Zawacki has been arrested on a similar charge.

Mrs. George W. Morrow of 38 Thirteenth street entertained the Monday afternoon bridge club this week. The prizes were taken by Mrs. Cliord E. Wilson and Mrs. William H. Denison. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Celebrated Anniversary Mass.

Rev. Frederick M. Coholan celebrated an anniversary mass at 7:30 Monday at St. Mary's Memorial church for Bart Sullivan. The solos were sung by Horace F. Corning and the organist, Mrs. M. J. Farrell.

The Peal of a Distant Church Bell

IN this attractive model Seth Thomas has placed a gong of bell metal. Its tone has a clear, lingering quality that has been described most accurately as the peal of a distant church bell.

The Tambour 20 pictured above is in mahogany with contrasting wood design. It is one of several models fitted with the patented bell metal gong. You will find them all in our complete display.

ACADEMY PRACTICALLY ASSURED OF FOOTBALL TITLE IN EASTERN CONN.

Out of the maze of shutouts came several happenings of interest among the "Big Six" during the past week. In all games did the winning team assert its superiority by holding the opposition scoreless.

Windham lost to an eastern Connecticut high school for the first time in five years by dropping the decision to N. F. A. and it was also the first defeat since the early fall of 1921 that the Academy has been able to hang onto its Blue and White rivals from Willimantic. Bulkeley continued to remain scoreless by being decisively whipped by Bulkeley of Hartford.

The results of games played last week in which teams of the "Big Six" were involved:

N. F. A. 7, Windham 0.
Bulkeley (Hartford) 24, Bulkeley (N. L.) 0.
Stonington 14, Chapman Tech 0.
Westerly 0, Warwick 13.

Hardly an Upset

The games ran pretty much as to form, the only upset being probably the Westerly defeat.

The Academy and Windham played before the largest crowd of the local season, nearly 3,000. It was an interesting game to watch for both teams batled with every aviable resource. Windham got the advantage in the first half mainly because of a recovered fumble on a punt on the Academy 20 yard line. For most of the remainder of the time in the first two quarters, play was in Red and White territory. Windham twice brought the ball up within the ten yard stripe but showed no scoring punch and lost it on downs. The Academy showed plenty of fight and toward the close of the first two quarters managed to work up to Windham's 7-yard line with a neat aerial attack that sure looked like a touchdown with a few more minutes.

The Academy did not present Windham with any fumble for a break in the third quarter and they outplayed the Blue and White during this and the final period. However, the allowing of punts to roll 15 and 20 yards hurt the Academy two or three times during this half while a 30-yard penalty came at the wrong time. The winning play, McGlone to Greene was nifty, to say the least. Windham should have been served enough notice that trouble was coming when the Academy threw a few forwards toward the end of the first half. Harry McGlone sure had his left arm going in top condition and the catch and run of Greene's will be long remembered.

Harry McGlone's running was the best seen here this year. He was really the only player on the field able to gain consistently, his dashes being good for yardage every time. Capt. Jack Marks gave about the best defensive game we hope to see in high school football while he also chipped in some nice gains through the center of the line. The much advertised Heller-Marks debate was another victory for Norwich. Buck LaCroix, Mish and Kelly were others who played a high grade brand of football for the Academy in their great victory.

Saba got off some nice punts for the Windham outfit while his general allround play was also good. Nelson, Warren and Coutu also showed well for the Willimantic teams.

Windham's Hold Gone

Now that Windham's strangle hold on the honors in this section has been broken it remains for the Academy to prepare for their ancient rivals, Bulkeley at New London Friday and not to take them too lightly.

Stonington came over to New London and defeated Chapman Tech. The Stonington outfit seems to be an in and outer and Tech seems to be an "in" for it. The Academy plays at Stonington the 19th.

Bulkeley of New London needs a Moses. They are still very much in the darkness, having dropped five and played two scoreless ties in seven contests. But the funny part of this is that the Orange and Black has not scored a point. They offered little opposition to a strong Hartford Bulkeley team last Friday. A couple bum decisions are reported to have hurt the New Londoners somewhat, however.

All the early season work goes for naught when the Academy and Bulkeley ever get together. The Whalers will fight to the end in the coming battle because a win over N. F. A. will make their season a success, all other results being forgotten. It must be remembered, that probably one reason for Bulkeley's poor record is that she has met some of the best in the state. A schedule consisting of Meriden, Weaver and Bulkeley of Hartford, Central of Bridgeport, South Manchester, LaSalle academy and East Hartford is no soft snap and even though she hasn't scored Bulkeley can receive just as high a rating as some other teams in this section that have won a couple games against weak teams. It should be no picnic for the Academy, this Bulkeley game.

At Westerly Saturday a strong Warwick team came, saw and went away with a victory gained in the final period. Coach Roger's boys are now experiencing their worst season in a long time, having won but one game. They are next to Bulkeley in the low scoring race. Stonington and Westerly meet Friday and like the Academy and Bulkeley all past events are forgotten when they get together.

The work of the "Big Six" to date:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.	O. P.
N. F. A.	5	1	0	76	44
Windham	3	3	1	59	38
Stonington	3	3	0	63	34
Westerly	1	3	3	12	61
C. Tech	1	5	0	19	88
Bulkeley	0	5	2	0	97

Bits About The Big Six

Bulkeley now has the unenvied honor of being scored on the most, snatching it from its home town contemporary by last week's work.

Right now the Academy stands out among the teams of this section and by winning Saturday the Academy made itself a little better known among the state title contenders. But a defeat from Bulkeley will ruin everything.

From the way things have gone so far it would seem that eastern Connecticut is below that of other sections of the state when only one team can win more than half its games.

The Westerly-Warwick game was originally scheduled for Friday but because of the heavy rains which made the field a quagmire was moved up to Saturday.

Certain sections of the Academy campus Saturday were very muddy but only on a few occasions did they interfere with the work of the teams.

Johnny Greene seems to be bad medicine for Windham in any sport. He pitched a 12 to 1 win over them in baseball last spring.

Favorable comment was heard from both sides on the officiating at the campus Saturday.

Windham brought down quite a delegation.

The Academy has done well in cross-country sodate.

Windham has Bristol for its last home game this Saturday.

In Other Sections

Only about two weeks left for football.

Warren Harding had a tough time beating weak New Haven Commercial Saturday but finally managed a 13 to 0 decision.

Weaver of Hartford, with Billy Collins, former Norwich boy at quarterback ran roughshod over Lewis of Southington Saturday, 32 to 0. Weaver closes its season Friday against Bulkeley, also of the Insurance city. Both defeated Bulkeley of New London by practically the same margin.

The Stamford high football record which was 16 wins in 19 games over nearly three seasons has been held up for survey. What's the matter with the Academy's baseball mark for the past two years—33 wins in 38 starts.

Basketball among the high schools will be in full swing hardly before we know it.

AGGIES AND TRINITY NOT MEET ON GRIDIRON IN 1928

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 7.—Connecticut Aggies and Trinity will not meet in football in 1928 according to the announcement here yesterday of Varsity Coach Sumner A. Dole, who was informed Saturday by the athletic authorities of the Hartford institution that Amherst will replace the Aggies on the Trinitarians grid schedule.

Both Coaches Johnny Merriman of Trinity and Dole of Connecticut have expressed regret over this rather unexpected turn in affairs, for both wanted to have the series continue. Among those "higher up" in the administration of Trinity's athletic policy it was felt that Amherst, a liberal arts college like Trinity, would be a more suitable opponent than the Aggies, and hence the change. The Sabrinas have already been scheduled for the Saturday usually held for the Aggies, and inasmuch as Connecticut has closed for a game with Lowell Textile on the only remaining opening date on Trinity's 1928 card, there is no likelihood of a Connecticut Aggie-Trinity football game next year.

Teams in basketball, baseball and track from the two institutions will continue to compete, however, and Coach Dole stated Saturday afternoon that he hoped football relations would be resumed in 1929.

Among the undergraduate body the announcement that Trinity and Connecticut would not play at football next year was received with genuine expressions of regret yesterday. This same feeling will be shared by C. A. C. alumni when the news becomes generally known, for the Aggie-Trinity game always served to draw a large crowd of old grads to Storrs or Hartford, depending on where the game was played. Aggie-Trinity football games have always been marked by the keenest of rivalry, hard playing, and good sportsmanship. From a Connecticut standpoint, it will be difficult to replace Trinity with an opponent that will command the same amount of interest.

SANDE WILL BE GIVEN HEARING FRIDAY

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7.—(AP)— The Maryland racing commission, which revoked the jockey license of Earl Sande for committing an alleged foul in the Pimlico futurity Friday, will give the noted rider a hearing tomorrow. This was announced tonight by James A. Latane, chairman, following receipt of a written request from Sande that he be given an opportunity to state his case.

Sande's disbarment prevents him from riding or serving as a trainer on any North American track until he stands before the commissioners. He will introduce three witnesses in his behalf, understood to be jockeys who rode in the classic. Sande's Bateau is alleged to have cut in front of Reigh Count, the favorite, forcing him against the rail and ruining his stride when both were leading at the home stretch.

Latane declared Sande had not been "railroaded"; that his act was witnessed by two members of the commission. Sande has professed innocence of the charge.

HUDKINS-DUNDEE COURT ACTION IS POSTPONED

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 7.—(AP)— Promised drastic action by the city prosecutor in connection with the Hudkins-Dundee fight fiasco was postponed today while members of the state athletic commission were hailed to the investigator's carpet to explain certain phases of the "no-contest" title bout.

Dr. E. J. Lickley, the prosecutor, after questioning Seth W. P. Strelinger of the commission, announced he would delay action to closely question the two other commissioners, Charles Traung of San Francisco, and Louis Almgren of San Diego.

The prosecutor announced last week that if the commissioners could not answer questions concerning the $60,000 guarantee by Promotor Donald and other things he would make the state officials parties to a "gigantic fight fraud." Dr. Lickley said he would make a full report to Gov. C. C. Young.

Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion, declined to enter the ring last Thursday with Ace Hudkins, of Nebraska because Promoter Donald was not prepared to lay the alleged guarantee on the line prior to the opening bell. Fifteen thousand disappointed fans thereupon staged a near riot.

DARTMOUTH TEAM HAS A DAY OF LEISURE

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 7.—(AP)— Head Coach Jesse Hawley of Dartmouth tried a little psychology on his squad tonight. To relieve their minds of football and wipe out memories of their strenuous trip through the flood region to reach Providence in time for the Brown game last Saturday, all players who took part in that game were allowed to attend a dinner at Lebanon tonight.

The team was given a rest today after its victorious battle with Brown but the third and fourth elevents went through a brief scrimmage. The receding flood has left the main road to Hanover clear and indications tonight were that there would be a sell out for the Cornell game here on Saturday.

HORWEEN SHOWS HOW TOUCHDOWN IS MADE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—(AP)— Head Coach Arnold Horween showed Harvard's football men how to make a touchdown when he turned in a 40-yard off-tackle dash for a score in the course of a scrimmage between Team C and the scrubs today. Today's Crimson practice was limited to limbering up and passing drills for the men who played in the Pennsylvania game, while the scrubs and first string substitutes came in for a stiff scrimmage workout. The injured list of Crosby, Bell, Harper and Stewart is causing Dr. Tommy K. Richards little worry and all the men are expected to be back in togs by tomorrow.

YALE FACES HARDEST TEST OF SEASON SATURDAY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Facing an unbeaten Princeton team and the hardest game of their season, Saturday, the Eli squad went through their workout today with unusual pep and snap. The weather was cold and the men had to keep on the jump to be comfortable.

Karl Billhardt, who was forced out of play with water on the knee the first day he landed on the second team as Johnny Hoben's understudy at quarter, was back on that eleven today. Bob Wilson, who had held his berth, was running the third team.

The first two teams went through a long session of signal drill, and the third team had dummy scrimmage with the scrubs.

"Tad" Jones announced the one scrimmage of the week for tomorrow, instead of Wednesday, as had been planned. He said that every man on the squad was in good shape and that he wanted them to be that when they face Princeton in the bowl, next Saturday. He made no changes in the lineup and the same team that took Brown, the Army, Dartmouth and Maryland in successive Saturdays, will go after the Tiger-skin rug at the end of the week.

Outside of tomorrow's scrimmage, the remainder of the week will be devoted to light work, signal drill, dummy scrimmaging, and individual and position coaching. Particular attention will be paid to ironing out little faults noticed in the game last week-end.

Sid Quarrier, tackle, and Firpo Greene, guard, were unaffected by minor bruises received in the Maryland game.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO AGGIES-RHODY GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 7.—Connecticut Aggies' football squad of about 35 players, and Aggies' newly organized 28-piece band, and practically the entire student body of C. A. C. will next Saturday morning pile into the "Cannon Ball Special", the train that will carry the eleven and its followers to Kingston, R. I., for the annual football game with Rhode Island State college.

Edward Wolcott of Wethersfield, Arnold Larson of Bristol, and Francis A. Ryan of Revere, Mass., are members of the committee in charge of the special train, and they announce that alumni and other Aggie followers interested in making the trip may board the train at Eagleville, Willimantic, or New London. Present plans call for the "Cannon Ball Special" to leave Eagleville at 8:00 a. m. Saturday morning, arriving at Kingston at 11.30 a. m. The train will leave Kingston on the return trip shortly after the game is over and is due in Willimantic about 8.30 p. m. from which point arrangements have been made to have busses on hand to carry the Aggies supporters to Storrs for a dance in Hawley armory.

LANE HOLDS LEAD IN EASTERN SCORING

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Eddie Wittmer, of Princeton, provided the latest sensation in the race for individual college football scoring honors by making 18 points against Ohio State Saturday. The spurt carried him to fourth place among the leading point makers of the east with 64.

Myles Lane's long lead established in early season games kept the Dartmouth star in first place although he added only one point against Brown, making his total 102.

Johnny Roepke, of Penn State, drew closer with 82 while Nork, of Georgetown, tightened his grip on third place with 79.

CANZONERI KNOCKS OUT HENRY IN SECOND ROUND

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7 (AP)—Tony Canzoneri, New York featherweight, tonight knocked out Bill Henry, Chicago, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the arena.

Pummeling Henry with rights and lefts from the opening gong, the New Yorker sent him to the floor with a hard left to the stomach at the close of the first round. Henry came up wobbly in the second and Canzoneri, after landing a series of stinging body punches, cracked him on the jaw. The Chicago fighter went down and out. His face was badly discolored and he was bleeding from the mouth when his seconds picked him up and settled him in his chair.

Henry weighed 130 and Canzoneri 126 pounds.

Lew Tendler won the judges' decision over Vincent Forglone in another fast 10-round bout. Tendler weighed 154 Forgione 160. Both are Philadelphians.

In 6 round bouts, Tom Donahue 150, Philadelphia, won the judges' decision over Joe Irene 150, New York; Bill Matthews, 190 Baltimore and Ricardo Romano, 188, Philadelphia, fought a draw, and Sylvan Bass, 144, Baltimore, defeated John Kuhn 144, Reading, Pa.

PLAINFIELD BASKETBALL SEASON STARTS WEDNESDAY

With Scotty Higgins' fast Fall River five as their opponents the Plainfield Town team will open its basketball season at the Community house on Wednesday evening. That Plainfield is out to retain its Connecticut semi-pro title is evident by the fact that Manager Salisbury is strengthening his club in several places. Plainfield, being too far to the east, is not in the Connecticut basketball league but will endeavor to schedule games with each team in the league if possible. Last season the Plainfield team swept through the members with flying colors.

Scotty Higgins, former Willimantic boy, is bringing down a strong combination which includes the Marx brothers, two of the fastest players in New England. The Marx boys played for the old Taftville Crescents in Jake Benoit's regime. Manager Salisbury has signed Whitey Bernot for the season and this boy will greatly strengthen the Plainfield lineup.

A fast preliminary game between the Buddies and a Willimantic five will open the season's activities.

Want Basketball Games

The Taftville Whirlwinds have organized with a fast team and are looking for games with teams in eastern Connecticut averaging 16 years of age.

Co. C. After Games

The Company C basketball team of Willimantic has organized and wishes to book games throughout the state for home and home series. For games write Henry Rothblat, 21 Union St., Willimantic.

M'INNIS RELEASED AND O'FARRELL TO CATCH INSTEAD OF MANAGE NEXT YEAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—National league teams will have at least three new pilots for the 1928 pennant race.

This was assured today when two shifts were announced almost simultaneously, one resulting in the selection of Bill McKechnie to succeed Bob O'Farrel as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and the other sending Burt Shotton to replace Stuffy McInnis at the helm of the Phillies. The Boston vacancy, created by the departure of Dave Bancroft to Brooklyn, was filled recently by the appointment of Jack Slattery, Boston college coach.

McKechnie was a Cardinal coach last season and takes over full managerial responsibilities with the hearty approval of the man he succeeds. O'Farrel never has entertained managerial ambitions and succeeded Rogers Hornsby, it is understood, only at the urgent request of President Sam Breadon. The latter now is convinced, however, that "to spoil a great catcher like O'Farrel is an expensive way to obtaining a manager." Given a $5,000 salary increase, O'Farrel will be free to attend to his backstopping next year.

It is a comeback for McKechnie, who led Pittsburgh to a pennant and world's championship in 1925 but was released at the close of the 1926 season after dissension had cropped out in the Pirate ranks and spoiled their prospects of repeating.

Shotton steps into the major league managerial spotlight from the "AA" minor league ranks just as Joe McCarthy, Donie Bush and Danhowley have in recent seasons. He has played the "big time" outfield for Washington, the Browns and Cardinals but managed the Syracuse internationals last season, converting them from a second division outfit to a pennant contender and finishing in second place.

McInnis, who has been with six major league clubs at one time or another, was released unconditionally by the Phillies.

NO REASON GIVEN FOR M'INNIS RELEASE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7—(AP)—The Philadelphia National League club, which finished last in the 1927 pennant race, will have a new pilot next year.

Announcement was made today that Bert H. Shotton, manager of the Syracuse International league team and formerly with the St. Louis Cardinals, will lead the Phillies under a two year contract in succession to John P. "Stuffy" McInnis, released outright.

McInnis, who was a member of the famous infield of the Philadelphia Athletics of McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker, came to the Phillies from the Pittsburgh Nationals a year ago as a playing manager. No reason was given for his release, but the standing of the club at the end of the race was pointed to as the motive.

"Stuffy" was not released until waivers were received on him from all clubs. He is at his home in New England, and his plans for next year were not known here.

Shotton comes to the Phillies with experience as a manager. He was with the St. Louis Nationals for a number of years as fielder, coach and assistant to Branch Rickey. He managed the Cardinals on Sundays and during Rickey's absence. For the last two years he has been manager of the Syracuse team.

WEST SIDE TEAM OPENS ELKS LEAGUE WITH WIN

The West Side team won two out of three games from the East Siders in the opening games of the Elks bowling league on Monday evening. Sidney with 111 for high single and 293 for high total took the individual honors for the evening. The score:

Paluso Whips Molinsky

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Emil Paluso, Salt Lake City bantamweight, whipped Mike Molinsky, of Boston, in a ten round bout tonight. Paluso weighed 117, Molinsky, 119.

Dominick Petrone, 124, defeated Vic Burrone, 124-1-2 in a second ten round match. Both are New York boys.

Pinky Mays, 120, of Havana, won a six round decision over Eddie Penos, 115, of New York.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

A dual drop-kick or placement kick contest in which each team would have five tries for goal with a different kicker and a different snapperback each time is the news and perhaps most novel yet proposed for settling tie games in football. The idea belongs to William J. McEvoy, coach of football and basketball at the University of Vermont. The contest would follow the deadlocked play and the winning team would be the one making the most goals in the five attempts. The try for point after each touchdown would be abolished under this system which McAvoy believes would emphasize general kicking ability and remove the tendency of a team to depend upon the booting of skilled toes.

Outstanding among those steady-nerved young men who poise behind crumbling lines and boot the ball over the cross bars for a small but important extra point after touchdown is Peakes of the high-scoring University of Maine eleven Peakes has made 21 extra points besides four touchdowns. Other consistent kickers in the east include Halicki of Bucknell and Cohalan of Manhattan, each with 14 extra points; Roepke, Penn State, and Strong, N. Y. U., each 13; Madden Columbia and Lane, Dartmouth, each 12; and Booth, Pittsburgh 11.

GLOOMY GIL POINTS OUT ERRORS TO CORNELL TEAM

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 7.—(AP)—With but a scant three days to practice ahead before the Cornell varsity leaves for Hanover, N. H., to face Dartmouth next Saturday, Coach Gil Dobie lined his men up today and pointed out the glaring errors of omission and commission that caused the tie with St. Bonaventure. Dobie accused the Big Red team of everything but good football sense.

The blackboard talk preceded a light drill on formations Cornell will use against Dartmouth. Katz, regular tackle, reported with a fractured nose received against St. Bonaventure.

PRINCETON HAS SECRET WORKOUT FOR YALE

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 7.—(AP)— Princeton gridders worked behind barred gates today in a light secret session to open preparations for the Yale game Saturday. Practice was short with no changes in the lineup that swamped Ohio State.

Passing, kicking, signal practice and short dummy scrimmages was the order of the day. Only one heavy scrimmage will be held, probably about midweek. Johnny Stinson, end, and Joe Caldwell, back, who are suffering slight injuries, were absent from the workout.

SUGGS GETS DECISION OVER JACKIE DONOHUE

BOSTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Chick Suggs, New Bedford featherweight, won the decision over Jackie Donohue of Boston in a fast 10 round bout here tonight. In a scheduled eight round semi-final Newport Johnny Brown of Newport, R. I., knocked out Battling Tony Sandrelli of Boston in the second round.

Johnny Mile Wins Marathon

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 7.—(AP)— Johnny Mile, of Sydney Mines, N. S., led a field of 43 starters to the finish line in the full distance marathon race run here today.

William Taylor of Sydney mines finished second. Mile is the holder of the world's marthon record.

Mile's unofficial time was two hours, 40 minutes.

Christie's Team Wins

Christie's All Star football team defeated the team of Basil Connor 36 to 0 Monday afternoon at Chelsea parade. The lineup for the winners was: Christie lhb; Willy qb; J. Skeene rhb; Jones fb; John T. le; Nick B re; Constandi rt; Mike Y. lt; George rg; Peter B. lg; T. Skeene c. The touchdowns were made by Christie, Willy and J. Skeene.

Sam Langford to Have Operation

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Sam Langford, of Boston, famous old-time Negro fighter, entered Bellevue hospital today for treatment of a cataract of the left eye. Langford was in his prime in the heyday of Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson. At the hospital he gave his age at 35.

Basketball Challenge

The Noank Huggets basketball team is after games with teams in Norwich and vicinity and would like to arrange home and home series. They would especially like to hear from the Plainfield Buddies and the C. F. C team. For games write to Clifford Phelps, Noank, Conn.

English Rugby

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Rugby games played on Saturday and reported today showed the following results:

Hawick 11, Royal High school 0.
Edinburgh Institution 17, Kelso 17.
Selkirk 17, Melrose 0.
Jed Forest 17, Greenock Wanderers 5.

Noted Motion Picture Director, writes:

My activities as Director of Warner Brothers' latest Dolores Costello Production, 'Old San Francisco,' necessitated my shouting through my megaphone for long periods. Much of the time was spent in the open and my voice was under a constant strain. At various intervals I relied on Lucky Strikes for relaxation. Never once did they irritate my throat and their delightful flavor came as a distinct pleasure."

WESTERLY

TOWN TREASURER EMPOWERED TO ENGAGE ACCOUNTANT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I.—Town Council president John D. Nichols presided at his last regular council meeting today, having been a member since 1922. There were present Councilmen Trainer and Smith, both candidates for an additional term of two years, and Harry H. Coleman and Peter Nardone, Council Clerk Whipple and Solicitor Ferguson.

The session was not without fireworks. Following the approval of the October town bills, Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton stated that, in regard to the accounting system for the town treasurer and the closing up of the town books for the year introduced by John Wall of Providence and the engagement of Mr. Wall to do the work this year, unless some action was taken "the town treasurer will make no report to the freemen." He said that in a short conference with Councilman Smith of the council committee since coming into the council chamber, he learned from him that this committee favored another man named Scott to do the work rather than Wall. To this, Councilman Smith replied that he didn't say the Wall system would not be used. Treasurer Pendleton continued that it was the 7th of November and the work of tax collecting and bookkeeping attached with taxes coming in each day made more work to be done in bringing forward balances and bringing the department balances up to date. He felt that no change should be made this year. At the beginning of January, 1928, someone else can be selected and a change taken up. If it is disturbed now it is not practical or possible. "If the council does not take action, I'm going to the freemen and have the matter passed upon, or present my resignation as town treasurer," he declared.

Councilman Harry H. Coleman, after discussion, moved that Treasurer Pendleton be voted authority to hire Mr. Wall for the rest of the year.

Councilman Smith said later: Personally, I am not satisfied with the way Wall has handled the thing. (Coleman, you'll tie up the town's business). Smith, unmindful of interruption, "Wall has heard that there is a $1,500 balance and figures to come as close as he can in his offer to do this year's work!"

Mr. Pendleton said the town paid Wall $750 last year. $200 to close accounts at first of year and $550 at the end of the year and understood that he would do the same this year having shown no tendency to raise his price.

A partial review of payments made Mr. Wall during this period, as taken from bills voted paid, totals over $3,537.72, the former town council with Campbell, Morrison, Utter, Rossi, Fowler, and Nichols, present March 3, 1924, having voted the report of Wall, Dyer Co of Providence received and "the installation of an adequate accounting system" on the recommendation of the committee, Utter and Fowler.

Treasurer Pendleton concluded, just before he left the council chamber, "It's up to the council to approve or disapprove. I'd like to have a decision, one way or another today, I do not propose to devote any more time to it."

Councilman Coleman moved and it was seconded that the town treasurer be voted power to engage an accountant to close the treasurer's books and prepare annual report for year 1927, at a figure not to exceed $750. The vote: Yes, Coleman, Nardone; no, Trainer and Smith. Solicitor Ferguson said "it's up to you, Mr. President!" Mr. Nichols voted "yes" and the vote passed.

Following the voting of the bills, the report was received showing the balances remaining in the various budget funds with which the new incoming council will have to work. It showed: Police, $1,942.35; town hall, $2,984.63; town officers, $3,873.27; street lights, $3,741.09; printing and advertising, $13.47; support of poor, $1,418.97; hospital poor, $262.00; miscellaneous, $2,983.97; mothers' aid, $1,566.22; assessors plats, $3,296.64; town advertising, $50.00; interest, $5,797.40; care of trees, $52.15, preservance of records, $141.66, Pierce and Pleasant streets, drain, $4,500.

A restaurant license was voted Frank Regine, at 129 High street on his application of Oct. 25th.

A milk dealer's license was voted John Ojala, Potter Hill road.

CAPPUCCIO BROADCASTS TIP FOR TODAY'S ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 7—Tuesday is town election day in Westerly. The polls for the two voting districts will be open at 9 a. m., in the Westerly town hall and close at 7 p. m., the first district using the east or Elm street side and the second district the west, or Union street side, of the town hall. The only contest on is that for highway commissioner for a term of 6 years, Charles F. Berry, the present incumbent being the nominee of the republican caucus and Anjelo J. Cappuccio, a Westerly contractor, running independently on citizen nomination papers. There is no democratic list of nominees to come before the voters. In a broadcast by Mr. Cappuccio he warns voters "Positively do not vote in either circle" above the republican and independent list, to make a cross in the square opposite his name in the middle of the ballot near the bottom and no other mark whatever," the last of which, if followed by every voter, would elect him to every office in town or else the old officers, with the exception of highway commissioner, would hold over.

The October report of Building Inspector Thomas Wills accepted as follows: Applications received—Frame buildings 6, granted 6; brick and stone buildings 3, granted 3; additions and alterations 26, granted 26. A special temporary permit was granted the Westerly Fire district for a frame building off Union street at the old R. I. Motors garage as temporary quarters for Westerly firemen, making a total of 36 applications granted for the month. There were 46 inspections made. Plumbing changes ordered made were where a fresh air pipe was found on the wrong side of a running trap and a lead waste pipe into a cast iron soil pipe was caulked with rags, without use of lead or oakum, on Tower street addition. Permit was granted the Standard Oil company of New York to go ahead and complete service station corner of Franklin street and East avenue on Nov. 1st, where work had been previously held up. The expense for month totaled $45.80.

The report of Health Officer Dr. Samuel C. Webster, showed 3 cases of contagious disease, infantile paralysis 2; typhoid fever 1. Recommendation of the health officer was received that property at No. 11 Maple avenue be connected with the sewage system and official notice was voted sent to Clarence E. Roche.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown reported eight arrests, for violent assault 2, quarrelling and revelling 1, disorderly person 1, intoxication 2, reckless auto driving 1, one case on probation, with one license granted.

On recommendation of Westerly zoning board, James Jolly was elected a member by the council for a five-year term, from last June to fill the un-expired term of William A. Broadfoot, who has left town.

A communication received from a representative of the South County Public Service company, concerning Pierce street drain damages, was referred to Town Solicitor Ferguson.

The council voted to adjourn to Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock to count ballots for the election of town officers to be held Tuesday. For this election there was reported a vacancy as republican supervisor and for gate tender, the appointment to be made by the council president.

Their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary was observed at their home, 4 Elm street by Mr. and Mrs. George Anthony Champlin who were married Nov. 7, 1902 at Christ Episcopal church by Rev. N. Var P. NOANK

SKUNK DISPUTES PROGRESS OF OWNER OF GARAGE

Derwood Main was coming home from attending a show in New London Saturday night and on going into his garage saw a big black skunk standing in the driveway. It would not let him pass. He did not know what to do for a few minutes, getting out of the auto and throwing stones at the kitty. But it did not move. Finally it went under the woodshed. Putting his car away young Main went into the house for a gun, meaning to get Mr. Skunk before he went to bed. Boring a hole through a board to get a good shot at him, he blew his jaw half off. But that did not kill the animal and Main was getting madder. Another aim was taken and this proved successful, the bullet killing the skunk. Getting it from under the building, Main found it to be the largest one he ever saw. He thought it weighed around 14 lbs. After showing it to his friends he dug a big hole in the backyard putting the black and white animal into its last resting-place.

Eugene Butson, a student at Bulkeley school, New London, is a member of the track team and is making a name for himself. He is called the Noank deer, for every morning one can see Deer Butson on the road sprinting. Saturday afternoon in the Rose of New England with the orange and black team taking part in a cross country run of three miles with Norwich track team, half way down the course a Bulkeley runner fell, hurting his foot. Along came Deer Butson saw his pal lying there and carried him for 200 years to a fellow who took charge of him. Then along came a Norwich runner and Butson said "I am going to beat him to the finish line." By only a few feet he did beat out his rival. The crowd gave him a great cheer as the Noank deer, finished over the tape. This is Butson's first year on the track team. The coach said he is the best 200-yard runner on his squad.

Elbert Jones was in New Haven Sunday.

Elbert Rathbun has been with the Standard Oil Co. in New London in the office for the last four years. Recently the boss called him into his office and asked how he would like to take a position in Norwich. Elbert agreed and his asociate workers gave him a farewell party Saturday afternoon. Everett Hitchcock on behalf of the office force presented him a bill fold with his name on it.

Joe Walsh made a speech and when the party was over, cheerleader C. Startzyled in giving him three cheers. Monday morning he started as head clerk in the office in Norwich.

Sidney Butson has a job at the shipyard as boss plumber.

The M. A. C. football team of Westerly played the Noank Crushers at Newfield park before a large crowd of fans. It was mixed weather—rain, hail and snow—and very cold. The final score was Westerly 18, Noank 0. The stars for Noank were Big Mike Passi and Grip Brown. The referee was Main of White Rock; scorer, V. Douglas; attendance 175.

The village saw a real auction in front of the waiting room Saturday where people came from near and far and the crowd was on both sides of the streets, listening to Sheriff N. Brown as he said, "How much do I get for this car? It is a real bargain for a present to your friends! Think of it, gentlemen and ladies! an auto that is in first class shape." A voice from the crowd made a bid. "Three times." The auctioneer asked "do I hear $?" No one would go higher, so a man in the village got the car. It was the best auction and the only one in Noank in 20 years, since the Plumber and Clark store was under the hammer.

Infant Care

Mothers, you can't start too early to establish a child's serene and tranquil disposition. Even an infant can have a happy, fretless state of uninterrupted health. What will help do this? A simple, purely vegetable product as old as you are: plain Castoria.

A few drops of Castoria will settle all uneasiness in a jiffy. Will dispel colic or ward off constipation; and just as surely check diarrhea.

In real sickness, call a physician. But many physicians urge only Castoria for those little childish disorders that need nothing more. You need never be afraid to give pure Castoria. It is safe and perfectly harmless, for it contains no paregoric, no opiates, no dope of any kind. At least, this is true of the genuine Fletcher's Castoria*—and that is the kind doctors tell you always to buy.

Fletcher's Castoria is fine for any child. All children love to take it. Delicious tasting, and as good as it tastes. Just look for the Fletcher signature on the package and you will know you have the genuine and pure Castoria.

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

New Year's Day—and Every Day

Each man is captain of his Soul,
And each man his own Crew,
But the Pilot knows the Unknown Seas,
And He will bring us through.

We break new seas today—
Our eager keels quest unaccustomed waters,
And, from the vast uncharted waste in front,
The mystic circles leap
To greet our prows with mightiest possibilities;
Bringing us—what?
—Dread shoals and shifting banks?
—And calms and storms?
—And clouds and biting gales?
—And wreck and loss?
And, maybe, Death!—and so, the Larger Life!

For should the Pilot deem it best
To cut the voyage short,
He sees beyond the sky-line, and
He'll bring us safe to port.

And, maybe, Life on a bounding tide,
And chance of glorious deeds;—
Of help swift-borne to drowning mariners;
Of cheer to ships dismastered in the gale;
Of succors given unasked and joyfully;
Of mighty service to all needy souls.

So—Ho for the Pilot's orders,
Whatever course he makes!
For he sees beyond the sky-line;
And He never makes mistakes.

And, maybe, Golden Days,
Full freighted with delight!
—And wide free seas of unimagined bliss,
—And Treasure Isles, and Kingdoms to be won,
—And undiscovered Countries, and New Kin.

For each man captains his own Soul,
And chooses his own Crew,
But the Pilot knows the Unknown Seas,
And He will bring us through.

We have cherished fair hopes, and plotted brave schemes;
We have lived till we find them illusive as dreams.
Wealth has melted like snow that is grasped in the hand,
And the steps we have climbed have departed like sand.
Yet shall we despond while of health unbereft,
And honor, bright honor, and freedom are left?

Oh, shall we despond while, with visions still free,
We can gaze on the sky, and the earth and the sea;
While sunshine can waken a burst of delight,
And the stars are a joy and a glory by night;
While each harmony, running through nature, can raise
In our spirits the impulse of gladness and praise?
Oh, let us no longer then vainly lament
Over scenes that are faded and days that are spent;
But, by faith unforsaken, unawed by mischance,
On hope's waving banner still fixed be our glance.
And, should fortune prove cruel and false to the last,
Let us to the future and not to the past!

—John Oxenham.

Jingle, Bells

Dashing thro' the snow,
In a one-horse open sleigh,
O'er the fields we go,
Laughing all the way;
Bells on bobtail ring
Making spirits bright;
What fun it is to ride and sing
A sleighing song tonight!

Chorus
Jingle, bells! jingle, bells!
Jingle all the way!
Oh, what fun it is to ride
In a one-horse open sleigh!
Jingle, bells! jingle, bells!
Jingle all the way!
Oh, what fun it is to ride
In a one-horse open sleigh.

A day or two ago
I thought I'd take a ride,
And soon Miss Fannie Bright
Was seated by my side,
The horse was lean and lank;
Misfortune seem'd his lot;
He got into a drifted bank,
And we got upset.

Chorus.
Now the ground is white;
Go it while you're young;
Take the girls tonight,
And sing this sleighing song.
Just get a bob-tail'd bay,
Two-forty for his speed;
Then hitch him to an open sleigh,
And crack! you'll take the lead.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Last week we read something about the history of our flag, the Star Spangled Banner. We all ought to know how the flag should be displayed.

There are certain fundamental rules which, if understood, would indicate the proper method of displaying the flag. The matter becomes a very simple one if it is kept in mind that the national flag represents the living country and is itself considered as a living thing. The union of the flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm, and therefore the point of danger and hence the place of honor.

The flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It should be displayed on national and state holidays and on historic and special occasions. The flag should always be hoisted briskly, and lowered slowly and ceremoniously.

When carried in procession with another flag or flags, the flag of the United States should be either on the marching right, i. e., the flag's own right, or when there is a line of other flags, the flag of the United States may be in front of the center of that line.

When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the flag of the United States should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the group.

When a number of flags are grouped and displayed from staffs, the flag of the United States should be in the center or at the highest point of the group.

When the flags of states or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States, the National Flag should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the flag of the United States should be hoisted first. No flag or pennant should be placed above or to the right of the flag of the United States.

When flags of two or more nations are displayed they should be flown from separate staffs of the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size.

When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony, or front of building, the union of the flag should go clear to the head of the staff unless the flag is at half staff.

When the flag of the United States is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, i. e., to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When festoons, rosettes or drapings of blue, white and red are desired, bunting should be used, but never the flag.

When displayed over the middle of the street, as between buildings, the flag of the United States should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east-and-west street or to the east in a north-and-south street.

When used on a speaker's platform, the flag should be displayed above and behind the speaker. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk, nor to drape over the front of the platform. If flown from a staff it should be on the speaker's right.

When used in unveiling a statue or monument the flag should not be allowed to fall to the ground but should be carried aloft to wave out, forming a distinctive feature during the remainder of the ceremony.

When flown at half staff, the flag is first hoisted to the peak and then lowered to half staff position, but before lowering the flag for the day it is again raised to the peak. On Memorial day, May 30th, the flag is displayed at half staff.

Do not use the flag as drapery in any form whatever. Use bunting of blue, white and red.

Do not fasten the flag in such manner as will permit it to be easily torn.

Do not drape the flag over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, or of a railroad train or boat. When the flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis or clamped to the radiator cap.

Do not display the flag on a float in a parade except from a staff.

Do not use the flag as a covering for a ceiling.

Do not use the flag as a portion of a costume or of an athletic uniform. Do not embroider it upon cushions or handkerchiefs or print it on paper napkins or boxes.

Do not put lettering of any kind upon the flag.

Do not use the flag in any form of advertising nor fasten an advertisement sign to a pole from which the flag of the United States is flying.

Do not display, use or store the flag in such a manner as will permit it to be easily soiled or damaged.

Bunting of the national colors should be used for covering a speaker's desk, draping over the front of a platform and for decoration in general. Bunting should be arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle and the red below.

LETTERS OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Sybil Keach, Putnam—I want to thank you for my book. I like Boys' books as much as I do girls.

Evelyn Hansen, Yantic—I received your book and have almost finished reading it. It is very interesting and I thank you very much.

Evelyn Ruth Solomon, New London—I received the book and I thought it very nice of you to send me such a nice book. I want to thank you very much and I know I will enjoy reading it.

Joseph Polomski, Norwich—I thank you very much for the book you sent me. I read nearly half of the book. I like to read every night.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

In the Country

Dear Uncle Jed: The story I am going to write now is about walking in the country. Early Sunday morning I awoke and found my brothers had gone walking. I ate my breakfast and then father asked me to go to Danielson.

We started at 12 o'clock and reached there one. On my way I saw many beautiful trees and farm houses. We saw the old Westfield cemetery that was erected by A. Tucker in 1856.

After a while we reached Danielson. I and my father visited a friend. I ate my dinner for I was very hungry. On my way back father and I saw an airplane going over Goodyear. When I reached home it was very dark. I was very tired when I went to bed.

DORIS ARNOLD, Age 13.
Goodyear.

Our Hallowe'en Party

Dear Uncle Jed: Seeing that Hallowe'en time is drawing near I thought I would write to you and the Wide Awake children about the Hallowe'en party we had at school.

We had it Thursday October 27. First of all one of the girls told our fortunes. The one who got a certain number won a prize. We had apples on strings and we also ducked for apples. We each chose sides and drew a cat on the blackboard, one line at a time. The side which was done the quickest got a prize. I was lucky enough to get it.

We also were blind folded and had to try and pin the eyes on a pumpkin.

The schoolhouse was all decorated with orange and black crepe paper with witches and black cats. The shades were all down and there were laughing pumpkins everywhere.

HELEN B. RIOUX, Age 14.
Sterling.

My Experience

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awake Circle. I am telling you of a real experience I had last summer. My chum and I built a tent up in the woods. After it was finished we went down to my house to get a cot, some chairs, a table and some food. We were about half way back when I discovered I had forgotten my hatchet so I had to go back after it. On my way back I saw a stream. As I was thirsty I got ready to drink. Just as I was about to drink I saw a huge snake come out of the water.

HAROLD FANNING, Age 11.

Israel Putnam

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about Israel Putnam. Israel Putnam was a general in the American revolution. He was born in Salem, Mass., in 1718. He fought in the Indian wars, and was one of the commanders at the battle of Bunker Hill.

After leaving the army, he lived in Brooklyn, Conn., and died there in 1790. There is a statue of him on a horse in Brooklyn. I have seen it many times.

EVELYN SEATON, Age 9.

My First Picnic

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you about my first picnic. One day I went with some girls for a picnic. We took cake, candy, apples, nuts and some sandwiches.

When we got there we started to play some games, such as tag, drop the handkerchief, ball and many others. After we played the games, we started to eat. When we got through we played more games. When it got dark all of us went home.

The girls ate supper with me. After we ate supper we played a while. The other girls went home. They said that they had a good time.

FRANCES ALOFSIN, Age 8.
Norwich, R. F. D., No. 4.

Tommy Saved a Bird

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to the Wide Awakes.

One day as Tommy was coming from school he saw a boy aiming at a bird. Tommy asked, "At whom are you aiming? The boy said, "I am aiming at the bird." So Tommy said, "You stand by the tree and let me take the gun and let me shoot you." The boy said, "No." So the boy went home and told his mother how he saved a bird.

My Cat, Nig

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written you. I want to tell you about my cat Nig. He is black and white and very pretty. One night we set a trap for we found that we had mice. The next morning we looked at the trap. Sure enough there was the mouse. We then put our cat into the closet where we had set the trap. As soon as he saw the mouse the fun began. He grabbed the mouse, trap and all. He ran under the table and started to growl.

VIRGINIA GEER, Age 9.
Norwich.

Cave Has Secret Passages

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about our gang. Sometimes we have a lot of fun but sometimes we don't. We get in quarrels with other boys. We are getting angry now because some boys are coming in from the other town using our swimming place. They are much bigger than we are and like to fight too much. We like to go out in the woods. In some places there are a lot of birch trees. Some times we find caves. We have a big cave now which has a lot of secret passages.

ROBERT SCATES, Age 9.
Jewett City.

Over the Week End

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about what I did Saturday and Sunday. Saturday my cousin came over to our house. I asked my mother if I could go with them. My mother said, "Yes." I went with them. When I got there I took all of the things out of the car. After we ate dinner we went out riding. We started on a country road. We started on one road. We came to the same place three times. When we were coming home we stopped at a gas station. They were giving away gas balloons. We got three of them. We tied one on the radiator cap.

WALTER FRANKOFF, Age 10.
Norwich, R. F. D., No. 4.

Columbus Day

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about how I spent Columbus day. Wednesday morning I started for school as I usually do on week days. Each child was requested to tell a little story about Columbus and I had made up my mind what I should say. Wednesday morning the children who were in the room with me had only their arithmetic to do and their story to tell about Columbus.

When our stories had been recited and our arithmetic finished we might go home as there was no more school that day. I invited one of my friends to come and eat dinner with me.

She accepted and we spent our afternoon together very pleasantly.

We took a walk into the woods and picked a few wild flowers.

Ruth, as that was my friends name found a dime in between a large rocks. Ruth and I also visited a large hot house. There were many pretty flowers in the hot house and they were nice to look at.

Ruth had supper with me and soon after supper it got very dark and Ruth's mother came after Ruth and took her home in a car.

The Camel

Dear Uncle Jed: The camel is a homely looking animal. He is large and clumsy, has a small head, a long neck, long slender legs, and a great hump on his back.

The camel is very valuable, for he can carry heavy loads a great distance over sandy deserts under a hot sun. His toes are broad and his feet are made so that he can walk easily on the smooth slippery sand.

When crossing a desert, it is often impossible to get water for several days, but the camel drinks large quantities of it before starting on a journey.

He eats almost everything, even the hard dry thorns that are found in the desert, which no other creature would touch.

A Brown Squirrel

Dear Uncle Jed: A little brown squirrel has its hole in a stone wall near my home. I put some nuts near its hole. Then I hid behind a tree, to see if it came to get them.

Then he happened to see our dog near me. He ran up the stone wall and then climbed a tree. I like to watch a squirrel climb a tree. They go so fast and can climb out on a very small branch.

STELLA IDZKOWSKI, Age 9.

A Party

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write and tell you about a Hallowe'en party I went to. It was a masquerade party. I was dressed like a gypsy. I had a a long green skirt and a turban on my head. The hall was decorated with orange color and "ghosts" were standing in corners.

One of the boys was dressed like a Spanish boy and a girl was dressed like a chorus girl.

Four or five girls were dressed like boys and one boy was dressed like a girl.

One of the boys played the piano and we all danced and had a very good time. We played different games.

About half-past 10 we had lunch and about eleven o'clock we went home.

MILDRED HOPKINS, Age 12.
Dayville.

Cardinal Patrick Hayes

Dear Uncle Jed: Cardinal Patrick Hayes was born in New York and educated by the Christian Brothers at Manhatten college. Ordained in 1892 he became successively chancellor and auxiliary bishop of the army and navy during the war and upon the death of Cardinal Farley became archbishop of New York in 1918 and Cardinal in 1924.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

PEPSINIC SELTZER — THE SELTZER THAT WON'T AFFECT THE HEART

PRE-HOLIDAY SESSION OF THE STOCK MARKET WAS IMPRESSIVELY STRONG

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—For a session sandwiched in between two holidays, today's stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength. Wall street was tremendously impressed by the easy terms of the new U. S. government financing and this was stressed as a "bull" factor in the market comment of several of the leading commission houses. Some of the high priced specialties were run up 5 to 15 points, largely at the expense of an over-crowded short interest, with gain of 1 to 3 points fairly widely distributed. Total sales again crossed the 2,000,000 share mark.

Federal mining & Smelting was the most sensational feature, soaring 15 points to 155. This stock was fluctuated violently between a low of 90 and a high of 187 during the past year. Houston Oil, another erratic performer, climbed 11 points to 158 and closed within a fraction of the top. Case Threshing, Commercial Solvents, Continental Insuance, International Business Machines, International Harvester, National Surety, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Warren Bros. all closed 5 to 210 points above last week's closing quotations, a few of them at new high records.

Although zinc ore is selling at the lowest level in several years, a good demand was apparent for several of the non-ferrous metal stocks, due largely to the recent improvement in the copper industry. American Smelting advanced 4 points to 172 1-2 and Kennecott Copper crossed 79 to a new high level for the year.

Buying of the steels and motors was rather selective in character. U. S. Steel common and General Motors each advanced more than a point to 137 5-8 and 182 3-8, respectively. Chrysler, Mack Trucks and Studebaker also recorded moderate gains. Further accumulation of American Tobacco common stock sent them to new high records at 177 3-8. Department store issues continued to anticipate heavy holiday trade, R. H. Macy and Arnold Constable reaching new high ground.

The reported discovery of a new productive area in the Seminole field had a depressing effect on the oil shares, although the losses, as a rule, were small. American Can and Radio ran into some profit-taking, each falling off more than a point.

Eastern coalers were eagerly bought as a result of the sudden drop in temperature along the Atlantic seaboard. Lackawanna soared more than 6 points and Delaware & Hudson moved up 3. Wabash common, Western Maryland and some of the other so-called "merger issues," which were the objects of bear stacks about two weeks ago, rallied briskly on the appearance of fresh buying power. Southern Railway common touched another new record high for all time at 138 1-2.

Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A rally of more than 2 cents a bushel in wheat prices, based on reported damage to the Argentine and Canadian crops, overshadowed all other developments in the commodity markets. Cotton fluctuated nervously within a narrow range, pending publication of the new government crop estimate on Wednesday. Coffee and sugar held fairly steady.

Gilt guilders attained a new high level for the year but most of the other leading foreign exchanges were reactionary. Some selling of German marks developed as a result of the publication of agent-general of reparations Gilbert's note to the German government, criticizing mounting expenditures. Spanish pesetas broke nearly 10 points, again selling below 17 cents.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

New York

Stocks strong; Southern Railway and Kennecott Copper touch record prices.

Bonds firm; $50,000,000 International Match issue oversubscribed.

Foreign Exchanges easy; Spanish pesetas under 17 cents.

Cotton higher, pre-bureau covering.

Sugar firmer; Cuban support.

Coffee steady; firmer Brazilian market.

Chicago.

Wheat barely steady; forecast rain southwest.

Corn steady; unfavorable weather.

Cattle dull.

Hogs steady.

New England Industries

THE PLATED WARE INDUSTRY

(Note: The information, on which this article issued by the research department of the New England council is based, was obtained by the domestic commerce division, United States department of commerce through an industrial survey of New England conducted in cooperation with the New England council. The department of commerce is now preparing for publication a full report of this industry which will contain additional information of practical value to all New England business men.)

Nearly 60 per cent. of the United States' production of plated ware comes from New England, the 1923 census figures show; and the trend of sales in this region has been upward in recent years. The product, as considered in a survey recently completed by the United States department of commerce in cooperation with the New England council, consists of articles for the table and boudoir and fancy articles, whether plated with gold, silver or other metals.

The average age of the plants reporting in New England is twenty-six years this survey shows, as against forty-six for the silverware industry. Only one concern reported as having instituted new management in the last five or six years. Accessibility of raw materials and favorable labor conditions have been given as the chief reasons for locating in New England, the necessary skilled labor proving readily available. Plant operations of reporting concerns have generally been confined to one factory.

Incentive methods of wage payment are in use in 53 per cent. of the concerns reporting in this survey, and the general average of workers thus paid per plant is reported as 31 per cent. Seasonal periods follow closely those in the silverware industry, and the season of maximum demand is in the fall months. But because of the general uniformity of demand, the development of supplementary products has not been considered as a serious necessity. The improvements in methods which have been entered upon are reported to be production control, balancing of demand and production, organization and executive control, inspection, maintenance of plant and equipment, methods of cost accounting and methods of wage payment.

The trend of sales with 1921 as a base of reckoning, has been as follows:

1922	Increase	6 %
1923	"	21.5%
1925	"	27 %

A few concerns make 75 per cent. of their sales in New England, while others sell all their goods elsewhere. Total sales have increased in the last few years largely because, it is reported, of the development of new products and the extension of sales territories. The use of a brand or trademark is general. Sales and marketing methods will be stressed for improvement in the coming year among the companies with which this report is concerned.

The methods of distribution most generally used are reported as direct to retailer or through wholesalers and jobbers.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

NORWICH DRIVER FINED FOR OVERLOADED TRUCK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Nov. 7. — Two violations of the motor vehicle laws took up the attention of Judge Heald in the borough court Monday. Joseph Beauregard, of Somersville, paid a fine of one hundred dollars and costs of fourteen ninety-seven for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was apprehended by State Police Officer Stevens on Chestnut Hill Saturday evening.

Ernest L. Mills of Norwich had an overload of about 2200 pounds on his truck when stopped by State Trooper Henry Helnold and presented in the borough court. Mills paid a fine of $100 in the Mansfield town court, Feb. 26th. Judge Heald imposed a similar penalty and this with the costs of $11.47 made a total of $111.47 cents, which Mills paid.

NEW LONDON MOTORCYCLIST HURT; BUMPS BIG TRUCK AT WATERFORD

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 7—Arthur Bolles, 24 Neptune avenue, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, believed to be suffering from a fractured leg and numerous bruises and abrasions, received this morning while driving his motorcycle in Waterford. The leg injury will be determined by X-ray. Bolles was attempting to pass a big truck when the cycle struck the heavier vehicle, causing Bolles to be hurled to the highway.

THEATRE EMPLOYES ATTEND FUNERAL OF WILLIAM WALSH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 7—The funeral of William Walsh, motion picture operator at the Capitol theatre, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, including employes of the Lyceum, Crown and Capitol theatres. The floral tributes were especially beautiful. High mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. George Clark. The quartet of the church sang at the offertory and Prof. Edward Hahn and Edward F. Murray, as a waiting hymn sang "Beautiful Land on High." The bearers were Thomas Jordan, William Reed, Winslow Lucas, Robert Hyde, Harry Turner and Braxton Hill. Burial was in Putnam.

CAB COMPANY CASE IS NOLLED IN CITY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 7—The Union Cab company won its case in the police court today when a nolle was ordered in the case of John Ramistella, one of the company's drivers, charged with violation of the city's parking ordinances, the action of the court being upon the recommendation of Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky. Before making his recommendation Attorney Hollandersky addressed the court and cited excerpts from the ordinances regulating the parking of public service vehicles also of a report by Lieut. James Sullivan, who ordered Ramistella's arrest and certain facts relative to the practice of cab drviers, in parking their automobiles in places other than that which is designated by charter. After reciting the situation that confronts drivers of public service cabs as regards parking and going into the matter at length, the acting prosecutor moved for the nolle, which was granted.

The cab company has been in a wrangle with the police for a long time because of drivers of the public service cabs parking in front of the company's office, on State street, when the cabs cannot park at the union station because of the allotted space being occupied by other cabs.

James Sweet, 41, machinist in the employ of the New London Ship and Engine company, and residing at the Nelseco hotel. Groton, was presented on a charge of reckless driving, the complaint being amended from that of driving while under the influence of liquor. Sweet was fined $25 and costs.

Thomas Meyers, 176 Bank street, was presented on a charge of reckless driving, but his case was continued to the 10th inst. Meyers was arrested on Bank street Saturday night by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin.

Carl Hutshins, 361 Broad street, charged with violation of the city's parking ordinance in parking his auto on the east side of Bank street, which is restricted this month, failed to appear, so his bond of $2 was declared forfeited.

The funeral of Nora, wife of William Malone, was held this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan, with Rev. Raymond J. O'Calaiban, deacon and Rev. George Clark, sub-deacon. The quartet of the church sang the mass. Mrs. Thomas Hickey and Miss Helen Ganey gave the waiting hymn. The bearers were James Sullivan, Michael Elwood, Patrick Malone, George Malone, Henry L. McGuire and Thomas Brennan. Borial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of John J. Neilan was held this morning at 11 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many mourners, the high mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan. As a waiting hymn, Edward F. Murray sang "Beautiful Land on High." The bearers were Albert J. Richards and Joseph P. McGarry, representing New London lodge of Elks; William T. May, Jerome J. Collins and Joseph Cranker, representing Knights of Columbus and William Scroggie, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Conductors. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

An anniversary mass for Jeremiah D. Cronin, offered at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church at 8 o'clock this morning was attended by many relatives and acquaintances of Mr. Cronin. The mass was celebrated by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, with Rev. Michael Reagan as deacon and Rev. George Clark sub-deacon.

Mrs. John Corcoran, and infant son of 111 Vauxhall street and Miss Elizabeth Beers of Uncasville, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital were discharged Sunday and today.

Joseph Radgawski of Montville, drove his automobile to New London Sunday night and parked it on Broad street, near the corner of State street. While Radgawski was away from the auto a thief stole a motor meter.

Pequot Realty company has sold a building lot on Washburn road to Clyde R. Smith.

She is survived, besides her parents, by two brothers, George Miller of New York and Marvin Miller of this city.

MAYOR WANTS ARMISTICE DAY MADE GENERAL HOLIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 7.—The city council meeting this evening was enlivened by criticism of the chamber of commerce, to which Mayor May several times alluded as "the $25 club."

Councilor Streeter defended the "25 club" by saying the past year it had performed better work than ever before. He courted harmony between the city council and all other bodies. The matter came up on the motion of Mayor May that the council appoint a committee to co-operate in every way possible for securing the establishment of the proposed American Brown-Boveri line between England and America. The mayor had prepared what he said and he was quite forceful. The council adopted his motion and decided that such a committee as was proposed should be named. The committee will be appointed later.

There were 33 applications for building permits and all were granted. They included a considerable number of new buildings, though generally residential structures.

The Hartford House Moving company was given a contract for removing condemned buildings at 9-11 Atlantic streets and 47 Huntington street. The council decided to proceed to remove the Bronstein building at Pearl and Union streets, which has been condemned. Bronstein was ordered to comply with the order.

A long discussion arose over the purchase of fire hose, the city manager's recommendation being set aside until the next meeting of the council. Councilr Twoomey asked that the best quality of fire hose be purchased and represented that the best would prove the cheapest in the end. He said that wax-treated hose would serve the department 12 to 16 years, whereas the life of the hose it was proposed to buy at a cheaper price was three years. The city manager declared that the specifications under which the city was to buy were those endorsed by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and that the hose was such as that body endorsed. The matter is to be considered before the next meeting when action will be taken. Councilor Twoomey said Chief H. L. Stanton of the Norwich department had endorsed the wax-treated hose as the best the department at Norwich could buy and as being such as that department is using.

The city manager introduced as an emergency measure an ordinance that would prevent the parking of automobiles within 200 feet of a fire that was being fought by the department; but this was not adopted because it was opposed by Councilor Streeter, who claimed that the city manager had the right under the existing ordinances to cover the very purpose the proposed ordinance sought to accomplish. The matter went over till the next meeting that the members of the council might farther consider it. Mr. Streeter said that New London had a volunteer fire department and held that many of its members went to fires in autos to get there quickly. He said no emergency existed for the proposed ordinance.

A request was made for an appropriation for special lighting of the business section during the holiday season. Referred to committee on public welfare.

A proposition was submitted for making a survey of the city's buildings, with a view to establishing the cost of reproducing them and to secure a lower insurance rate. To the public welfare committee.

It was voted to lay new walks in Williams Memorial park, at a cost of $2,334.49.

The police athletic association asked for an appropriation of $1,400 for a gymnasium on the upper floor of the Cronin building. Request was not granted; went to committee on public safety.

Added portions of land at School street and Ocean Avenue was offered to the city that a corner may be rounded, but it was not accepted as Councilor Streeter opposed it and said he wished it referred to the committee on public works. It was so referred.

A bill of costs for the appearance of a New London float in the parade during the county fair was approved. The cost was $280.22.

The matter of a crosswalk at the street railway car barn on Montauk avenue was brought up when it was stated that the company was to remove a track there and work was delayed on that account. Mayor May said he hoped the company would remove the carbarn.

The mayor appealed for the making of Armistice day a holiday and took the stand that the stores and manufacturing establishments should shut down on that day.

Joseph Amorel, 157 Crystal avenue, was bound over last week to the next term of the superior court when he is alleged to have attempted rape upon a Berkley avenue nurse. Last night a school girl residing on Connecticut avenue, alleges that she was set upon on Grand street by a young man and an attempt was made to criminally assault her. The police, however, are not thoroughly inclined to give more than ordinary credit to the story, but they are investigating the statements of the girl. The young woman had been visiting a friend and started home about 11 o'clock. When on Grand street, about 15 minutes later, she alleges that she was attacked and thrown to the ground by a fellow who was loitering in that vicinity. Incidentally the assaulter became scared and fled, for when the young woman became partially composed the fellow was nowhere to be seen. When she started for home, she met a man and requested him to accompany her home, which he did. When the young woman arrived home she related her experiences to her parents and they summoned the police. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Patrick Sheehan responding. When the officers arrived at the home of the girl, she could not relate a coherent story, which led the police to believe that there was something more or less imaginative in regard to the story related.

Lieut. Badger, U. S. A., Fort Wright, made complaint to the police tonight that his black hand bag had been stolen and that the initials, "G. N.," were inscribed on the outside. He said that the bag contained apparel principally.

Edward McInnis, 35 West Colt street, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh charged with violation of the city's laws in parking his auto on that section of Howard street which is restricted to parking. He was ordered to present himself in the police court tomorrow morning.

Frausino Tiglao, 105 Howard street, was arrested tonight charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested by Patrolmen Patrick Sheehan and Michael Dorsey and will be in court tomorrow morning.

In Waterford town court today, Alfredo Zuccerelli, Waterford, charged with violation of the liquor law, was presented, but at the request of counsel, Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky of the police court of New London, the case was continued to Monday next. Zuccerelli was arrested by state police officers several days ago when his residence was raided and a 60-gallon still was found, together with a quantity of mash and alcohol, all of which was seized.

Prohibition Officer Joseph F. Fitzpatrick has entered his resignation, after six years of service as an enforcement agent for the state and in the running down of illegal sellers of liquor. The resignation was tendered Saturday and will become effective the 30th inst. Mr. Fitzpatrick will engage in other business, together with Miss Catherine McCarthy.

"ONE-HEADLIGHT" DRIVERS WILL GET ATTENTION

The "one-headlight nuisance" will be the subject of an energetic corrective crusade to be started at once by the state police, it was announced by State Police Commissioner Robert T. Hurley. Drivers of motor vehicles with defective equipment such as one headlight and maladjusted brakes, who are apprehended, will find the police decidedly unwilling to accept conciliatory excuses, promised Commissioner Hurley.

For the past two or three years the police department has conducted an educational campaign to acquaint motorists using Connecticut roads with the extreme desirability of keeping automobile equipment in efficient working order, said Commissioner Hurley. He feels that the time has come to take action against persistent offenders, who seem unimpressed by the teachings of the police and in the future, failure to comply immediately with instructions from the police concerning equipment will be punished summarily and strictly, he said.

Mrs. H. D. Cobb 88

Mrs. H. D. Cobb, formerly of Norwich, observed her 88th birthday in an informal manner at the home of her grandson and his family 95 Glenbrook avenue, New Haven, Friday, Oct. 28. Mrs. Cobb received several dainty gifts, cards and other remembrances from neighbors and friends.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week nine building permits were issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton which is an exceptionally large number for the first week in November. The permits are for gargaes and additions and alterations to present buildings, the largest expenditure being for the work of remodeling the building at the corner of Main street and Broadway owned by Harry Land and occupied by Raphael.

The first week in November proved favorable to building in Norwich and vicinity and considerable progress has been made on buildings under construction. The steel structural work on the addition to the Silberman building is progressing very rapidly and has now reached the fifth story. The new building will be eight stories high. The work on the brickwork has been started and will continue throughout the cold weather.

Plasters are at work on the new house for Dr. James J. Donahue on the Norwich-Taftville road and the rough plaster has been laid. The house is one of the finest in that section, the first story being of field stone with colonial clapboards above the first story. There is a large porch to the south just off the large living room in which there is a beautiful brick fireplace. The interior will be in polished dark oak, trim and floors. The entire building will be insolated.

The permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton are as follows:

To Daniel Izyarcelli to erect a frame garage in the rear of 171 Boswell avenue for himself. The garage will be 10x16 feet.

To Anthony Baronowsky to erect a 2-car garage on Russell road. The garage will be of frame construction and will be 16x18 feet.

To Julius W. Wuttkey to erect a frame garage on Division street extension for himself. The garage will be 10x18 feet.

To Alex Shnip to build a 2-car garage for Dr. Clarence G. Thompson on Huntington place. The garage will be 20x20 with cement foundation and floor.

To Fred Tongren to build a frame garage on Joseph Perkins road for Sigmond Dressler. The garage will be 20x24 feet and will have concrete foundation and floor.

To Contractor P. F. Sweeney to build an addition to the present frame house at 758 Boswell avenue owned by Dr. F. D. Coles. The additon will be 10x10 feet with stone foundation and frame superstructure.

To P. F. Sweeney to make alterations to the building at the corner of Main street and Broadway, now occupied by Raphael and owned by Harry Land. The alterations will include the removal of the present front and the remodeling of the first and second floors. New floors will be laid and a new plate glass and copper front will be put in.

To Philip Kierstein to erect a frame shed at 114 Asylum street. The shed will be 24x28 feet.

To Hinckley and Carr, builders, to add a frame veranda, 8x13 feet, to the present frame house at 37 Thames street for Wolf Blinderman.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 12 sales of real estate in Norwich, one more sale than for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $60,000 and $51,275.

In New London during the past week there were 14 sales of real estate as compared to 11 sales of real estate during the corresponding week in 1926. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $87,200 and $37,617.

New London.

The total of 52 building permits issued by the council for October brings the grand total of permits issued for this year up to 493, it is revealed in a resume of the first 10 months of this year. While the figures are not exceptionally large, they represent a fairly active year in new building.

Significant in the total number of permits issued is the fact that nearly 20 per cent were for new dwellings there being 94 new houses built or now under construction for the first 10 months of the year. With an average cost of $7,000, a conservative estimate, the 94 new homes will represent a total value of $658,000. On this basis of calculation the city's grand list would be increased nearly $500,000.

A review of the past 10 months reveals some interesting facts in the time of year when building is most popular. The least number of permits for any single month were issued in January when 20 were granted. The largest number for any single month was issued in May when 98 were granted. That spring is the most popular time to start new construction work is indicated in the fact that the months of March, April and May had a total of 226 permits issued, close to half of the total for the first 10 months. In March there were 67 permits issued and in April there were 61 issued.

In February there were 32 permits issued. A decided slump is observed in June when the total for that month was only 33 as compared to the high total of 98 for May. In July a slight increase is noted with 49 permits for that month and then in August another slump is noticed when the total for that month drops down to 29. September and October both proved average months with 51 permits issued in the former period and 52 in the latter.

E. L. Norrie, addition, Pequot avenue, $400.

S. H. Palmer, garage addition, 308 Broad street, $700.

Total number of permits issued for the week 13; estimated cost of buildings, $47,650.

WESTERLY.

Major building operations in the town of Westerly at the first of November, show much progress, especially in the several business blocks now in process of erection.

At the addition to the east side of the Westerly Memorial and Public Library building on Broad street, window frames are in place for the first story of the building above the stone basement foundation walls. Work of laying conduits and the cement first floor has been completed. The yellow side brick walls have risen in some places to points between window frames. Stone side walls to the doorway at the main entrance to the addition are now in place and much progress has been made to the circular rear brick wall with bowed windows.

The roof at the single story and basement brick block of the Green Stores, Inc., taking up the northern one-half of the Alling Rubber block, as the old wooden block was known, extending from the Brown building to the Willard block on High street, on Monday was having its first coat of tar applied. The finished brick above the copper and glass store front on High street to complete the front wall to the roof were being laid the first of the week.

At the Castagna and Morrone block on Canal street in front of the Alba Inn, the northern brick wall with windows along the front walk approach to the Inn from Canal street had been carried up to the top of the second story. The side walls of the business blocks are now nearly ready for the placing of the iron cross beams to support the second floor of the building.

On Railroad avenue the rear wall of the new block which will fill the gap between the Duty Flint Ford station building and the Chester Block has reached a point well up on the second story. The two side walls of the buildings on each side will become party walls on the estate of A. L. Chester.

Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi has issued the following zoning permits for the first week in November:

Oct. 31 Mrs. Rose E. House, Washington avenue. Addition 16 feet by 18 feet, 6 inches. Contractor, John Hebb.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Some idea of the task which confronted Raoul Walsh in editing the motion picture "What Price Glory," now at the Breed theatre, can be had from the information that the footage which was run up on the production amounted to just a little more than 100 miles. Just for one look at all the reels Walsh had to sit in the projection room for ten consecutive days of twelve hours each. When it is considered that he had to run through this footage a number of times in order to select a final version of "What Price Glory," it is easy to understand why directors must have good constitutions.

Sitting with Walsh was Salvatore A. Capodice, World war hero, who was wounded seventeen times and lost a leg in the engagement of Belleau Wood, where Laurence Stallings was similarly wounded. Capodice was with the 67th company, Fifth regiment, U. S. Marine Corps. He was technical advisor to Walsh from the time Walsh began work on "What Price Glory" in order to make sure about details, which are bound to be scrutinized by men who fought overseas.

The elimination of material for the building up the story was comparatively easy, as the Fox version of "What Price Glory" follows strictly the drama written by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson. Walsh's difficulty was to select the best of the exterior shots.

All in all, "What Price Glory" is a highly creditable achievement.

Wednesday night, Nov. 9th, is American Legion night at the Breed theatre where, under the auspices of the Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, the big photoplay "What Price Glory" is showing for the entire week. Members of the American Legion will assemble at the post rooms on Shetucket street at 6:45 p. m., and the parade will start at 7 p. m. sharp. All ex-service men in Norwich and vicinity are expected to march with the Legion whether they are members of the post or not. The music for the parade will be furnished by the Drum corps of Troop 5, Boy Scouts, who have volunteered their services.

Strand Theatre

Would you like to step into another man's shoes? Would you like to live another man's life? Do you think your wits would work quickly enough and cleverly enough to take another man's name and his place and work out his problems? That is what Buffalo Bill, Jr., does in the Interferin' Gent, now showing at the Strand theatre.

"The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted," starring beautiful Irene Rich is a startlingly dramatic presentation of the most timely topic of modern social conditions. Coming tomorrow a real comedy "Money to Burn" also "White Pebbles" a western thriller.

Herbert Rich late of the Baltimore symphony orchestra conducting the Strand orchestra.

Broadway Theatre

Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton have achieved the impossible. They have made four comedies in a row and each one is funnier than its predecessor.

The latest nonsense opera of this inimitable pair, "Now We're in the Air," opened a 4 day engagement. Beery and Hatton exceed anything they have ever done before for Paramount.

They are shown as a couple of boob aviators, who become such by wandering into a propeller testing room where six propellers are roaring at once and having their Scotch highlander costumes blown off them. Some one tosses them a pair of flying suits and they are off.

Mistaken identity dominates the theme. It does not end with the comedians being mistaken for fliers, but Louise Brooks, the charming and beautiful leading woman, figures in the mistakes. She plays twin sisters, one German and one French. Wally loves the German girl and Ray the French; their problem of telling them apart is a tough one and leads to no end of amazing situations.

Palace Theatre

"Figures Don't Lie," is the title for the film feature selected by the Palace Theatre management for the first three days of this week. The story concerns a business man who is found in the act of placing a beautiful necklace around the throat of his secretary. Enter the man's wife and then the trouble begins. Esther Ralston plays the part of the "wolkin girl", Richard Arlen, the girls lover and Ford Sterling is the much abused business man. Incidentally Mr. Sterling has not lost any of his comedy ability as shown by the manner in which he plays his part.

The vaudeville program consists of five good acts featuring a comedy sketch, "Money, Money, Money," with six people in the cast. Another feature is the Margie Hayes Revue, a cyclonic dance revue that meets with popular favor. Francis & Hume score heavily with their comedy act, "Knickerbockers." Marie Harcourt in musical impressions and Barabino, Lorenz and Pal in aerial feats conclude the program.

Capitol Theatre, New London

The best American opera is a designation fairly won by Deems Taylor for his "King's Henchman" which is to be given in New London on Thursday evening at the Capitol theatre.

The music is said to have two qualities rather conspicuously absent from early American opera, emotion and personality. It has more of sound, theatrically and expertness in the handling of vocal and orchestra resources, than most of its predecessors. This, according to the soothsayers, who sit in the critic sanctum of New York musical world. It has also been remarked that some of the best writing of operatic scores has been achieved by Mr. Taylor. The opera is full of lyric charm and of delicious orchestral play. Taylor's long experience in choral writing has been of good stead to him in turning out what has become one of the outstanding musical compositions of the past decade at least. Keeping step and entirely in the atmosphere is the unusual libretto of Edna St. Vincent Millay. The production here of the "King's Henchman" with some of the foremost names in the operatic firmament, has already caused a stir in social and musical circles and the sale of seats speaks of a large and representative gathering on the evening of Thursday.

Rainbow Bazaar

The chief activity of the Woman's Guild of the United church for the present week will be the Rainbow bazaar to be held in the Community house on Wednesday, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Varied and attractive articles for personal use and for Christmas gifts will be found in the bride's booth, on the apron and bag table, at the children's booth and among the novelties and grabs as well as flowers at "the flower mart" and all kinds of delicious homemade food and candy. Tea will be served from 2 to 6 p. m. and a chicken pie supper at 6.30 p. m. tickets for which are necessarily limited. The proceeds of the bazaar go toward the annual budget of the guild.

Speaker for Women's Club

The civics committee, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, chairman, is in charge of the next regular meeting of the Woman's City club, which occurs on Tuesday evening, Nov. 15. An outstanding sociologist, Dr. Charles Stelze has been secured to make the address of the evening. A limited number of men, perhaps fifty may obtain tickets for this meeting, by making application to Mrs. Gilbert. Rotarians who have heard Dr. Stelze in November, but his inability to accept the invitation, leaves Nov. 15 as the only opportunity for men to listen to this timely speaker.

A new sub-committee has been formed in the civics group. A committee for child study, Mrs. Ronald Nelson of Norwich Town, has consented to act as chairman of this group and will help in the preparation of programs for the study of the problems of childhood.

Rev. G. C. Scrivener Chosen President.

Rev. George C. Scrivener, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, Newport, R. I., has been chosen president of the Newport Ministers union, succeeding Rev. James P. Conover, who has held the office two years.

Rev. Mr. Scrivener was formerly district superintendent for the Norwich district and resided in this city.

SHORT TALKS BY THOUGHTFUL MOTHERS

A California (Long Beach) Mother speaks: "Only a mother who has passed through anxious hours of fear of croup can appreciate our feeling of gratitude toward Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It stopped Junior's dreadful hoarse croupy cough the very first night he took it and he was a great relief to see him drop into a quiet sleep. Since then, we have many times proven its retentive for coughs and colds." Good also for whooping cough.

Puts An End To Bunion Pains

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflammation of swollen toe joints and help get them down to normal and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask Lee & Osgood Co., or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if one bottle Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Don't Ignore Acid Scalp!

We have all been too close to people whose hair had a noticeable odor. It is due to an acidity that soap and water are powerless to prevent. You may not have acid scalp. Or you may have it and not know it. But dandruff should make you suspicious, and hair that "strings" is a sure sign.

When hair has a dull, "dead" look after curling—and the wave is all out a few hours after use of the iron—it is time to use Danderine. Just a few drops of this highly scientific preparation will check acidity, and give your hair such lovely softness that dressing it will be a delight. It will arrange easily, and stay as you arrange it. Every particle of scale will be dissolved. It makes an amazing difference. And for only thirty-five cents, your druggist will give you a bottle of Danderine that will last for weeks!

JUDGE GRANTS LEONARD CHAPMAN DIVORCE ON HIS CROSS COMPLAINT

Leonard H. Chapman of 82 Union street, against whom his wife, Jennie Kane Chapman of 2 Elmwood avenue, whom he married on June 1st last, brought a suit for divorce which has been on trial in the superior court before Judge Allyn L. Brown was granted a divorce from his wife in the court session in this city Monday morning, when Mr. Chapman's counsel filed a cross-complaint. The divorce was granted on the cross-complaint in which it was alleged that the wife had a corporal imbecility which unfitted her for marriage.

At the same time, it is understood, that the suit which Mr. Chapman had brought against his wife's mother, Mrs. Sarah Kane, and her sister, Dorothy, for alienation of affections is withdrawn. Immediately after the marriage in the office of a justice of the peace in this city, Mrs. Kane took her daughter away from Mr. Chapman and the newly married couple have never lived together. The divorce suit brought by the bride and the alienation suit brought by Mr. Chapman were the next developments in the case.

When the court session opened Monday before Judge Brown for continuation of the trial of Mrs. Chapman's suit for divorce, Attorney V. P. A. Quinn, counsel for Mr. Chapman, entered a demurrer to several paragraphs of the plaintiff's complaint, alleging that they were immaterial, irrevelant and improper ground to entitle the plaintiff, Jennie Kane Chapman, to a divorce.

Considerable time was then taken up with conferences between Attorney Quinn and the counsel for Mrs. Chapman, Attorney E. W. Perkins and Judge A. P. Libby. There were also conferences with Judge Brown in his room and as a result of the attorneys for Mrs. Chapman withdrew their counts of corporal imbecility and mental incapacity, following which Attorney Quinn filed his cross-complaint on the grounds as already stated.

After the court had heard brief testimony fom three witnesses, Judge Brown granted the divorce to Mr. Chapman on the cross-complaint.

Mr. Chapman testified that he had no knowledge of the corporal imbecility of his wife before their marriage on June 1, 1927.

William H. Fitzgerald, x-ray technician at the Norwich state hospital, exhibited x-ray pictures of Mrs. Chapman which he had taken and explained to the court what they showed.

Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent at the hospital, gave his testimony that his examination of Mrs. Chapman showed that she was mentally and physically weak.

At the conclusion of this testimony, upon which there was no cross-examination, Judge Brown granted the divorce to Mr. Chapman.

WESTERN UNION OFFICE TO HAVE PRINTER SYSTEM

The new Simplex printer system is to be installed in the local Western Union Telegraph office shortly.

This long distance typewriting method replaces the old-time Morse system which required months of training in the mysteries of the clicking sounder, and substitutes both for sending and receiving a typewriter-like apparatus operated by anyone familiar with ordinary typing. The apparatus is but little larger than a typewriter and weighs complete about 70 pounds.

The Simplex operator, usually a young woman, sits before the super-typewriter and taps out a word on the keys. Letter by letter the electric impulses of the word slip out over the wire to the distant city, setting up impulses in another super-typewriter at that end in such a manner that the corresponding typebars are pulled down and the message is registered on a roll of paper tape in Roman characters. The operator at the receiving end picks up the tape as it flows from the machine and with the aid of a small gumming instrument, glues it rapidly to a telegraph or cable blank, after which the message is ready for delivery.

The girl transmitting the message may be sending over a distance of several hundred miles. It is as if the keys she depresses were attached to typebars several hundred miles long, each typebar registering on the distant tape practically instantaneously despite the distance. As she types, the message recorded by the distant machine, is likewise printed on a paper tape emerging from her own machine, so that the sending office has a perfect record of what has been transmitted. When the distant office wishes to send, the home operator stops typewriting and the process is reversed.

LAPPIE APPEALS FINE ON FAILURE TO GRANT WAY

When the continued case against Peter J. Lappie of Fitchville was called up in the city court Monday morning the charge of manslaughter against him was dropped and charges of failure to grant the right of way and cutting corners were substituted. The manslaughter charge was dropped as a result of Coroner J. J. Desmond's finding in which he exonerated Mr. Lappie from blame in causing the death of Clarence Walden, 24, of No. 219 West Main street. The fatal accident happened October 12, near the Lisbon bridge at Taftville.

Mr. Lappie entered pleas of not guilty to the substituted charges. Several witnesses for both the state and defense were heard and after a lengthy session Judge Henry H. Pettis imposed a fine of $35 and costs on the charge of failure to grant the right of way. The charge of cutting corners was nolled. Mr. Lappie appealed the fine and furnished a bond.

PLACING BETTER SIGNS TO DIRECT MOTORISTS

New no-parking signs are being placed on poles in a number of the local streets by the police department. A number of the signs were placed Monday by Sergt. Myron O. Morgan and Officer Patrick Murphy. Automobile operators have complained that they did not see the no-parking signs where their automobiles happened to be when they were red-tagged. The new signs made of narrow boards, painted yellow, are attached to the electric light poles. They replace the signs which were on standards that stood on the curbs.

FINED IN WATERFORD FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WATERFORD, Nov. 7.—In the town court this afternoon, Jacob Schnitman, grocery clerk of Norwich, was presented on a charge of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs, but $15 of the fine was ordered remitted. Schnitman was arrested Sunday afternoon by State Police Officer Bernard Kenesson when he drove his auto by three other cars on the inside of a curve at the top of Boiles Hill, Quaker Hill, his acts resulting in an accident.

Lester Crowell Safe in Barre.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Crowell of 102 Williams street received a telegram Monday from their son, Lester E. Crowell, saying that he was "O. K." Mr. Crowell is a student at Goddard Seminary, Barre, Vt., which town suffered great loss from the New England flood.

Charpentier's nuptials. Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Gaucher of North A street.

George W. Weller, Jr., of Blissville has returned to his work after enjoying a week's vacation.

At the communion service at the Congregational church on Sunday, seven young people united with the church on confession of faith. They were George Steward Marthers, Miss Mildred Lucille Yerrington, Miss Gladys Arlene Kinder, Miss Dorothy Hunt, Miss Jean Maxwell Copeland, Miss Margaret Louise Sticht and Miss Dorothy Marie Aberg. Three of these young people, George S. Marthers, Miss Mildred L. Yerrington and Miss Gladys A. Kinder, received the sacrament of baptism at this time.

COUNCIL MEETING CAME CLOSE TO ANNIVERSARY

When the common council met Monday night it came close to meet on the 54th aniversary date of the first meeting held in the council chamber after the new $250,000 court house on Union square had been completed in April, 1873.

The common council used the council chamber for a meeting for the first time on Thursday, Nov. 3, 1873. At that time Hon. James M. Lloyd Greene was mayor, John L. Devotion, city clerk and the following were the council members: Aldermen, William L. Brewer, James S. Carew, Julius Webb, and N. S. Gilbert; councilmen, Asa Nash, J. Hunt Smith, D. A. Billings, Robert Brown, A. W. Gibbs, Jonathan W. Hooker, John B. Shaw and Lyman Gould.

Before the upper portion of the court house was ready for occupancy, the lower floor was in use for some time.

ANOTHER RABIES CASE IS DISCOVERED HERE

A new case of rabies has been found in Norwich, according to a report received by Selectman William S. Murray from the department of domestic animals in Hartford. This makes the fourth case discovered in the town so far. Selectman Murray recently received from Dog Warden Chester Bushnell the head of a dog which he shot. The head was forwarded to Hartford. The dog was a collie owned by Toefil Kellar of No. 10 Hadley avenue.

Saturday a deputy commissioner of the department came to Norwich and with Dog Warden Bushnell visited the scene where the dog was shot. A white dog without a collar or tag was running around in the vicinity. Learning that the dog had been in a fight with the collie it was immediately killed.

NORWICH TOWN

The W. J. T.s, an organized class of the First Congregational Sunday school, Miss Jessie E. Hyde teacher, entertained the class taught by Clyde M. Beebe, Friday evening from 7:30 on, in the chapel. Among the thirty present were the wives of several of the young men, the pastor of the church, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey as guest of honor, and the judges in the debate that occupied the greater part of the evening. The subject for discussion was, "Resolved: That the labor unions as they are run today, are helping solve our economic problems."

The contestants for the affirmative side were George Durr and Crosby Peck, and for the negative, Burton Jopson and Reginald Avery. The latter side won. Adult members of the parish acted as judges: Arthur Avery presided at the meeting, during which George Durr, president of the entertaining class, presented another member, Marcus Grady, a fine loaf of cake, in recognition of his birthday which fell on that date. This was cut and passed around as was also other cake and cocoa. Miss Hyde was assisted in serving by Mrs. Elton Odgers, Mrs. Marcus Grady, Mrs. William E. House and Mrs. Burton Jopson, wives of four members of the W. J. T.s. During the evening the young people played several games.

For the first regular weekly meeting, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the children of the Sunday school of the First Methodist Episcopal parish assembled for services. There were thirty-six present, including the speaker Miss Edith Ellis and a class of eight from the Central Baptist church, also H. Dwight Richardson, who accompanied for the hymns. Miss Ellis gave an interesting talk on "Clean Hands, and A Pure Heart." Miss Ethel Brown played a violin solo accompanied by Mr. Richardson. The service next Sunday afternoon will have as its speaker, Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church. The music at this time will be in charge of Miss Virginia Ward. The speaker scheduled for the following Sunday November 20th, is Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of Bozrah church.

At the Methodist church Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. Albert E. Whitten preached on "Preach, Teach and Heal." His texts were Matthew 10, a portion of the seventh and eighth verses, As ye go, preach, heal the sick; and Matthew 28, a portion of the nineteenth verse, Go and teach all nations.

The Methodist Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening was in charge of Rev. Mr. Whitten, who spoke on "What Should Be the Christian's Attitude Toward War?" Matthew 5:9, 38-48, was the scripture reference. This was a consecration meeting.

Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist church is to hold its November meeting Friday afternoon, at the parsonage. This will be the thank offering meeting.

"Christ the Same Yesterday, Today and Forever," was the theme of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey's sermon Sunday morning at the First Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Bailey was assisted during the service by Rev. Charles E. Reeves, who also assisted at the celebration of the Lord's supper, that followed the service.

Ralph H. Marsh, was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening, when the topic was "What Should Be the Christian's Attitude Toward War?"

At the Junior C. E. service Sunday afternoon at 3:30, the topic was "Peacemakers." The leaders were Lucy Lenkowitz and Elaine Barrett.

In the study of the New Testament at the mid-week service for conference and prayer Thursday evening, in the Congregational chapel, the lesson will be Galations—chapter five and seven.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, accompanied by George F. Hyde, the delegates from the Norwich Town Congregational church, will leave this (Tuesday) morning, to attend the 60th annual meeting of the general conference of Congregational churches, to be held at the United church, Bridgeport, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Following over three weeks' visit with friends at Stow and Auburndale, Mass., also with her sister, Miss Gertrude Hyde, professor of art, at Mount Holyoke college, Miss Susan Hyde returned Monday afternoon to her home on Washington street.

No Superior Court Armistice Day.

There will be no superior court session here Friday, which is the regular short calender day, but it is also Armistice day, which will be observed as a holiday by the superior courts in all parts of the state.

CELLIST'S FINE PROGRAMME FOR MUSIC ASSOCIATION

The Norwich Music association enjoyed an unusually fine program for its November meeting held Monday evening at Slater hall annex when Miss Phyllis Kraeuter, cellist, was the entertainer for the evening, with Miss Leonora Kraeuter at the piano.

Miss Kraeuter's playing was marked by a rich, mellow tone, deep sensitiveness to the moods of the composer and artistic ability to express to her audience what she felt was embodied in the compositions that made up her well chosen programme. Warm applause was given for each group of numbers she played, and at the close she responded with an encore number.

The programme was given as follows:

Sonata in C major	L. Boccherini
Allegro con spirito
Largo
Allegretto
Kol Nedrei	Max Bruch
Concerto in B minor	Francois Servais
Allegro
Andante cantabile
Allegro
Romance	David Popper
Danse Orientale	Rachmaninoff
Chanson Napolitaine	Cesar Casella
Waldesruhe	Dvorak
Danse Exotique	William Jeral

EXTRACTED SAFETY PIN FROM BABY'S THROAT

Dr. William Murray Good of Waterbury, a former resident of this city, was successful this week in removing from a baby's throat a large open safety pin that had been lodged in the child's larynx since last August.

The parents of the child did not know what was the matter with it but could see that its breathing was difficult and troublesome and recently it had developed difficulty in feeding. The trouble had been diagnosed as an ordinary cold and also as diphtheria, but when the diphtheria symptoms failed to develop, the attending physician had the child taken to Dr. Good, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. By the use of a throat light he was able to locate the obstruction and take it out with an instrument. The safety pin was over an inch long and badly rusted when taken from the baby's throat.

A Waterbury Sunday paper contained a picture of the baby and its mother with an account of Dr. Good's success in getting the safety pin out.

Chorus Makes Good Start.

When the chorus being organized among members of the Norwich City club held its first meeting at the Bishop school, Friday evening about thirty were present. There was much enthusiasm after the opening instruction by Dr. J. Lawrence Erb. Miss Suck is chairman of the committee, having this department in charge. Members are enrolling with Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard and Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham.

Bible Scholar Will be Speaker

Prof. James Moffatt of Union Theological seminary will speak at the gathering of ministers, Sunday school teachers and leaders in New Haven on Thursday, Nov. 17. Great interest is already being shown in his subjects as announced for the religious education convention in New Haven on Nov. 16, 17 and 18.

Dr. Moffatt's subjects on Thursday, November 17, are: "Religion and the Aim of Education," "Our Common Responsibility" and "On Conveying Ideas."

Of special interest to ministers is the Ministers' and Professional Workers' luncheon at Hotel Taft, New Haven, on November 17, at which Dr. Moffatt and Dr. Weigle will be the speakers. Dean W. P. Ladd of Berkeley Divinity school, Middletown, will act as toastmaster at this luncheon, which is expected to be one of the outstanding events of the year in religious circles in Connecticut.

WATER OVERSEER MUST HAVE LONG APPRENTICESHIP

Reservoir overseers or superintendents who are entrusted with the task of guarding Connecticut water company reservoirs and watershed land, must be men of long experience in their work, for each of these men must be familiar with a half dozen different trades in order to carry on their numerous duties. The period of apprenticeship for a reservoir overseer lasts many years, for only men of long experience in the work can be entrusted in these positions.

A watershed overseer in Connecticut must have at once a knowledge of chemistry, bacteriology, forestry and plant growths. He must be a capable fire fighter, an expert in fire prevention, and at times even a policeman. He is a veritable "jack of all trades."

The duties of the reservoir superintendent includes first the care of the water supply. He is expected to guard it against pollution, and to keep the watershed free from any sources which might injure the water. His knowledge should include methods of treating the water to kill off bacteria and various plant growths which are apt to develop bad tastes. He has charge of the planting of pine trees on the watershed land and must care for these trees, guarding their growth and keeping them free from tree diseases. He must keep trespassers from the water-shed land. He must guard against the outbreak of forest fires among the timber and must be capable of extinguishing any fires which do break out. He usually has a corps of workmen under his supervision.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR MISS ANNA HYMAN

A delightful miscellaneous shower was held at the Hebrew institute Sunday evening in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Anne Hyman of 315 West Main street to Mac Moskowitz of Jewett City. The bride-to-be received many beautiful gifts. Following the exhibition of gifts, a delicious luncheon was served to the 75 guests present by the Misses Sarah and Esther Hyman assisted by the Misses Abramson, Weinstein, Segal and Moyel. Miss Ida Fishkin and Julius Tanner added to the evening's enjoyment by providing music for the dancing.

POETRY

Autumn

The lark is singing in the blinding sky,
Hedges are white with May. The bridegroom sea
Is toying with the shore, his wedded bride,
And, in the fullness of his marriage joy,
He decorates her tawny brow with shells.
Retires a space to see how fair she looks,
Then proud, runs up to kiss her. All is fair—
All glad, from grass to sun! Yet more I love
Than this, the shrinking day, that sometimes comes
In winter's front, so far among its dark peers.
It seems a straggler from the files of June,
Which in its wanderings had lost its wife,
And half its beauty; and, when it turned,
Finding its old companions gone away,
It joined November's troop, then marching past
And so the frail thing comes, and greets the world
With a thin, crazy smile, then bursts in tears,
And all the while it holds within its hand
A few half-withered flowers.
—Alexander Smith.

Intolerable

A perfect housekeeper was she,
And order was her law,
A neater, tidier home than hers
Nobody ever saw.
A speck of dust on anything
To her would mean disgrace.
She must have everything arranged
With nothing out of place.

So every book was on its shelf,
With every chair just so,
And all the mantel bric-a-brac
Ranged in a proper row;
And of waste stuff of any kind
There was no scrap or shred,
And every newspaper was burned
As soon as it was read.

Her ways were so methodical,
Her tidiness so great
That no one had invegled her
Into the marriage state.
A bit of clutter in her home
She never could forgive.
'Twas wonderful—but, oh, it was
No place in which to live!

NEW YORK VOTERS APPROVE POLICY OF GOVERNOR SMITH

Proposed Constitutional Amendment Providing For a Four Year Term For Governor Was Overwhelmingly Defeated—Gov. Smith Opposed the Amendment—Amendment Proposing to Increase Salaries of Various State Officers, Favored by Governor Smith, Was Carried by Large Plurality.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(AP)—A majority of more than $70,000 votes had been rolled up against the proposed constitutional amendment providing for a four year term for governor, in returns from more than one-third of the state tabulated at 10 p. m., tonight. The vote was yes, 204,915; no, 277,729.

The proposal to allow New York city to increase its debt limit for $200,000,000 for the purpose of building new subways received 323,326 affirmative votes and 148,094 negative, in 1324 districts.

The proposed amendment increasing the governor's salary from $10,000 to $25,000, the lieutenant governor's to $10,000 and members of the assembly to $2,500, was favored by a vote of 322,063 to 98,320 in the 1678 districts tabulated at 9 p. m.

Governor Smith favored both of the proposals.

RESULTS OF YESTERDAY'S ELECTIONS SUMMARIZED

(By The Associated Press.)

From the national standpoint, interest in yesterday's elections held in a dozen scattered states, centered in the fate of a proposed constitutional amendment in New York, opposed by Governor Al Smith, the election of a governor in Kentucky, and the result of a referendum in Ohio and mayoralty battles in Philadelphia and Detroit.

In New York, incomplete returns indicated the rejection of the proposal, fought by Smith and favored by republicans, to increase the term for governor to four years, beginning at the next election for president.

Scattered returns in Kentucky showed J. C. W. Beckham, democrat, slightly in the lead of Flem D. Sampson, his republican opponent for governor, with the result in doubt. During the campaign Beckham, twice governor and once United States senator, advocated repeal of the Pari-mutuel race track betting law.

In Ohio a majority was piled up, on the face of early returns, against the Marshall bill which would restore to mayors and justices of the peace authority to collect fees in criminal cases. The measure had the support of the anti-saloon league and the opposition of automobile clubs.

In Philadelphia, Harry A. Mackey, the republican candidate for mayor with support of the Vare organization, piled up a commanding lead over J. Hampton Moore, former member of congress, running as an independent.

In Philadelphia also, James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States, was elected to congress. He is a republican supported by Senator-elect Vare, and fills one of the three vacancies in the house of representatives for which elections were held yesterday.

In the 35th New York district, Clarence E. Hancock, republican, was elected to serve the unexpired term in the house of the late Representative Magee, also a republican.

In the second Ohio district an election was held to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Stephens.

Running on a platform of liberal prohibition enforcement, Mayor John W. Smith, in Detroit, had a slight lead on early returns over John C. Lodge.

Mississippi went through the formality of electing Theodore G. Bilbo, a democrat, governor.

Several states elected new legislatures. New Mexico voted on a variety of proposed amendments to its constitution, but in most of the states where the polls were opened yesterday the issues were mainly local.

Little disorder was reported, although in Harlan county, Kentucky, there was a shooting scrape at the polls during which two men, one of them a candidate for councilman at Evarts, was killed.

INDIANAPOLIS ELECTS A DEMOCRATIC MAYOR

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 8.—(AP)—A republican city council today turned to a democrat to lead Indianapolis out of its political dilemma when it elected L. Ert Slack, formerly United States district attorney, to be mayor until Jan. 1, 1930. At that time the city manager form of government will be installed.

Slack was sworn into office by City Clerk William S. Boyce within half an hour after the election, in so little about the city hall that he had to be directed to the common council chamber. When the oath of office was administered, Claude E. Negley, president of the council and for the last two weeks acting mayor, took the new chief executive down to his office, turned the keys and other property over to him and left the building.

The election, occasioned by the council holding that John L. Duvall automatically vacated the mayorship on Sept. 22, when he was convicted of violating the corrupt practices act, was determined on the thirty-eighth ballot. Duvall, who was elected n 1925 by the republican party, resigned while the council was in session.

PHILADELPHIA ELECTS REGULAR REPUBLICAN

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Returns from 820 election districts, more than half of the city, gave Harry A Mackay, republican organization candidate for mayor a lead of 109,561 over J. Hampton Moore, independent citizens party in today's municipal election. The figures were Mackay 163,497; Moore 53,936.

Mackay was approximately 24,000 ahead of his vote in September primary when he defeated Moore for the republican nomination. Moore was running about 17,000 behind his own primary vote.

WAS NO OPPOSITION TO DEMOCRATS IN MISSISSIPPI

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Their internal differences settled in a hot political fight in the August primary, Mississippi democrats today went through the formality of electing their entire ticket of state officers. There was no opposition, and the vote was light.

Theo G. Bilbo, former governor, takes that office again January 1, 1928, having defeated Dennis Murphree, incumbent in a run-off of the August primary. They led a field of four in the first primary. Governor Murphree was elected as lieutenant governor and became chief executive on the first primary. Governor Murphree was elected as lieutenant governor and became chief executive on the death in office of Governor Whitfield.

In addition to the governor, sixteen other state officers were formally elected, including one woman, Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, a member of the board of prison trustees.

No legislative or congressional elections were held.

GUBERNATORIAL ELECTION IN KENTUCKY UNCERTAIN

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 8—(AP)—Delay in reporting of returns from the republican mountain counties tonight made uncertain the outcome of today's gubernatorial election.

J. C. W. Beckham, democratic nominee for governor, was leading his republican opponent, Judge Flem D. Sampson, by a majority of 15,472 votes at 9 o'clock tonight. These returns, however, were from only one half of the 120 counties in the state and did not include the vote from a number nominally heavy republican counties.

Sampson was leading in the racing centers of Louisville, Lexington and Ashland, but other counties in the Blue Grass section, center of the horse breeding industry, were in the Beckham column on the face of incomplete and unofficial returns.

Sampson continued to lead in Louisville and Jefferson county, having a majority of 3600 with 488 precincts reported.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE DEFEATED IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The Anti-Saloon league of Ohio, master on all prohibition questions in this state for many years, apparently suffered a stinging defeat in today's statewide elections.

Throwing its entire support for the Marshall bill which would place justices of the peace on a fee salary basis and thereby imbue those inferior courts with authority to hear and decide cases involving infraction of the prohibition laws, the league apparently failed to rally to the support it has had in former battles.

The measue, submitted to referendum after being put through the state legislature by dry forces, stood with a majority of 157,000 votes against it in virtually one-half the state's voting precincts. The vote in 4,801 precincts out of a total of 8,721 in the state was: For the bill 219,118; against 366,168.

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Mayor Harry T. Clinton, republican, was defeated in today's city election by former Mayor Cornelius F. Burns, democrat, by a majority of about 1,200 votes.

ARRESTED FOR ROBBERY AND MURDER OF WOMAN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 8—(AP)—The brutal robbery and murder of an aged woman recluse of Zwingle, Iowa, was solved here today, police believed, with the arrest of two nattily-dressed men who said they were Leonard Cota, 18, of Bennettsville, Iowa, and Harold Kramer, 19, of Great Falls, Mont. Police found $27,000 in cash and a large amount in securities in their hotel room.

The youth admitted, police said, that they slugged, bound and gagged a Mrs. McKittrick, 73, Cota's grandmother and robbed her of the cash and securities the night of Nov. 1.

Word was received from police at Dubuque, Ia., that Mrs. McKittrick was found strangled to death in her cottage at Zwingle, near there, and her grandson, Cota was suspected as he disappeared shortly after the crime.

Cota said his grandmother was breathing when he left her. Pending further questioning, police did not appraise the youths that Mrs. McKittrick is dead.

According to the confessions, Cota and Kramer planned to rob the woman after the chance discovery by Cota three months ago that his grandmother had a fortune hid in her cottage

A 500 GALLON STILL WAS SEIZED IN BLOOMFIELD

HARTFORD, Nov. 8—(AP)—State police raiding the farm of Henry Battilcelo in an isolated section of Bloomfield not far from the Hartford town line late this afternoon, seized a 500-gallon still, 7,000 gallons of alcohol, 1,600 pounds of salt, vats for storing the alcohol and a large number of drums believed to have been used for transporting the liquor, and arrested three men. The alcohol seizure is the largest made in this state in connection with the capture of a still since the beginning of prohibition, according to State Police Superintendent Robert T. Hurley.

State police found it necessary to tear down a part of the barn to remove some of the vats. Most of the alcohol was destroyed by emptying it on the ground but about 500 gallons, the capacity of the drums, was confiscated by the police. The still was in operation at the time of the raid

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, Nov. 8—(AP)—The Swedish lake Vanern, the second largest lake in Europe, has risen to a higher level than in a hundred and twenty years. Tremendous rains and swollen rivers emptying in the lake have made it inundate the cities of Karlstad and Kristinehamn and are now threatening other towns and villages along the shores.

MELUN, France, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Dishonored checks and "beating" his hotel bills have got Don Fernando De Bourbon, Duke of Durcal, and reputed to be a cousin of King Alfonso of Spain, in trouble. Fresh charges are pouring in on the duke and his companion, Jaime Zuluette, self-styled marquis, who were arrested recently on charges of being rogues and vagabonds without visible means of support.

How Two American Marines Were Slain By Nicarraguan Rebels

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 8—(AP)—Heroism and unflinching courage against overwhelming odds marked the last stand of Lieut. E. A. Thomas and Sergeant Frank Dowdrell, American marine aviators, it was revealed today in advices from the interior stating definitely that the missing fliers were killed by outlaws, just a month ago.

The report, which is believed here to be authoritative, came from Nicaraguans living in Ocotal, important town in northwestern Nicaragua, and scene of a desperate battle some months ago between American marines and Nicaraguan constabulary against the followers of the former liberal General Sandino. The story, finding its way to the coast at length, is felt to clear up definitely the fate of the two fliers who have been sought uncessingly by their comrades ever since they disappeared in thickets on Mount Chipate on Oct. 2 after their plane crashed.

One of the aviators—which one is not stated—was said to have been wounded seriously by a machete soon after the plane fell, while the other killed the assailant and dragged his companion to temporary safety in a cave where finally they were ambushed and met death before a body of thirty or forty outlaws, resisting desperately to the end.

Lieutenant Thomas and Sergeant Dowdell, who acted as observer, had completed bombing Sandino forces on Oct. 3 on Mount Chipote, when they crashed into the thick forest below. Both men escaped from the plane, which subsequently caught fire and was destroyed. The men who were unhurt, were able to secure the machine gun from the plane and then to escape and elude Sandino's followers.

In a valley into which they escaped they encountered two men whom they made prisoners, in order to force them to show the way to the town of Jicaron nearest to the scene. The country at this point is very mountainous and is covered with a dense forest presenting insurpasable difficulties unless under the guidance of native.

As the four men were marching toward Jicaro one of the prisoners wheeled suddenly and slashed at one of the marines with a machete inflicting a severe wound on his neck and shoulder. The other marine thereupon whipped out his revolver and killed the assailant, but during the melee, the remaining prisoner escaped.

Faced with the desperate problem of finding the way out of the impenetrable forest, the unwounded marine dragged and carried his comrade to a cave where the two men decided to take refuge for the night.

Meanwhile the prisoner who had escaped reached Sandino and related what had happened, whereupon the outlaw leader sent a force of 30 or 40 men who found no difficulty in trailing the marines since telltale blood spots marked the trail. Sandino's men then took up an ambush near the cave and began firing on the American fliers as they left the shelter to continue on to Jicaro.

A desperate fight followed. The wounded marine, despite his injuries, drew his pistol as did his companion and engaged in a duel with their assailants, each killing several of the querillas before they fell under the return fire.

The state of Nueva Segovia, in which the fight took place, is isolated and the people dwelling in the mountains are more or less a law unto themselves resenting the intrusion of outsiders and holding little communication with the outside world. The people are declared to have no fear of death and the men are described as excellent fights.

AGED JURIST SUED FOR ALLEGED SEDUCTION

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Nov. 8—(AP)—Silver haired and with 50 years of successful legal practice behind, a Somerset county jurist has been named defendant in a $105,000 suit filed by Lieut. Walter Ward Brougham, U. S. N., retired, in the Hunterdon county circuit court here alleging seduction and alienation of the affections of his wife, Mrs. Elna Brougham.

The jurist John Frech, judge of the Somerset county court, according to the papers in the suit made public today is charged with having called frequently on Mrs. Brougham at her home in Whitehouse between January 1923, and May 1928 It also is charged that Judge Frech wrote Mrs. Brougham endearing terms in which "hugs and kisses" were mentioned, presented many gifts and took her on numerous motor trips.

Judge Frech declined to give his age but he has a record of 50 years' practice, as evidenced by his elevation to the county bench several years ago. His wife died a year ago.

COL. LINDBERGH PILOTED NEW FORD AUTOMOBILE

DETROIT, Nov. 8—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, piloted one of the new Ford automobiles about the grounds of the Ford air-port today. With Major Thomas G. Lanphier, commandant of Selfridge field, near Mt. Clemens, Lindbergh went to the air-port today to be a luncheon guest of Henry and Edsel Ford.

On his last visit to the air-port, Colonel Lindbergh persuaded Henry and Edsel Ford to take their first ride in an airplane.

He is scheduled to accompany Major Lanphier tomorrow to Oscoda, Mich., where the first pursuit group from Selfridge field is engaging in aerial gunnery maneuvers.

TWO MEN KILLED AT KENTUCKY ELECTION

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 8—(AP)—Two men, one a candidate for office, were killed in shooting scrapes at the polls during balloting in the general election in Kentucky today.

Gill Lewis, 30, candidate for city councilman in a non-partisan ballot election at Evarts, Harlan county, was fatally shot by his opponent for office, Wayne Gibson 45, according to word received here. Lindsey Clark, 30, was shot in the heart and killed instantly during a shooting affray at the election polls at John's Creek, two miles from Prestonburg.

Reconstructing Zone Damaged by the Flood

Activities Spurred on For Fear of Cold Weather and the Possibility of Disease.

BOSTON, Nov. 8—(AP)—New England's flood stricken communities today took up the work of rebuilding their ruined homes and industries as the swollen streams fell back into their normal channels and communication was gradually restored with the outside world.

Tonight there were few places which relief agencies had not reached. As outsiders entered the last of the towns in northern Vermont cut off since last Thursday by the [illegible] they found men armed with [illegible] shovels digging themselves out from the debris of wrecked homes and piles of mud, erecting temporary bridges and laying out roadways over which much-needed supplies may be brought.

Through Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut the streams continued to recede and there appeared no further danger from the waters. The Connecticut was dropping all along its length and residents of towns and cities along its lower stretches breathed freely once more. Similar reports came from along the Merrimack in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Vermont, hardest hit by the flood, was on its way toward recovery. Governor John E. Weeks today called together the heads of state departments at Montpelier and set machinery in motion to bring order out of the confusion. He appointed Fred A. Howland emergency finance commissioner, and named committees to carry on the work of restoring conditions to normal.

There were few reports of food shortage. Newport, Vt., where a famine was feared, reported that there were no fatalities and that outside communication had been established by which a food supply was assured.

There was talk of a special session of the Vermont legislature to take relief measures but no action was taken. The Vermont capital received a supply of cash for its banks and Governor Weeks was oered a fund of $10,000 for relief work by James L. Colgate of Old Bennington, Vermont.

An Associated Press-Massachusetts Institute of Technology radio station, forging ahead along the White river found men working everywhere to dig away mud and refuse. The only need expressed was of more men to do the same work. This was the situation in Randolph, Vt., from which few reports had been received since last Thursday.

Fear of cold weather and the possibility of disease spurred on the workers in the towns and the relief agencies Generally little actual suffering was reported, however, as those who lost their possessions were being cared for by others les unfortunate.

NUN SAVED 68 CHILDREN FROM BURNING BUILDING

BERNARDSVILLE, N. J., Nov. 8—(AP)—The picture of a nun carrying sixty-eight sleeping children from a building transformed into a roaring furnace, skipping with her burdens from beam to beam as floor boards were burned beneath her feet, rose tonight above the confusion and hardship which came after fire this morning destroyed a dormitory of an orphanage conducted at Peapack by the Baptistine Sisters of the Nazerene, taking the lives of three of the little inmates. The nun was Sister Mary Gabriel.

One of the children became confused and wandered back into the dormitory and died in the flames, after the sister set him down at the door. Sister Mary Mark, in charge of eleven other boys occupying the dormitory, rescued nine before the fire drove her back.

Again and again the nuns groped their way to the cribs of the children, ranging in age from 3 to 10 years, Sister Gabriel collapsing three times. The last few were handed to the male attendants, who rushed to the main entrance of the building.

The two nuns, who figured in the rescue, are in a Morristown hospital, where one of them is said to be in serious condition from exposure. Pneumonia is feared.

An official announcement tonight placed the loss at $250,000.

The dormitory is to be rebuilt.

RUMANIAN GOVERNMENT REESTABLISHING CENSORSHIP

BUCHAREST, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Rumania was just recovering from the shock of the alleged Manoi escu plot to restore former Crown Prince Carol to the throne, when the country was again plunged into a state of agitation and uncertainty, culminating in the re-establishment of censorship today, by the arrest at a border town of a lieutenant and his wife who are said to have been in communication with Prnce Carol.

COLORADO COAL STRIKERS ATTACKED STATE POLICEMEN

When Policemen Attempted to Raid a Meeting Place the Strikers Attacked Them With Stones and Clubs—Major Howells of the National Guard, Who Led Four Men in the Raid, Was Struck on the Head With a Brick—Five Other Officers Were Badly Beaten Up—Police and Deputy Sheriffs Were Called to Disperse the Rioters.

WALSENBURG, Colo., Nov. 8.—(AP)—More than 400 strikers today attacked with stones and clubs a squad of state policemen who attempted to raid a meeting place where coal miners were believed to be hearing an address by an I. W. W. leader.

Rioting spread to the street in front of the hall and reserve officers, police and sheriff's deputies were called to disperse the flare-up.

During the melee, Major William Howells of the National Guard, who led four men in the raid, was struck on the head with a brick. Five other officers were badly beaten up.

HEARINGS ON MEANS OF CONTROLLING FLOODS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP)—Continuing its hearings as a preliminary to the mapping out of effective means of controlling floods, the house flood control committee was told tday by a succession of witnesses that the problem, particularly, as it affects the Mississippi valley, was a national one with which congress must deal.

Political lines were disregarded as republican and democratic senators and representatives, mayors from the flood zone, and others, argued that congress should act without partisanship and with rapidity on an adequate and comprehensive plan to curb the Mississippi's turbulent waters. State officials, representatives of chambers of commerce and railroad officials also were among the witnesses who presented a solid front for the national government to assume full responsibility for flood control.

Senators Watson, republican, Indiana, and Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, emphasized that congress must pass flood legislation early in the coming session. Several representatives also expressed the same view.

Diverting from the question of flood protection needs of the lower Mississippi valley, the committee heard witnesses afrom Illinois and other northern states present the problems of controlling the waters of the upper reaches of the Mississippi and its tributaries. Representative W. E. Hull, republican, Illinois, headed the spokesmen from this section in stressing the need for protective measures.

The relief assistance by the railroads during the flood and their property losses of $10,000,000 also were related to the committee by a group of representatives of the American Railway association and the carriers of the flood-stricken area.

ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED MARCHING IN WALES

NEWPORT, Wales, Nov. 8—(AP)—The little army of unemployed marshaled by A. J. Cook, secretary of the British Federation of Miners, slept in Newport tonight hopeful of the morrow.

The gathering did not get started toward London today as planned, due to a cold snap which delayed marchers from scattere mining districts who are assemblying here. Tomorrow, however the leaders hope to start the 200 mile trek for the purpose of impressing parliament with the needs of of the unemployed.

One hundred or more of the miners, gathered for the march, were sleeping tonight in quarters provided by a fund which Cook has spent months in raising. The recruits were supplied with hot meals which came partly from the wives of miners who still have jobs.

Next to Newport, Porth was the center of today's activities. Hundreds of men, women and children assembled in the town square at Porth to witness the start of 62 well shod men, each a hero in the eyes of the crowd. Every man had an extra pair of boots tied together by their strings, thrown over his shoulders. They also had well filled haversacks and miner's lamps which were intended to be useful as well as symbolical.

Soon after six o'clock this evening the Porth group was reinforced by 40 other men from the Ogmore, Rhondda and Aberdare valleys. The marchers headed for Newport and were accompanied for a mile out of Porth by women, children and oil men who cheered them and bade the marchers farewell.

Most of the marchers as they trod the highways through the narrow valleys to join the main forces at Newport sang "The Red Flag," and other revolutionary songs.

ABDUCTORS OF WOMAN STRANGLED HER TO DEATH

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Disguising themselves as police officers, three men forced Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Greenwaldt to stop their automobile near Waukesha last night, beat the husband to insensibility, kidnapped Mrs. Greenwaldt, and, after mutilating and robbing her, strangeled her to death.

Mrs. Greenwaldt's body was found by a milk wagon driver, 15 miles from the scene of the attack, this morning. Greenwaldt, after regaining consciousness, crawled to a nearby roadhouse, related the attack and was taken to a hospital. He had been robbed of $350.

It was the second time within three years the two, both 36 years old, had been waylaid while motoring on a highway.

The motive for the attacks is a mystery, although a possible clew was provided by detectives who said Grenwaldt admitted he was engaged in the illicit liquor trade, and may have been assaulted by rivals.

Milwaukee police discounted the theory of Sheriff Alvin Redford of Waukesha county that there was any connection between the case and the murder of Lillian Graef, 19-year-old Milwaukee girl, whose body bearing marks of blows and strangulation was recovered from the Fox river three miles from the scene of the Greenwaldt attack Saturday morning.

Miss Graef had been missing since October 11 when she accepted a "blind date" for her sister, Mildred, and went to meet "Jack" the only name by which the man was known. He has not been found and the murder is unsolved. She had not been attacked.

$700,000 DAMAGE BY BOMBS IN CENTER OF HAMMOND, ILL.

HAMMOND, Ind., Nov. 8—(AP)—The state theatre building in the heart of Hammond's business district, housing a dance hall and an auditorium seating 3,500 people, was wrecked today by an explosion which the police attributed to several bombs. No one was injured.

The blast rocked the city and left the ornate theatre, part of the State street block, costing $1,500,000, a twisted mass of wreckage. The loss was estimated at nearly $700,000.

The theatre, a combination vaudeville and movie house, was so nearly demolished that a syndicate fo Hammond business men owning it said it probably would have to be entirely rebuilt.

The cause of the blast tonight was almost as much of a mystery as when it occurred at three o'clock this morning. It was attributed to bombs but the reasons for placing the bombs was only a matter of conjecture.

Two weeks ago the management of the Granda dance hall in the same building ejected several Gary youths when they became disorderly and two of them made threats of a reprisal, and the police were working on a theory that they may know something of the blast but attempts to locate these youths had proven futile.

The theatre management reported there had been no labor trouble of any kind and that no threats had been received.

Part of the roof of All Saints' Catholic church across the street was destroyed by the impact of the blast. Telephone, trolley and light poles in the street near the theatre were snapped off by the force of the explosion and debris was piled so high at State and Sibley streets, where the explosion occurred, that traffic was blocked for hours.

A STORMY SESSION AT COMMITTEE TAX HEARING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP)—Efforts of house ways and means committee members to trace the source of money used to defray expenses of witnesses advocating repeal of the federal inheritance tax were met today with a request from witnesses themselves that if anything appeared wrong an investigation under oath be ordered.

While this was developing at the capitol, the advisability of retaining the levy came in from discussion at both the white house and treasury. At the executive offices it was said that President Coolidge felt that estate tax was a legitimate levy, but that he was prepared to sign a bill for its repeal.

The treasury also took occasion to reiterate its arguments in favor of repeal of the tax and, in addition Under Secretary Mills again warned that proposed total tax reduction should not exceed $225,000,000. He said the department in setting this limit had been liberal in its estimates and that a compromise cut of $325,000,000 as suggested in some quarters, undoubtedly would be felt in a deficit.

The meeting of the house committee with the inheritance tax question up for discussion developed into a stormy session. At one point Chairman Green banged for order, declaring proponents of repeal of the inheritance levy had packed the committee room.

PROBLEMS SHELVED BY BRITISH PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Those who had hoped for a hearing on the question of the "flapper vote" at the present session of parliament, suffered a disappointment today when the government shelved such awkward problems as reform of the house of lords and "votes for women at 21." Premier Baldwin announced that the woman's bill would not be introduced until after Christmas.

Parliament reassembled quietly for a sitting which will last until Christmas and which will be occupied with measures almost entirely of local interest, such as unemployment, insurance, defense of the real act and similar subjects. The only measure of interest abroad will be the remaining stages of the film's bill.

The house adopted a government resolution giving government business preference for the remainder of the session by a vote of 288 to 128, thus excluding any extraneous legislation, but the prime minister promises to find time, it possible for debates requested by the opposition leaders on disarmament, the foreign policy, including Tangier, and Great Britain's failure to ratify the Washington eight hours convention.

WORLD'S TAKING OFF RECORD BY FULL-LOADED SEAPLANE

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—A new world's record for speed in taking off in a full-loaded seaplane was established at the Far Rockaway, Long Island, naval air station today by Lieut. John W. Iseman, who, it was announced, attained a speed of 151.8 miles an hour.

The record was made during the acceptance test on the first of a fleet of 180 Vought-Corsair planes for the navy. The plane took off in five seconds.

It was announced that the plane also met the requirements of the navy and assured the carrying out of the building program whereby the navy will receive the 180 planes within the next ten months. The planes will represent an expenditure of $2,500,000.

OIL CASE JURORS WERE APPROACHED IN THE VERY SHADOW OF THE COURT HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP)—Jurors in the Fall-Sinclair criminal conspiracy trial were approached with improper questions within the very shadow of the court house, two of them disclosed today as they became grand jury witnesses in the latest of the oil scandals.

Their startling statements led federal agents on the trail of the questioners, thus far men of mystery in a case which has furnished far more than a normal share of mysteries and sensations.

John J. Constinett, an elderly tailor, and Gardner P. Grenfeld, a young cable splicer, are the jurors who declared they had been questioned before a mistrial was ordered, both as to the probable outcome of the trial and as to whether the trial judge, Justice Frederick L. Siddons, was "on the square."

From the descriptions they gave to District Attorney Gordon each was approached by a different man. Whether their interrogators were Burns detectives, whose activities abruptly ended the oil trial, is the immediate point the district attorney's office is seeking to clear up.

Grenfeld said he was approached by a stranger in a cigar store directly across the street from the District of Columbia court house.

"There has been quite a busy morning in court?" was the question Grenfeld said the stranger used in opening up conversation.

"Yes," the juror said he replied.

"What sort of fellow is Siddons; is he on the square?" was the next question put by the stranger, Grenfeld said.

"Yes, if he wasn't he could not hold the position he does," Grenfeld stated he answered.

"Say, you don't think they'll do anything with those two fellows there, do you?" Grenfeld said he was asked.

"I told him that I was on the jury and could not discuss the case," Grenfeld told the district attorney.

Constinett said he was leaving the court house about a week before the mistrial was ordered when a man unknown to him fell into step with him.

"Say, the government hasn't got a thing on those fellows, have they?" Constinett said he was asked. He declared he informed the stranger, that he was a member of the Fall-Sinclair jury and could not discus the case.

While Grenfeld and Constinett were before the grand jury at separate times during the late afternoon, C. G. Ruddy, director of the crew shadowing the jury, and six of the Burns operatives were called in and lined up for possible identification by the jurors. Apparently none was identified as either of the mystery men.

DANIELSON TRUST CO. GETS VERDICT IN WO CASES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 8.—Much business was completed at a short calendar session of the Windham county superior court held here today with Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin on the bench. Two of the three cases assigned for Wednesday are ready for trial according to notice by the attorneys. On the short calendar the case of R. G. Remington Inc. vs. Christopher Mannick et al, was assigned for hearing Thursday, Nov. 17. Judge Marvin rendered judgment for the plaintiff in the case of the Danielson Trust company vs. George F. Davignon et us, of Killingly, a foreclosure suit, the trust company being allowed to recover the sum of $6,550.25 with the limitation of time for the redemption set for the second Monday in January, 1928. The defendant defaulted in the case of Maryvanka Matyz vs. Anistazia Sanlewski, both of Windham, a suit over a note, and the plaintiff was granted the recovery of the sum of $162.50. Judgment in accordance with a previous stipulation was granted in the case of Max Liebowitz vs. Dexter W. Elliot, both of Thompson. In the case of the Metropolitan Sewing Machine corporation of New York vs. Lawrence Keegan company of Thompson, the defendant defaulted and judgment was rendered for the plaintiff to recover the sum of $413.57 including a claim of $395 with interest.

In the case of George R. Brown vs Lawrence D. Ingraham, et ux, the default entered against the defendant at a previous hearing with three months continuance for order of notice to a co-defendant, Edith J. Ingraham, was granted by the court. Judgment for $9,700 was rendered in favor of the Danielson Trust company in a suit against William M. Franklin et al, of Killingly. The case was a hearing on default, judgment, foreclosure and limitation of time. The foreclosure was on a mortgage of $3,000, the increased amount including taxes due the town of Killingly plus interest. Immediate sale of the property was granted in the case of Dolos S. Grosvenor vs. Hattie M. Thompson, ho thof Windham, a hearing in foreclosure of a judgment lien, default and limitation, in which there was no opposition. Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Bilish was appointed as a committee on the sale which was set for Tuesday, Nov. 15. Charles W. Tryon, Philip S. Hills and M. Eugene Lincoln were appointed as appraisers. The property is located on the Back road in Windham. A hearing in statutory continuance was granted in the case of Jirah F. Hyde vs. Winema E. Hoffay, et al, of Wauregan, the continuance being for one month.

Of the four cases scheduled for today but one was disposed of, that of Joseph Benoit of Killingly vs. Octave Langevin of the same town. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant owed a bill for groceries and for the purchase of a horse, amounting to $640. The attorneys and parties conferred and a settlement was made when the plaintiff agreed to accept $592.04. The case dated back to June, 1922. The case of Catherine Macfarlane of Windham vs. A. W. Byrne & Son of Hartford was declared off when terms of settlement had not been agreed upon. In the case of Burton Bosworth of Eastford, vs. Rolla Kelton, administrator, it was stated that the defendant resided in the flooded area in the vicinity of Holyoke, Mass., and that conditions prevented his coming to court. The plaintiff in the case of Arthur Bergren vs. Walter Howlett and Madeline Howlett was also marooned by the flood, it was stated. The Bosworth vs. Kelton case was reassigned for Thursday, Nov. 17 as first and the Bergren-Howlett case as second for that date.

Case to be heard Wednesday are: Clarence Laramee, et al, vs. Walter Andrychowski and the Windham Lumber company vs. George Rood, D. A.

A meeting of the Windham county bar was held at 10 o'clock with Attorney William A. King as chairman and Assistant Clerk of the Court Miss Marjorie Bradford as secretary. The bar members accepted the applications of Henry N. Benoit and Hector Plessis of Putnam and LeGrand L. P. Fitchhorn of Willimantic, giving notice of intention to take the examination for admission to the bar at Hartford in December. The application of Henry H. Handfield of Willimantic of his intention to make application for admission to the bar without examination was referred to a committee of three for investigation and report. The committee, Attorneys Frank H. Foss, Samuel B. Harvey and Arthur T. Kelley.

Attorney Edward R. Perkins of Norwich appeared before the court with an order for the reopening of the ballot boxes and recount of the ballots on the vote for first selectman at the Killingly town election on Monday, Oct. 3d. There was no opposition from Attorney E. L. Darbie of Danielson representing the town of Killingly. Judge Marvin signed the order and appointed Attorneys Perkins and Darbie as a committee to count the ballots. The recount was started in the jury room at 11 o'clock. Attorney Perkins represents Alcott D. Sayles, the democratic candidate, who is contesting the position now occupied by John A. Gilbert, republican, declared elected by Moderator Harry Back. Upon being informed that the counting of the ballots would take several hours, Judge Marvin ordered the returns to be made to the court Thursday of this week. court then adjourned until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

JEWETT PLACE IN HAMPTON BURNED TO GROUND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 8.—A defective chimney is believed to have been the cause of a blaze which totally destroyed a large two-story frame dwelling, known as the Wallace N. Jewett place in Hampton village and owned by Michael P. Braney of Providence, this forenoon. The fire broke out about nine o'clock and burned for about two hours. Nearly all of the furniture and furnishings were removed by a ready group of volunteers. There were about 75 fire-fighters on the scene and their work confined the blaze to the residence, saving two barns in the rear. The new chemical apparatus recently purchased by the town was used for the first time. Mr. and Mrs. Braney were visiting in New York city at the time and the fire was discovered by Charles Hicks, father of Mrs. Braney and caretaker of the place.

The residence, located at the southerly end of the picturesque Hampton street, was sold by Mr. Jewett to Mr. Braney about a year ago last June. It was one of the show places of the beautiful village. Mr. Braney had spent considerable money in remodeling the place. An addition was built, new floors laid, a veranda erected and other improvements carried out. The building was erected about 150 years ago and played a prominent part in the history of the town. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

The funeral services for Mrs. Mary Esther Martin were held at the late home, 164 Windham road, this morning with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock. There was a large attendance and a generous display of floral tributes. The church choir, consisting of Mrs. Henry Mathieu, Miss L. Monica McKeon, Mrs. John Doyle, Miss Mary Mathieu, Walter J. Costello and Arthur Roy, rendered Abide With Me, in effective manner as the cortege entered the edifice. Miss McKeon, Mrs. Mathieu and Arthur Roy rendered solos: The choir sang Nearer My God To Thee as a recessional. Rev. Charles M. Kelly was celebrant of the mass; Rev. Paul J. Bartlewski, deacon, and Rev. Henry E. Quinn, sub-deacon. The bearers were William Foran, Michael Birmingham of Providence, R. I., M. E. Sullivan, Patrick J. Twomey, James S. Donovue, Sr., and Joseph Portelance of Norwich. Burial was in the family plot of St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Kelly read a committal prayer. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

Edwin J. Donnelly, office manager of a newly opened local branch of the F. E. Kingston & company, will tender a dinner to banking officials and other friends at the Nathan Hale hotel Thursday evening. General Lincoln C. Andrews, recently reassigned as assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of federal prohibition enforcement, will be the principal speaker. Other speakers will include Timothy J. Shea, deputy attorney general of the state of New York, in charge of stocks and investment promotions; and Lester E. Shippe, recently appointed bank commissioner of the state of Connecticut. There will be banking men present from Stafford, Putnam, Danielson and this city.

Services for Miss Mildred Martin were held at the family home, 207 Main street, this morning with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's church at nine o'clock with Rev. J. J. Papillon as celebrant. Rev. H. C. Belec was deacon and Rev. Edward A. Mathieu, sub-deacon. Special choral music was rendered with Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau at the organ. Rev. Father Papillon, assisted by Reverends Belec and Mathieu, conducted a committal service at the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were six brothers of the deceased.

The funeral of Desire Chartier was held at the late home on South Park street at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon with services in St. Mary's church at 2 o'clock. Rev. Hormidas C. Belec officiated. Burial was in the Kenney-Chartier plot in the Willimantic cemetery where a committal service was conducted at the grave. The bearers were M. Durand, Joseph F. Gaudreau, John C. Frazier, Xavier Caisse, Emil Dufresne and James Brown.

Frank B. Lenz, a Y. M. C. A. worker and official of the missionary work in China was the speaker on the Chinese Situation, at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon. Mr. Lenz was introduced by Albert B. Smith, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., and the meeting was in charge of President Richard E. Dodge. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam, accompanied by William E. Jackson, was a guest. It was announced that Captain Paul Ransom of the military detachment at the Connecticut Agricultural college would be the speaker at the next meeting.

At a largely attended meeting at the Y. M. C. A. this evening, Frank B. Lenz, Y. M. C. A. worker in China, delivered an instructive talk on the situation in that war-torn nation. He stressed the stabilizing effect of the Y. M. C. A. in China. There are association buildings in 42 of the principal cities of China. The talk was preceded by a supper served by the auxiliary.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary E. Austin were held at the late home in North Coventry at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon with Rev. Mr. Atwood of the Congregational church of that place, officiating. Burial was in the Center cemetery, North Coventry. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

NOANK

The American Legion post, No. 55, left the waiting room Monday at 6 p. m., with 27 in a bus. With them was the auxiliary, bound for Taftville where the district meeting was held. In the hall nearly 200 were present. Commander Sears invited all to the tables for a lunch of Potato salad, cold ham, good sugared doughnuts like grandmother made, also fine coffee. After everybody was served the tables were put away and District Commander M. Peck called the meeting to order. The minutes of the last district meeting held in Stonington were read.

New London hoped to see every ex-service man in the post turn out for their parade Nov. 11. Then came a voice from the back of the hall that of a commander from Montville post, telling that the baby post in that paper town was trying to show the people how strong the American Legion is and asking the buddies and auxiliary to turn out for their parade in the afternoon of Nov. 11. "Let's make it the biggest one Montville ever saw! Bring your heavy shoes!" was the message. It came 11 o'clock before the meeting was over and no dance was in sight, but some one had the power to bring back the orchestra and the dance was held. The ex-service men said god night with three cheers for the Taftville post.

Keith Ebbetts has returned after spending a week in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss Bessie Morgan was a recent caller in Meriden, with relatives.

The church was appropriately decorated. The program follows: America, by the school; Dance of Greeting, first and fourth grades; October's Bright Blue Weather, Lottie Baldyga; dance, I See You, first and fourth grades; song, Peter Pan, school. All the children took part in the closing number, a play entitled, The School Room Imp.

The proceeds of the entertainment will be used for the playground.

WESTERLY

BERRY IS ELECTED HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 8—Town meeting day on Tuesday for the election of Westerly town officers to serve for two years saw but a small attendance of freemen when the polls opened at 9 a. m., there being only the contest for highway commissioner to bring them out. This resulted in a victory for Berry over Capuccio by a 311 majority. The total vote in the first district was 1023; in the second 1066.

In the first representative voting district on the east side of the town hall the election officers were:

Moderator, Ira B. Crandall; clerk, John J. Dunn; supervisors, republican, James H. Hodgson, Mrs. Jennie R. Farnham; democrat, John Casey, Bernard J. Welch; gate tender, Merton L. Stott; checkers, outside rail, republican tow ncommittee, Mrs. Jessie L. Wilcox; independent nomination, Miss Minnie Turano.

The first ballot was cast by Henry Marsh Clark, a member of the Westerly republican town committee, followed closely by Mrs. A. Thornton Williams, who for many elections has cast the first ballot.

In the first voting district there are a total of 1614 possible voters.

At 4 o'clock in the first district a total of but 480 ballots had been cast.

In the second representative voting district on the west side of the town hall election officers were:

Moderator, Lewis Stanton; clerk, Miss Mabel A. Saunders; supervisors, republican, William D. Howard, Mrs. Mary E. B. Burdick; democrat, Thomas Van B. Clancy, Charles M. Dowd; gate tender, Adam Archie; checkers, outside rail, republican town committee, Mrs. Dorothy E. Scott, independent nomination, Miss Annie Capuccio.

The first ballot was cast by Mrs. Herbert Champlin.

In the second voting district there are a total of 2137 possible voters.

At 4 o'clock but 570 voters had cast their ballots in this district.

Republican.

RUTH ALLEN, OF NAPA, SELLS SHARE IN LARKIN ESTATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 8.—The following transfers have been recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk:

Nov. 7: Ruth Allen of Napa, Cal., Frank P. Larkin of Hampton, Va., Albert C. Larkin of Montreal, Canada, Jessie L. Larkin and Daniel F. Larkin of Westerly, heirs at law of D. Wayland Larkin, to Raymond F. Tabec and wife, Lucy M. Taber, land on the east side of East avenue, formerly property of Luigi Leon, together with buildings and improvements.

Michael A. Tuscano and Frank Toscano to Thomas L. Toscano, a lot on the north side of Pleasant street, conveyed Nov. 4, 1903, by Thomas Pengelly, to Luigi Tomasco, together with buildings and improvements.

Emma Toscano to Thomas L. Toscano an undivided one-half interest in above described property at 75 Pleasant street.

Jennie E. Langworthy to Samuel Grills and wife, Mary Grills, land and buildings and improvements on the west side of Newton avenue bounded easterly by lands of Ella P. Livingstone and southerly by lands of Robert Duff.

In the absence of Town Sergeant George L. Madison, on vacation, Russell L. Slocum has notified the following grand jurors to report at the West Kingston court house Monday, Nov. 21st, for duty at the November term of superior court for Washington county:

James Walker, granite cutter; Loren G. McLaren, teller; William Simmons, machinist; Peter G. Turano, auto mechanic, and Selden M. Young, farmer.

For duty as petit jurors, to serve at the November term of Washington county superior court, the following are under summons to report at West Kingston on Wednesday, Nov. 23rd:

James P. Campbell, carpenter; Harry J. Leon, merchant; Joseph F. Matthews, loomfixer; Harry A. Littlefield, restaurant proprietor; J. Alfred Johnston, machinist; Thomas P. Patton, machinist; Albert L. Castritius, merchant; James L. Clarke, and Ernest E. Boynton, plumber.

George Cook was taken into custody Monday night by Police Patrolman Michael Curtin, while operating a Ford automobile on Railroad avenue without proper registration and operator's papers. When called upon to stop by the officer, Cook is reported to have put on power to speed away, but the officer jumped on the running board. When asked for paper Cook said that he had driven under his father's papers and was getting the automobile filled with gas. He was locked up at the Westerly police station.

Tuesday night Cook was admitted to bail, before Clerk Herbert P. Clark, in $200 bonds for the no-driver's license charge and $100 bonds for non-registration, on his appeal to superior court in Washington county.

The steam shovel of the Nardone Company, Inc., of Westerly, has been in service the past few days at the gravel bank of the Westerly Industrial and Improvement company, north of Friendship drive. The New Haven railroad is loading freight cars with gravel to fill numerous nearby washouts caused by Thursday's heavy rains. Many thousand cubic yards of filling will be required to fill the washed out bet of the railroad siding at the rear of the Seidner Mayonnaise factory.

Bradford busses of the Rhode Island Coach lines Tuesday morning resumed service to Bradford by way of Oak street past Burdick's pond, where the state highway, beginning near the entrance to the F. R. Cottrell farm next to the Westerly town farm, has been under water which has receded slightly.

Miss Bessie Ostman, residing at 79 Elm street, while returning to her home about 5.15 p. m., on crossing Broad street walked into the rear left fender of a Marmon roadster of Olcott G. Mills and driven by William H. Rose of the Gavift store, Pawcatuck. The accident occurred as she was crossing from Wilcox park toward Christ Episcopal church. She was knocked down but would not consent to be taken to a doctor. The driver took her to her home and Dr. John Helfrich when summoned found a slight bruise on her right foot near the ankle. Patrolman LeRoy H. Norman visited the site to investigate.

Another automobile accident was added Tuesday morning to the long list of mishaps at the junction of the Nooseneck Hill state highway and Pleasant street, near the curve at the property of Miss Hannah Crandall. This time it was on the opposite side of the curve. A Pontiac sedan owned by Venus Marra and driven by Vincent L. Bailey, of 97 Hillside avenue, Ashaway, was in a headon collision with a Graham truck owned by Walter Fiddes of Clarks Falls and driven by Arris B. Norman, accompanied by a boy who was delivering milk. The Pontiac was turning from High street toward Pleasant while the truck came out of Pleasant street to proceed up High street. The crash drove the Pontiac car upon the sidewalk breaking the front left wheel axle and the front and rear fenders and headlights. The front bumper of the truck was broken. The Pontiac car was towed to a garage and the truck proceeded under its own power. No one was injured. Damages were adjusted by the owners of both autos. Patrolman Robert M. Kessel was called to investigate.

The Rhode Island state board of public roads on Monday suspended automobile driver's license of Charles Zanella, of 141 Franklin street, Westerly.

Chief of Police James A. McRell of Newark, N. J., telegraphed Monday at 8.30 a. m. to Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, asking that the wife of John Farrell, alias John Michaels, whose death occurred November 1, from injuries received June 27, be notified of his burial November 5. The telegram requested that Cornelius Farrell, who operates a garage at Watch Hill summers be notified. Tuesday morning a telegram was sent giving his address as the Calumet Garage, on 52nd street, New York.

Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck left Tuesday morning on a business trip to New York.

Vincent C. Whipple of Varistyville is in New Londbn on a vacation from his duties at the Westerly, office of the American Railway Express company.

Mrs. Mary E. Arnold was in Providence Tuesday.

George E. Leonard of Pawcatuck, on a vacation from his duties in the drafting room of the C. B. Cottrell and Sons Co. printing press works, left Westerly by bus Tuesday morning and will visit at his former home in Newport, R. I.

William P. Dodge of Providence was the guest of Westerly relatives and friends Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Rowe are to close their Watch Hill cottage, Shawondasse, near the Misquamicut Golf club, Mr. Rowe going to New Haven and Mrs. Rowe to Boston, before leaving for St. Petersburg, Fla., and their winter home at Daytona.

Edwin B. Stillman has left his Westerly home to return to Daytona Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Farquhar Smith was taken Tuesday afternoon to the Margaret Edward Anderson hospital for treatment.

Walter Fannon of New London was a Westerly visitor Tuesday.

Henry Davis of Groton was a Tuesday business caller in Westerly for the New Haven road.

Franklin lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., held a stated communication Tuesday evening in the Masonic rooms. Worshipfu' Master Raymond H. Hiscox presided and business was followed by degree work.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments seldom banish Piles.

The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

BAYER ASPIRIN

To break a cold harmlessly and in a hurry try a Bayer Aspirin tablet. And for headache. The action of Aspirin is very efficient, too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago! And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Bayer Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Does your daughter attend school regularly?

MANY GIRLS are absent from school for a few days each month because of illness. In many cases this is unnecessary because young girls — as well as older women — can be strengthened by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Girls suffering from run-down condition, sleeplessness, nervousness, and loss of appetite, should gain new strength and vigor from this Vegetable Compound.

The following testimonials show what the Compound has done for other schoolgirls.

NERVOUS AND DIZZY

Charleston, Illinois:—"I gave my fifteen-year-old girl Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it did her a wonderful lot of good. She was nervous, weak and dizzy. At last she was so bad off that she was out of school for four months. The Vegetable Compound has improved her in every way and she has gone back to school. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other mothers with girls who are not as strong as they should be." Mrs. Alice Louthan, Route 2, Charleston, Illinois.

Remember this package. None genuine without the signature of Lydia E. Pinkham.

SICK AND WEAK

Camden, New Jersey:—"When my daughter was twelve years old she was hurt at the play-ground. She was sick and weak for some time after that and was not able to go to school regularly. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped her wonderfully, and she now goes to school every day. She has gained in weight and has a better appetite than she had before taking it." DANIELSON

MARSHAL WARREN ANNOUNCES ARMISTICE DAY PLANS

(Special to The Bulletin

DANIELSON, Nov. 8—Grand Marshal Ira A. Warren gave out this afternoon the division formation and parade route of the Armistice day parade, which will get underway about two oclock Friday afternoon.

The parade will be formed at North street, and proceed down Main through the central section of Danielson to the West Side, swinging through Tiffany street around the square by the offices of the Quinebaug mills and out through Elm street to Main, thence back across the Quinebaug bridge and into Franklin street, thence to Furnace, Carter and Broad streets to Davis park, around the north end of the park into Main and southward to the town hall, where the formal exercises of the afternoon will be held, unless the day is so mild and pleasant as to permit of holding open air exercises on Davis park.

The first division of the parade will be headed by Grand Marshall Warren and his staff, with the band and battalion of the R. O. T. C. of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs next in line. This division also will include the members of Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion and all ex-service men, and it was stressed this afternoon that all ex-service men are earnestly urged to take part in the parade, whether or not they have uniforms.

The second division, with Past Commander Joseph Burton of the American Legion in charge as marshal, will be made up of St. James' band of Danielson, the members of the Canton, I. O. O. F., Boy Scouts, Girls' club and Woman's Relief corps, and K. of C.

The third division will be in charge of Past Comamander Arthur DeForest of the American Legion as marshal with the Goodyear band at the head of this part of the parade and including all the motor vehicles that are to be used in the parade. The mother of the young hero who gave his life in France and for whom the legion post here is named will ride in one car, which will be followed by other cars conveying the members of McGregor post, G. A. R., and all the motor trucks of the Service battery, the members of this command riding on the ponderous vehicles.

In the fourth section, Marshal Thomas Beckett in charge, will be the Attawaugan Drum corps and the men and apparatus of the Danielson fire department.

At the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry H. Crowell in North Sterling today at 11 o'clock funeral services for Mrs. Mary A. Spooner, wife of George C. Spooner, were conducted by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church assisted by Rev. George H. Chambers of North Sterling. Many relatives and friends were in attendance. Burial was in the Parker Hill cemetery at North Sterling. The bearers were George F. Pierce, Jr., J. Martin Mellor, William Barber, Jared Hall, Paul Credit and Henry E. Anderson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements. There were many beautiful floral pieces.

A special feature of today's activities in Danielson was the presentation this evening at the Orpheum theater here of the American Legion play "Fixing It For Father." The patronage was gratifying and the farce offering so well worth while, being presented by a good cast that had been coached by William J. Brennan, as to make the evening a particularly happy one for all those who had to do with the play. The cast included Ralph Shoales, Harry Wheeler, Bernard Casey, Ralph Bowen, Pauline Ashley, Emily Chrabus, Henry Bodo, Harold Warner, Wanda Niejadlik, Mrs. Myrtle Arnold and Mrs. Henry Bodo.

This statement was issued today in the interest of the annual roll call drive of the Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross:

The executive committee of the Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross met on Monday evening in the office of Mr. William Parker who is the chairman of the local chapter and formed plans for an extensive campaign to enroll members for 1928. Mrs. Percy W. Waller was unanimously chosen to act as chairman of the Roll Call which will be conducted during the week of November 15 to 22nd.

"The American National Red Cross is a membership society. Its ranks are open to all, everywhere, without distinction as to race, origin, color, class, creed or politics.'

Join now or if you have been a member, renew your membership because it is your membership together with other loyal memberships that make the work of the Red Cross possible.

"The Red Cross is the people of the nation pledged to serve the needs of humanity whenever they arise."

Read carefully the following:

Annual membership costs $1.00

50 cents of this goes to national headquarters. The other 50 cents stays in your local chapter.

In a contribution of $5.00, 50 cents goes to national headquarters and $4.50 to the local chapter.

In a sustaining membership of $10.00, 50 cents goes to national headquarters and $9.50 to loctl work.

Join now. The more members we have the greater our funds will be and should disaster overtake us as it has some of our near neighbors in the past week, relief will be immediate because we will have sufficient resources at hand.

Danielson is out for 100 per cent membership.

The committee for the roll call are: Publicity, Mrs. R. D. Danigan, W. E. Parker; mills, Mrs. F. E. Storer; stores, Mrs. E. R. Warren, A. P. Woodward, Miss Miriam Boomhower; churches, Miss Emma F. Pilling; booths, Miss Marjorie L Gaffney; East Killingly, Miss Laura Jacobs; South Killingly, J. Wayne Haskell; Brooklyn, Miss Laura Pike.

In addition there is to be a corps of 25 workers to engage in a house to house canvass.

Recent activities of the Wakitatina Camp Fire Girls have included a masquerade Halloween party in the Congregational parish house, which was prettily decorated for the occasion. Each of the girls was in costume and the prize for having the best one went to Barbara Alexander, and the second prize to Ella Nash. Games were played and refreshments served. A hike to wooded country near the home of Anna Wilson proved another interesting event for the girls. Each cooked bacon and eggs and cocoa also was served out in the open.

At the office of the selectmen some nice things are being said about the efficiency of the commercial department of Killingly high and especially of the fine work of six of the girl students in typewriting the personal tax rate book for this year. The girls were given the opportunity to do this to relieve the pressure of work at the selectmen's office and, incidentally, to allow them to demonstrate how well they can do practical work. The rate book referred to contains the names of 3,690 residents of Killingly liable to pay a personal tax and also the list of exemptions, a total of more than 4,000 names, with addresses and ages.

A separate account is to be kept of the cost of road repair work made necessary in Killingly by the great rainstorm of last week. It was forecasted before this work was undertaken that the cost would hardly be less than $5,000 and might run very considerably over that sum. By tabulating the cost of doing this work, which is now being rushed every day, the town will have a true record of what the storm cost it, and also information as to the cost of repairing the worst damaged places, where, it is obviously all of this cannot not be done before winter comes.

Resplendent in a new coat of venetian red paint and again sturdy after repair work a little shop that Arthur A. Dean is now using as a garage at his home place at the corner of Spring and Winter streets comes to public attention through its interesting history, extending back over a period of 75 years. Before the Civil war it was in use by its owner, Franklin Clark, grandfather of Mrs. Dean, as a slipper factory, and a number of persons were regularly employed there. Later it was in industrial use as a shop for turning out scythe rifles, these made of material taken from the famed whetstone ledge near East Killingly, and still later Mr. Clark, who was an expert cabinet maker used the structure for building coffins. The little shop is typical of hundreds like it that were in use throughout the New England states headquarers of a century ago and in which were born infant industries that later become great enterprises and served to win for New England its emminent places among the manufacturing sections of the United States.

Last night at her home in Foster Center the death og Mrs. Phoebe M. Gorton, 71, occurred. She was the widow of Burrill Gorton, and has lived all her life in her native town. She was a daughter of Charles W. and Phoebe Bennett Pierce. Mrs. Gorton leaves two daughters, Mrs. Benjamin J. Eddy and Miss Gunie P. Gorton. There are also two grand-daughters, Misses Dorothy and Hope Eddy, and two sisters.

This morning the season's low temperature record of 20 degrees was made, and small bodies of water were coated with a thin film of ice.

George Nesbitt McGlusky, director of religious education of the state council, is to speak on Teaching Standards at the Baptist church Friday evening, when the Church school council of the Federation is to meet. A supper is to be served prior to the meeting.

William H. Clewly and members of his family of Brooklyn are to make their home in Danielson during the winter season.

There were 55 at the opening session of the evening school. The teachers are Mrs. Cora M. Lopee, Rebecca Hollowell and Mrs. Clara Williams.

In the near future Treasurer Sidney W. Bard and members of the building committee of the Brooklyn Savings bank are to inspect a number of new bank buildings in Connecticut and Massachusetts with a view to getting ideas for the new structure to be built here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kelly and daughters have closed their summer home at Brooklyn and are to spend the winter at Akron, O.

Mrs. Harding W. Gaylord and George B. Guild are the representatives of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson and Rev. Mr. Harding and J. Wayne Haskell the representatives of the Congregational church at South Killingly at the general conference of Congregational churches of Connecticut opening in Bridgeport today and continuing through Wednesday.

Armstice night dance, auspices American Legion, state armory; admission, 75 cents for men; 50 cents for ladies.—Adv.

Tractors are figuring efficiently in several nearby towns in road repair work made necessary by last week's flood. this work being rushed against the coming of real winter weather.

A meeting of members of the W. C. T. U. was held this afternoon in the Ladies' parlor at the Congregational church.

Reports today relative to Napoleon Gossellin, injured in a motor cycle accident Saturday evening were to the effect that his condition remained critical.

Getting over their routes the past few days, with highways so badly torn up, has not been an easy task for the rural mail carriers operating out of this territory.

Banks here are receiving numbers of Second Liberty loan bonds for redemption, these bonds having been called and interest on them is to cease after Nov. 15.

New England motor coaches on the Norwich-Providence run are being rerouted through Danielson this week, because the Rice City route is blocked at Fairbanks bridge.

John C. Holden of Palmer, Mass., visited with friends in Danielson today.

Mr and Mrs. Earl Young of Providence have been visitors with relatives here.

Relatives from Danielson were at North Sterling today to attend the funeral of Mrs. George C. Spooner.

CLARK'S CORNER

The school is having a short vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Wade of Hampton were guests of Mrs. John Harwood Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rawson and two daughters, of Danielson visited relatives here recently.

Gurdon and Elmer Watson of New London are visiting the latter's sister.

Arthur and John Navin, American Telephone and Telegraph men, are now located at Hartford.

Miss Helen Navin has returned to St. Joseph's hospital, after her vacation.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM WOMAN SAILS FOR POST IN CHINA

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Nov. 8.—Word has been received that Mrs. Roy Fulton has sailed from San Francisco to join her husband, who is one of the surgeons in charge at the American Marine hospital at Tientsen, China. Mrs. Fulton has been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silas M. Wheelock in this city since her husband, who had been stationed at San Diego, Calif., was ordered to China.

The hospital was opened last June and is under the direct charge of the United States navy. It is located in a private house, the property of Mr. Chwang, an official of a Chinese mining corporation. The spot is a delightful one and less institution-like than most hospitals. The valuable art treasures have been removed and the rooms have been transformed to meet the needs of a naval hospital, the sun parlor being used as an operating room. The hospital is manned by six medical officers and twenty-six hospital corps men who are trained specialists in their line. Dr. Roy has been there since the opening of the institution.

Word has been received from the isolation hospital at Hartford that little Marion Light, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Light of this city, is doing as well as can be expected. The child was taken to the hospital about two weeks ago suffering from infantile paralysis.

Two Putnam men, Henry N. Benoit, judge of probate, town clerk and treasurer of the town of Putnam, and Arthur H. Plessis, an insurance agent with offices in this city, have made application for admission to the Connecticut bar, and notice has been given the office of the clerk of courts of Windham county that these applications were to be acted upon at the bar meeting held in Willimantic today.

Judge M. H. Geissler, secretary of the Putnam Building and Loan association, is sending to all who own shares in the first series of the association, that their share will reach maturity in April of next year and at that time each share will be worth $201.75. The holder of each one of these shares has the option of receiving cash or may transfer his share for a matured or fully matured certificate bearing five percent interest. Each holder is requested to make his election as quickly as possible that there may be no delay in retiring the shares by either payment in cash or by transfer.

Funeral services for William Walsh, late of New London, were held at noon yesterday from St. Mary's church in this city. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Earlier services were held in New London at the church of St. Mary's Star by the Sea.

Mr. Walsh was for a number of years an employe at the Victory theatre of this city and later went to the Capitol theatre in New London. The first of last week, Mr. Walsh with his wife were visitors with relatives in Putnam. He died suddenly at his home in New London on Thursday. He was well known here and had many friends in the city.

Mrs. Agnes White Cox is at the home of her parents in Woodstock, suffering with a badly sprained ankle. Mrs. Cox is teaching in Hartford and goes to her home in Woodstock for the week-ends. Last Saturday in alighting from a bus at North Woodstock, her foot turned giving her ankle a bad sprain. She will probably be confined to the house for some time.

Judge Robert Harris has been appointed by the selectmen of Woodstock to act as temporary treasurer of the town during the illness of town clerk and treasurer. Ozias Milligan is assistant town clerk and will attend to the duties of that office.

James Child, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Child, is in the Memorial hospital at Worcester, being treated for an internal ear trouble which he has suffered from for some time.

At the close of the sessions of the board of assessors of Putnam it was found that between three and four hundred property owners had failed to make returns on the holdings within the required time. It is said, however, that this number of delinquents is not above the normal number. This number of owners will, however, be subject to ten per cent. increase. As each owner of property was told that the board of assessors would fix the valuation as determined by the Appraisal company, many left the valuation column blank. The board of relief will probably have a busy session when they meet to hear complaints. On or before the fifteenth of January, the assessors will notify property owners of the amount their property has been assessed.

Mrs. Alice Hayward and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Hayward of Hartford, for a number of years residents of Putnam, are preparing to spend the greater part of the winter at their home in West Woodstock.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wells and Miss Minnie Wells have eturned from a visit with friends at Stonington.

Frank E. Barrett, town clerk of North Woodstock, is in a hospital at Boston where he recently underwent an operation. When he recovers sufficiently in strength he will undergo another and more serious operation.

Mrs. Florence Hyde and sons of New London have been the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Lindeman.

Mrs. Harry F. Barrows of North Attleboro, Mass., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John P. Grosvenor at Pomfret.

Miss Katherine Noyes has closed her home at Pomfret for the winter and will be in her New York apartment for the present.

Ella Barnard Rowan has returned from Little Compton where she has been the guest of Superintendent of Schools Benjamin Tubman and Mrs. Tubman.

Mrs. Frances Foley has returned to her home in New York city after a visit of several weeks with her sister, Mrs. William Fishman at Pomfret.

Mr. and Mrs. James Batham have sold their home in Abington and expect to go to Florida to make their future home.

STATE ADVISES CAUTION IN USE OF WELL WATER

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 8—Health Officer G. H. Jennings has received a special delivery letter from the state department, recommending that all wells from which water is used be made safe. Since the unusual falls of rain, the ground has been thoroughly soaked, and in many cases the overflod may have seeped into wells. They may be rendered safe by boiling all drinking water for five minutes, or by emptying the well, then adding one or two cans of chloride of lime. After twelve hours this may be pumped out, as the taste may be noticeable, but is in no way poisonous. Typhoid fever and dysentery may be avoided by such precautions.

Second in a series of K. of C. whists tonight, K. of C. rooms.—Adv.

The general topic discussed at the School of Missions which began in the Baptist church Tuesday evening and continues for Wednesday evening is The Esentially Missionary Character of Christianity.

The subject was selected by leaders of the missionary education movement and Council of Women for Home Missions because they considered it fundamental and especially necessary at the present time. The text books are interdenominational and deal with world problems and the attitude of the Christian church toward those problems. The classes are open to any who are interested in this subject.

Mrs. E. M. Gray, the president, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, first vice president, Mrs. Adelbert Babcock, treasurer and Mrs. N. J. Babcock, chaplain, of the American Legion auxiliary of Jewett City were in Taftville Monday evening to attend the American Legion district meeting and installation of all the district officers

John Trider accompanied by Mrs. C. G. Trider and infant Melba left Tuesday for Lowell and Boston en route to their home in Halifax, Nova Scotia, after visiting Mr. Trider's daughter, Mrs. Hector Sebilleaud. Mrs. Sebilleaud accompanied them as far as Lowell, where she will be the guest of Mrs. Walter Farmer, a former Halifax resident.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Congregational church is to meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. D. Ballou. Miss Hannah M. Crowell, of Norwich is to be present and tell of her recent visit to India. It is expected that many will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing Miss Crowell, who is a very interesting and entertaining speaker.

An alarm for fire in Chenette's garage was given by someone on Main street about 11 o'clock Monday night. The truc kinside was afire and was pulled out by Thomas Barnett, a neighbor and others pasing by. The fire truck arrived in short time, and the machine was saved. How the fire started was a mystery, as the truck had been in the garage for two or three hours. Mr. Chenette was at home and had retired some time earlier.

The whist held under the auspices of the Catholic Women's council in St. Mary's church hall Monday evening was very successful, under the direction of the committee, Mrs. Kate McCoy and Miss Mary Driscoll. The first prize $2.50 was won by Mrs. J. McDermott. Second, silk stockings, Mrs. L. Bachand. Consolation, baking powder, Mrs. E. L. Claire. Gentlemen's first $2.50 G. Rochelien. Second, silk socks, G. Shea. Consolation, 2 packages cigarettes, E. Bartlett.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

The storm Thursday night was the worst ever experienced in this vicinity. Practically every dirt road was so badly washed that it was closed to travel. The abutment to the town bridge at the foo of Spaulding hill was washed away, the water tore out the driveway through the Coffey yard and washed rocks and other debris over fields of A. E. Hall, causing damage estimated by Mr. Hall as exceeding five hundred dollars.

Home Circle of the North Sterling church held a roast beef supper in the Community house Thursday evening. After the supper there was an entertainment of readings, vocal and instrumental music, magic art and a short play by the Kitadine Camp Fire Girls.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall and Mrs. Hall's sister, Addie Holland, of Putnam, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. Howard Cross of Central Village.

Lucius Whitaker of Norwich spent the week-end with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Milan Whitaker.

Myra and Ada Spaulding and William Potter of Auburn, R. I., spent the week-end at Spaulding cottage.

Dora Lefleur of Danielson spent Saturday afternoon at P. H. Coffey's and A. E. Hall's. Miss Lefleur was a former resident of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Barlow entertained Mr. and Mrs. Winsor Barlow, of Hillsgrove, Sunday.

Phebe Barber, of Norwich, is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall.

Several local people attended a dance in East Killingly Saturday night.

With membership in the order having doubled within the last year, Masonry today is said to be stronger in Mexico than ever before in the history of the organization in that country.

Keeping the System So Clean There Are No Body Odors

"IT'S GLORIOUS to have no more dread of faulty elimination. And to know there can be no offense to perspiration, and no need to check it. I would never be without the candy laxative—

CASCARETS

A lot of people who never have to take a laxative eat a candy cascaret now and then. Do you know why?

They have found that cascara sweetens the whole system—brings an immaculacy of person that means everything. It prevents bodily chemistry from ever making one unconsciously offensive to others. And what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Salts affect the lining of the bowels. Mineral oils leave a coating that the blood must carry off through the pores. How much better to cascarize the system, and cause the bowels to expel everything by normal muscular contraction! To say nothing of the cleaner, sweeter condition that lasts for days—a wholesome condition that makes the use of deodorants quite unnecessary in January or July! Men and women whose years have brought on sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week is all the tonic they needed.

Cascara is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every drugstore has for 10c and 25c.

REFUNDING THE LIBERTIES

It is no small proposition to handle when it comes to refunding the Liberty loans, not even if it is the government which must handle it. The Liberties are obligations of the country and must be met and the quicker the obligation can be discharged the smaller the amount that will have to be paid in interest.

The Victory loan has been cleaned up. The second Liberty loan could have been allowed to continue uninterrupted for a period of years but the government had the right to call it this month and it decided sometime ago to exercise its right. This loan was for a total of $3,800,000,000, a sizeable sum as refunding operations go. By the purchase of the bonds from time to time the treasury department had acquired about $760,000,000 of them up to last spring. Then the first of the steps for the refunding of the remainder was taken. In exchange for the bonds there were offered three to five year notes bearing interest at the rate of 3 1-2 per cent. and more than a billion and a third were traded. Later offerings and acquisitions by purchase reduced the amount by another total and now there have just been offered short term certificates to the amount of $400,000,000 carrying interest at the rate of 3 1-8 per cent.

The refunding doesn't mean that the obligations of the government have been wiped out. Part of them have by purchase but the rest will remain but they remain under a reduced rate of interest which, considering the large sum involved, means a large saving in interest, and the prospects are that by following the policies of the past these certificates and notes will be wiped out or greatly reduced when they come due.

This is all in anticipation of the fact that in September 1928 the third Liberty loan will come due. How that will be handled is not known but in view of the masterly manner in which the government finances have been taken care of it can be expected that it will get the same considerate treatment.

MR. GILBERT'S ADVICE

It is frequently the case that it is much easier to invite criticism than it is to accept it once it has been offered. Germany is conscious of this at the present time. It doesn't like what S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations payments, has had to say about its extravagances, or the tendency in that direction, but it should remember that it was asked for and it is possible that it will prove to be the best thing that could have happened.

There was a time when German financiers became aware of the fact that it was more difficult to obtain loans abroad and that the credit of Germany was not as good as it had been. In endeavoring to get the answer to the puzzle they asked Mr. Parker about it. He gave them his answer straight from the shoulder. He called a spade a spade. He didn't restrict himself to telling them what he thought they would like, but he went into a careful explanation of the situation and dwelt upon the uneconomical tendencies in Germany. Inasmuch as the situation existed it would have been a mistake not to have done just what he did.

It can be appreciated that those who have been backing extravagances and who are desirous of having such a policy continued are not pleased by what Mr. Gilbert had to say. They can easily take the view that Germany is not being allowed to have its own way, that it is being held to the grindstone and being harshly treated, but those who are desirous that Germany should meet its obligations and who recognize that certain policies if followed will mean a great handicap to the nation instead of a benefit cannot do otherwise than applaud. It must be the best kind of support of the position which they have taken.

Germany has large obligations. They have not as yet reached the peak. If it is the purpose of that country to meet them, and it is generally believed that it is, it should welcome constructive criticism and advice. Germany will make a mistake if it doesn't so regard it. Mr. Gilbert has rendered Germany a valuable service.

INSISTING ON RIGHTS

Resistance to the utmost is the attitude taken by some individuals concerning certain demands which they regard as thoroughly unjust. They are not always upheld when it comes to a test, but neither are they always forced to change their views.

Where it was the case once of walking or being driven over country roads to school, there are many districts today where motor vehicle transportation is provided for the school children. Down in North Carolina there is a district where this method prevails, but where one parent rebels at the idea of having his children walk several hundred yards to get aboard the bus when this is not required of others. It seems as if such a situation ought to have been easily ironed out. Just why the bus should not stop in front of any home where there are children is a bit difficult to understand, but for some reason regulations prohibited it and because his children had to walk some distance to the bus and others did not this particular citizen refused to send his children to school.

In taking that stand instead of endeavoring to change the bus regulations, the parent ran counter to the law which makes it necessary to send his children to school. He was arrested, convicted and his sentence obligates him to work on the road. Just how long he is going to stick to his convictions will be disclosed in time, but it would appear that that school district is obligated to see that that injustice is straightened out.

Under all ordinary conditions there is no reason why all the children should not be treated alike. Whether his course of action will bring this about is a question. If he happens to live on a side road there may be no injustice in asking that his children walk to the crossroads, but if he is a resident of the main road and the bus will not stop in front of his house there is bound to be a lot of sympathy for that father which might well have been displayed in the court before which he was haled.

ESTATE TAX OPPOSITION

The reception which the house ways and means committee is giving to the opposition it is experiencing to the federal inheritance tax is indicated by the claim which Chairman Green makes to the effect that the opponents of the bill packed the hearing

With the great majority of the states represented through an organization it may be possible for the committee chairman to regard the hearing as packed, but he cannot fail to appreciate the sentiment of the various commonwealths when state officials and representatives of legislatures appear before it demanding the repeal of the estate tax.

This is not the first time that there has been evidence of widespread opposition to this form of federal taxation. It was presented to the last congress in a way which got some recognition, but not enough. A compromise was made at that time whereby there was a certain rebate to the states. This reduced the benefit the federal government gets from the tax, so that even if it is repealed it will mean a much smaller loss to the government than it would have before. It is even claimed now that President Coolidge is ready to sign a tax bill which calls for the abolition of that tax.

The demand that the inheritance, or estate, tax is a form of taxation that should be left to the respective states and that the federal government is encroaching upon state rights will be a hard proposition for congress to continue to duck. There is no desire to have congress prohibited from resorting to such a tax in the case of national emergency as it did when this tax was imposed some years ago, but it is time to recognize that national emergencies do not exist forever and as far as the need of an estate tax is concerned it has been over for a long time.

STORAGE RESERVOIRS

In connection with flood control measures attention has from time to time been directed to the desirability of establishing reserve reservoirs for the purpose of ponding the vast quantities of water that would be otherwise rushing down through the rivers. For the same purpose there has been advocated the advantage of covering the denuded hills with trees that the soil would thus be able to retain a greater amount of the rainfall instead of rolling off the surface so rapidly into the streams. The wooded hillsides never show the same effect of the hard storms that is to be found on the open hills.

To a certain extent the recent storm in New England which was responsible for the flooded conditions made it possible to test out some of these storage reservoirs. They have been constructed not for the purpose of preventing floods but for establishing reserves for hydro-electric developments. These dams have been constructed to withstand the pressure of full ponds, but in spite of the extraordinary rainfall there are instances where it is reported that such ponds are only partially full and in all instances the dams kept back a great volume of water which had it been released in the usual way would have only added to the havoc that was caused.

Possibly more of such reservoirs would not have made the flood impossible but Vermont would have appreciated most anything that would have held back part of the flood water it received.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Early reports of the flood indicate that the story wasn't half told.

The man on the corner says: Once more it is the song of the steam pipes that meets popular fancy.

Some Filipinos insist the lepers should not be segregated and yet they declare they are able to govern themselves.

From New York it is reported that the marriages are increasing faster than the divorces. Is that the fault of the courts?

Now that Mrs. Coolidge is said to be partial to red it is to be expected that Coolidge red will be a feature of the costumes for the season.

Once again it seems necessary to proclaim that Indian summer and the freezing weather within a few days of each other is "I mutch".

The weatherman has issued his first substantial call for the fur coats. Or is it just a warning to put the summer furs in cold storage?

Still those who like to have a hand in every good cause do not always feel that they should participate in the government's scheme for debt reduction.

MASCULINE MENDACITY

"Sometimes," remarked Mrs. Derring, "I feel actually outraged at the M. L. A. W. I really do, Jimmy."

"Why, what are you talking about? I never heard of any such organization. What is it?" asked Derring.

"It's the Men's League Against Wives. All men join it automatically at marriage. It makes me positively furious."

"You have me quite befogged, my dear. Explain yourself. If I belong to any organization that makes you angry, I'd like to know about it," remarked Derring, gently sarcastic.

"Of course, you think I'm talking nonsense, but I'm not. I'm serious, Jimmy. You know that the Bridges are getting on very badly, and Mabel Bridge told me today that her own brother fibbed to her about Jack. He said that Jack Bridge was bowling with him when she knew positively that he was playing poker with much less desirable company."

"And yet, quite probably, her brother was only trying to save her feelings and prevent a serious break."

"So you approve of it!" Mrs. Derring demanded.

"I didn't say I approved of it, my dear. I was simply trying to explain it. Anyway, you shouldn't judge all men by Mabel Bridge's brother. That's manifestly unfair."

"I may be unfair, but I'll bet it's true."

"I'll take your bet, but how are you going to prove it?"

"I suppose that will be rather hard," sighed Mrs. Derring, but there was a determined gleam in her eye. Jimmy laughed and said that he knew she could never show him that her idea was not all bunkum.

The next evening after this conversation Mrs. Derring slipped her hand into her husband's and, giving him one of her most endearing smiles, inquired casually where he had been the night before. He looked at her in astonishment.

"You know very well that I was right here in this room listening to you tell about the imaginary league of men against wives. Why such a silly question?"

"It's not as silly as you think. I myself thought you were home with me last night, but after doing a little telephoning this morning I begin to doubt my own memory. Let me read you a few notes I jotted down. To begin with, I called your cousin Ned and asked him if he happened to know where you were last night. 'Why,' he replied, 'didn't Jim tell you that he went with me to a special conference of the board of governors of the Evergreen Golf association?' 'Oh,' I said, and I'm sure that he thought that the gurgle in my throat was a sob.

"When I asked Wells if he had any idea what you were doing last night he cheerfully informed me that you were looking over blue prints in the office. He volunteered that business is very heavy now.

"Thornton Burd believed that you were attending a vestry meeting. It seems he saw you walking toward the church, or, at least, he thought he did. Thornton isn't facile, but he did his best.

"Dr. Larry told me that you accompanied him to a far distant suburb to see a particularly interesting case. He even gave me the Latin name of the disease, and he was quite apologetic about keeping you out so late. If Larry ever tires of medicine he can take up fiction. Now I'd like to know, Jimmy, my boy, what you have to say about the M. L. A. W."

"Well, I will say that my friends lied like gentlemen," grinned Derring. "But, now you tell me, how am I ever going to explain to them?"

"Tell them where you really were, old dear. As far as I know there are no by-laws in the league forbidding the telling of the truth to each other."

"The dinner and the theatre are on me all right," laughed Derring.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Indian Trails, And Others.

Mr. Editor: Apropos of Indian trails, of which our historian Case of Danbury craves information (I speak advisedly in dubbing him a historian, see his admirable compilation in the "Tryon's Raid on Danbury," it's great). I take the liberty of quoting from the Courant of May 20, 1922, regarding one that led easterly from Cromwell towards the Narragansett country. "It then continued easterly, running south of Meshomasic mountain and north of Lake Pocotopaug in Old Chatham, now East Hampton, through the southern part of Marlboro, then crossing the town of Hebron, about one and one-half miles south of Hebron green, at the old brick school house of which more anon. It there passed a field anciently known as "O'Porto Bello," now corrupted to "Porter Bell," where tradition says a block-house was located as a place of refuge from Indian surprises for the early settlers. This locality was later connected with the memory of that "man of mystery," Don John Antony Lenaris, supposed to have been a political refugee from Spain in the latter part of the 18th century, who lived nearby. It then continued eastward, skirting the hunting grounds of the Mohegans and running north of the North Pond, dear to their hearts as a favorite fishing place, then bearing an Indian name now lost to memory, through Lebanon to its eastern destination."

The late Martin L. Roberts of East Hampton was authority for the location of this trail across his town. He said that old inhabitants told him that traces of this trail were in existence within their memory. These crossed the hills in a practically straight line from west to east and were shown by a footpath beaten deep in the ground by repeated crossing by the Indians in single file as their custom was.

Tradition says that this trail was used by the white man before settlements were made in these parts. A little easterly of where the old school house in Hebron stood, on land now owned by Edward A. Raymond and near this trail, is a tall rock known as "Pioneers Rock," and the same authority said that the first white man that came into that town slept under its overhanging shelter over night. Another evidence pointing toward the use of this trail before settlements commenced, is that the first highway laid out in the town led from this vicinity to the village of Hebron Green and the first inverner appointed by the town, Samuel Palmer, was located at this point.

This trail crossed the northwestern part of Colchester, for it will be remembered that this town comprised the western part of Marlboro, and extended about one and one-half miles north of the Methodist church in Marlboro village, where the new state road crosses towards Hebron. The western boundary of that northern part of Colchester was that between that town and Middletown. Chatham being set off from Middletown and incorporated in 1767, and then becoming Colchester's western neighbor till the incorporation of Marlborough in 1803. This latter performance of the general assembly took from Colchester a piece about four and one-half miles long and two to three miles wide and as much from Hebron.

But, how about Micaiell Taintor (1652-1731) as a "founder" of Colchester? His descendant, Charles Micaiell Taintor, says (see his Book of 1884) that he was "one of the most active in procuring the grant of Colchester." That makes three "founders" so far, Jeremy Adams, Nathaniel Foote, Micaiell Taintor. Who comes next?

F. C. BISSELL.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Charles F. Thwing, who today enters upon his 75th year, is a prominent clergyman and educator, best known for his many years of service as president of Western Reserve university, of which institution he is now president emeritus. Dr. Thwing is a native of Maine who received his A. B. degrees from Harvard college in 1876 and then went to Andover Theological seminary to study for the ministry. He was ordained in the Congregational ministry in 1879 and in the same year became pastor of a church at Cambridge, Mass. In 1886 he went to Plymouth church, Minneapolis, where he remained until 1890, when he was called to the presidency of Western Reserve university. Dr. Thwing has written numerous books on subjects relating to education. He has also served as president of the Religious Education association and of the Intercollegiate Peace association.

YOUR HEALTH

BE JEALOUS OF YOUR EARS

By William F. Clevenger, M. D., Indianapolis, Ind.
Member Gorgas Memorial

For convenience of study, the ear is divided into external, middle, and internal. The external ear is that portion external to the drum and is subject to infections of the canal and to an over-supply of wax. The infections of the canal are ordinarily eczema and fungus growths, but there is also a possibility of almost any kind of bacteria invading the many small glands in the canal.

The middle ear comprises the eustachian tube, drum, small bones, and a cavity immediately back of the drum into which the eustachian tube opens. It is through the nose and mouth that middle ear infections take place.

The internal ear is the sound producing apparatus and comprises the vestibule, semi-circular canals, cochlea and auditory nerve. The semicircular canals are three in number in each ear and are the organs of the human body which enable us to assume and maintain an erect position. Affection of these canals will disturb equilibrium, and involvement of the internal ear structure usually signifies permanent deafness.

Deficiency in hearing seriously involves efficiency. The possessor of one deaf ear is 50 per cent deficient, and if totally deaf he must adjust himself completely to his new status. Therefore, as a matter of efficiency as well as comfort and happiness, it behooves each individual to be jealous of his ears and to endanger these organs by a deliberate act of his own, and under no circumstance should he delay going to see his doctor when he notices the slightest thing wrong with his ears.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

An Interested Spectator

The thing that gives to some folk pain
To others proves a welcome gain.
—Jimmy Skunk.

A spectator is, you know, one who looks on. There was some one looking on when little Mrs. Peter gave the danger signal up there in the Old Pasture, and immediately afterward Reddy Fox had an exceedingly hot and uncomfortable time. That some one who was looking on was Jimmy Skunk. Jimmy had been an interested spectator from the beginnng.

It just happened that Jmmy had poked his head out of the bushes for a look around, there by that patch of sweet clover, just as Reddy had poked his head out from the other side. Jimmy sat down instantly. He had seen that modest young rabbit, Mrs. Pete, out there in the middle of the sweet clover, eating quietly and contentedly. He understood at once that Reddy Fox was hunting her. It was no business of his to interfere with Reddy's plans. He had no particular interest in the young rabbit anyway. So Jimmy sat down to watch Reddy and see how he would go about catching that rabbit.

Then Mrs. Peter appeared, and Jimmy became more interested than ever. "Mrs. Peter must be stupid," thought Jimmy. "There must be something wrong with her. I don't see how she can help seeing Reddy Fox, yet there she is hopping right along toward him. This promises to be exciting."

Now, up to the instant that Mrs. Peter thumped the ground and brought all the yellowjackets pouring out of their nest just in time to give Reddy Fox a good stinging, Jimmy Skunk had had no personal interest in the affair. But right then his interest became very personal. He chuckled as he watched Reddy Fox rolling over and over and rubbing his face in the grass, trying to get rid of those yellowjackets. You would suppose that Jimmy would have taken great pains to keep away from the place where the yellowjackets were. Instead of that, he almost hurried straight toward that very spot. While Reddy Fox was hurrying away from that spot, Jimmy Skunk was hurrying, or trying to hurry, straight toward that yellowjackets' nest. Jimmy was so fat that his hurrying didn't amount to much. He almost wabbled on his feet. As he moved along, he kept licking his lips.

The instant Jimmy reached the little hole in the ground, which was the entrance to the yellowjackets' nest, he began digging. Once more the yellowjackets became very, very angry. Those still remaining in the nest now came pouring out. Those who had been chasing Reddy Fox came hurrying back. Jimmy Skunk just didn't pay any attention to them. He made those little black paws of his, with their little sharp claws, fairly fly as he dug down in. In no time at all he had torn open that nest and had buried his head in it. In vain the yellowjackets tried to get down through the long hair of his coat to sting. Down in that nest Jimmy found a lot of young yellowjackets, which were most excellent eating. At least Jimmy considered them so. When there wasn't another left, he backed out, brushed away the few yellowjackets around his head, combed out some that had become entangled in his fur, and ate them, and then shuffled along toward where little Mrs. Peter was peering round-eyed from among the bushes.

"Much obliged, Mrs. Peter," said Jimmy.

"What for?" asked Mrs. Peter, looking puzzled.

"For that feast I've just had," replied Jimmy.

"But I didn't have anything to do with that," replied little Mrs. Peter.

"On the contrary, you had everything to do with it," said Jimmy. "If you hadn't stirred those yellowjackets up by thumping over their nest, I shouldn't have known anything about them. Reddy Fox didn't seem to enjoy them as much as I do."

"I know it," said little Mrs. Peter, "and I think it was a shame that you treated them so after they saved me."

Jimmy licked his lips. "It's all in the way you look at it, Mrs. Peter," said he, "It's all in the way you look at it."

Little Talks on Thrift

UNDERLYING FORCE OF THRIFT

Thrift is the impulse of all progress.

Today one can travel across the continent by airplane in a day and a half. A century ago it would have taken months to make the same trip by the fastest means of transportation then known. The airplane, with all its possibilities, has grown out of man's determination to save time. The railroad superceded the stage coach for the same reason. It has become an agency of thrift because it has brought about the saving of time and the conservation of material resources.

We might run through the entire history of scientific progress and we would find the same reason. It has become an agency of thrift because it has brought about the saving of time and the conversation of material resources.

We might run through the entire history of scientific progress and we would find the same constant underlying force of thrift.

Mankind has progressed only in proportion to his development of efficiency.

This truth likewise applies to the individual. No matter what may be our place in life, the actual progress we make must depend upon our individual efficiency. If we plan well and have the back-bone to carry out our plans we may consider ourselves successful. But no matter who we are or how advantageous our situation we will never fulfill our rightful place in life if we are inefficient.

We must make the most of our time, our material possessions, our education and our various advantages. This is real thrift.

Here we have one of the great lessons of life. It is not enough to depend on thrift for the rainy days. It is upon thrift as well that we must rely for whatever advancement we hope to obtain—for whatever ambitions we expect to see realized.—American Society for Thrift.

DIAPEPSIN KEEPS APPETITE YOUNG

If you have to force yourself to eat, and invariably get indigestion, sluggish headaches, and you are losing weight, excessive acidity is ruining your stomach.

This excess acid sours your food, turns it into sour bile and foul gases, and you are constantly nervous and upset.

Thousands of people credit their good health and young appetite to Pape's Diapepsin. It dissolves the acids and sweetens the stomach so you can eat anything you want. That's why 5 million packages are sold every year. Chew one or two of the tablets after meals, and you will never have indigestion, or be bloated.

All drug stores have Pape's Diapepsin.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Henry M. Pollock

Rev. Douglas Horton of the Leyden Congregational church of Brookline, Mass., officiated Tuesday afternoon at the funeral of Mrs. Caroline McCune Pollock, wife of Dr. Henry M. Pollock, superintendent of the Massachusetts omoeopathic hospital, which was held at the Mt. Auburn chapel, Cambridge. The ushers were two resident physicians of the hospital, Dr. Clifton Perkins and Dr. Robert Barton. Burial was in th efamily lot at Mt. Auburn.

Mrs. Pollock, whose death occurred last Sunday, was a native of Waupun, Wis., the daughter of Thomas and Ortha F. McCune. She was graduated from Minnesota State Normal school at Winona, and later taught at Fergus Fall, that same state, until her marriage in 1900 to Dr. Pollock, who then was assistant superintendent of the state hospital at Fergus Falls.

In 1904 th efamily moved to this city, when Dr. Pollock was appointed superintendent of the state hospital, and in 1916 the family came to Brighton, Mass. Mrs. Pollock had been ill for three years. She was a member of the Brookline Tuesday club, and had also been president of the Aid Association of the Massachusetts Homoeopathic hospital.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Pollock is survived by two children, Miss Martha C. Pollock, a graduate of Vassar and Ohio State university, and now head psychologist at the Fernald State school, and Henry M. Pollock, Jr., who is a student at Bowdoin.

James E. Chapman.

At 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the funeral of James Elmer Chapman of the Lantern Hill section of Ledyard was held from the home of his mother, No. 20 Cliff street, and the service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Burial took place in Hamilton avenue cemetery where Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted the committal service. The bearers were Dan Williams, Horace Main, Charles Perry and Charles Maynard. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and there were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Mary Day.

Funeral services for Miss Mary Day of South Main street, Colchester, were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her late residence. Rev. Daniel K. Freymeyer officiated. Burial was in Lynwood cemetery, Colchester.

WEDDINGS

Corey-Cox

Elsie M. Corey, daughter of Alvin P. and Sadie M. Corsy of Broad street extension, Groton and Dallas P. Cox, son of Townes and Nannie Cox of Durham, N. C., were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the parsonage of the Groton Heights Baptist church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George R. Atha. Relatives and intimate friends of the couple witnessed the ceremony.

Lawler-Noyes.

The marriage of Miss Catherine C. Noyes, daughter of the late Judge Walter Chadwick Noyes and Mrs Noyes, of New York and Old Lyme, to John Howard Lawler, son of the late John Lewis Lawler and Mrs. Lawler, of Bronxville, N. Y., took place at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the summer home of the bride's mother, Indian Rock farm Old Lyme. Rev. W. Dixon Hoag of the Congregational church performed the ceremony.

The bride's gown was of white crushed velvet and rose point lace her veil was of lace and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias. Mrs. Joseph Pfeiffer of Bronxville, a sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor and Miss Ruth Noyes, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, were attired in orange velvet and silver cloth and carried yellow roses and orchids. Miss Jean Pfeiffer, niece of the bridegroom, as flower girl, wore a dress of flesh color and carried an old fashioned bouquet.

Joseph Pfeiffer, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, was best man and the ushers were Winfield Keenholts, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, who returned from India recently to attend the wedding, Carlin Crandall, Chester McKittrick and Tyson Boggs of New York city, Thomas Ball and George Chadwick of Lyme, the last named a cousin of the bride.

The beautiful residence was effectively decorated with green and yellow chrysanthemums, the scheme of decoration being carried out in the porch as well as in the interior. Between 75 and 100 guests from New York attended the wedding and reception which followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawler will make their home at 419 East 57th street, New York, on their return from a wedding trip to Canada.

Mr. Lawler is with Percival Prowert Co., advertisers, of New York city.

MILITARY MEN ARE GOING TO MONTVILLE

The Norwich military companies, Battery B and the Hq. Battalion and Combat Train, 192nd F. A., are to participate in the parade that will be part of the Armistice day celebration at Montville. The companies are to meet at the state armory for roll call at 12:30 and march to Franklin square in time to take trolley cars from there at 1:15.

New York city adds about 450 to its population every day of the year.

GRANGERS DUG HOLES FOR TREES ON LAKE STREET PLAYGROUNDS

Under the auspices of the community service committee of Norwich Grange, No. 178, Patrons of Husbandry, men of the grange carried out their programme of digging the holes for several trees on the Lake street playgrounds Tuesday afternoon and evening. The grange committee of which Mrs. Ida E. Richardson is chairman, with Mrs. Susie Lillibridge and Mrs Mae La Valley as the other members, had issued a call for the men of the grange to be on hand at the playgrounds at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Street Commissioner John C. Donovan had a supply of picks and shovels sent up to the grounds and the grangers who reported got to work without delay. Boys from the neighborhood who came to see what was going on, eagerly grabbed shovels and got to work to help when given the chance.

It had been expected to do some of the digging by moonlight after the supper hour, but the moon failed to meet expectations and automobile lights were played on the spots where the men were at work when it got dark. The ranks of the diggers were augmented from time to time, two of the volunteer helpers being men from the neighborhood who pitched in willingly when they understood what it was all about.

By 7:15 four holes were dug ready for the reception of the rock maple trees that are to be transplanted from the Rathbone farm in Leffingwell. About a dozen men in all with the help of the boys and two residents of the Lake street neighborhood excavated the holes where the trees are to be planted.

It had been planned at first to plant five trees on the Lake street playgrounds, but the number has been cut down to four and the fifth tree will be used to replace a dead one in the parklet at Centennial square. This tree died because it had been girdled by boys of the neighborhood who tried out their jack knives on it.

A fine large rock maple from Leffingwell will be used in the Centennial square park after Street Commissioner Donovan has the dead tree removed.

Mrs. Richardson has enlisted the services of a number of other members of the grange besides those who did the digging Tuesday to dig up the trees on the Rathbone farm and the street department is to transport them to the playgrounds. It is expected this work may be done Thursday morning.

WEST END COMMUNITY EVENING AT CARDS

The West End Community association gave a successful whist, bridge and pinochle party Monday evening at the Elizabeth street school with 98 at the card tables. Those to receive the prizes were the following:

Whist—Ladies, first, Mrs. Hastings; second, Mrs. Alquist; Gentlemen, first, Mr. Jordan; second, Mr. Fields.

The scorers were the Misses Madeline Elliott, Cora Freeman, Doris Pulsifer, Dorothy Parsons, Dorothy Alquist, Alice Parsons, with Leonard Partridge at the door.

The committee, Mrs. A. E. Partridge, Mrs. C. W. Parsons, Mrs. Ernest Latimer and Mrs. Sargent expressed thanks to those who helped to make the card party a success. These included Mrs. Frederick M. Oat of Maplewood Nurseries, donor of the three prizes for first places, George O. Hathaway, donor of the door prize, a basket of fruit, Henry Allen & Son Co., and Church & Allen for the use of the chairs, Clarence E. Carpenter for transportation.

GRANGE AUXILIARY HELD SALE AND SUPPER

A goodly sum was added to the treasury of Norwich Grange auxiliary by a food sale and supper that was held last Saturday afternoon and evening at the Buckingham Memorial. The fancy work and apron table was in charge of Mrs. Alida Boyens and the supper in charge of Mrs. Ida E. Richardson, Mrs. Elizabeth Risley, Mrs. Hattie Woodmansee, Mrs. Jennie Davis, Mrs. Hattie Thatcher, Mrs. Eva Higgins, Mrs. Mary Austin and Mrs. Charles Browning. The last named was in charge of the dining room with Mrs. John Lavalle, Mrs. William Beetham, Mrs. Ivy O. Peckham, Mrs. Fred Handy, Mrs. Lee Coles, Miss Charlotte Fowler, Miss Arlene Conleigh, Mrs. Teresa Watters and Mrs. Agnes Blackburn as waitresses. The tables were tastefully decorated in the national colors and chrysanthemums and were lighted with candle. The menu consisted of baked beans, potato salad, cabbage salad, jellied beef, pickles, brown bread, rolls, coffee and cake. Mrs. Eva Jahn and Mrs. J. E. Fanning served at the cake table and others assisting were Mrs. Eva Peckham and Miss Edith Woodmansee.

DISCHARGED IN COURT AND THEN RE-ARRESTED

Arrested Monday night on a charge of violating the liquor law, Andrew Zawacki, 38, was discharged in the city court Tuesday morning and then was rearrested on a charge of conducting the Greeneville Bottling company without having filed a certificate of proprietorship with the town clerk. He was fined $15 and costs. Jenny Liskavitz, who was a spectator in the court, was arrested in the court room on the charge of failure to file a proprietorship certificate. After Attorney V. P. A. Quinn, counsel for both men, had stated that Zawacki was the proprietor and that Liskavitz only worked there, the charge against the latter was nolled.

While the case was being tried, an aid in the employ of County Detective William Lewis, pointed out Liskavitz while on the stand, as the man who had sold him liquor November 1st. When the raiding squad visited the place Monday night Zawacki was in charge and was arrested.

55TH ANNIVERSARY OF BOSTON'S BIG FIRE

Thursday of this week will be the 55th anniversary of the big Boston fire to which the Norwich volunteer firemen went when a call for help was sent to this city. The fire broke out on Saturday, Nov. 9, 1872, the call for help was received here on Sunday and the Norwich firemen left that day for Boston with two steam fire engines, three hose wagons and about 125 men.

Mayor James Lloyd Greene, who accompanied the firemen, paid the entire expenses out of his own pocket, the men having their meals in Boston at the United States hotel.

Chief Howard L. Stanton and Joseph P. Monaher of 41 Park street were among the Norwich firemen who made the trip to Boston.

REMOVED GUY WIRES OVER BAILEY PROPERTY

Employes of the city gas and electrical department removed on Tuesday the guy wires across the property of Howell S. Bailey at 359 Main street, maintenance of which has resulted in a lawsuit brought against the city claiming $20,000 damages. By the end of the week the department expects to have the poles taken down in front of the Bailey property.

All but one circuit has now been connected up on the new steel towers that carry the electric light wires across the Shetucket river to the foot of Rock street.

Attended State V. F. W. Meeting.

Captain Herbert Burdick, commander of R. E. Hourigan post, No. 594, Veterans of Foreign Wars, District Deputy Leo L. Jacques, past commander, and Albert J. Turner, past commander, attended the quarterly meeting of the Department of Connecticut, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., which was recently held at the state armory in Waterbury.

The last four months of the year are wrongly named. September, October, November and December mean the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth months of the year, whereas they are the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth.

WESTERLY LIBRARIAN SPOKE BEFORE WOMAN'S CITY CLUB

A second literary round table, Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, the chairman, presided, took the form of a luncheon meeting at 1 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel Tuesday. Forty-one members of the Woman's City club gathered to hear Miss Emily K. Appell, of the Westerly library, who came in recognition of Children's Book week. Mrs. Alexander H. Abbott introduced Miss Appell, saying that she hoped Miss Appell might be an inspiration to Norwich women in arousing interest in the children's reading, and in the library of the city. In the Otis library new children's books have been placed on the shelves for book week, and rather recently the children's book stacks have been improved by lowering them to give the children more easy access to their books.

Miss Appell responded by saying how glad she was to come to Norwich and speak of her work which meant so much to children. She then proceeded to speak of books, of libraries, librarians and of children.

Library work with children, she said, is something which is now going on all over the world, in Asia, Europe, South America as well as in our own country. Library work with children should be considered the foundation of all library work. Miss Hewins, the beloved librarian of Hartford, was a pioneer in this sort of work and one of the first to open book shelves to children under 14.

Librarians must love children and have a sympathetic interest in them, if they are to really help the child in his reading. The librarian must know her books and be ready to suggest the right book for the right child. Library schools are doing much for training of librarians and libraries are getting more exacting in the matter of procuring trained librarians. The school gives the librarian stimulus and suggestions which might not come to her otherwise.

Of course there must be good books in the library. So many books are being brought out now and so many are poor that it is harder than ever to get good books from year to year. Children's books are beginning to get reviewed and illustrations are improving which will add much to the child's enjoyment. There are so many fine old standard books. These must be kept in the library where the child will find them.

Children are cynical if trained to a taste for good reading, a quiz in an English school revealed that the boys of that school really knew the essentials of good books. They emphasized the fact that books for boys must have, first, power to hold interest, second, informational value, third, inspiration to do bigger and better things, and fourth, literary excellence.

In Westerly there is a regular story hour for children each week in two groups. There are exhibits of Indian and Pilgrim material. The children have enjoyed making book plates and book covers for the last two years and some of them have done exceptional work. Most important of all to the children, this supplements the school work and by the time the child is of high school age he has a good working knowledge of his library.

Miss Appell feels that the educational side of the town is apt to be neglected when it comes to appropriations. But the library truly helps to lay a foundation for good citizenship and is an outside influence to the school. Schools are compulsory—libraries are for enjoyment.

TEN DRIVERS SUMMONED FOR AUTOMOBILE HEARINGS

Ten automobile operators from this part of the state have been summoned to hearings before an inspector of the motor vehicle department next Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the court house in New London.

The list follows: Timothy J. Fenton, 333 Crystal avenue, New London; Leroy N. Darrow, Niantic; Ivar Johnson, Westbrook; William H. Owen, Voluntown and Thomas C. Connell, 3 Cutler street, Stonington, all of whom lost their licenses following convictions for driving while under the influence of liquor; A. L. Lamore of the submarine base, whose license has been jeopardized through a complaint that has been made regarding his driving; Charles J. Applcelli, 126 Poquonoc road, Groton, who was convicted of the improper use of markers; G. M. Richardson, Nelseco hotel, Groton, whose license was taken away following conviction in court for reckless driving; Henry Edwards, Chester, Conn., who was convicted of operating without a license; operating while under the influence of liquor and with taking a car without the owner's permission and Emilio Brustoion, Avery street, Mystic, who has been summoned for a conference regarding a recent accident.

To Hold West Point Examinations

Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London anounced Wednesday New London announced Tuesday that he would soon hold competitive examinations for the purpose of obtaining a principal and two alternate candidates for admission to the United States Military academy at West Point, to fill a vacancy that exists in this, the Second Congressional district. The examination will be conducted by the civil service commission and will be open to boys residing in New London, Windham, Middlesex, or Tolland counties, who have the equivalent of a high school education, who are physically fit, and who are between the ages of 17 and 22.

The boy obtaining the highest mark will be named as principal and the next two in order of marking will be designated first and second alternate respectively. The successful candidates will take the entrance examinations at West Point in March with a view to entering the academy in July, 1928.

FREED FROM BLAME FOR DEATH OF HIS NIECE

By a finding made Tuesday by Coroner J. J. Desmond in the case of the death of Carmella Longello, 10, of New London, James Petrizzi of 83 Shaw street, New London, an uncle of the little girl, is found fre of criminal negligence in causing the death of the child who was crushed between a building and the rear end of a motor truck which Petrizzi was operating.

In his finding the coroner says:

On the 27th day of August, 1927, about 4.45 p. m. (daylight saving time) James Petrizzi, who was employed by his father, had driven this truck into a yard at No. 40 Shaw street, New London, Conn., where he stopped the truck, and placed four or five empty boxes on it. Intending to convey these boxes to his home at No. 83 Shaw street; he then went into a garage, in the yard, and when he came out he saw five children, including the decedent, who was his sister's child, on the truck; he obliged all these children to leave the truck immediately, and as soon as they had left the vehicle, he mounted it, and attempted to start it forward towards Shaw street, but, apparently on account of some defect in the truck mechanism, instead of moving forward, it began to roll backward down an incline in the yard towards the garage; as he did not seem able to control the machine, Petrizzi looked back, and saw that it was rolling directly towards the garage, and to prevent it from striking the garage, he turned the steering wheel, and applied the emergency brake, but the truck continued backing until its tail-board struck a corner of the garage, when it stopped. Petrizzi at once got out, and when he went to the rear end of the truck, he discovered Carmella Longello lying on the ground fatally injured. He rushed her forthwith to a hospital, but she died before arriving at the hospital. The decedent had evidently attached herself to the truck tail-board just before the machine began to roll backward, and she was caught betwen its all-board and the corner of the garage.

Mr. Petrizzi did not know, and had no reason to suspect that the child was at the rear of the truck when it began to move backwards; and there was manifestly no negligence on his part in any manner contributing to produce this unfortuate fatality.

SIPPED THE EVIDENCE BECAUSE "GOOD STUFF"

In the trial in the city court Tuesday morning of the case against Andrew Zawacki of 26 Sixth street on the charge of violation of the liquor law in selling liquor there, an undercover worker for County Investigator William Lewis pointed out Benny Liskavitz, one of the spectators in the court room as the man from whom he bought liquor at the Sixth street place.

Zawacki was discharged and Liskavitz was arrested on the charge of selling liquor. Testimony against the latter was given by the police aid who said that he and two others went to the Sixth street place on the afternoon of Nov. 1. Liskavitz, the witness said sold them three rounds of liquor at 25 cents each and a round of beer at 15 cents a bottle. Then they bought a pint bottle of alleged moonshine at $2 and drove to New London to turn over the evidence to Mr. Lewis. Attorney Quinn, counsel for the accused man, inquired why the bottle which was in evidence was only half full when they turned it over to the detective. The witness explained that it was pretty good stuff so they all three took a taste.

County Detective Lewis stated on the stand that he had given the three men who were working for him $75 to defray any necessary expenses. After other witnesses had been heard, Attorney Quinn asked for a continuance which the court granted to Nov. 14 and Liskavitz was released on a bond of $1,000.

WHY NOT LAUNDRY SOAP FOR THE HANDS

Some men seem to think any soap with which they wash hands is good enough for shaving. Though they wouldn't use laundry soap for bathing, they never think they may be shampooing with a suitable soap. Specialists have prescribed Packer's Tar Soap for shampooing for 55 years. Its pine antiseptic, stimulating—ends dandruff, helps av

ACADEMY CAN EXPECT DETERMINED OPPOSITION FROM BULKELEY TEAM

Bulkeley took a neat lacing over the week-end and the Academy strong-[illegible] supporters are fearful concerning the Academy-Bulkeley game Friday in New London. Which might appear strange to some, but the fact is that the loss of the New Londoners from their namesake in Hartford does not go well with N. F. A. well wishers.

For it will enhance that great enjoyment of good teams—overconfidence. Bulkeley has not scored this year in [illegible] games, losing five and playing two scoreless ties while the Academy has won five in six for its best record thus far in the season in at least ten years. Therefore, the Academy will enter this game as the most top-heavy favorite in a long time, probably since the two schools began clashing, and that is quite a while back.

Overconfidence has already ruined the Academy's chances for an undefeated season, their loss to Harding being attributed mainly to that cause. The Green waded through Chapman Tech and Westerly and had defeated Kingston in their three games previous to the Bridgeport clash. They had a better record before Harding was met, but the Presidents plowed through a weak line for most of the contest and got a 19 to 6 victory.

Since then the Academy has made very large strides on the comeback trail, defeating Wilby of Waterbury and Windham. They go into the Bulkeley game with a nice record, much better than last year's when Bulkeley was defeated, 6 to 0. Seventy-six points against 44 for the opposition is what they have done in six games, while in seven contests scoreless Bulkeley has yielded 97 points, probably the worst record on paper in the New England states.

But the cold facts probably do not tell of the hard luck the Orange and Black has run up against, of the hard schedule she has bucked and of the fact that she is pointing for this Academy game and nothing else.

These are a few reasons why the Academy supporters are wondering whether the events of the past week will have anything to do with the coming clash. The Academy, while getting the best claim on the eastern Connecticut title by defeating Windham Saturday, still has not clinched it. There are Bulkeley and Stonington yet to come.

For a little example of what overconfidence has done in an Academy-Bulkeley contest, local fandom is recalling the baseball game here in 1925 when the Orange and Black nine, rated far and wide as not only state champs but also the best in New England met its master for the only time of the season. And then last year in baseball the two close escapes that the state champion Academy nine had from Bulkeley are recalled.

These Academy-Bulkeley games are never decided on paper.

"Beat Bulkeley."

The "Beat Bulkeley" badges began to make their appearance on Academy students Tuesday as the major game of the Red and White season neared. School spirit, which had gone visiting the early part of the week, showed signs of returning in the Windham game when the largest number of students so far turned out to cheer the boys on. However, there is plenty of room for improvement and there seems no better time for said improvement than this coming game. The sidelines at Mercer field no doubt will be jammed and it should be about a goodly number of this crowd will be cheering the Red and White.

Bits About The Six Six.

The Academy's and Bulkeley's second teams in cross country are slated to meet in New London Thursday.

The Academy-Bulkeley game Friday will be the first of its kind on brand new Mercer field.

The coming grid clash with the Orange and Black will be the last for Bulkeley, Harry McGlone, Bill Tirrell, John Kahn, Buck LaCroix, Johnny [illegible] and Tommy Vitiano and Inglis. They are all slated to graduate from N. F. A. next June. For Kelleher, LaCroix and Ingalls it will be first as regulars.

[illegible] year's team but Captain Jack Reddy, Fox and Mish of the backfield are scheduled to return.

[illegible] reports Stonington got a few [illegible] in their win over Chapman Saturday. Cowboy Cowan, rugged [illegible] was the shining light for the Red and White.

[illegible] Schofield, former Conn. Aggie [illegible] now coach at Killingly, refereed.

In Other Sections.

[illegible] of Bridgeport and Stamford meet Friday in an important contest.

Torrington, which played here and lost early in the season closes its schedule this week with Crosby of Waterbury. Their large sport is basketball.

The Wilby of Waterbury basketball schedule carries a game with Norwich Free Academy, Jan. 21.

Hillhouse and Hartford High battled to a 6-6 tie Monday at Hartford.

DOLE STRESSES DEFENSE FOR AERIAL ATTACK

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 8.—Defensive play continues to be stressed in the camp of the Connecticut Aggies in preparation for the annual objective contest with Rhode Island State at Kingston next Saturday, and for the closing game of the year with Boston college to be played at Hartford November 19.

Coach Sumner A. Dole with Assistant Coach Paul E. Bitgood sent their charges through a long drill this afternoon in which particular emphasis was laid on defense against the forward pass. Most students of football agree that a team well versed in the use of the overhead attack can usually be depended upon to offer a strong defense against this same weapon, but it's not true of this year's Aggie eleven. Time and again opponents have worked forwards against the Aggies for substantial gains, Trinity in particular last Saturday at Hartford. Now, only four days before the Rhody game, the team is being worked to the utmost to improve its defense against forward passes. Rhode Island's attack is really her forward passing game, and it is this same mode of attack that is worrying the Connecticut coaches.

MARYLAND COMMISSION STANDS PAT ON SANDE

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Earl Sande today pleaded in vain with the Maryland racing commission for restoration of his jockey license revoked for alleged foul driving in the Pimlico futurity Friday.

Chairman James A. Latane indicated Sande's suspension would continue indefinitely but would not be permanent. The noted jockey cried when he left the hearing.

He was accused of fouling Chick Lang riding Reigh Count, the favorite, in the fall classic. Sustaining charges of Pimlico officials the commission disregarded Sande's statement and the testimony of three jockeys competing in the race.

"You have come here and spoiled one of our principal stakes by your foul riding," Latine told Sande. "There is no question in my mind but that you are guilty just as you have been charged and I see no reason to change the decision at this time. We will give you careful consideration at the proper time."

HARVARD LEAVES ALL TO YALE AUTHORITIES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8—(AP)—Bruce Caldwell's eligibility at Yale has never been a matter of concern at Harvard and any decision that Yale athletic authorities make will be acceptable "with perfect faith" to Harvard, William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, said tonight.

In a statement issued before news reports from New Haven carried the information that the star Yale back would be barred from all further football competition at New Haven, Director Bingham said:

"I only heard of the matter of Caldwell through the evening papers. Emphatically, there was no thought of protest arising at Harvard, as underwhat is left of the old "triple agreement." (Harvard, Yale and Princeton) each college is left to decide its own questions of eligibility without interference from the others. Whatever the Yale authorities decide in regard to Caldwell will be accepted at Harvard with perfect faith."

PROVIDENCE WITHDRAWS INJUNCTION PETITION

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Bill Cunningham, president of the American Soccer league, tonight announced that the Providence club has withdrawn its proceedings to enjoin the league from enforcing a suspension on William Stevenson, goalie of the Providence team.

Several weeks ago Providence obtained a temporary injunction and Stevenson was used in the lineup despite the rulings of the American Soccer league and the United States Football association.

The case would have been heard today in the federal court at Providence had not the injunction petition been withdrawn.

Macklin Overtakes Harris

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Dr L. P. Macklin, of St. Louis, national amateur three-cushion billiard champion, overtook Dr. A. J. Harris, of Chicago, challenger, in the second block of their match late today. Macklin scored 64 for a total of 100 as against Harris' 35 for a total of 83.

The game went 78 innings and Dr. Macklin had an unfinished run of 10 billiards.

The third and final block was scheduled tonight.

Bears Lose First Place

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The Chicago Bears were toppled from the National Professional Football league lead when they were trounced today by the New York Yankees, 26 to 0. Red Grange, who has been out with an injured leg, returned to the New York lineup but played only a few minutes and failed to score. Eddie Tryon starred for the Yankees.

RUTH AND GEHRIG BACK FROM BARNSTORMING TRIP

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(AP)— Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig were back in New York today with their pockets full of new records and cash after a three weeks tour of the country as baseball's "greatest show on earth."

The famous Yankee home run twins and their act, made up of good-natured kidding and horse-play interspersed with high-powered samples of heavy-hitting, traveled 8,000 miles, played before 220,000 persons—mostly kids—and autographed 5,000 baseballs.

Of the 21 games in 20 cities in nine states from Rhode Island to California 13 were broken up before the ninth inning by youthful admirers, schools were closed for the occasion in San Jose, Marysville and Sacramento, California. This traveling two-ring circus played in Rhode Island, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado, and California. Offers for 39 additional games were received from 19 states by Christy Walsh, who handled the tour.

Attendance records went by the board at nearly every stop. At Sioux City, Iowa, 6,000 persons packed the stands despite the fact baseball has been so dead there that the team was dropped from the western league.

The exhibition at Wrigley Field, Los Angeles, which was sponsored by the American Legion, drew 30,000 persons, the largest crowd of the tour.

Pitching to each other much of the time, Babe and Lou, came out even in hitting success. Ruth led in homers but Gehrig had the better batting average, the same situation which prevailed in the regular playing season.

Gehrig's batting average for the tour was .618 with 89 times at bat, 55 hits, and 13 home runs.

Ruth's Mark was .616 with 99 times up, 61 hits and 20 circuit slams.

Ruth who started his big league career in the box went back to it and pitched 57 innings, playing Gehrig's position, first base, the rest of the time.

Gehrig pitched 40 innings, played right field in three games and first base the rest of the time.

Ruth and Gehrig both got home runs with the bases full. In one game Lou struck out Babe with three men on.

"Babe and I played hard in every game and the fans seemed to appreciate it," said Lou on his return. "Both of us are still wearing bandages from sliding. Yes, naturally I hope to get more money from the Yankees next year but I know Colonel Ruppert will do the right thing. In the meantime I'll do a little fishing and hunting and help my mother get settled in our new home."

"Lou just acted like a kid on his first trip away from the folk," grinned "Babe". "About myself—well I'm all set for an easy winter. I feel like loafing for a change."

HARVARD DROPS BROWN FROM FOOTBALL SLATE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8.—(AP)—The reasons which prompted the Harvard-Princeton athletic break a year ago were recalled today when the 1928 Harvard football schedule was released for publication. There were four of them—the Army, Lehigh, North Carolina and Springfield. All will appear in the stadium next fall taking the places occupied on this year's schedule by Brown, Purdue, Indiana and Vermont.

One of the most striking changes is the disappearance of the Brown game which by means of its location for years between the Princeton and Yale encounters led it into the undesirable "fixture" class, first as a "filler" between the so-called "big three" contests, and later as much too steep an obstacle to encounter the week before the objective Yale game.

The 1928 Harvard schedule as compared with this year's follows:

	1927	1928
Oct. 6—	Vermont	Springfield
Oct. 13—	Purdue	North Carolina
Oct. 20—	Holy Cross	Army
Oct 27—	Dartmouth	Dartmouth
Nov 3—	Indiana	Lehigh
Nov 10—	Pennsylvania	Pennsylvania
Nov. 17—	Brown	Holy Cross
Nov. 24—	Yale	Yale at New Haven

"SPIDER" KELLEY'S FUNERAL IS LARGELY ATTENDED

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Friends from the rich and the poor walks of life paid tribute to "Spider" Kelly, one-time ring idol, at his funeral here today. He was buried in the city to which he came 40 years ago, a lad of 15, to begin a colorful career that brought him fame in the boxing profession.

James Patrick Curtin, as "Spider" Kelly, reached the heights in boxing, first as a fighter, later as a trainer, manager, and second of champions.

After requiem high mass at St. Mary's cathedral, the casket containing Kelly's body was taken to a cemetery to rest next to his mother, dead 29 years, and his father who passed away two years ago.

Kelly died in Rochester, Minn., last week.

QUENALO, A LONG SHOT, WINS HELPFUL STAKES

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Quenalo, a long shot, owned by Larry Waterbury, won by half a length from S. Ross' Cloudy, the favorite, in capturing the $3,000 Helpful States, two-year old feature at the Pimlico race track today. Scotch and Soda of the Sagmore stable was third. A bad start was responsible for Cloudy's downfall. The victor paid $27.80 for a $2 ticket. The six furlongs were run in 1:13 2-5.

Miss Fire was home first in the fourth race at Latonia, a $1,500 claiming event for two-year-olds over the six furlong route. Sweet Way took the place with Mary Hume next. The time was 1:15.

PRINCETON EXPRESSES ITS REGRETS TO YALE

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8—(AP)—Princeton Athletic association, following receipt of unofficial report that Bruce Caldwell, Yale halfback, would not be eligible to play against Princeton, issued the following statement:

"Princeton Athletic authorities, in the absence of official information as to facts, are unwilling to comment upon the Caldwell case, but express greatest regret at the news."

Leaders of the student body expressed the hope that Caldwell would be declared eligible for the Princeton game.

BRUCE CALDWELL BARRED FROM FURTHER PARTICIPATION IN YALE FOOTBALL

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Bruce Caldwell, Yale's brilliant halfback candidate for All-American honors, tonight was declared forever ineligible to represent Yale in football.

Caldwell's disqualification because of his newly discovered participation in two football games as a freshman at Brown university in 1923 was announced tonight by the board of control of athletics at Yale university through Prof. George T. Nettleton, chairman.

The action was obligatory in accordance with the "transfer rule" agreed to by Yale, Harvard and Princeton in 1923 by which any student who has participated in sport at another institution is ineligible to represent either of the "big three" in the same branch of athletics. It does not bar Caldwell from baseball in which he is a star at second base.

Until today—just four days before the Princeton game in which Caldwell's services were expected to prove invaluable—officials at Yale had no inkling of the impending loss of their star.

Caldwell, it appeared, had no knowledge of the rule and did not know he was breaking it in playing varsity football for three years. Winning his letter in the Harvard game of 1925, Caldwell was out most of last season with injuries but until today was riding the crest of football greatness with his grid career reaching its peak in his senior year. The end of it came with dramatic suddenness today when the Providence, R. I. Bulletin published the facts of Caldwell's football playing at Brown in a past which otherwise was forgotten.

CALDWELL UNABLE TO SPEAK AS HE HEARS FATE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Fact outdid the fiction of the juvenile thriller tonight when young Bruce Caldwell, meteoric halfback of Yale, was barred forever from Eli football with the Princeton game but four days away.

At one dramatic stroke which brought to light Caldwell's participation in two games as a freshman at Brown university in 1923, in violation of Yale's eligibility rules, the great career of the youthful backfield flash, was cut down in full stride.

What soaring ambitions of youth for all-American fame and for the glory of a great success against Princeton went crumbling into dust when the 21-year-old halfback learned of his disqualification at the practice field late this afternoon, only Caldwell knew. Downcast, he turned away and could not speak.

Caldwell himself was as surprised as anyone at the revelation and its consequences which came with the suddenness of a bombshell in Yale's athletic midst.

Yes, it was true, he said. He had played for Brown once—years ago—when he entered and stayed but a short time. It seemed an unimportant episode and he hadn't known it mattered. A student—even an athlete—often knows little of diplomatic agreements with other institutions on such points. So Caldwell played three years with the varsity, winning his letter against Harvard in 1925, being handicapped by an early season injury last year, and reaching the climax of his career this fall with an exhibition of all-around backfield play that set sport lovers throughout the country to marvelling.

With loss of Caldwell, Yale's stock took a decided slump with indications the shift will make Princeton a favorite for the classic game which this year must have an important bearing on the eastern championship situation.

Even more evident than the general dismay at the loss of the ball carrying, passing and kicking wizard was a genuine sympathy for Caldwell and his thwarted hopes that prevailed tonight among the students who went to classes with him.

Coach "Tad" Jones, tight-lipped and philosophical, used both of Caldwell's understudies in practice. Garvey, at Caldwell's left halfback post, made two touchdowns from scrimmage on the 25-yard line against the scrubs and Hammersley added another. Both will be ready to try to fill Caldwell's shoes against Princeton.

Yale officials were prompt to verify the information as to Caldwell as published by the Providence, R. I., Bulletin today and to act accordingly.

"All there was to do was to read the rule and look at the facts," said J. Frederick Baker, lawyer and unofficial member of all Yale athletic conferences.

"I went out to the field to tell Caldwell how sorry I was. It broke him up pretty badly. He's a young fellow in rather modest personal circumstances, who came here from a small high school instead of a big prep school, and kept well up in his studies besides playing football and baseball. This won't keep him out of baseball, by the way. I understand he only played football at Brown. He's a star second baseman. But the sport he loved was football."

Caldwell, who weighs 175 pounds, hails from Ashton, R. I. His disbarrment from Yale football was announced in a statement by Prof George H. Nettleton, chairman of the board of control of the Yale Athletic association, pointing out Caldwell's "evident misapprehension as to the full import of the rule.

The rule, announced as follows, was agreed to by the "big three" in 1923 and with the Harvard-Princeton break was incorporated by Yale in dual agreements with Harvard and Princeton:

"Any student who transfers to Harvard, Yale or Princeton from another college or university after this agreement goes into effect shall be ineligible to represent Harvard, Yale or Princeton in any sport in which he represented his former college or university on any university or freshman team while playing against opponents not members of that institution."

CALDWELL'S PARENTS HAVE LITTLE TO SAY ABOUT BOY

ASHTON, R. I., Nov. 8—(AP)—This little village is stunned tonight by the news that Bruce "Skit" Caldwell has been declared ineligible to play for Yale in the big game against Princeton Saturday. Caldwell's meteoric work on the gridiron has made him the idol of his friends and relatives here.

Visibly shaken by the announcement Robert Caldwell, Bruce's father, had little to say, except to comfort himself with the statement that Bruce will finish his college course.

"I'm sorry for the boy," Mr. Caldwell said, "but he will have to thrash the matter out for himself. If he has been playing ball contrary to the rules it is too bad, and he will have to fight it out, but I have nothing to say."

Mr Caldwell declared Bruce went to Yale to get an education and to get into college life.

Mrs. Caldwell, Bruce's mother, who is working with Mr. Caldwell in a textile mill to help send the boy to college, could only say, "I'm sorry. It's too bad."

Princeton Has Not Acted

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Princeton has not taken up the question of the eligibility of Bruce Caldwell with the Yale nor has there been any exchange of information on the status of the crack Eli halfback, according to authorities here.

YALE STUDENTS STAGE A WILD DEMONSTRATION

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8—(AP)—Keyed to a high pitch of excitement over the loss of Bruce Caldwell from the football line-up, the entire undergraduate body at Yale staged a wild demonstration of confidence in the prowess of their team here tonight.

Cheering and shouting continued so long in front of the Yale club, where the squad was eating, that Coach Tad Jones came to the door and asked the students to save some of their enthusiasm for the game Saturday when it would be neded more.

Bruce Caldwell was beside Jones, but he did not speak.

Crosby May Not Play

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Considerable doubt was expressed in Harvard football circles tonight as to whether Crosby, star backfield man, would be able to play in the game with Brown on Saturday. He is suffering from a leg injury received against Pennsylvania. French, Bell and Parker, also casualties of the Penn contest, were on hand at today's practice, but did not work.

Hockey Team In Wreck

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Five members of the Montreal Maroons, National Hockey league team, were pasengers on a Canadian National railways train, which was derailed today at Vanstone's Pond, between Landsdowne and Mallorytown. There were no injuries and the players reached Montreal later in the day no worse for their experience.

PLAINFIELD FIVE OPENS SEASON TONIGHT

Plainfield opens its basketball season tonight at the Community house with Fall River as the opposition. The Plainfield team will be strengthened this year by the addition of Whitey Bernot, well known scorer, who has appeared against the home team on several occasions with some of the fastest teams in New England. Whitey has played on such teams as Washington of the American Basketball league and the Boston Whirlwinds. Billie Schofield, former Connecticut Aggie star, and all collegiate forward, will also be seen in the Plainfield lineup. Eddie Nichols of Willimantic will also be given a tryout. These new men with Normandin, Madden, Stevens, Dissinger and Norris should form the fastest team ever to represent Plainfield.

Fall River, which has been seen here on several occasions, has always furnished good opposition for the home boys. Several new faces will also be seen in their lineup. The Marx Bros., well known, in basketball circles in this vicinity several years ago with Scotty Higgins, Bothroyd, McLeady and Dugan, will make up the visiting team.

The Buddies will play the Willimantic All Stars as a preliminary starting at 8 o'clock. As usual there will be dancing after the game.

ACADEMY CAN EXPECT DETERMINED OPPOSITION FROM BULKELEY TEAM

Bulkeley took a neat lacing over the week-end and the Academy strong-[illegible] supporters are fearful concerning the Academy-Bulkeley game Friday in New London. Which might appear strange to some, but the fact is that the loss of the New Londoners from their namesake in Hartford does not go well with N. F. A. well wishers.

For it will enhance that great enemy of good teams—overconfidence. Bulkeley has not scored this year in three games, losing five and playing two ties while the Academy has five to its for its best record thus far in the season in at least ten years. Therefore the Academy will enter this game as the most top-heavy favorite in a long time, probably since the two schools began clashing, and that is quite a while back.

Overconfidence has already ruined the Academy's chances for an undefeated season, their loss to Harding being attributed mainly to that cause. The boys waded through Chapman Tech and Westerly and had defeated Hartford in their three games previous to the Bridgeport clash. They had a better record before Harding was met, but the Presidents plowed through a weak line for most of the contest and got a 19 to 6 victory.

Since then the Academy has made very large strides on the comeback trail, defeating Wilby of Waterbury and Windham. They go into the Bulkeley game with a nice record, much better than last year's when Bulkeley was defeated, 6 to 0. Seventy-six points against 14 for the opposition is what they have done in six games, while in seven contests scoreless Bulkeley has yielded 97 points, probably the worst record on paper in the New England states.

But the cold facts probably do not tell of the hard luck the Orange and Black has run up against, of the hard schedule she has bucked and of the fact that she is pointing for this Academy game and nothing else.

These are a few reasons why the Academy supporters are wondering whether the events of the past week will have anything to do with the coming clash. The Academy, while letting the best claim on the eastern Connecticut title by defeating Windham Saturday, still has not clinched it. There are Bulkeley and Stonington yet to come.

For a little example of what overconfidence has done in an Academy-Bulkeley contest, local fandom is recalling the baseball game here in 1925 when the Orange and Black nine, rated far and wide as not only state champs but also the best in New England met its master for the only time of the season. And then last year in baseball the two close escapes that the state champion Academy nine had from Bulkeley are recalled.

These Academy-Bulkeley games are never decided on paper.

"Beat Bulkeley."

The "Beat Bulkeley" badges began to make their appearance on Academy students Tuesday as the major game of the Red and White season neared. School spirit, which had gone visiting the early part of the year, showed signs of returning in the Windham game when the largest number of students so far turned out to cheer the boys on. However, there is plenty of room for improvement and there seems no better time for said improvement than this coming game. The sidelines at Mercer field no doubt will be jammed and it should be a good number of this crowd will be cheering the Red and White.

Bits About The Six.

The Academy's and Bulkeley's second teams in cross country are slated to meet in New London Thursday.

The Academy-Bulkeley game Friday will be the first of its kind on brand new Mercer field.

DOLE STRESSES DEFENSE FOR AERIAL ATTACK

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 8.—Defensive play continues to be stressed in the camp of the Connecticut Aggies in preparation for the annual objective contest with Rhode Island State at Kingston next Saturday, and for the closing game of the year with Boston college to be played at Hartford November 19.

Coach Sumner A. Dole with Assistant Coach Paul E. Bitgood sent their charges through a long drill this afternoon in which particular emphasis was laid on defense against the forward pass. Most students of football agree that a team well versed in the use of the overhead attack can usually be depended upon to offer a strong defense against this same weapon, but it's not true of this year's Aggie eleven. Time and again opponents have worked forwards against the Aggies for substantial gains, Trinity in particular last Saturday at Hartford. Now, only four days before the Rhody game, the team is being worked to the utmost to improve its defense against forward passes. Rhode Island's attack is really her forward passing game, and it is this same mode of attack that is worrying the Connecticut coaches.

MARYLAND COMMISSION STANDS PAT ON SANDE

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Earl Sande today pleaded in vain with the Maryland racing commission for restoration of his jockey license revoked for alleged foul driving in the Pimlico futurity Friday.

Chairman James A. Lataine indicated Sande's suspension would continue indefinitely but would not be permanent. The noted jockey cried when he left the hearing.

He was accused of fouling Chick Lang riding Reigh Count, the favorite, in the fall classic. Sustaining charges of Pimlico officials the commission disregarded Sande's statement and the testimony of three jockeys competing in the race.

"You have come here and spoiled one of our principal stakes by your foul riding," Latine told Sande. "There is no question in my mind but that you are guilty just as you have been charged and I see no reason to change the decision at this time. We will give you careful consideration at the proper time."

HARVARD LEAVES ALL TO YALE AUTHORITIES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8—(AP)—Bruce Caldwell's eligibility at Yale has never been a matter of concern at Harvard and any decision that Yale athletic authorities make will be acceptable "with perfect faith" to Harvard, William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, said tonight.

In a statement issued before news reports from New Haven carried the information that the star Yale back would be barred from all further football competition at New Haven, Director Bingham said:

"I only heard of the matter of Caldwell through the evening papers. Emphatically, there was no thought of protest arising at Harvard, as underwhat is left of the old "triple agreement," (Harvard, Yale and Princeton) each college is left to decide its own questions of eligibility without interference from the others. Whatever the Yale authorities decide in regard to Caldwell will be accepted at Harvard with perfect faith."

PROVIDENCE WITHDRAWS INJUNCTION PETITION

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Bill Cunningham, president of the American Soccer league, tonight announced that the Providence club has withdrawn its proceedings to enjoin the league from enforcing a suspension on William Stevenson, goalie of the Providence team

Several weeks ago Providence obtained a temporary injunction and Stevenson was used in the lineup despite the rulings of the American Soccer league and the United States Football association.

The case would have been heard today in the federal court at Providence had not the injunction petition been withdrawn.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Dr L. P. Macklin, of St. Louis, national amateur three-cushion billiard champion, overtook Dr. A. J. Harris, of Chicago, challenger, in the second block of their match late today. Macklin scored 64 for a total of 100 as against Harris' 35 for a total of 83.

The game went 78 innings and Dr. Macklin had an unfinished run of 10 billiards.

The third and final block was scheduled tonight.

RUTH AND GEHRIG BACK FROM BARNSTORMING TRIP

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(AP)— Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig were back in New York today with their pockets full of new records and cash after a three weeks tour of the country as baseball's "greatest show on earth."

The famous Yankee home run twins and their act, made up of good-natured kidding and horse-play interspersed with high-powered samples of heavy-hitting, traveled 8,000 miles, played before 220,000 persons—mostly kids—and autographed 5,000 baseballs.

Of the 21 games in 20 cities in nine states from Rhode Island to California 13 were broken up before the ninth inning by youthful admirers, schools were closed for the occasion in San Jose, Marysville and Sacramento, California. This traveling two-ring circus played in Rhode Island, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado, and California. Offers for 39 editional games were received from 19 states by Christy Walsh, who handled the tour.

Attendance records went by the board at nearly every stop At Sioux City, Iowa, 6,000 persons packed the stands despite the fact baseball had been so dead there that the team was dropped from the western league.

The exhibition at Wrigley Field, Los Angeles, which was sponsored by the American Legion, drew 30,000 persons, the largest crowd of the tour.

Pitching to each other much of the time, Babe and Lou, came out even in hitting success. Ruth led in homers but Gehrig had the better batting average, the same situation which prevailed in the regular playing season.

Gehrig's batting average for the tour was .618 with 89 times at bat, 55 hits, and 13 home runs.

Ruth's Mark was .616 with 99 times up, 61 hits and 20 circuit slams.

Ruth who started his big league career in the box went back to it and pitched 57 innings, playing Gehrig's position, first base, the rest of the time.

Gehrig pitched 40 innings, played right field in three games and first base the rest of the time.

Ruth and Gehrig both got home runs with the bases full. In one game Lou struck out Babe with three men on.

"Babe and I played hard in every game and the fans seemed to appreciate it," said Lou on his return. "Both of us are still wearing bandages from sliding. Yes, naturally I hope to get more money from the Yankees next year but I know Colonel Ruppert will do the right thing. In the meantime I'll do a little fishing and hunting and help my mother get settled in our new home."

"Lou just acted like a kid on his first trip away from the folk," grinned "Babe". "About myself—well I'm all set for an easy winter. I feel like loafing for a change."

HARVARD DROPS BROWN FROM FOOTBALL SLATE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8.—(AP)—The reasons which prompted the Harvard-Princeton athletic break a year ago were recalled today when the 1928 Harvard football schedule was released for publication. There were four of them—the Army, Lehigh, North Carolina and Springfield. All will appear in the stadium next fall taking the places occupied on this year's schedule by Brown, Purdue, Indiana and Vermont.

One of the most striking changes is the disappearance of the Brown game which by means of its location for years between the Princeton and Yale encounters led it into the undesirable "fixture" class, first as a "filler" between the so-called "big three" contests, and later as much too steep an obstacle to encounter the week before the objective Yale game.

The 1928 Harvard schedule as compared with this year's follows:

	1927	1928
Oct. 6	Vermont	Springfield
Oct. 13	Purdue	North Carolina
Oct. 20	Holy Cross	Army
Oct 27	Dartmouth	Dartmouth
Nov 3	Indiana	Lehigh
Nov 10	Pennsylvania	Pennsylvania
Nov. 17	Brown	Holy Cross
Nov. 24	Yale	Yale at New Haven

"SPIDER" KELLEY'S FUNERAL IS LARGELY ATTENDED

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Friends from the rich and the poor walks of life paid tribute to "Spider" Kelly, one-time ring idol, at his funeral here today. He was buried in the city to which he came 40 years ago, a lad of 15, to begin a colorful career that brought him fame in the boxing profession.

James Patrick Curtin, as "Spider" Kelly, reached the heights in boxing, first as a fighter, later as a trainer, manager, and second of champions.

After requiem high mass at St. Mary's cathedral, the casket containing Kelly's body was taken to a cemetery to rest next to his mother, dead 20 years, and his father who passed away two years ago.

Kelly died in Rochester, Minn., last week.

QUENALO, A LONG SHOT, WINS HELPFUL STAKES

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Quenalo, a long shot, owned by Larry Waterbury, won by half a length from S. Ross' Cloudy, the favorite, in capturing the $3,000 Helpful States, two-year old feature at the Pimlico race track today. Scotch and Soda of the Sagmore stable was third. A bad start was responsible for Cloudy's downfall. The victor paid $27.80 for a $2 ticket. The six furlongs were run in 1:13 2-5.

Miss Fire was home first in the fourth race at Latonia, a $1,500 claiming event for two-year-olds over the six furlong route. Sweet Way took the place with Mary Hume next. The time was 1:15.

PRINCETON EXPRESSES ITS REGRETS TO YALE

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8—(AP)—Princeton Athletic association, following receipt of unofficial report that Bruce Caldwell, Yale halfback, would not be eligible to play against Princeton, issued the following statement:

"Princeton Athletic authorities, in the absence of official information as to facts, are unwilling to comment upon the Caldwell case, but express greatest regret at the news."

Leaders of the student body expressed the hope that Caldwell would be declared eligible for the Princeton game.

BRUCE CALDWELL BARRED FROM FURTHER PARTICIPATION IN YALE FOOTBALL

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Bruce Caldwell, Yale's brilliant halfback candidate for All-American honors, tonight was declared forever ineligible to represent Yale in football.

Caldwell's disqualification because of his newly discovered participation in two football games as a freshman at Brown university in 1923 was announced tonight by the board of control of athletics at Yale university through Prof. George T. Nettleton, chairman.

The action was obligatory in accordance with the "transfer rule" agreed to by Yale, Harvard and Princeton in 1923 by which any student who has participated in sport at another institution is ineligible to represent either of the "big three" in the same branch of athletics. It does not bar Caldwell from baseball in which he is a star at second base.

Until today—just four days before the Princeton game in which Caldwell's services were expected to prove invaluable—officials at Yale had no inkling of the impending loss of their star.

Caldwell, it appeared, had no knowledge of the rule and did not know he was breaking it in playing varsity football for three years. Winning his letter in the Harvard game of 1925, Caldwell was out most of last season with injuries but until today was riding the crest of football greatness with his grid career reaching its peak in his senor year. The end of it came with dramatic suddenness today when the Providence, R. I. Bulletin published the facts of Caldwell's football playing at Brown in a past which otherwise was forgotten.

CALDWELL UNABLE TO SPEAK AS HE HEARS FATE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Fact outdid the fiction of the juvenile thriller tonight when young Bruce Caldwell, meteoric halfback of Yale, was barred forever from Eli football with the Princeton game but four days away.

At one dramatic stroke which brought to light Caldwell's participation in two games as a freshman at Brown university in 1923, in violation of Yale's eligibility rules, the great career of the youthful backfield flash, was cut down in full stride.

What soaring ambitions of youth for all-American fame and for the glory of a great success against Princeton went crumbling into dust when the 21-year-old halfback learned of his disqualification at the practice field late this afternoon, only Caldwell knew. Downcast, he turned away and could not speak.

Caldwell himself was as surprised as anyone at the revelation and its consequences which came with the suddenness of a bombshell in Yale's athletic midst.

Yes, it was true, he said. He had played for Brown once—years ago—when he entered and stayed but a short time. It seemed an unimportant episode and he hadn't known it mattered. A student—even an athlete—often knows little of diplomatic agreements with other institutions on such points. So Caldwell played three years with the varsity, winning his letter against Harvard in 1925, being handicapped by an early season injury last year, and reaching the climax of his career this fall with an exhibition of all-around backfield play that set sport lovers throughout the country to marvelling.

With loss of Caldwell, Yale's stock took a decided slump with indications the shift will make Princeton a favorite for the classic game which this year must have an important bearing on the eastern championship situation.

Even more evident than the general dismay at the loss of the ball carrying, passing and kicking wizard was a genuine sympathy for Caldwell and his thwarted hopes that prevailed tonight among the students who went to classes with him.

Coach "Tad" Jones, tight-lipped and philosophical, used both of Caldwell's understudies in practice. Garvey, at Caldwell's left halfback post, made two touchdowns from scrimmage on the 25-yard line against the scrubs and Hammersley added another. Both will be ready to try to fill Caldwell's shoes against Princeton.

Yale officials were prompt to verify the information as to Caldwell as published by the Providence, R. I., Bulletin today and to act accordingly.

"All there was to do was to read the rule and look at the facts," said J. Frederick Baker, lawyer and unofficial member of all Yale athletic conferences.

"I went out to the field to tell Caldwell how sorry I was. It broke him up pretty badly. He's a young fellow in rather modest personal circumstances, who came here from a small high school instead of a big prep school, and kept well up in his studies besides playing football and baseball. This won't keep him out of baseball, by the way. I understand he only played football at Brown. He's a star second baseman. But the sport he loved was football."

Caldwell, who weighs 175 pounds, hails from Ashton, R. I. His disbarment from Yale football was announced in a statement by Prof George H. Nettleton, chairman of the board of control of the Yale Athletic association, pointing out Caldwell's "evident misapprehension as to the full import of the rule.

The rule, announced as follows, was agreed to by the "big three" in 1923 and with the Harvard-Princeton break was incorporated by Yale in dual agreements with Harvard and Princeton:

"Any student who transfers to Harvard, Yale or Princeton from another college or university after this agreement goes into effect shall be ineligible to represent Harvard, Yale or Princeton in any sport in which he represented his former college or university on any university or freshman team while playing against opponents not members of that institution."

CALDWELL'S PARENTS HAVE LITTLE TO SAY ABOUT BOY

ASHTON, R. I., Nov. 8—(AP)—This little village is stunned tonight by the news that Bruce "Skit" Caldwell has been declared ineligible to play for Yale in the big game against Princeton Saturday. Caldwell's meteoric work on the gridiron has made him the idol of his friends and relatives here.

Visibly shaken by the announcement Robert Caldwell, Bruce's father, had little to say, except to comfort himself with the statement that Bruce will finish his college course.

"I'm sorry for the boy," Mr. Caldwell said, "but he will have to thrash the matter out for himself. If he has been playing ball contrary to the rules it is too bad, and he will have to fight it out, but I have nothing to say."

Mr. Caldwell declared Bruce went to Yale to get an education and to get into college life.

Mrs. Caldwell, Bruce's mother, who is working with Mr. Caldwell in a textile mill to help send the boy to college, could only say, "I'm sorry. It's too bad."

Princeton Has Not Acted

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Princeton has not taken up the question of the eligibility of Bruce Caldwell with the Yale nor has there been any exchange of information on the status of the crack Eli halfback, according to authorities here.

YALE STUDENTS STAGE A WILD DEMONSTRATION

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8—(AP)—Keyed to a high pitch of excitement over the loss of Bruce Caldwell from the football line-up, the entire undergraduate body at Yale staged a wild demonstration of confidence in the prowess of their team here tonight.

Cheering and shouting continued so long in front of the Yale club, where the squad was eating, that Coach Tad Jones came to the door and asked the students to save some of their enthusiasm for the game Saturday when it would be neded more.

Bruce Caldwell was beside Jones, but he did not speak.

Crosby May Not Play

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Considerable doubt was expressed in Harvard football circles tonight as to whether Crosby, star backfield man, would be able to play in the game with Brown on Saturday. He is suffering from a leg injury received against Pennsylvania. French, Bell and Parker, also casualties of the Penn contest, were on hand at today's practice, but did not work.

Hockey Team In Wreck

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Five members of the Montreal Maroons, National Hockey league team, were passengers on a Canadian National railways train, which was derailed today at Vanstone's Pond, between Landsdowne and Mallorytown. There were no injuries and the players reached Montreal later in the day no worse for their experience.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

THE DEMAND FOR WHEAT FROM NORTH AMERICA SLACKENED SOME YESTERDAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—(AP)—Wheat prices turned weak at the last, showing stubborn resistance earlier. Improved weather conditions in Argentina gave some advantage to the bear side of the market and so likewise did slackness of export demand for wheat from North America, together with talk of probably further shipments of wheat to Chicago out of Duluth.

Final quotations on wheat were heavy, 1-4c to 1c net lower, whereas corn closed 1c to 1 1-8c up, oats showing 1-2 to 1 1-8c advance and provisions varying from 30c decline to a rise of 7c.

Late downturns in wheat values at Duluth tended to emphasize likelihood that considerable of the stock of wheat there would be brought to this city. At the same time, extremely optimistic unofficial crop estimates from Canada were in circulation. These estimates put the 1927 Canadian yield at materially above 500,000,000 bushels, an amount much in excess of preliminary government figures.

Data developed independent strength as a result of sharp decreases in stocks here and elsewhere. Sales of 1,000,000 bushels to be put into store in Chicago, were announced, though, as the day drew to an end.

For the most party, provisions were easy owing to lower quotations on hogs.

Influenced by predictions of rain or snow over a wide area and by disappointing returns from husking as well as by smallness of country offerings, corn prices rose today to more than 4c over last week's low level.

Simple Home Recipe For Bad Stomach Gives Swift Relief

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles — Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this good advice.

Artificial digestants and starvation diets are seldom needed. Within reason, most folks may eat what they like, if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion. And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a little Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless form of Magnesia that swiftly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A few days' trial of Bisurated Magnesia (powder or tablets), which any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that fully 90% of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary. Try Bisurated Magnesia today!

Stops wondering when I would find relief.

TRUCKMAN'S SUIT TRIED IN COMMON PLEAS COURT

The civil action of Rosario Perrone, New London truckman, against Turello Bros., contractors, was on trial in the court of common pleas at New London Monday with Attorney Morris Lubchansky, representing the plaintiff and Attorney Philip Z. Hankey, the defendant.

The suit arose over a bill for trucking and for sand, gravel, filling dirt and loam, which the plaintiff claims is due him.

The defendant offered to agree to a plaintiff's judgment in the amount of $256.33, claiming that he admitted that Perrone did the trucking and furnished the above described materials to the amount of $762.50 but claiming that the balance unpaid called for but $256.33.

MYSTIC

The attendance at the morning service in Union Baptist church was unusually large to hear Rev. Samuel G. Neal, D. D., of Philadelphia. Mrs. J. W. Johnson sang a solo. Dr Neal assisted in the communion service and spoke to the Sunday school. At the evening service, nearly every seat was filled and many were in the gallery. William Cinchru, Robert Vennard, Dand MacKensie and Robert Thompson, in the kilts of a Scotchman, acted as ushers and took up the collection. Dr. Neal's sermon was a message of Robert Burns to young men. He made a fervent plea for the young to live a clean, honest, upright, christian life. Several were present from Westerly, Stonington, Noank, and Old Mystic.

In the Mystic-Noank library is a book which contains all the names of the Sons of the American Revolution in Washington, D. C., at the time it was published. It was presented by Dr. Ira Warren Denison, a former Mystic boy, son of the late Hiram Clift Denison and Eliza Almira Miner Denison, of Mystic. Mr. Denison has been a member about 35 years; his district number is 43b, and national number, 6,935. He is an active member and a prominent physician.

Mrs. W. Ray Lewis, of New London, visited her aunt, Mrs. E. V. Whiting, last week. Mrs. Lewis has just returned from a trip to Florida.

The newly formed Parent-Teacher association of West Mystic Grammar school, is to meet Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Trulock B. Hatheway, of Bridgeport, spent the week-end with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Foote.

Mrs. C. E. Newbury, who is spending the winter in New London, called on Misses Clara S. and Emily V. Murphy Saturday.

The heavy rain of last Thursday night caused some cellars to have water in some cases, a depth of ten inches, putting out the fire in the heaters.

PLAINFIELD

SIXTH ANNUAL SOCIAL HELD BY THE LINCOLN CLUB

The sixth annual ladies' night of the Lincoln club of the First Congregational church of Plainfield was held Monday evening in Grange hall, Pachaug. A large and enthusiastic gathering sat at tables spread with a bountiful supper prepared by the sisters of Pachaug Grange. After the delightful fellowship in the dining hall, the company gathered in the hall on the second floor and a most interesting program was rendered, announced by the president of the club, Elmer Greene. A skit with musical numbers by the Lincoln Quartet, entitled, Bachelors and Benedicts, which brought forth a hearty applause. The quartet consisted of Christopher Krauss, Sidney Mathewson, James Royle, and Ray Greene, with Alfred Royle at the piano. Mrs. Carl Gallup gave a delightful reading by request and responded to encore; a piano duet followed, by Misses Helen Greene and Helen Krauss, Miss Greene being the daughter of the president; Everett E. Brown and Mrs. Beacher Brown appeared as Erastus and Mandy in a comedy sketch which received hearty applause. President Greene presented the speaker and guest of the evening, Dr. Henry K. Dolinger, a member of the faculty at Connecticut Agricultural college. The speaker took for his subject, The New Individualism, and at once gained the close and appreciative attention of his audience. The address abounded in wit and humor and was an able presentation of the newer interpretation of American life of today, showing the result of keen and analytical thought, full of apt illustration and rich personal experience. The audience was enthusiastic, for Dr. Dolinger delivered one of the ablest addresses ever given before the club.

The orchestra, Mr. Morey at the piano, Tyler Gilbert, violin, Wilfred Lamothe, drums, Emile Arseneault, banjo, played popular selections and also played for the dance with Joe Shippie prompter, which completed the enjoyable evening. Cecil Butler made a motion seconded by Walter Lathrop calling for a rising vote of appreciation in behalf of the speaker, the entertainers and the sisters of the Grange. Guests of the evening were Rev. and Mrs. Giles F. Goodenough of Jewett City, William H. Selley, superintendent of the Lawton Mills and Mrs. Selley, and Mr. and Mrs. Turner Greene. Tickets were in charge of the committee: Elmer Greene and William Hall. Free transportation was arranged for by Charles Kenyon and Milton Winsor.

Miss Agnes Bourdeau has returned to her home in Gilbertville, Mass., after spending a week with her sister, Mrs. N. Vaillant.

Mr. and Mrs. Dragon and daughter, Olive, of Baltic, spent the week-end in Plainfield.

Mr. Gauthier had his brother from Jewett City as a week-end guest.

Mr. Gagne of Baltic spent the week-end with Mr. Vegine.

Miss Louise Cote is very ill at her home.

Miss Elsie Currier entertained a number of friends at a birthday party Saturday evening.

Mr. Arthur Lyons, who went to England recently to be married, is expected to return with his bride soon.

In the last 125 years no mayor of New York city has served three consecutive terms.

DOUBLE WEDDING AT GROTON BRIDES' HOME

A double wedding was solemnized Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfton Crouch, in the Pleasant Valley road, Groton. Elsie L. Crouch became the bride of Thelmer Riffle, a marine attached to the submarine base, and Francina J. Crouch was married to Herbert G. Wheeler, a submarine base sailor. The ceremonies were performed by the Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church.

Elsie Crouch, and Thelmer Riffle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Riffle of Tulsa, Okla., were married first, and her sister and Mr. Wheeler were the bridesmaid and best man respectively. Francina Crouch, and Herbert G. Wheeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noble Wheeler of Brooklyn, Ia., were then married and Mr. and Mrs. Riffle were their attendants.

Are You Driving A 1908 Model?

It would be quite a curiosity to see your best friends driving along the avenue in an automobile that dated back to 1908—or on the other hand picture yourself at the wheel of such a vehicle. Yet in its day, this car was the most attractive conveyance of the year. Like motor cars, furniture styles are constantly changing, too. If the furnishings of your home were placed on display in a similar way, many pieces would have been discarded with this old automobile.

1928 Furniture Styles On Display

Each season brings new furniture styles—new designs that far surpass all previous creations. 1928 styles are different. They are graceful and have left the massive styles of yesterday in the background. We have searched the country's leading markets, carefully inspected the designs of prominent manufacturers and have selected only furniture of modern design and beauty for our displays.

Accept this as your personal invitation to visit the finest showing of furniture styles ever displayed in Eastern Connecticut. As you browse through our displays, you will note how easily a few pieces added to each room in your home will transform the interior into an up-to-date, modern home.

THE LOWEST PRICED SEDAN in DODGE BROTHERS HISTORY

America loves speed and here is her fastest Four.

America loves luxury and here is her finest Four.

America, when she starts, likes to start like a rocket and here is a car that asks but 7 seconds, through gears, to register 25 miles per hour.

Above all, America admires smartness, when value is not sacrificed to achieve it, and here style and stamina bid equally for your faith and favor.

A sturdy car, commodious yet compact, built from bumper to bumper the good Dodge way.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Wednesday.

Wallace Beery and Raymond Hattoe in "Now We're In The Air" complete a most successful engagement at the Broadway theatre tonight. Only Beery and Hatton could appear to advantage in such ridiculous situations as they do in this production. Here is a comedy that has everything, good photography, good direction and capable stars. The large audiences at the Broadway theatre have been convulsed with laughter at every performance. Those who have not already seen "Now We're in the Air" should avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing it this afternoon or tonight.

One of the most thrilling love stories that ever became a best seller has been made into a vivid melodramatic picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under the title of "Body and Soul," and will be shown at the Broadway theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The screen play was adapted from Katharine Newlin Burt's famous novel, "The Branding Iron," and features Aileen Pringle, Norman Kerry, Lionel Barrymore and T. Roy Barnes.

Set amid the impressive scenery of the Swiss Alps, it tells the tale of a peasant maid who marries a human derelict out of gratitude and then unwittingly arouses his jealousy to such a pitch that he brands her body with a white-hot iron so ad men may know she is his.

Palace Theatre.

One of the biggest vaudeville attractions to play Norwich in years is part of the vaudeville program for the last three days of the week, commencing Thursday. Direct from the leading circuits comes the Clinton-Rooney Revue. At the head of this act is Miss Julia Rooney, a daughter of the late Pat Rooney and a sister of the present Pat Rooney. Miss Rooney assisted by her own band does some very clever impersonations of the dances that made her father and brother world famous. Other features on the bill include the Fremont Benton company in a comedy playlet, entitled "Rights." Huber and Francis entertain in bits of hits. The Golden Girls, offer a wide range of song numbers both popular and classic. The surprise act on the bill is Leighton of whom nothing is known.

Featured on the screen are Shirley Mason, Richard Arlen, Alec B. Francis, and Paul Panzer in a story of life in the New York tenements, titled "Sally in Our Alley." An international aspect is given to the theme showing four nationalities in a series of mix-ups. This picture should delight the hearts of all movie lovers.

Strand Theatre.

"Money to Burn" is one of the wonderful features to be shown at the Strand on Wednesday and Thursday nights. It is a delightful romance with Malcom McGregor heading the cast in the role of Dan Stone, a young doctor who saves Dorothy Devore, a charming senorita from an unwelcome marriage.

The western drama "White Pebbles" with Wally Wales and Olive Hasbrouck, furnishes plenty of thrills. Wally saves Olive's ranch and only after he has cleared himself of a murder charge does the romance end with the adorable heroine in the arms of her rescuer.

Professor Rich, late of the Baltimore Symphony orchestra, conducts the orchestra.

NEW LONDON COMPLETING PLANS FOR PARADE ON ARMISTICE DAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 8.—All arrangements have been completed for the Armistice day parade here Friday when many military and civic organizations will participate. While the parade will be a large one it will not be so great as that which will take place next year when the tenth anniversary of the ending of the world war will be celebrated on a mammoth scale. The parade this year will form on Bank street, passing through Bank to State to Huntington, to Broad street, to Cedar Grove and St. Mary's cemeteries, where patriotic services will be conducted. A platoon of police will head the parade and every officer who can be spared from day duty, together with the members of the night force, will lead the marchers. All traffic on Bank street, between Tilley and State streets, all of State street and on Broad street, between State and Channing streets, will be suspended for an hour prior to the start of the march, so that there will be no interference along the line of the parade.

WINDSHIELD WIPER NOW IS REQUIRED BY LAW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 8.—The first prosecution of its kind occurred when Fred Dunn, a carpenter residing on Fifth avenue, was presented up a charge of violation of the state motor vehicle laws. The specific charge was driving an automobile that was not equipped with a windshield wiper. He was fined $10 and costs. Dunn was detected driving his automobile without the device last night by State Police Officer Peter Busch of Groton barracks, who ordered Dunn into court. Although the law has been in effect a long time it was not until last night that an arrest for its violation here was made, so it would appear that the state police intend to compel the enforcement of this particular requirement.

CONDUCTOR GEO. F. ROWLAND DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 8.—George F. Rowland, 78, veteran conductor in the passenger service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, died this morning at his residence, 30 Harris court. He is survived by his wife, three sons, Reginald Ellsworth and Leonard Rowland, all of this city and by a daughter, Mrs. Fred Gates, of Hartford. He was a member of Brainard lodge of Masons, Beulah lodge, New England Order of Protection; the Order of Railroad Conductors and the First Baptist church. Mr. Rowland was born in Lyme and was employed by the railroad nearly 50 years, having been retired several years ago. Mr. Rowland's health had been impaired a long time. For many years Mr. Rowland was conductor of passenger trains between New London and New Haven.

Ernest Wise of Noank, and John Crawford, of 321 Huntington street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Faustine Tiglao, 108 Howard street, was in the police court today charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs. Tiglao was driving on State street last night and his driving was so uncertain that Patrolmen Michael Dorsey and Carlos Selesnitsky held the driver up and it showed that he was intoxicated.

Edward McInnis, 36 West Colt street, charged with violation of the city's parking laws, failed to present himself in court and his bond of $5 was declared forfeited. McInnis was ordered into court yesterday afternoon by Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh when the officer discovered the automobile parked in restricted area on Howard street.

An automobile driven by Charles J. O'Connor, 36 Garfield avenue, and an auto driven by Andrew Patterson, 649 Main street, collided this morning at the junction of Bank and Truman streets. Both machines were damaged, but none of the occupants were injured.

The funeral of Miss Ethel Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Miller, of 24 Lenox street, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles R. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

George Hester, of Quaker Hill, formerly of New London, was in New London yesterday. Mr. Hester suffered a shock several years ago and since then he seldom comes to town, but he remains at his home practically all the time.

Miss Harriet Emmerich has returned to her home on Connecticut avenue, having spent several days in New York. Miss Emmerich made the trip by automobile.

Many New Londoners will go to New Haven Saturday to witness the football game between Yale and Princeton, while another crowd of followers of the gridiron will go to New York and witness the Army-Notre Dame contest at the Polo grounds.

The continued case of Elie Saferda, 21, of Central Falls, R. I., was again continued when it was called in the police court today, the latest continuance being until the 25th inst. Saferda was the driver of an automobile on Ocean avenue Oct. 26 when he collided with another car and then overturned causing serious injury to one of the passengers, Charles McSoud, also of Central Falls. The latter is a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital where he was taken, believed to have been fatally injured. McSoud's condition is improving, but it will be at least two or three weeks before he is discharged. The automobile had been to Ocean beach where a Syrian affair was in progress. Saferda and his friend had started for the return trip and when near Glenwood avenue the auto sideswiped another auto, causing the Saferda auto to leave the macadam surface and overturn.

Another store entrance was found unlocked this morning Patrolman Edward Riordan discovered the door of the J. Wallin tailoring establishment unlocked and with the keys in the door. Officer Riordan locked the door and took the keys to police headquarters.

The police today rounded up a group of boys suspected of having entered the store of Harry Plomaritis, 128 Willetts avenue, last Saturday night when a quantity of candy and about $2.25 was taken from the cash register. The boys obtained entrance by climbing through a rear window which Plomaritis had forgotten to lock when he closed the store for the night.

The residence of Mrs. Charles A. Sackett, 100 Glenwood avenue, was threatened with serious damage by fire last night. The fire in the chimney caused from an overheated fire-place was discovered by Mrs. Sackett, who was alone in the house. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and the Pequot Hose company responded. The firemen went to the roof and combatted the fire with chemicals. The damage was trivial.

Attorney Jacob Sherb, son of Mrs Annie Sherb and Miss Bessie Levin, daughter of Mrs. Mary Levin, Ocean avenue, were married last Saturday night by Rev. Aaron D. Baruch, 563 Williams street. The bride until recently was employed by the Central Vermont railroad.

William Smetter, of New York, and Miss Lillian Socol, daughter of Mrs. Eva Socol, 35 Denison avenue, were married Sunday night at Ohave Sholem synagogue, Bitnman street, by Rabbi Schwartz and Cantor Delatitsky. Fred Smetter, brother of the groom was best man and Miss Annie Socol, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Miss Socol's bridesmaid were Misses Minnie Camasser, Shirley Baigrad, Celia Dean, Lillian Weinstein, Fannie Socol and Beatrice Socol. Mr. and Mrs. Smetter will reside in New York upon the conclusion of a wedding trip.

Emil Smith, 58 Smith street, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was discharged today.

At a meeting of the warden and burgesses of the town of Groton last night it was voted to accept the 750-gallon American LaFrance pumper, which is to be used by Pioneer Hose company. The pumper was purchased last October when a special borough meeting voted an appropriation of $12,500 for the fire-fighting apparatus. Since the pumper arrived in the borough it has been given two underwriters' tests, which proved satisfactory and it was after the tests had been approved by the underwriters that the bocough officials decided to accept it. The borough highway committee also reported that all sidewalk work had been completed for the year. This work included the construction of concrete walks on Eastern Point road, Warner street, Monument street and Shore avenue.

There was a large attendance of members at the meeting of Brainard lodge of Masons tonight. District Deputy Courtland R. Darrow was present and conducted an inspection. The entered apprentice degree was also conferred upon a class of candidates. Refreshments were served after the initiation and transaction of routine business.

A change in the schedule of the ferryboat Mohican has been made and it is doubtful if it will meet the approval of patrons of the boat. Heretofore the last trip from New London was made at 11 o'clock, but now this trip is made at 10:30 o'clock. The last trip from Groton to New London is made at 10:55 and previously it was made at 11:05 o'clock. The change means that many patrons of the motion picture houses and theatres will be compelled to use trolley cars or automobiles in order to get back to Groton.

The Tall Cedars of Lebanon conducted a dance in the state armory tonight which was attended by a large crowd of diversion seekers.

The temperature last night was the lowest of the fall, the mercury registering as low as 30. In most locations the registration was 24 or 26 degrees.

George Kalogine has been confined to his home on Golden street by an infection of the toe, but that member has so far improved now that Mr Kalogine is able to walk on the disabled foot.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Reeves have returned to Riverview avenue, having spent a week in Washington.

Attorney and Mrs. Frank Daley have returned to their home, New Haven, after having spent two days with friends in New London.

Miss Hazel Craddock, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Craddock of Washington street, and Cornelius G. Heffernan, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Heffernan of Groton, were united in marriage at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church at 8 o'clock this morning. Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley solemnized the marriage. The attendants were Miss Margaret Connors and David Hoare of this city. The bride was dressed in liberty blue satin crepe, with hat to match, and carried white chrysanthemums. Her bridesmaid wore a tan costume and carried yellow chrysanthemums. A reception to members of the families was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 389 Thames street, Groton, after the ceremony. The bride received many handsome gifts. Following an automobile trip, Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan will make their home at 198 Lincoln avenue. Mr. Heffernan is manager of the Atlantic & Pacific store at Old Lyme and is a member of Russo's orchestra.

NORWICH TOWN

The November meeting of Norwich Round Table, in existence nearly fifty years, was held with the president, Edwin A. Tracy and Mrs. Tracy, Tuesday evening, at their home 24 Scotland road, Norwich Town. Between thirty and forty members were present. President Tracy presided at the interesting meeting. The paper of the evening "Eating to Live," was prepared and read by Dr. Albert C. Freeman. This was followed by intermission, during which the hostess served refreshments. When the meeting was again formally opened, Miss Jennie L. Congdon gave a reading entitled "O' Doctor, Doctor," by Harry Leon Wilson.

The special meeting of the Norwich Town club of New London County Home and Farm bureau brought together a company of fifteen Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Arthur Fulton. A demonstration on millinery was given by Mrs. Belle H. J. Robynson, of Gales Ferry, who is sent out from Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs.

The afternoon's work was preceded by a basket luncheon. Mrs. Fulton served dinner to the demonstrator, also provided for the club members and guests whipped cream, cake and coffee. Eleven felt hats were made and two hats were remodeled.

Others present included the president, Mrs. William Weaver, Mrs. William H. Whiteman, Mrs. Wellington Miner, Mrs. Albert G. Miner, Mrs. Everette Rogers, Miss Florence Browning, Mrs. Ernest Washington, Mrs. James Ringland, and Mrs. Robert Stott, members of Norwich Town club, also from the Franklin club, Mrs. Donald Bullard and daughter, Miss Doris Bullard, Mrs. LaValley and Mrs. Albert Birdsie prospective members of the U. T. C. were guests.

Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, president of the Home Missionary society of the First Congregational church, has given out notice that Thursday afternoon in the chapel the society is to pack a Christmas box to be sent to Miss Ruth Beebe and her pupils at Trinity school, Athens, Alabama. The same afternoon members of the society will pack a box of clothing for Frederick J. Werking, for the school of which he is principal at Atlanta, Georgia. The missionary society is appealing to the citizens to contribute as liberally as possible of warm clothing and other gifts. These may be left at the Congregational chapel Thursday preparatory to the work of packing the boxes.

It is most gratifying to friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Fred D. Millard of New Jersey, formerly Gladys Belle Beebe, that she is convalescing so satisfactorily following serious illness the past few weeks in Backus hospital.

Having been confined to the house for a number of weeks with an infected foot, Mrs. William Randall Lathrop is as comfortable as can be expected at her home on Scotland road. She is now able and pleased to receive calls from friends.

At her home on Tanner avenue Friday evening, the teacher, Mrs. Carlos Ricker entertained the C. I. C's, an organized class of young women of the First Congregational Sunday school. This also was the November meeting with Eva present. There was the initiation of a member, Miss Margaret Connolly, of Sentry Hill, who lately moved to Norwich Town from Saybrook. Apples and pop-corn were served by Mrs. Ricker. During the evening election of class officers resulted as follows: President, Miss Eleanor Smith, secretary, Miss Lucile Browning; treasurer, Miss Grace Wheeler. Committees elected—Social, Miss Margaret Connolly, chairman; Misses Grace Wheeler, Rose Durr and Lucile Browning; service, Miss Victoria St. Martin, chairman; and Misses Louise Avery, Dorothy Heath and Mrs. Elton Odgers.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Quinn of Elm avenue, leave this (Wednesday) morning to pass the next few years in New York. During their absence, their son, Master Richard Quinn Jr., will visit his grandmother, Mrs. Henry Butler, also his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Sabourin, of Town street.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

FARM OWNER FIGHTS CASE AGAINST HIGHWAY DEPT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Nov. 8—In the local police court room today Judge John K. Beach, acting as state referee, heard the appeal of John Rockwell from the decision of the highway commissioner in reference to damages to his property. Mr. Rockwell claimed that the building of the Stafford Union highway was a substantial damage to his property. A little less than four acres of land was taken by the state. Mr. Rockwell's claim, however, was caused by a deep cut in the highway running between his house and barn. Benjamin Arnold who has had charge of the Rockwell property for the past fifteen years testified that the value of the place before the road was built was about $12,000 and that the value after the state highway was constructed was not more than $9,000. There was always a pretty good highway from Stafford Springs to Rockwell hill where this property is located. John M. Larned, chairman of the board of assessors for the town of Stafford, placed the damage at $2500. Daniel Avery, a farmer and lumber dealer living in West Stafford, estimated that the farm today would not sell for more than $7000 and that in his opinion before the road was built, it was worth from $10,000 to $12,000. Charles H. Moore a local lumber dealer and retail coal merchant, followed Mr. Avery on the witness stand; Attorney Carpenter, counsel for the highway department, objected to having Mr. Moore testify, as he claimed he had not qualified as a real estate expert. After some discussion by the attorneys as to Mr. Moore's qualification, Judge Beach permitted Mr. Moore's testimony to go in, it was to the effect that the building of the road had decreased the value of the Rockwell property to the extent of $1,000; Richard Murray, a real estate agent, said that he had sold several farms in this vicinity during the past few years and that the depreciation of the Rockwell farm above the benefits by reason of building the new road was at least $500; Ernest K. Taft, another member of the Stafford board of assessors, placed the depreciation in excess of benefits, at $2,000. John W. Armitage of Ashford, estimated the damage at $3,000 and Edward A. Jacobsen at $1500; George Towne, formerly a civil engineer and new street commissioner in the borough of Stafford Springs, said that in his opinion the value of the farm prior to building the new road was $12,000 and that its present value is $11,000 less; Robert M. Stevens, of Hartford, engineer for the state highway department, explained the grade in the road now and as it was before the new road was built. He thought the road from Stafford Springs to Rockville hill a poor road, especially in the spring and fall, he admitted that the new road was considerably lower than the old one in front of the Rockwell house. Holcomb R. Howard, town clerk of Union, testified that in his opinion the benefit to the property by reason of the new state highway exceeds the damage. Wallace Goodhall, of Eastford, testified that in his opinion the property does not look so well now as before the state highway was built. He thought, however, that the benefits on account of the state highway would fully equal the depreciation caused by taking the land and the cut in front of house and barn. Attorney J. W. Carpenter of Hartford represented the highway department and Attorneys Robert J. Fiek and M. D. O'Connell of Stafford Springs appeared for Mr. Rockwell. Judge Beach allowed the attorneys one week within which to file briefs.

BALTIC

After expensive repairing and cleaning, the theatre has re-opened its doors under new management, Mr. Roderick Jodoin having leased it. Mrs. Edgar Caron has been employed to furnish music.

Mr. J. Maurice of Little Flats, who has spent his vacation in Canada, got stranded in Sherbrook, on account of the heavy rainfall and overflowing rivers.

Francis Lynn of High street has returned from a trip to California.

FOUR BRIDGES ARE CHIEF LOSS IN CONNECTICUT

With some reasonable exceptions state highway roads in all counties excluding Hartford and Middlesex, are passable and according to present estimates damage to the highways and bridges will not exceed $50,000. These announcements were made by the state highway department in its check-up on road conditions. Conditions are extremely bad for two or three miles on either side of the Connecticut river through Hartford and Middlesex counties. The greatest damage was caused by bridge destructions as the highways, or those that have so far been inspected, were damaged to no greater extent than gutter, and in a few instances, surface washouts. The cost of repairs will be taken from the state maintenance fund and it will not be necessary to seek a special appropriation from the state board of finance and control. In all districts where bridges have been destroyed or where flood waters still cover the highway or where repaired washouts prevail, detours have been posted. Motorists are advised to proceed with caution and at reduced speed on all state highways near the river.

The Glastonbury-Portland road is closed by a washout at the foot of the hill in Portland and another washout on the Portland-East Hampton road at the foot of Sand Hill has necessitated closing that highway. There are, however, detours around both of these flooded areas.

The Middletown-Meriden road is closed in the vicinity of "the flats" where the highway is under water for a half mile. A detour has been arranged around Baileyville. The Middletown-Cromwell-New Haven road is open but on the Middletown-Haddam road washouts just south of the former city have compelled the highway department to post a detour through Tylerville. There is water going over Dennison's bridge in Chester, but traffic is going through. The side road to the east going to Chester Village, however, is closed.

On the Westerly road to Stonington traffic is being held up so that department officials may make a thorough examination of the highway surface. The Winsted-Norfolk-Canaan road is now open; so is the Farmington-Unionville road. The Hartford-Middletown road is closed in Wethersfield and Cromwell flats. The only traversable way to Cromwell is via Franklin avenue and through West Rocky Hill.

The Cromwell-East Berlin road and the Newfield road are both closed.

Perhaps the deepest water will be found in the East Hartford causeway where it is four feet in depth. Traffic is being detoured through Burnside and then south to the main road.

Shore roads are all open to traffic.

All highway roads in New Haven, New London, Fairfield, Litchfield and Middlesex counties are "reasonably normal." On Torrington hill especial caution is urged because of a bad washout. Another was repaired last night. At South Windsor is a detour on the east side of the Connecticut river on the Wapping road. On the west side of the river is a detour through Poquonock into Suffield.

Among the bridges reported washed away are the Sterling Hill bridge, Clarks Falls bridge, Stonington, and the North Woodbury bridge.

In estimating the damage to highways the department is handicapped by lack of knowledge as to conditions of roads still under water. Many washouts have been repaired and in spots where bridges are gone detours have been posted. Damage to highways proper is considered insignificant, so far, and replacement of bridge will constitute the biggest expense.

AMERICAN TARIFF NOTE DELIVERED IN FRANCE

PARIS, Nov. 8—(AP)—Washington's latest note on the Franco-American tariff negotiations was delivered at the Quai D'Orsay this evening.

It is considered here on the strength of Washington dispatches as merely registering observations of the last French note on the matter and as not requiring an answer. Comment on the document was refused at the foreign office where it was said however, that there is every reason now to expect that the negotiations will proceed under favorable conditions.

The Franco-American experts, having finished the list of American articles on which the minimum tariff will be afforded pending the negotiations, a decree putting the same into effect is expected immediately.

Active negotiations, however, may be somewhat delayed by the fact that French tariff experts are already at work on a Franco-Belgian commercial agreement and may not be available immediately for negotiations with the United States.

Syracuse, N. Y., was once known as the "salt cellar of the nation," but its salt springs are now little worked.

Mrs. E. Riordan entertained Monday evening at her home on Prospect street. Those present were members of the public health nursing department with which Mrs. Riordan was formerly associated. Two tables of bridge were played, the first prize being won by Miss Margaret Reed and the second by Miss Helen Murphy. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

TAFTVILLE

The annual business meeting and election of officers of the Taftville Social and Football club was held Monday evening in the clubrooms at the Ponemah house. There was an unusually large attendance, and the meeting was called to order at 8 p. m. by the president, Fred Ince. One application for membership was received and one resignation acted upon.

A letter was read from the Taftville chapter, American Red Cross, asking the club to bring to the attention of its members the annual membership campaign which is to be held next week. An important change to the by-laws was also voted.

The officers elected to serve for the coming year were: President, Fred Ince; vice-president, Thomas Addison, secretary, Archie D. Torrance, Jr.; treasurer, Earle M. Wood; membership committee, George Kinder, Christopher Troeger and Archibald Torrance; auditors, Herbert P. Hoyle and John W. Seddon; house committee, Fred Ince, Thomas Addison, Archie Torrance, Jr., and Earle M. Wood.

After the business session had adjourned refreshments of ham sandwiches, cheese sandwiches, coffee, cigars and cigarettes were served by a committee composed of Allan Bogle, John W. Seddon, Louis Wohlleben, Albert Matheweon, David Murphy and Fred Ince. Then followed an entertainment arranged by the chairman, Mr. Murphy, the program being as follows, Solo, There's a Long, Long Trail, Thomas Greenhalgh, who sang for an encore, When Irish Eyes Are Smiling; solo, Paddy McGinty's Goat, David Murphy; solo, Sally, Thomas Greenhalgh; Let Me Call You Sweetheart, Murphy's After-dinner serenaders; solo, Old Black Joe, Arthur Blackburn, assisted by chorus. Swanee River, Murphy's After-dinner serenaders; solo, What a Mouth, David Murphy; solo, Old Pal, Thomas Greenhalgh. The accompaniment for all the musical numbers was played on the accordion by Mr. Murphy. The spot light was in charge of Frederick Meyer.

The members of the W. P. G. went to Greeneville Friday evening where they held a meeting at the home of Miss Irene Mayor of Boswell avenue. A hike was planned for the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson and Wilfred Linderson have closed their summer home, Pine Tree cottage at North Stonington and have returned to their home on North Third avenue for the winter.

Another evening of the successful carnival being given for the benefit of the Sacred Heart church at Parish hall under the auspices of the Army and Navy club was held Tuesday evening with a very large attendance, many coming from out of town. The entertainment consisted of high class vaudeville acts, and Dave Lyons' orchestra played for the dancing. The committee in charge of the carnival has announced that one of the evenings is to be an old-folks night, when old fashioned square dancing will be enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Woodworth of Windsor Locks have returned home after being guests during the early part of the week of Mrs. Woodworth's mother, Mrs. Sarah Charpentier and her sister, Miss Annie Charpentier of Providence street.

The Taftville Rod and Gun club, in its efforts to center attention on the preservation and intelligent hunting of wild game, is planning to give a motion picture exhibition soon, showing the different species of game found locally, and their habits in their wild state.

WORKMAN WHIRLED AROUND SHAFT AT ROBERT GAIR CO. PAPER MILL

While installing a cap on a gear box in the engine room of the Robert Gair Co. plant in Montville about 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, Alfred Dixon of Uncasville received serious injuries when he was whirled around a shafting. Mr. Dixon, who is a member of the night crew, was whirled around when his clothing caught in the shafting, which made a number of revolutions before fellow employes shut down the machinery.

Dr. John J. Donohue of Uncasville was called and attended Mr. Dixon's injuries in the emergency room at the plant and then had him removed to his home. He is suffering from lacerations about the head, arm and back and several stitches were required to close the cuts. He is also suffering from shock and may be injured internally. His condition is regarded as serious.

REQUEST FOR TOYS MADE BY BOY SCOUTS

The Boy Scouts of Norwich are making an effort to bring Christmas cheer to the homes of some of our poor children, and the scouts are making a request to the people of Norwich and vicinity for broken toys, toys that are no longer used, broken dolls or anything in the line of children's toys and playthings which have been discarded. All toys received will be repaired by the scouts, painted, and put into presentable form for distribution at Christmas time. The actual work of repairing and painting will be done by scouts at scout headquarters and the repaired toys will then be sent to the United Workers for distribution to the homes of the poor children at Christmas time. The scouts hope that their request for toys will meet with generous response, and that enough toys will be secured to make many of the poor children of the city happy. Many of the toys will go to children who never have playthings, and to whom Christmas is nothing more than a name. It is to brighten up the homes of these children that the Boy Scouts have taken upon themselves the task of collecting and repairing discarded toys.

Toys may be sent either to scout headquarters, 28 Shannon building, or to the family welfare department of the United Workers, 9 Washington street. If there are any who have no means of getting the toys to either place, but will call scout headquarters at 1107 or the family welfare department of the United Workers at 879-2, or the residence of the scout executive at 3380-W, arrangements will be made to have scouts call for such toys as they may have.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSES INSPECT SCHOOL CHILDREN

American Red Cross public health nurses in Connecticut have served nearly 51,700 persons during the fiscal year ending July 1, according to the annual report made public by the local chapter. This represents the work of 21 nurses, who have in that period made 28,789 visits to homes, inspected 13,797 school children, and given instruction to 4,088 persons at 325 health conferences.

Of paramount importance, the report emphasizes, is the work of the nurses among school children. Health experts who have made careful studies declare that approximately seventy per cent. of American school children have physical defects of a serious enough nature to retard their mental and physical development, such as diseased tonsils, and defective vision and hearing. By the early detection of symptoms of contagious disease, schools are also protected from the outbreak of epidemics.

Red Cross officials state that the organization now has 585 public health nursing services in the United States with 731 nurses.

School Teacher Resigns

The resignation of Miss Lucy G. Buchanan, teacher in the second grade at Laurel Hill school, was presented at the meeting of the town school board Tuesday evening in the office of Superintendent E. J. Graham at the court house.

A large part of the time of the meeting was occupied in discussion of details regarding the new Samuel Huntington school building at Norwich Town.

Doing Well in Music

A Jewett City boy, Ledwood Mort, who is at college in Troy, N. Y., is getting on in musical circles there. He is pianist of an orchestra and recently was invited to play from station W. H. A. L., at Troy. He was a pupil of Prof. James H. White of Norwich.

PEQUOT BEACH CASE ON TRIAL IN COURT

In the superior court at New London Tuesday morning Judge John Rufus Booth began to hear trial of the suit of the city of New London against Pequot Point Beach company and Councilor Lucius E. Whiton, in which New London seeks possession of 18.8 feet of land "for highway purposes" in Pequot avenue, along where the bathhouses were erected by the defendant company. The suit was begun in 1923 and when trial of the case was started Tuesday, old records of city meeting and of deeds and agreements, which ran back to Civil war days were presented in court by Director of Law Thomas E. Troland. Attorney Frank L. McGuire appeared for the Pequot Point Beach Co., while Judge Charles B. Waller and Judge Arthur B. Calkins appeared for Councilor Lucius E. Whiton, who owns the land which is contract of sale to the Pequot Point Beach Co.

Director of Law Troland asked the defense attorneys to agree that the Pequot Point Beach Co is a Connecticut corporation, incorporated June 13, 1923, and that Ralph H. Melcer was one of the incorporators. This was agreed to and the certificate of incorporation was laid into the evidence.

Attorney McGuire then asked Judge Booth if at some time before the defense began its case, the court would view the land in question. Attorney Troland agreed to this saying, however, that he would prefer to lay the foundation of the city's case.

It was also agreed by both sides that Director of Law Troland should place into the evidence the fact that James D. Lynch died on May 11, 1917, leaving an estate in the will of which the Guaranty and Trust Co. was named executor.

City Clerk Produces Records.

Director of Law Troland called Julian D. Moran, city clerk, to the stand. He produced book 2, of record of city meetings and turned to page 200. Attorney McGuire read the section about to be introduced and asked Mr. Troland to set out his purpose in introducing this certified copy of vote and meeting held Jan. 7, 1864.

The director of law replied that he intended to show who was the original heir of the property.

Attorney McGuire: "Do you claim the highway was legally laid out by proceedings in the city government?"

Attorney Troland: "Yes—but if I fail to prove it. I claim it just the same—these are ancient records, 60 years old. I offer them for that purpose. If these people omitted a step—I can't supply it."

There was considerable argument ending in a formal objection by Attorney McGuire to the introduction of the records of city meetings on the ground that Mr. Troland had remarked that he was not sure whether he should claim that the highway was legally laid out or not.

Judge Booth said that he did not believe that Attorney Troland said exactly that and admitted the records of meetings noting exceptions by Attorney McGuire.

The first record was of a meeting Jan. 7, 1864, when a petition signed by 40 voters, seeking that a new road be laid from the lighthouse to the "foot of the Town Hill road." The suggestion was worded into a motion and it was carried, the publication of intentions to be published in the Daily Star and Chronicle. Hiram Willy was then mayor.

The next records to be introduced were of meetings on Feb. 2, 1864, March 5, 1864, Feb. 12, 1864, April 11, 1864, Nov. 8, 1865. The meetings comprised the appointment of a committee to lay out the new road; their report of examination of the ground and the submission of a survey of the proposed road, "to be laid out 60 feet wide and worked 30 feet."

Reports of the committee showed that Hobron, Elliott and Dimmock property was involved and that Hobrons and Elliotts were glad to give the city the necessary land, asking only that fences be erected while the Dimmocks asked $200 for their land in addition to the fencing, the latter, however, offering loam and filling. The committee figured damages of $200; fencing $150; grading and culverts, $950; total $1,500. It was estimated that with the figure of $1,200 for straightening the road from the Pequot house to the lighthouse, the total outlay would be not less than $2,500 nor more than $3,500. Necessary action was taken to alter the part of the road and lastly referred to do a width of 50 feet.

The records and call of the meeting of Dec. 15, 1865, when a survey of the entire new highway was accepted by the court of common council was introduced and objected to by Mr. McGuire. It was admitted with an exception noted.

Among a number of other records laid in was a certified copy of the survey of the Harbor road. He next laid in a certified copy of a vote taken at the meeting of July 2, 1866, in connection with the altering of an old road or laying of new road or both to connect with the Harbor road. This may have been Glenwood avenue.

Records of a meeting of Jan. 8, 1879, were introduced, when Alderman Tinker presented a deed from the Jerome heirs, giving the city for highway purpose the land shown on the "Jennings survey" which with the deed showed Pequot avenue to have a width of 66 feet from the lighthouse to Neptune park.

Attorney Troland then laid in a certified copy of a vote of the court of common council of Sept. 5, 1867, when $1,000 was recommended appropriated for the grading of the highway "for its full width."

Troland Withholds Reply.

Attorney McGuire inquired if the road was graded, to which Attorney Troland did not reply, saying that he was presenting the city's case in an orderly manner.

Attorney McGuire asked Mr. Troland for his reason in offering a certified copy of the council meeting of Aug. 4, 1902.

Mr. Troland did not wish to give this, saying that he felt he should be allowed to put in his evidence in an orderly manner and not being obliged to put in his claims until a proper time arrived. Judge Booth ruled that Mr. McGuire was entitled to an answer.

Attorney Troland said he was offering it to show that James D. Lynch, predecessor in title to the present defendants, asked for a change in the highway in 1902. Mr. McGuire then obected to its admittance.

The record was admitted and it was an application of Mr. Lynch which said that he had inadvertently fenced a portion of the public highway and advanced a proposition for a change in the highway near his residence to eliminate an angle and substitute a curve at that point.

BOSTON DOCTOR SAYS RAY'S MIND UNSOUND

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 8. —(AP)— Progress of the suit of Bertrand A. Ray against the Hartford Security Trust company in an effort to break the will of his brother, the late Frederick L. Ray, of East Haddam, was featured here today by testimony dealing with the sanity of the plaintiff's brother.

Counsel for both sides conferred on a hypothetical question of the deceased's capability to make a will in view of witnesses statements this morning which told of the testator's "peculiar" and "irrational" actions. After the conference, which lasted for three hours, Dr. Harry Hall Hartung, of Boston, testified that the plaintiff's brother had been unsound of mind for some period previous to the writing of the will.

The suit, which is being heard before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury in Middlesex county superior court here, involves an estimate valued at $650,000. A sum of $50,000 was willed in a trust fund for life use of the plaintiff, formerly a United States customs officer in Gloucester, Mass. The remainder of the estate was bequeathed for the erection of a trade school in East Haddam.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDED ON QUAKER HILL ROAD

An automobile operated by William Crandall, 8 Summer street, collided with a car operated by William Dawson, of Pleasant street, both of New London, on the Norwich road at Quaker Hill, Waterford, Sunday night, at 5.30 o'clock. Both cars were extensively damaged, but no one was injured. Officers from the Groton police barracks of the state police were investigating the crash Monday and it was said that an arrest would probably be made.

CONTINUANCE IN COURT AGAINST TAFTVILLE MEN

Two Taftville men, Reald Bouchard, 24, and Joseph Troland, 24, were presented before Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Tuesday morning on charges of violation of the liquor law. Both cases were continued until November 14, Bouchard being released on a bond of $2,500 and Troland on a bond of $1,000. It is said that aides working with Sheriff John J. McGuire secured by purchase a half pink of alleged liquor. When the officer arrived Bouchard is alleged to have dumped a pitcher containing liquor. A jug containing a small quantity of alleged liquor and a case of alleged home brew were secured. Bouchard's place of business is on Merchants avenue and Troland is said to have been associated with him in the business. The latter was arrested at police headquarters when he came there to inquire about the arrest of Bouchard.

URGES COMPLIANCE WITH ARMISTICE DAY SUGGESTION

President James L. Case has sent the following letter to members of the chamber of commerce:

Fellow Member:

I am writing this letter to call your special attention to the proclamation issued by Mayor Waters, in which he requests the citizens of our city to cease their labors for one minute on Friday morning, Nov. 11th, at 11 o'clock.

I think it is particularly fitting that the citizens of Norwich join with the many thousands throughout the country in this simultaneous observance, in memory of the boys who gave their lives so freely for this country.

May I especially urge the manufacturers and merchants to cooperate in so far as possible in carrying out the suggestion. In addition to this, if all who control the ringing of bells and the blowing of factory whistles will plan to have them blown and rung at 11 o'clock, for one minute, it will bring the matter home to every citizen in our fair city.

Very truly yours,
NORWICH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
James L. Case, President.

IN AMERICAN THRIFT ARMY AT NORWICH SAVINGS SOCIETY

All over the United States boys and girls interested in school savings have saved at least a dollar, and started a bank account. The bank account admits them to membership in the American Thrift Army, and they are presented with a pin bearing the slogan of the army, "Every Girl and Boy a Banker." Since the opening of school in September, to date, the new members who have opened accounts at The Norwich Savings society are:

Shot Wildcats At North Woodstock

Two wildcats weighing about twenty-two pounds each, were shot in the North Woodstock woods Tuesday morning by George Andrews, after they had been treed by Andrew's dog. The state pays bounty of $10 each for wildcat pelts.

REPRESENTED V. F. W. AUXILIARY AT WATERBURY MEETING

R. E. Hourigan auxiliary, No. 894, of this city was represented by its president, Mrs. Ida Fairbanks, and past president, Mrs. M. Rosamond Jacques, department council of administration, at the quarterly meeting of the Department of Connecticut, Ladies' Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, which was recently held in Waterbury at the Chamber of Commerce building.

A complimentary luncheon was served at the state armory by the auxiliary of Wheeler-Young post.

The business sessions proved very interesting and instructive. The distinguished guests included National Senior Vice President Mrs. Beasie Hanken of Revere, Mass., and Past National President Mrs. Margaret Oldridge of Providence, R. I. Both officers addressed the meeting on matters pertaining to the good of the order.

POETRY

The Lost Genius

A Giant came to me when I was young
My instant will to ask—
My earthly Servant, from the earth he sprung
Eager for any task!

"What wilt thou, O my Master?" he began,
"Whatever can be," I,
"Say thy first wish—whate'er thou wilt I can,"
The strong Slave made reply.

"Enter the earth and bring its riches forth,
For pearls explore the sea."
He brought, from East and West and South and North,
All treasures back to me!

"Build me a palace wherein I may dwell."
"Awake and see it done."
Spake his great voice at dawn. Oh, magic
That glittered in the sun!

"Find me the princess fit for my embrace,
The vision of my breast;
For her search every clime and every race,"
My yearning arms were blessed!

"Get me all knowledge," Sages with their lore,
And poets with their songs,
Crowded my palace halls at every door,
In still, obedient throngs!

"Now bring me wisdom." Long ago he went;
(The cold task harder seems;)
He did not hasten with the last consent—
The rest, meanwhile, were dreams!

Houseless and poor, on many a traveless road,
Without a guide, I found
A white-haired phantom with the world his load,
Bending him to the ground!

"I bring thee wisdom, Master." Is it so?
I marveled then, in sooth?
"Thy palace-builder, beauty-seeker see!"
I saw the Ghost of Youth!
—John James Piatt.

The Eagle of the Blue

Aloft he guards the starry folds,
Who is the brother of the star;
The bird whose joy is in the wind
Exulteth in the war.

No painted plume—a sober hue,
His beauty is his power;
That eager calm of gaze intent
Foresees the Sibyl's hour.

Austere, he crowns the swaying perch
Flapped by the angry flag;
The hurricane from the battery sings,
But his claw has known the crag.

Amid the scream of shells, his scream
Runs shrilling; and the glare
Of eyes that brave the binding sun
The volleyed flame can bear.

The pride of quenchless strength is his—
Strength which, though chained, avails
The very rebel looks and thrills—
The anchored emblem hails.

Though scarred in many a furious fray
No deadly hurt he knew;
Well may we think his years are charmed—
The Eagle of the Blue.
—Herman Melville.

Kitchen utensils of the Greeks and Romans of the fourth century, B. C., have just come to light at Canopus, near one of the mouths of the Nile, according to Professor Ralph Van Deman Magoffin, president of the Archaeological Institute of America. Excavation at a temple near this site has yielded up mementoes of pilgrims that make clear many phases of life in antiquity. The collections include many kitchen utensils and a nearly complete set of Greek and Roman weights. Many of them are tokens vowed by soldiers who hoped for success in war. "Some are sling shots," explained Dr. Magoffin, "while many are tiny replicas of the soldiers themselves on elephant or horse-back. Grain baskets and camels seem to have been the favorite gifts from merchants; weights from looms are found in considerable numbers. Many of the pieces are entirley unique, and their publication and exhibition will add much more to our growing knowledge of ancient times."

VERMONT FARMERS LOST 15,000 COWS IN THE FLOOD

Dairy Interests of the State Are Crippled—Many Communities Are in the Grip of Ice and Frozen Mud That Will Not Be Broken Until Spring—Governor Weeks Has Decided That Outside Aid is Imperative—Damage to Roads and Bridges in New Hampshire is Estimated at $2,700,650.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—In the calming presence of outside help and communication Vermont's flood relief program stood forth tonight as a race against the white specre of New England winter.

Help had reached nearly all sections, wire communication was rapidly reaching every corner of the state, railroads and highways were opening up, but the relief at best was temporary, spurred by the knowledge that bitter winter weather will strangle makeshift communication lines and lock battered, wrecked communities in the grip of ice and frozen mud that will not be broken until the spring thaws.

That Governor ohn E. Weeks has sensed the situation was seen in his statement from the capitol denying previous reports that Vermont considered outside aid unnecessary in coping with the situation. He declared:

"Federal troops have been of the greatest assistance in relief work in the flood areas of the northern part of the state. This help is greatly appreciated. Rumors have gone out that federal aid was unnecessary, which is entirely wrong."

The governor added that as soon as a state survey has established the exact status of the stricken towns "we can determine just where further help will be needed from outside sources."

Tomorrow Governor Weeks will confer with the state emergency board on the situation.

This board, created in 1923 to serve with the governor in case of emergency, has never before been called into action. The highway commissioners of Vermont also will confer at Montpelier tomorrow in an effort to determine how much money is needed for temporary repair of main highways and restoration of bridges. The state department of agriculture has begun survey of dairy and general farm losses.

With wire communication restored to most points in the flooded area in Vermont, steps are being taken to provide a mail service. Postmaster General New in Washington today ordered service to begin tomorrow on emergency air mail routes into Vermont and Concord, N. H., and also a mail truck service from the same point by way of White River Junction, Vt., on the New Hampshire border.

Army, Red Cross and civil authorities have succeeded in getting food and clothing into towns where they were most needed, both in Vermont and western Massachuses. Railroads are rushing eastward the great accumulation of freight at the Hudson river gateways in New York and have established connection with Montreal by a roundabout route. Only a few miles of railroad are under operation in Vermont and it will be weeks before service can be restored on many lines where bridges are out.

Thomas Bradlee, director of the extension bureau of the Vermont Agricultural college, estimated today that the great Vermont dairy interests had lost 15,000 cows in the flood. The farmers whose acres were inundated, he said, "are just crushed under the burden and haven't the strength to carry on."

The Springfield, Mass., city council today appropriated $50,000 for flood relief in that city. The work of cleaning up debris and reopening homes was speeded there but 150 persons were still being cared for in the state armory today.

Snow fell briskly in northern Vermont today but ended without any large accumulation.

Lieutenant Governor Frank Allen of Massachusetts and General Alfred F. Foote, state commissioner of public safety went to Becket today to survey the reconstruction work.

Word came through by mail today from Northfield, Vt., that the rainfall in last week's storm as officially measured at the United States weather bureau was 8.6 inches.

Gov. Spaulding of New Hampshire after conferring with highway engineers estimated the damage to roads and bridges in New Hampshire at $2,700,650. Rivers have changed their courses in some sections so that they run where highways formerly were located and it will be necessary to relocate the roads.

Diphtheria was reported to have made its appearance in the little village of South Franklin, near St. Albans, Vt. The number of cases was not known but measures were promptly taken to check the spread of the disease.

James L. Fiesser, vice chairman of the Red Cross, arrived in Boston today to take charge of Red Cross relief activities in New England. He arrived to leave later for Montpelier to confer with Governor Weeks.

$75,000 FOR RELIEF WORK IN NEW ENGLAND FLOOD AREAS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP)—An initial appropriation of $75,000 to meet the immediate needs of its chapters conducting relief work in the New England flood areas was announced today by the American Red Cross. Officials explained this amount was not to be considered as indicative of the total amount to be spent for relief there, but that voluntary contributions and such additional expenditures from the society's national treasury would supplement the $75,000.

The Red Cross announced receipt of $27,000 in voluntary donations, including a check for $5,000 from the Eastern Dairies, Inc., of Springfield, Mass.

CONNECTICUT RIVER RECEDING AT HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Nov. 9—(AP)—Between noon and six p. m., today, the Connecticut river had fallen from 21.8 feet above normal to 20.9 feet, averaging a recession of three-twentieths of a foot each hour. Unless this rate of withdrawal is accelerated, the river will not reach its old level until Tuesday, November 15 at 1.30 p. m.

TWO HOLD-UPS BY FOUR IN VICINITY OF CHESHIRE

MERIDEN, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Four bandits, one of them armed, riding in a speedy sedan bearing New York markers participated in at least two hold-ups in the vicinity of Cheshire tonight, staging their most spectacular job at the hardware store of A. J. Heines, of Maple avenue, Cheshire, at 8.45 o'clock.

A jammed revolver and the pugnacity of Raymond Heines, son of the owner of the Cheshire store, frustrated the bandits in their Cheshire break-out in Hamden they were able to collect a tank full of gasoline at the expense of Dickerman's gasoline station.

In the Cheshire hold-up, two of the bandits entered the hardware store while their two companions remained outside in the automobile. The two inside bandits found Matthew Haller, a clerk, in the store besides Heines.

The bandits commanded Heines to put up his hands, but Heines refused. The armed bandit pulled the trigger of the gun, but the gun jammed. Quick to the advantage of this, Heines grabbed a wrench and hurled it at the bandits, who immediately made for the door. Before leaving the store, the armed bandit quickly turned around, pulled the trigger of the gun, but again the weapon failed to work.

After gaining the street, the two bandits jumped into their automobile, which headed for New Haven.

It is believed that the four bandits may also have participated in a hold-up in Willimantic today.

MASKED GANG CUT OFF HAIR OF POOR WIDOW

BELFAST, Northern Island, Nov. 9.—(AP)—A masked gang cut off the hair of Mrs. Mary McGiffley, a poor widow who lives near Carrick across on the Ulster border, stripped off her clothes and forced her, naked and shivering, to kneel down at midnight in a nearby field during a heavy frost.

The gang menaced Mrs. McGinley with pistols and did not permit her to return to her house until she promised not to let a certain farmer neighbor, who had visited her on Hallowe'en, call at her house again. Mrs. McGinley is the mother of five children.

TWO FRENCH FLIERS ARE LAID UP WITH INFLUENZA

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 9—(AP)—The French fliers Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Le Brix, who made the South Atlantic flight recently, are laid up here with the influenza. They reached Buenos Aires on October 19, having left Paris October 16. They have been waiting in Buenos Aires and enjoying numerous entertainments prepared in their honor, but their future plans have not been definitely arranged.

CREW OF WRECKED SHIP PICKED UP OFF CAPE HENRY

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 9—(AP)—Eight men composing the crew of the schooner Adelaide Day have been taken off their wrecked ship 250 miles east-southeast of Cape Henry by the American steamer Gulflight, according to a message received here today. The schooner, lumber-laden, was awash, her deckhouse had been carried away and her sails had been torn to threads. The crew had been fighting for several days to keep their craft afloat and were exhausted when the Gulflight hove in sight.

The Adelaide Day had been at sea since October 29 when she sailed from Georgetown S. C., for Bridgeport, Ct. The Gulflight was en route from Mobile to Providence, R. I.

AUSTRALIAN GOV'T TO SELL SHIPPING LINE

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 9—(AP)—Because of heavy losses, the Australian government plans to sell the Commonwealth Shipping line, Premier Stanley Bruce has informed the Australian parliament. The premier's announced followed a motion of censure offered by labor leaders.

Premier Bruce revealed that last year, the loss on the government-owned line was £595,000. The government plans to dispose of the line on condition that it remain in British empire registry, and that the purchaser agree to maintain it for ten years service for the transportation of mail, passengers and cargo equivalent to the present service rendered by the line.

$35,000 ROBBERY OF AN IRONTON, MINN., BANK

IRONTON, Minn., Nov. 9 (AP)—Four men robbed the First National bank of Ironton today and escaped with $35,000 in currency and gold.

Entering the bank just before closing time, the men looted the vault of cash that was to be used in meeting payroll checks at two nearby mines tomorrow, locked three bank attaches and a patron in the vault and fled.

A shoemaker occupying a shop in the basement of the bank building heard the shouts of the prisoners and released them 30 minutes later.

SHOOTING TO PREVENT LOOTING IN SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 9—(AP)—The first instance of shooting to prevent looting in the flooded area was reported out of West Springfield this afternoon when a National Guardsman fired at a man who was seen making his way from an abandoned house. The intruder escaped. As a result of this, extreme precautions were being taken tonight to prevent a recurrence of the incident.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BRISTOL, England, Nov. 9—(AP)—A little army of 400 unemployed en route to London to storm the halls of parliament with oratory arrived here late this afternoon and found tea awaiting them in true English fasion. The marchers were also greeted by pretty bob-haired Bristol girls who expressed their readiness to dance with the youngsters of the expedition.

PARIS, Nov. 9—(AP)—Regular air mail service between France and South America will be undertaken next year. Financial support for the project, long contemplated by the French government, was assured this afternoon when the finance committee of the chamber of deputies voted 120,000,000 francs as a subvention to the Latecoere company, which for some time past has exploited the air mail line between France and her African colonies.

INHERITANCE TAX IS FEATURE OF HEARING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP)—A move by democratic members to obtain information concerning activities of the American taxpayers league during the present agitation for repeal of the federal inheritance tax met with little success at today's tax hearing by the house ways and means committee.

J. A. Arnold, manager of the organization, although testifying he received a salary of $1,000 per month and that the league had paid workers in several states, flatly refused to tell how much money the organization had collected or where its funds were deposited.

"I think this is a hostile inquiry," he declared. "I can't submit the organization to the investigation. I don't have the authority."

He said, however, except for a $500 contribution, the league had taken no part in the meeting here of the National Council of State Legislatures whose representatives yesterday and today appeared before the committee in favor of repeal of the estate levy.

Prior to Arnold's refusal to answer questions by Garner and also by Representative Rainey, of Illinois, another democrat, Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, appearing as a witness, charged that officers of the legislative council had sought to defeat him for reelection because of his vote two years ago for retention of the inheritance tax.

COL. LINDBERG FINDS REST IN AN ARMY BUNK

CAMP SPEEL, OSCODA, Mich., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, has at last found temporary and comparative peace and quiet.

The "flying colonel" rested tonight on an army bunk in the rough building housing officers of the First Pursuit group now engaged in gunnery practice at their northern camp. Army guards are detailed to watch over him and to discourage attempts of curious residents of the vicinity to visit him.

Colonel Lindbergh arrived here late this afternoon flying an army plane and accompanied by Major Thomas G. Lanphier, commander of the group, and eight other Selfridge field fliers. The little town of Oscoda, on the border of a wild sparsely inhabited section of Michigan, declared a Holiday, and gathered about the field in an attempt to catch a glimpse of the transatlantic flyer.

The colonel will make a flying trip to New York Friday night, necessitating a flight from here tomorrow afternoon.

SWEDISH MATCH CO. LOAN TO RETIRE FRENCH BONDS

PARIS, Nov. 9—(AP)—France learned today how cleverly Premier Poincare has found a loop hole in Washington's barrier against loans to countries that have not settled their war debts. The money to retire France's $70,000,000 eight per cent. bonds, borrowed through the Morgan syndicate in 1920, is coming from Wall street—at only a little more than five per cent, but it is coming indirectly from the Swedish Match company, acting as intermediary.

The match company not having any war debts to pay, Washington naturally was not asked by Wall street whether it would look favorably on the loan. By retiring the eight per cent bonds that would have matured in 25 years, by converting them into 50 year five per cents, Premier Poincare estimates that beginning in 1929 the French government will save 50,000,000 francs a year (about $2,000,000).

$5,000 REWARD IN TEXAS FOR HEADS OF DEAD BANK ROBBERS

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 9—(AP)—A reward of $5,000 was set on the heads of dead bank robbers in Texas today in a determined effort to check a wave of banditry that has cost a score of banks thousands of dollars in recent weeks.

"We want dead bandits and no other kind," read the declaration of war on lawlessness issued by the Texas Bankers association.

"Killing a few robbers is the only effective way to stop bank robberies in Texas in the opinion of officials of the association," asserted William A. Philpott, Jr., secretary. "Until further notice the association will pay $5,000 for each person shot down in the act of robbing one of our banks."

BANKER GEORGE F. BAKER IS "SLIGHTLY INDISPOSED"

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Nov. 9—(AP)—George F. Baker, president of the First National bank of New York and internationally known financier, was reported "slightly indisposed" at his home here today. Doctors had not been called to attend him, it was said, as the illness was considered trivial.

Mr. Baker's private secretary said the aged financier had suffered an attack of indigestion several days ago but that he virtually had recovered.

PASTOR ADVERTISES FLOCK, LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN

PERRY, N. Y., Nov. 9—(AP)—So many of his flock are straying from church that Rev. J. B. Ennis, pastor of the Gainesville Methodist congregation, published the following advertisements in local newspapers this week:

"Lost, Strayed or Stolen—A large flock of Methodist sheep. They have been gone for some time. When last seen they were browsing along the road of indifference. Anyone finding these sheep please bring them home if possible and you will receive ample reward. If they refuse to come home, drive them into the nearest fold and lock the door and report to the undersigned, Rev. J. B. Ennis. Plenty of fodder will be provided Sunday."

Picketing Ceases in Colorado Coal Fields

State is Carrying Out Its Determination to Prevent Demonstrations at the Mines.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 9—(AP)—Rapidly increasing working forces were claimed by operators at many mines in Colorado coal fields today as the aftermath of the activities of state police who, two days ago, arrested all I. W. W. strike leaders in the southern mining fields.

Picketing has ceased in the districts since the state began to carry out its determination to prevent demonstrations of the character at the mines. Operators in the southern fields reported the largest working forces on their properties today since the strike was called by the I. W. W. more than three weeks ago. Mines in Routt county, northwestern Colorado, were reported operating nearly normal.

The Colorado Fuel & Iron company announced that its force of coal diggers in Las Animas county, where the main force of the strike has centered, was about 78 per cent of normal. Increased forces also were reported by independent operators.

Although no instances of picketing were reported today, state police continued their attitude of watchful waiting. Opinion among the operators was that the strike soon would be entirely broken.

In the northern part of the state two demonstrations of miners were held and Weld county deputy sheriffs arrested two men on picketing charges at the Columbine mine. Governor Adams held additional state law enforcement officers ready to send to Weld county if they should be requested by the sheriff.

ANOTHER SINCLAIR OFFICIAL HAS REFUSED TO TESTIFY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP)—Another Sinclair oil official charged with having had contact with the Burns detectives involved in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy mistrial refused to testify today in the government's investigation into the allegations of jury tampering.

He is Sheldon Clark, vice president and general manager of the Sinclair Refining company, prominent socially and politically in Chicago, and one of the judges who made the decision in the Dempsey-Tunney fight in that city last September.

At that time, Neil Burkinshaw, assistant district attorney, conducting the inquiry, will put to him certain questions designed to elicit information as to whether he had contact between the detectives and Harry F. Sinclair while the Teapot Dome conspiracy trial was in progress.

Should Clark refuse to answer the questions, District Attorney Gordon then will decide whether he will follow the course pursued in the case of Henry Mason Day, another of Sinclair's confidential officers, who was taken before Chief Justice McCoy in the District of Columbia supreme court.

MAPPING OUT PLAN FOR AGRICULTURE RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP)—The master minds of three farmers' organizations met about the conference table here today in an attempt to map out an agricultural relief legislative program, but the meeting carried far into the night and tomorrow, contrary to their expectations.

A substitute advanced by the National Grange for the controversial equalization fee provision of the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill proved the stumbling block which forced an extra session.

The grange proposed to the representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation and the Farmers' union, the other organizations represented, that the cost of marketing surplus crops on the world market be met by export debentures collectible from tariff receipts.

The export debentures would represent the difference between the domestic price of crops and the world price. They would be given to exporters who in turn could cash the debentures by sale to importers who could present them as payment of customs duties.

Before going behind closed doors the heads of the three powerful farm organizations made soundings at the white house at the capitol as to how far the administration would go on a compromise on the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill.

RESERVOIRS AS MEANS OF CONTROLLING FLOODS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP)—Construction of reservoirs at the headwaters of the Mississippi river tributaries as an important step in controlling floods was proposed today to the house flood control committee by three member of the Oklahoma congressional delegation.

After advantages of the reservoir system had been outlined, Senator-elect Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, told the committee that he planned to introduce at the next congress a bill proposing the creation of a federal emergency fund for the relief of disaster sufferers. The fund would carry a $10,000,000 appropriation and provide relief for sufferers from earthquakes, floods and storms.

While Thomas proposed that the cost of the reservoirs be borne jointly by the national and state governments, two Oklahoma representatives, Howard and Swank, both democrats, declared the federal government should bear the entire expense.

Both representatives voiced the view that if the nation can spend $800,000,000 for the army and navy it can spend a similar amount for flood control.

FALL IS WEAKENED BY COUGHING SPELLS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP)—Coughing spells weakened Albert B. Fall today, so that he was not able to sit up as had been planned, and his relatives do not believe that the former interior secretary can leave for New Mexico this week as had been expected.

His temperature continued to waver, his physicians reported, and fell below normal, as it has several times since he was confined to bed with congestion of the lungs last Friday.

Fall's illness closely followed declaration of a mistrial in the oil conspiracy case in which he was a defendant with Harry F. Sinclair.

Permanent Merchant Marine Advocated

By Edward M. Hurley, War Time Chairman of the United States Shipping Board.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—(AP)—Asserting that railroads of the United States are vitally interested in overseas traffic Edward N. Hurley, war time chairman of the United States shipping board today wrote in a letter to T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the shipping board, urging a plan for the establishment of a permanent merchant marine.

The need of such a unit in world trade is stressed by Mr. Hurley as a means of meeting increasing competition in foreign trade and to aid in building up the national defense.

"The government should not engage in world shipping in competition with the private shipping interests of other nations," Mr. Hurley said emphasizing the fact that while the government is financing European rehabilitation, much of that money is being used to build up European industries which compete vigorously in world markets.

The merchant marine could be operated out of a $500,000,000 revolving fund which he proposed congress appropriate for loans to shipping companies to build modern passenger and freight ships. The ships are to be built in American yards, with the provision that for every ship built on money borrowed from the government, a given number of the present war built fleet of ships now owned by the government must be purchased by the borrower. Loans would not be made to companies seeking to compete with existing American services.

Mr. Hurley also would repeal section eleven of the Panama Canal act which prohibits railroads from owning and operating ships in intercoastal trade, thus opening the way for their engagement in port to port service from any part of the United States. He also advocates long term mail contracts for shipping companies as a means of strengthening their credit.

FORMER KAISER OBJECTS TO PRESENTATION OF PLAY

BERLIN, Nov. 9—(AP)—Two men without a country—the former kaiser and a Russian emigre—have made common cause against the opening tomorrow night of a play that is expected to be one of the season's theatrical sensations.

One of them, Dr. Dimitri Rubinstein, Russian capitalist refugee in Paris, today won the first definite victory in skirmishes against Edwin Piscator, founder of the communist theatre, who plans to produce Alexis Tolstoy's drama, "Ra[illegible]in." Dr. Rubinstein was granted an injunction prohibiting his portrayal in the play. The Russian argued that his social and economic position in France would be injured as the play depicted him as a profiteer and German spy.

Two weeks ago the exile of Doorn protested against being shown in the same play. His attorney threatened court action if the request were not granted. Piscator indicated that he would ignore the former kaiser's request. The nature of the kaiser's portrayal was not made public and it was not in the original script. It was inserted here with the author's permission upon request of Piscator.

In the fourth act in which Rasputin, the mystic who once swayed the czar through the czarina, is shown staging a drunken orgy. The mimic Rubinstein, one of the guests, cries, "My millions are untold. With them I can do anything."

Rubinstein first requested Piscator to eliminate the Rubinstein role from the play. When the producer declined the Russian brought action. The court issued a preliminary injunction against Piscator, with the decision that the producer and his theatre would be fined 10,000 marks for each performance in which Rubinstein was impersonated.

Piscator entered suit for annulment of the injunction on the grounds that Rubinstein is a historic and public character but said he would strike out the part until the case is decided.

EXECUTED CHINESE ARE TO BE BURIED IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Nov. 9—(AP)—The last wish of the two Chinese executed at the state prison Monday night that they have a mammoth funeral in New York's Chinatown has been denied them by the stern mandate of the law forbidding the burial of executed criminals outside of the state. They will be buried tomorrow afternoon in Zion Hill cemetery, this city.

Funeral services for the dead tong men who paid with their lives for the murder of a fellow Chinese in Manchester, last March, will be held at the funeral home of James C. E. Dillon at 53 Main street, this city, beginning at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Hartford's Chinatown, high officers of the On Leong tong, of which the deceased were members, plan to attend the funeral.

There will be no religious services for Soo Hoo Wing and Chin Lung, the executed Chinese, who died converted to the Catholic faith to please Soo Hoo's young Catholic Japanese-American wife, Kitty. Plans call for the viewing of the body by any relatives, friends and tong men and such rites as the Chinese themselves may wish to perform over two men are believed to have died in the mysterious service of the On Leong tong.

LEADER LEWIS CHAMPIONS CAUSE OF MINE WORKERS

MT. CARMEL, Pa., Nov. 9—(AP)—The Anthracite Cooperative congress was prevented from becoming a meeting of the "love-feast" type tonight by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

The labor leader declared in no uncertain terms that the mine-workers disavow responsibility for all the industrial strikes which heretofore has beset the industry. He declared that the so-called anthracite problem is not one of price but of quality and service to the consumer. He warned anyone who believes the salvation of the industry is based on wage reductions and arbitrations of the fundamentals of wage agreements, not to try to impose their opinions upon the mine-workers.

President Lewis shared the spotlight of the evening program of the congress with Samuel D. Warriner, Philadelphia, chairman of the anthracite operators conference and president of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company.

At the afternoon session Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover was among the speakers.

SMITH'S FRIENDS ELATED AT OUTCOME OF ELECTION

Victory in New York State Has Revived Speculation About the 1928 Presidential Aspirations of Governor Smith—Gov. Edwards of New Jersey Declared That the Election Has Put Smith in a Position Where "No Delegation in the National Convention Next Year Can Afford to Ignore His Candidacy."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Yesterday's smashing democratic victory in New York state was echoed by a revival of speculation and questioning in Washington about the 1928 presidential aspirations of Gov. Smith.

The governor's friends saw in the outcome of the election a new guarantee that he would be invincible in next year's democratic national convention. His opponents reserved judgment, but asked many questions about the election returns. The republicans followed suit.

Until today the capital had taken little notice of the empire state campaign, which involved no national issues but was waged around proposed amendments to the state constitution. When it turned out that the amendments favored by Gov. Smith were overwhelmingly adopted, and the one opposed by him and favored by the republican state organization was overwhelmingly defeated, the politicians began to inquire just how much weight the governor's personal hold on the voters may have had in the result. Those who want to see him in the White House had no hesitancy in arriving at an answer. Those who do not, are still asking.

Senator Edwards of New Jersey, one of the wet leaders in congress, said the election had enhanced Governor Smith's 1928 prospects 100 per cent, and had put him into a position where "no delegation in the national convention next year can afford to ignore his candidacy."

A democratic dry, Senator King of Utah, who recently disclosed that he had found much Smith sentiment in his state, expressed the opinion that "the victory of Governor Smith undoubtedly has increased his prestige."

In the day's discussions around Washington, the New York result dwarfed all of the other off-year election results put together.

The victory of the Vare organization in Philadelphia was generally expected, and although the Ohio upset of the anti-saloon league caused some surprise, there was no comment from the wet and dry congressional leaders now in Washington.

Senators opposing the seating of William S. Vare as a senator from Pennsylvania said his victory yesterday in electing overwhelmingly his candidate for mayor of Philadelphia, would do him no good in Washington.

A good share of the credit for the outcome was claimed tonight by the association opposed to the prohibition amendment. Its national chairman, W. H. Stayton, said in a statement that the association had waged, "under a smoke screen," a relentless campaign for defeat of the Anti-Saloon league's supported proposal to legalize a fee system in the handling of minor cases by local state officials.

LODGE WAS ELECTED MAYOR OF DETROIT

DETROIT, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Citizens of Detroit asked to choose for their chief executive, one of two men who have served them conspicuously in high offices for a number of years, have expressed their confidence in the services of John C. Lodge, former president of the city council and in civic service for more than 25 years.

The election Tuesday was featured by the late returns from outlying precincts of 12,000 majority favoring Mr. Lodge after Mayor John W. Smith had maintained a consistent lead in the earlier returns.

Political leaders declared the contest the most closely fought municipal election in a decade. The total vote was 231,802. The returns from the city's 606 precincts gave Mr. Lodge 120,933 votes and Mayor Smith 108,800.

Lodge will take office January 1.

MACKEY HAS PLURALITY OF 165,925 FOR MAYOR OF PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Complete returns today from the election show that the triumph of the republican organization yesterday was as sweeping as the early returns indicated.

Nothing was left to the opposition except the few crumbs in the way of minority representation, under the law.

Harry A. Mackey was swept into the mayor's office by a plurality of 165,925 over J. Hampton Moore, who ran independent under the title of citizens' party. Mr. Mackey carried with him by almost equally large pluralities all the county offices

KENTUCKEY WILL HAVE REPUBLICAN GOVERNOR

LOUISVILLE, y., Nov. 9.—(AP)—That Kentucky will have a republican governor and a democratic general assembly in 1928 appeared probable tonight. Judge Flem D. Sampson of the court of appeals was leading his democratic opponent, former Governor J. C. W. Beckham, by close to 10,000 majority, with all counties heard from in yesterday's state election.

Democratic leaders, noting the trend of the vote in the other races, were attempting to obtain the vote on the complete state ticket—a task usually left to the official tabulators—to determine whether some members of the democratic ticket had defeated their republican opponents. Judge Sampson was running far ahead of his ticket in many sections, while Beckham trailed in a few counties.

The state senate, with one district unreported, will be democratic by at least 24 out of 38 seats, and the democrats probably will control the lower house by a workable majority. With 97 districts missing—17 democratic and 10 republican two years ago—the democrats have 43 seats to 25 for the republicans.

William E. Harrison, republican, will take the office of mayor of Louisville, next week following the city election yesterday, which restored a control of a republican party that had been ousted because the last election was fraudulent.

RETURNS FROM NEW YORK ELECTION NOT COMPLETE

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—The political landslide, which received its powerful impetus from Governor Smith, tonight had buried the proposal to increase the gubernatorial term in New York from two to four years. With more than a thousand of the state's 7,709 districts still unreported, a majority of nearly 575,000 votes had been recorded against the proposition.

As the returns trickled in from yesterday's off year state election, the majority against the play mounted steadily. If the present ratio is maintained, political experts estimated the final majority would be more than 600,000.

The actual vote with 1,292 districts missing was: Yes, 508,255; no, 1,080,648.

The work of tabulating the vote on eight other constitutional amendments likewise progressed slowly, but the incomplete returns indicated that all had been passed by wide margins.

RUMANIA IS RESORTING TO STRINGENT MEASURES

BUCHAREST, Nov. 9.—(AP)—With strict censorship already in effect, Premier Bratiano today laid before the regency a proposal for stringent measures to be taken against any persons who seek in any way to change the existing regime in Rumania.

The action came on the eve of the trial of M. Manoilescu, former undersecretary for finance for alleged participation in a plot to restore former Crown Prince Carol to the throne. Apparently the project is the measure opposition newspapers had in mind yesterday when they intended that a dictatorship was imminent.

The bill provides that "whoever shall attempt by word of mouth or by writing or by any other means anything which may have as its object a plot against institutions provided by the constitution or threatens the existing government or monarchy, or attempts to cause agitation from which might result danger to the state, shall be punished by six months to five years in jail and fined from 10,000 lei."

The bill provides imprisonment of from six months to two years and fines of from 5,000 to 50,000 lei for anyone spreading false news concerning a change of institutions, for agents provocateurs and accomplices. Among exceptional measures which may be taken under the project would be the censorship or suppression of newspapers or other publications, prevention of public meetings and the suspension of individual liberty.

One newspaper announced today that these measures are already in force but will be intensified.

HELD FOR THE ALLEGED SMUGGLING OF DIAMONDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—Five men and a woman, alleged members of a band of diamond smugglers whose operations, federal investigators declare, ran into millions of dollars were brought before United States Commissioner O'Neill today on charges of conspiracy to smuggle diamonds into the United States.

Four of the men were held in bail totaling $210,000, and the fifth man and the woman were released in the custody of a customs agent.

One of the men, Florent Lamot, of Antwerp, Belgium, second electrician of hte Red Star liner Lapland, was arrested as he left the ship shortply after it docked today. Federal officials told Commissioner O'Neil that a search disclosed $100,000 worth of diamonds concealed in the heels and toes of Lamot's shoes. He was held in $100,000 bail.

The others described themselves as Julius Adler, New York diamond merchant, held in $35,000 bail; Charles P. Goldberg, New York diamond merchant held in $36,000 bail; Abraham Frank of New York, whose bail was fixed at $50,000; and Louis Scholz, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. Ricka Lammel of New York, released in the custody of a customs agent.

SEDUCTION CHARGES SAID TO BE "FRAME UP"

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 9—(AP)—Charges filed in Hunterdon county courts against Judge John A. Freich, of Somerset county, seeking damages of $105,000 for alleged seduction and alienation of the affections of Mrs. Elena Brougham, today were characterized as a "frame-up" by the jurist.

The plaintiff, Walter W. Brougham, a retired naval lieutenant who left the sea for a farm near Whitehouse, reiterated his allegations but said he had been advised by his attorney not to talk of the case.

Judge Freich acknowledged the authorship of one of the letters filed by Brougham with papers in the suit but he denied writing the others alleged to contain endearing phrases.

"Mrs. Brougham is a clever woman," the judge said. "She persuaded me to write a letter to her in Florida for the sole purpose of using it to pique the jealousy in a man there she admired."

The judge further alleged that Brougham brought the charges because he was pressed for payment of a bill for legal services rendered by Freich before he was appointed to the bench.

LARAMIE-ANDRYCHOWSKI CASE BEFORE THE COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 9—The case of the Windham Lumber company vs. George Rood, D. A., was settled out of court it was announced at the Windham county superior court session held in this city today. The action was an allegation by the plaintiff company that on August 8, 1925, Rood contracted a bill of $45.97 for lumber material. Credits of $8.97 on September 9, 1925, $15 on September 17, 1924 and $5 on February 25, 1925, as per statement filed, brought the bill to $47.15 which was denied by the defendant. The terms of the settlement was not made known.

The case tried today was that of Clarence Laramie, et al. vs. Wladislaw Andrychowski in which the plaintiff brought suit for damages of $800 as the result of a collision of automobiles on Monday, December 12, 1926, just over the city line and in the town of Windham. The plaintiff's car was driven by an employe, Stephen B. Young and Andrychowski was operating his own machine. The Laramie truck was being driven out of a private driveway onto the main highway when the collision took place. The first witness was Young, driver of the Laramie truck. He said that upon driving out of the driveway he brought the machine to a stop before coming fully onto the main highway. He saw the defendant's car approaching and the latter failed to stop his car striking the left front wheel of the truck. Young described the damage and said that the truck had been taken out of a repair shop a few days before

Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley, investigating for the police department, testified to conditions as he found them upon his arrival. The Laramie truck was against the fence and damaged. Andrychowski said that the road was covered with ice and that he could not stop in time to prevent an accident. Robert G. Remington, garage owner, told of the repairs made to the machine a few days before the accident and repairs necessary after the collision. The second repair bill amounted to $186.25. Clarence Laramie, who with his brother, William, conducts the Brick Top Wet Wash laundry, owners of the truck, said that another machine had to be hired to make deliveries for three or four days when the damaged truck was undergoing repairs. Alfred Chalifoux, an eye witness to the accident gave his version of the collision through an interpreter.

For the defense Arthur Roy, an automobile mechanic, was first witness and he testified that the damage to the truck was minor, being confined to the left front portion. Andrychowski, the defendant, testified that the truck was driven out of the driveway at the approximate rate of ten miles an hour. He saw the truck when he was about 60 feet away and he applied his brakes and tried to steer clear. He said the collision was on his right hand side of the road and that the impact was not heavy. Both cars were moving slowly, he said. He disclaimed knowledge of having told anyone that he could not stop his car because of ice on the road. Miles Mortyko of Brick Top road testified that he saw the accident and that it occurred in the center of the road with Andrychowski apparently in his proper side of the highway. Some of the plaintiff witnesses were recalled to the stand.

Judge Marvin adjourned court at 4 o'clock stating that before returning to his home in Hartford he would visit the scene of the accident. The case will be resumed when court reopens at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Louis Gervais, 71, died at his home, 4 South Park street, this morning. He was born in Centreoceur, Canada, March 23, 1856, a son of Isaac and Pauline Bourin Gervais. The deceased leaves six children, Albert Gervais, Mrs. Leopani Handfield, Mrs. Lester French and the Misses Anna and Regina Gervais of this city, and Sister Clara of the Sacred Heart convent, Taftville; one brother, Francis Gervais of Ware, Mass.; and 19 grandchildren. He was a devoted member of St. Mary's church and member of the Sacred Heart and Holy Cross societies of the local parish and of St. Joseph's society of Canada.

Many interesting novelties are to be found at a bazaar which opened this afternoon under the auspices of the Ladies' society of the First Congregational church at the church house. The arrangement of the booths is as a replica to Fifth avenue, New York city. There are ten booths representing select shops of the famous metropolitan thoroughfare. Christmas greens have effectively used for decorating the promenade. In addition to the booths there is a tea room and a cafeteria. Mrs. William E. Hendry assisted by a corps of assistants had charge of the decorating. The general committee is composed of Mrs. Arthur C. Everett, chairman, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, Mrs. Frank P. Fenton, Mrs. Edward J. Tryon and Mrs. Ashton C. Parsons; while the aides include, Mrs. Hugh C. Murray, Mrs. Herbert R. Chappell, Mrs. Walter E. Knight, Mrs. James W. Hillehouse, Mrs. Helen B. Cummings, Mrs. Albert E Smith and Mrs. Fred L. Avery. Mrs. Christopher C. Case is advertising manager and Mrs. George F. Taylor, treasurer. Booth chairmen are: Mrs. Harvey H. Bronson, Mrs. Robert D. Branch, Mrs. Dwight E. Abel, Mrs. Arthur L. Clark, Mrs. Harold S. Maine, Mrs. William D. Talcott, Mrs. Edward J. Tryon Mrs. A. C. Parsons, Mrs. C. Harry Branch, Mrs. F. P. Fenton, Mrs. Otto B. A report was made to Captain of Police Frank McLean early this afternoon that two well-dressed young men had attempted a bold daylight break into the gasoline filling station conducted by Constant Brothers on the North Windham road, about two miles from this city. The men had tried to open a side door of the station which was closed for the winter this week. They then transferred their activities to the front door and after shattering the glass in the door were about to enter when Mrs. Mary Constant came out of her house, some 100 feet distant. Upon seeing her the pair rushed to a waiting car, believed to be a Chrysler roadster, and sped off.

A hearing on the matter of accepting Ringley street as a city street and effecting uniform lines and grades was given property owners of that street by the committee of the common council Tuesday evening. Representing the city were, Aldermen Charles H. Beebe, William E. Jackson and Arthur J. Dubreuil, Corporation Counsel William A. King and City Engineer Robert B. Mitchell. Several of the property owners, especially those located between Prospect and Valley streets did not take kindly to acceptance by the city, it was said, and they made it known that they would seek damages. Owners of property between Valley and Main street, however, were in favor of a city grading with the exception of one who said that he would seek damages. About 14 owners were in favor of the lines and grades plan described by City Engineer Mitchell while six were not [illegible] A second hearing will be held in two weeks.

About twenty girls employes of the Willimantic Lighting company, Willimantic and Stafford divisions, tendered a pretty shower at Brigham's tea room, Mansfield Depot, Tuesday evening, to Miss Eleanor [illegible] in honor of her approaching marriage to Howard E. Several automobile owners are having tire trouble which is very expensive, as the result of picking up large nails. They are roofing nails and put very large holes in the tires. One man showed four of these nails, which he had taken out of his tires. They are used for other purposes besides roofing.

The Farm Bureau group will meet Friday at ten o'clock in Pachaug chapel. New London county home demonstration agent, Mrs. Belle Robinson of Gales Ferry will have charge. The morning will be occupied in making felt hats and the afternoon with Christmas suggestions.

Mrs. G. H. Prior left Wednesday for Philadelphia, where she is to address the Philadelphia County convention.

The World Wide Guild girls held their meeting Tuesday night at the home of Winifred Scates, with a large number present. A missionary program named Grim (m) Household Tales, was conducted by Florence Quimby. The girls read the stories. It was decided to hold a candlelight vesper service early in December. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Faith chapter, O. E. S., will have an evening of whist after the regular meeting this week.

POETRY

Old Wharves

She used to wander on the rotting piers
Hoping to feel again their pulsing days.
Gray shacks rose all about, broken and drear,
Colored by wind and fog, the sun's full rays;
But to the east where islands fell apart,
She spied her long protracted gaze,
And watched as if mere watching were an art,
Until her age-dimmed eyes lost vision in a haze.
A launch, gas driven, pounded by,
And fishing boats rolled idle to her eye.

She used to go there once in every day,
It seemed to rest her when she left her work;
The gentle lapping of the waves at play,
The sportive winds that in each corner lurked,
And climbing down the ladder sweathed moss green,
She rested in a long forgotten hulk,
That once had trod the ocean like a queen,
And now was left alone to groan and sulk.
They found her sleeping in a pleasant dream
And a lone gull eastward going, like a gleam.

—Constance Kemper.

Contest

Only when the rain is free
The grass springs green upon the plain;
Only when the sun is up
The dew can scintillate again.
Ever when the breeze is bright
The silken banner flies unfurled;
Ever when the tide's in flood
Great craft move out upon the world.
Only when the air is clear
The vision flashes from the hills;
Only when the stream is pure
The sparkle flickers from her rills.
Always when the touch is true
Harmony quivers from the strings;
Ever as he circles up
The lark his magic music flings.
Only when the wind is strong
The wave falls cleanly from the ship,
Only when the heart is pure
White thought springs vivid on the lip
Only when his roots go deep
The tree may swing upon the gale;
Only what he touches Truth
The poet knows he cannot fail.

—M. E. Doris Pountney, in "A Spinster's Soliloquies."

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Did he recover from the accident?

Oh, yes. Enough to buy a big car.—Detroit News.

I don't owe anybody, and now I can look every man straight in the eyes and tell him to go to the devil.

What's the idea of doing that, if you don't owe anybody?—Life.

If I buy you a seat in the stock exchange will you go to work?

I'm not crazy for work, father. Make it a seat in the senate.—Pathfinder.

"I want a book," said the girl.

"Something light?" inquired the librarian.

Oh, no; that doesn't matter. I've a young man waiting outside to carry it home.—Tit-Bits.

"I notice that you always bait with minnows," remarked the pessimist to the fisherman.

"Well, you see, mister," was the reply, "if I catch anything it's bound to be a size larger."—Boston Transcript.

Him—What's the matter with you today?

Her—I don't know; I seem to be out of myself somehow.

"It's an outrage," stormed Mrs. Jones, the new tenant. "Here I am paying you $100 a month for this house, yet the furnace is out of order and you do nothing about it!"

"There, there, now, Mrs. Jones," cooed the landlord, soothingly, "you must keep cool."—Pathfinder.

Aunt—I feel quite provoked to think that you and your mother were in town the other day and went to a restaurant instead of coming to our house to dinner. Why didn't you come?

Little Nephew—The fact is, auntie, we were hungry.—Montreal Family Herald.

A coon dog owned by V. C. Bird, of San Angelo, Tex., is nursing to maturity a litter of baby coons. Bird and his dog go coon hunting several nights a week. This dog leads the pack. When the chase is over the dog returns and suckles the baby coons she has adopted.

One of the high-bred cows belonging to Benedict Gleogler, a Pocono (Pa.) farmer, lost steadily on her production of milk. A son of the farmer solved the mystery when he went to pasture. A fawn was taking a meal while the cow munched grass contentedly. When its appetite had been satisfied the young deer left.

When the John Cutler Lodge, A. F. and A. M., was organized in 1869 at Abington, Erastus Nash was appointed treasurer, a position he filled for a period of thirty-six years. Following the elder Nash's death, his son, Alfred H. Nash, was chosen to fill the position. Mr. Nash is now completing his thirty-first year as the lodge treasurer.

Because he was used so well by the Lewiston (Me.) police when arrested for intoxication, an elderly man from a distant Maine town visited police headquarters recently, carrying a bunch of bananas. "You fellows arrested me seven years ago, but I was used so well that I like to drop in every time I'm in town and set 'em up, so boys, eat a banana," he said. "I was never used any better anywhere," he added as he walked out.

An architect's drawing, believed to be by far the oldest in the world, discovered in Mesopotamia, is described by Dr. J. Stur, a Viennese engineer. This 4,000-year-old equivalent of a blueprint was in a fragmentary condition, but three of the pieces fit accurately together, showing part of the ground plan of what must have been a very large house. The walls and doorways for seventeen rooms are indicated by accurately and cleanly drawn lines, and cuneiform notes give the dimensions. The largest room was 40x46 feet, and the scale of the drawing is 1 to 240.

DANIELSON

KILLINGLY ONLY MILDLY INTERESTED IN RECOUNT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 9.—Killingly was awaiting with passive interest today the announcement of the result of the recount of the vote for first selectman in this town at the annual town meeting on the first Monday in October, as that result will not be made definitely known until given in the superior court at Willimantic Thursday of this week, naturally no one hereabouts would talk about it, or what it revealed, today.

It will be recalled that Alcott D. Sayles, East Killingly, democratic member of the board of selectmen of this town actually received more votes for selectman in the October voting than did John A. Gilbert, republican, who was declared elected first selectman by Moderator Harry E. Back, a member of the bar. Attorney Back's ruling was based on the manner of marking on scores of split tickets. It will be recalled that instructions printed at the head of official ballots used in Connecticut instruct the voter that in voting a split ticket for first selectman he is required to place a "I" instead of the cross-mark "X" before the name of the candidate he favors for first selectman, though an "X" applies for use in voting for other candidates on split tickets.

Moderator Back, election night, decided that as the ballots were marked and according to his opinion, Mr. Gilbert was elected first selectman, and at his declaring Mr. Gilbert elected first selectman, Mr. Sayles immediately, in the town hall, arose and protested the ruling. Attorney Back thereupon announced that Mr. Sayles might resort to the courts if he wished to contest the decision, and that is what Mr. Sayles did. The recount was made in the superior court at Willimantic yesterday, but what the tabulations are, will not be given out by the counters, one of whom was Town Counsel E. L. Darble of Killingly, until the returns are made to the court.

Regardless of what the court may rule or the recount show, citizens who look at the entire controversy in an impersonal, but scrutinous manner, are asking "Just what will it all amount to if Mr. Sayles is declared elected first selectman?" They elaborate upon this by pointing out that Mr. Sayles, already a member of the board of selectmen, even though he should be declared elected first selectman, will have two republican members of the board with him, and that two constitute a majority of three anywhere, anytime. This, of course, contemplates any situation that might arise where the votes of the members of the board might decide some disputed issue among the members and that the republicans, even with Mr Sayles as first selectman, would still have two votes to the one vote of the democratic M. Sayles, and that he could get nowhere with any plan or program he might advocate unless his colleagues were favorable to his ideas.

One hears from well informed democratic sources that all of this is appreciated, but the inspiration back of the recount proceedings is the impression of democratic party leaders that having Mr. Sayles declared elected first selectman would give their party a very special and valuable amount of prestige in a town that is not, and never has been, in the habit of giving the first selectman's berth to any but one of the republican faith.

Of special significance is the fact that Mr. Gilbert, had he chosen to do so, might have contested the application for a recount of the votes, but he preferred to let the recount proceed and show what it might.

This morning the funeral of Joseph Levesque was held from his home in Attawaugan, with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church in Danielson at 9 o'clock. Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor, was celebrant, with Rev. J. E. Fortier, O. M. I., who is preaching a mission at St Joseph's this week, as deacon, and Rev. Ludovic Paradis, as sub-deacon. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Henry Couillard, Dorism Hebert, Athenase Petvin, George LaBonte, Hormidas Lambert and Eli J. Dagenias. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

JEWETT CITY PEOPLE HURT WHEN CAR OVERTURNS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 9.—A call came to the state police barracks here this afternoon for an officer to hunt up the driver of a Buick car that it is alleged forced a car driven by Alfred Cudbird of Jewett City off the highway entering Central Village from the north this afternoon and caused it to overturn, injuring, in no instance in a serious manner, Mr. Cudbird, Mrs. Cudbird and her sister, Miss Mary Vassar, who is blind and who was making the trip back from Concord, Mass., where Mr. Cudbird has been employed.

The injured Jewett City parties were taken from the overturned car into the Valentine family home, where they were given treatment by Dr. J. L. Gardner, and later conveyed to their home in Jewett City. Dr. Gardner said later that Mr. Cudbird had a cut on the forehead and a swelling near the left eye, that Mrs. Cudbird's injuries indicated she might have one or two fractured ribs and that Miss Vassar was bruised about the limbs. All of the members of the Cudbird party were suering from shock.

State Officer Holman Bell of the local barracks was sent out to hunt the driver of the Buick car alleged to have been responsible for the accident and who sped away, as do the hit and run boys, when the Cudbird car turned over.

Bursting of a chlorine gas tank at the Main street plant of the Powdrell and Alexander company this afternoon caused a number of operatives to be temporarily overcome and to require medical treatment. It was stated later that the unpleasant effects of the gas inhalations was only temporary. The gas spread through various floors of the big mill before the several hundred operatives working there could get to the street. Due to the upsetting of the regular routine of operations the mill was shut down for the time being.

Disproving any intention to fix the impression that it would not be mighty nice to go to Florida for the winter—and this was a day to make one think of things like that—three youths who claim Chelmsford, Mass., as their homes gave the Florida boom a sort of a setback this morning, when they appeared here a forlorn, cold, hungry and utterly discouraged trio, hunting out the best and shortest route back to their home town. Attention was first attracted to them when reports began to come in that three young "hobos," with a decrepit car parked beside the highway, were stretched out beside a camp fire they had built near the old Dyer mansion property, about two and a half miles south of here.

A state officer who hurried down there—Chief McFarland of the borough police also having a report on them—found them not at all what appearances indicated they might be. They were George Hobbs, 20, Harry McIntosh, 22, and William Brayden, 21, all of Chelmsford, and, they allowed, they would be glad to see that little town again, and their friends and all that goes with being "back home."

Enthusiastic as all cold climate dwellers are about the prospect of going through a whole year without breasting storms, freezing when out of doors and dig out snowbanks, they had set out some time ago to seek a winter of comfort in the sunny south, and with the sound idea of working when they got there.

It is bad advertising for much boosted Florida that they could find no work of any kind when they got down there, so, with funds running low, they decided on a hasty retreat back into New England, where people always get by—and comfortably—but just missed reching Chelmsford, only a few hours' run away, because they were about run out in endurance and because this was a cold morning and one can't ride in an open car forever.

The boys were checked up by the state officer that picked them up and by telephone through the barracks here and were found to be O. K. Fed up at the barracks, and supplied with gas enough to get them home, they went away happy, liking Danielson and its people better than they happened to like Florida, as they saw it, and betting plenty that New England is not so bad yet.

Arrangements were complete today for Friday's observance of Armistice day in Danielson. These arrangements indicate that this observance will be more elaborate than any held to mark the cessation of hostilities overseas back on that hectic Nov. 11, 1918, than has Danielson seen, excepting, of course, the welcome home celebration, and that was not on an Armistice day.

All that the Legion members were asking today was fair weather for Friday, that their program may not be hindered. They have planned and labored long and successfully for this observance. The addresses of the day are to be delivered by Rev. Leonard R. Richards of Danielson and Rev. J. C. Mathieu of North Grosvenordale, long the beloved pastor of the Sacred Heart church at Wauregan. There is also the possibilities, it was said this afternoon, that some non-resident Legion member will be a speaker. A special request today was that a glorious display of the nitional colors be made in Danielson on Friday, and this can be brought about by the co-operation of individuals who have flags or bunting.

The duck hunters have a protest. There is so much water about favorite hunting grounds for this class of sportsmen that they can't get where they want to get, which is a crude manner of expressing a though, but probably conveys what one means. These duck hunters will tell you that there is still so much overflowed land from "back water" that, even if you do get a shot at a duck and hit the bird, your troubles are then beginning, for shooting a duck and getting it afterwards are two separate and entirely different operations.

The selectmen of the town of Killingly held their regular monthly meeting this afternoon. Having much on their minds about road repairs, a flood remembrance, they talked more or less about that, transacted routine business and decided one matter of special interest. The town hall, it was voted, is to be renovated. All familiar with it know it needs it. The hall—not the building—is to be plaster patched, painted and generally repaired so that it will be in good condition and suitable for the uses of the town and for civic entertainments. It was stated after the meeting today that specifications for the work to be done will be prepared at the office of the selectmen, that local artisans may have an opportunity to bid for the contract.

PUTNAM

CON. FREEMAN INSPECTS PUTNAM POSTOFFICE SITE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 9—Richard P. Freeman of New London, congressman from the second district spent Monday in the city, the guest of Postmaster Archie Macdonald and the members of the citizens committee that is investigating the possible sites for a government building. The committee consists of Thomas deCoudres, president of the chamber of commerce, Samuel Reynolds of the Putnam Rotary club and Charles A. Richard of the common council.

Mr. Freeman agreed with the committee that the city was justified in asking congress for a sufficient appropriation to provide a postoffice building here, that one was needed and that in view of the fact that sufficient money had been provided fifteen years ago, that the city had a tenfold or fifteen years fold reason for insisting upon the need of it.

In company with Mr. Macdonald and the members of the citizens committee, he visited the several sites that had been talked of, the Bove property and the Miour property on Main street and the location next to the Putnam inn. Mr. Freeman further agreed that the cost of the location warranted the increase that was necessary in the appropriation, that he would get in touch with Mr. Blanton of the treasury department who was here a few weeks ago on a similar mission, would learn his views as to what he considered the most desirable site and would do his utmost to have a bill passed by the next congress to provide additional funds for the purchase of the ground for a building. Because of constantly increasing cost he thought that the additional amount should be $40,000 or $50,000

Mr. Freeman's many years in the house of representatives gives him an influence that may result in the quick passage of such a bill. He pledges the committee all of the help in his power

Dr. Garcin of Dayville has been elected a member of the visiting staff at the Day Kimball hospital.

Miss Emily Baynton, former operating nurse at the Day Kimball hospital and who left here to take a course of special study at the University of Ann Arbor, had been appointed chief operating nurse at the hospital.

Denny Conn and his Original orchestra Armistice night dance state armory. Danielson. Admission gentlemen 75c, ladies 50c.—adv.

High school pupils of this city are making elaborate plans for their part in the Armistice day parade and have decided to make this section of the parade a comedy feature. Niel Bulger will act as the school marshal. The football team in uniform and other athletic teams will be in line.

There is to be a meeting of the Ladies of St. Philips' Episcopal church in the Guild rooms on Thursday.

Mrs. Myrtle Bennett Covill, wife of Willis Covell, judge of probate, died yesterday at her home in Abington. She has been in her usual health and was in Putnam doing her shopping the latter part of last week, but was taken ill on Monday of this week and died after an illness of one day.

Mrs. Covell was born in Putnam, October 9, 1874, the daughter of William R. and Lillian Josselin Bennett. She is survived by one son, two daughters and her husband.

Funeral services for Herbert Ellsworth Erickson were conducted this afternoon from the Swedish church in South Woodstock. He underwent an operation for appendicitis at a hospital a few months ago, but did not fully regain his strength and for the past several weeks has been very ill. He was a graduate of the State Trade school in this city.

The fifth dividend of five per cent has been ordered to be paid the depositors and other creditors of the First National bank of this city by the comptroller of the United States treasury.

According to a statement of conditions of the suspended bank made to the U. S. comptroller on September 30, Receiver George M. Coffin had in his possession cash to the amount of $190,-999.05 or enough to have paid nearly ten per cent dividend to the creditors, but as there is a large amount of claims still pending against the bank, and while these claims have not been proven, it is presumed that the comptroller cannot use all of the money on hand until these claims are disposed of.

It is the general opinion that Mr. Coffin has administered his trust with exceptionally good judgment.

Funeral services of Wilfred H. Bellerose, first selectman of the town of Thompson were held yesterday morning at St. Joseph's church in North Grosvenordale where Mr. Bellerose has attended all of his life. Rev. Fr. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church in Putnam and the only brother of Mr. Bellerose, was celebrant, Rev. Fr. Paradis of Occum was deacon, Rev. Fr. Routhier of Putnam was sub deacon and Rev. Fr. Lavalee of St. Joseph's was the master of ceremonies. The beares were Ex-Representative L. P. Faucher and tax collector to represent the town, M. Plante and F. S. Fournier of St. Bernard's council, K. of C. and A. Cardinal and Joseph Gagne representing the Foresters. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery.

In the second of the series in the winter's tournament, played at the Masonic club rooms on Main street, the Elks, as usual, were again the winners with the score of 11 to 7. The interest in the weekly encounters is a very real thing. There were eighteen tables at play and almost as many more spectators who were there as interested onlookers.

Notwithstanding the Masons were the losers in the scores of the evening they feel greatly encouraged as Milot and Lewis at last were defeated at auction bridge. During the whole of the tournament last winter they did not lose a single game but this time their opponents finished with more than one thousand points ahead of them. The fact that they can be beaten is in itself a distinct victory to the Masons.

The scores of this week's play is as follows with the name of the Elks appearing first:

Auction bridge—Milot and Lewis lost to Prince and Duffy; Chadwick and Murray lost to Morse and Geissler; Champlin and Averill lost to Sherman and Stanton; Girard and Wheelock won from Brousseau and Miner; Cotter and Murray lost to Olden and Miron; Fraser and Lafrance won from Johnson and Potter; Rafferty and Kerouack won from English and Wheaton; Macdonald and Gagne lost to Tourtelotte and Kerr; Phillips and McIntyre lost to Johnson and Padgett; Mansfield and Appleby won from Dean and Simpson.

Bid whist—Miller and Brousseau win from Diamond and Moss; Berth and Cavanaugh won from Schoonover and Shaw; Gallant and Migneault won from Seward and Baker; Tetreault and Lizotte won from Bell and Gifford; Wheatley and Bourgois won from Thurston and Arnold; Berthiaume and Robbins won from deCarlo and Chase.

Cribbage—Wheaton and Wheaton won from deCoudres and Marcy; Loomis and Twigg lost to Wheaton and Thayer.

The next meeting will be at the Elks club rooms.

DEVASTATION BY FLOOD IN AND ABOUT ASHAWAY

Visitors to view the flood destruction in Ashaway since Friday morning run well up into the thousands. Several people received duckings by slipping into washed out holes in the streets which were concealed by the rushing waters Friday morning. Irving Benroth and John Bisurum had hens washed away. A dog belonging to W. Gardner Eccleston was rescued from drowning with considerable difficulty Most of the highways in town are either impassable or in dangerous condition. At a point on the new cement road near Hope Valley where a drain pipe crosses under the road the washout is so deep that a person could stand under the highway and look up at the steel reinforcement of the concrete. The road has been supported there by the use of ties and heavy timbers. The flume end of the Chester dam gave way and the water cut through the driftway leading to the residence fo Ex-Senator John S. Cole, to the depth of several feet isolating the house from the old state macadam road.

In Ashaway at the end of the bridge near the linewalk the river cut a ditch several feet wide and deep across the state macadam highway, a costly break to remedy. The old krist mill almost stands on end and the side walls of the picker house of the Ashaway Woolen company next to the river has fallen in, undermined by company had a quan- [illegible] estimated by some at [illegible] washed away from the mill [illegible] dangerously deep excavations in the sides of the macadam road and washed out front lawns and driveways give the center of the village a ragged appearance. A boat was used for a while Friday morning to convey people through the center of the village.

Lewis F. Randolph is having a work shop erected on his lot where he resides in Ashaway.

ROCKVILLE

The record breaking rainstorm of Thursday night created havoc with the roads, making them impassable in places, until temporary repairs could be made. Ponds and streams overflowed their banks, doing more or less damage.

Several newly covered roofs were wet through to say nothing of old ones and chimneys leaked through, but this section was not as unfortunate as many other places.

Rev. and Mrs. Paul S. Burdick and children returned home Thursday night from a few days' visit with relatives at Waterford Conn.

The Loyal Workers served a supper in the parish house Saturday evening, which was a success, though not largely attended, probably because of the bad condition of the highways.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill and daughter Miss Helen Hill of Ashaway, were calling on friends here Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillette Burton, of Canonchet spent Saturday night at the parsonage and attended the supper at the parish house.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Irish and Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Babcock visited Ashaway and Westerly, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Harry D. Lewis and little son Lester were guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric G. Barber, Saturday.

WILSONVILLE

Miss Nellie Dodge has returned from the hospital in Putnam where she was a patient for three weeks.

Young friends of Sophia Dunnal gave her a dinner one night last week. She will be married on Thanksgiving.

Harry Haggerty has returned from spending the summer out of town.

Allen Handy and family of Worcester were with Mr. Handy's parents Sunday.

Serve it to your friends and the warmth of your welcome is well expressed

ELECTION RESULTS

In the state and city elections on Tuesday there were no marked surprises. In almost every instance the contests were based upon local conditions although in those instances where congressmen were up for election to fill vacancies republicans won in Pennsylvania and New York. Even that was only what was to be expected.

In Connecticut the battle of ballots was confined to Bridgeport and New Haven and in each instance it was a republican victory. Mayor Behrens and Mayor Tower were reelected in these cities after campaigns in which the democrats had anticipated success, particularly in New Haven. Thus those who looked upon those contests to indicate increased democratic strength in Connecticut are disappointed.

In the state of New York the outcome means increased republican strength in the next legislature and while the constitutional amendments were all carried except one, or in accordance with the advocacy of New York's governor, even the New York Times admits that the republicans in urging different action "were by no means of one mind about the proposal," reference being made to the four year term for governor which was defeated. Likewise the Times, a Smith supporter, holds that the defeat of this amendment "need not be hailed as solely a great triumph for Governor Smith."

The contest in Philadelphia for the mayoralty resulted, as the primary had indicated, in the choice of the regular republican candidate H. A. Mackey by a big majority.

Perhaps the hardest fought election was in Detroit where Mayor Smith an open advocate of laxity in prohibition enforcement was defeated by John C. Lodge. But even this was indicated if the vote in the primary overwhelmingly in favor of Lodge meant anything. Here the Anti-Saloon league was victorious, but in the fight that it made in Ohio in behalf of the referendum concerning the Marshall bill it was beaten.

In all the elections there was little if any bearing upon national politics. Like the small town election there were contests but they had little more than their local significance.

NEW ENGLAND'S FLOOD PREVENTION

Just at the present time efforts are being centered upon reconstruction in all those localities which have been affected by the recent flood. This ranges all the way from the repairing of damaged roads to the rebuilding of small places which have been all but wiped off the map. It means also getting supplies to those who have been left homeless and isolated from the rest of the state, while there is great need of the work that is being done in providing shelter for the homeless and proper treatment for the sick. At the same time there cannot be overlooked the menace from disease under such conditions.

But it will not be long before there will be general attention given to the problem of prevention. There have been floods before. Every spring there is a period of high water following the heavy rains, but this constant repetition of undesirable conditions tends to awaken a demand for doing something. At least it is quite apparent that the time is ripe for finding out what can be done. It is well that there is not the disposition to sit quietly by and continue to take it indefinitely, or to be satisfied solely with the restoration of the damage.

This feeling that something can be done and should be done prevails in and about Hartford, where the lowlands were many feet under water, quite the same as it must in those communities which received even worse treatment further north. We may not expect such a storm as that of last week each year but we can expect spring rains and high water. The New England problem is slight in comparison with that along the Mississippi but if there is to be a concerted move made for flood prevention in the Connecticut valley it may as well be gotten endeavor now as later. It is to be hoped that there will never be any better reasons for it than have been furnished this month.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

Getting over a bridge before it is reached is an exclamation which some people cannot resist. It is attended by no little fuss and excitement as the usual thing, but after the effort is over and a careful survey is made of the situation it is invariably found that there was much ado about nothing.

That is the way it has worked out in connection with the idea of constructing a dam across the Nile in Abyssinia. There has been some fear that such a scheme would have a very bad effect upon Egypt. The papers of that country have intimated as much, while the whole matter has taken on the appearance of an international affair through the linking of an American contractor with the job.

It can be appreciated that the idea of giving such a job to an American would raise a howl from the British. And it did. It hasn't been clearly set forth just why a representative of Abyssinia consulted an American contractor, but upon doing so and having it become public there were fireworks. It was an unheard of thing. It caused the British to gasp. If any such development should be undertaken it ought of course to go to a British firm. It gave every promise of causing ructions. There was no end to the complications that might be expected.

After getting worked up into such a fever of excitement there was study made of the right to go ahead with any such project and it was quickly learned that it was impossible for any such contract to be signed without British consent. The fact is that no contract has been signed and none can be unless the British are willing. They are in complete control of the situation and the whole affair is just a flash in the pan.

This doesn't mean that there may be no development as proposed, but it does mean that it hasn't been arranged and that when the time comes for any move being made that the British will be consulted and they will have the say as to whether it shall be carried through, and who will do the work. That of course doesn't give any assurance to the American contractor who has been approached.

RECOUNTING THE BALLOTS

In the election at Springfield Tuesday the result showed the choice of one member of the council by one vote. The report of this result was accompanied by the statement that the loser would probably ask for a recount. Under such circumstances such a request is quite natural. It would be expected anywhere unless it was a case where the voting had been done by machines and then the verification of the figures would have been assured as they were taken off the machines.

Winning by one vote is not an impossibility. That was the margin by which a mayoralty election in Norwich was decided a few years ago when Mayor Lerou won over Mayor Desmond. There was no occasion for a contest since the machines had faithfully recorded the wishes of the electorate.

Where the voting is by ballot and counters are assigned to the task of determining the wish of the voter there is a chance for mistakes which might easily upset the result when the voting is close. Such errors may not be intentional but they do creep in and yet where they have been tried it is apparent that the machines not only count the vote as cast and count it correctly but do it speedily so that the result can be ascertained soon after the polls close.

New York fought the voting machine tooth and nail, but now that it has been put into use it is impossible to supply them fast enough to meet the demands. Springfield might have had just as close a vote had it had voting machines but there would have been no occasion for a contest and long delay and expense with a mechanical voter in operation. It is taking some time for this fact to sift through but every contest makes it more apparent.

THE FIRST TEN YEARS

It is ten years since the bolshevik revolution in Russia. Soviet Russia has been celebrating the anniversary and getting as much satisfaction out of it as possible.

It will be remembered that there have been various predictions made as to the length of time that the various governments which have been set up in Russia would last. Invariably the claim was that they would soon expire, six months being frequently heard as the limit.

Regardless of these predictions soviet Russia is still doing business. It has undergone various changes. It has experienced the loss of some of its leaders. It still has many opponents, but those in control have a grip that is firm and secure and they are carrying on. Possibly its first ten years will be the hardest.

Soviet Russia has experienced numerous modifications of its policies. It has undertaken various schemes which have not been carried through. It has gotten recognition from various governments, in the belief that it would be advantageous for those extending the recognition, but there have been experiences as the result which have neither been pleasing to those countries or to Russia.

The first decade of the soviet government finds Russia still seeking the recognition of the United States. It has shown evidences of retiring from the stand it has maintained but it has not as yet indicated its willingness to meet the requirements of this country. Whether it will get around to it before another decade rolls around rests with the soviet government to determine.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: If new parking signs is all we need, we have 'em.

Now the idea is advanced of perpetually renting an automobile. Well, that ought to meet the ideas of some people.

Motor vehicles and floods have been destructive to the railroads but there's no comparison with the ruthlessness of the floods.

How much did you and other Americans contribute of that $78,000,000 which measured Canada's debt reduction during seven months of this year?

After election day there are always two explanations why the results at the polls were what they were—the voters so willed or the other side was too strong.

It is tough on the auto thieves when the owner locks the car and forces them to break the lock or tow the machine away. They ought not to be handicapped in any such way.

HEARTS AND FLOWERS

On the day before Easter Dot said to Bob at the breakfast table, "Did I tell you that Helen Lacey got a pot of jonquils yesterday from George?"

"Helen?" questioned Bob. "Is Helen sick?" A shiver of disappointment ran through Dot.

"Must a woman be sick in order to justify her husband's sending her flowers?"

"Maybe not," grinned Bob, "but what do they want with flowers? Got a small sea of tulips in their yard, haven't they?"

"Why, yes," replied Dot, taken back. "I believe they do have tulips in their yard." To herself, she thought, "Now I know I won't get any flowers for Easter. We have tulips, too."

It seemed to Dot that every time she glanced out of the window that morning she saw a florist's truck skimming down the street. It looked as if everybody were getting flowers except herself. She tried to concentrate her thoughts on the generous check that Bob had given her the previous week.

"Dear old Bob," she sighed. "He's solid, and that means a lot."

On her way to market it was amazing how flowers caught her attention. They stuck out of machines; they dangled from baskets; they balanced dangerously in crowded arms. Well—why not buy some for Bob?

Bob had a falling for pink, and so Dot bought a pot of pink azaleas. While she was waiting for it to be wrapped she noticed a box of flowers that one of the clerks was preparing. He was making the bouquet of gorgeous lilies and long-stemmed, copper-colored roses. Dot's eyes lingered lovingly on the blossoms. The effect was exquisite. A little sigh escaped her as she took her pot of azaleas and departed from the shop.

On her way home she wondered whether it would look silly for her to give Bob the flowers, and by the time she got there she decided it would. It might look as if she were hinting for some herself, and that would never, never do. Of course, she could set the pot on the dining-room table as if she had bought it quite casually; but she did not buy flowers casually. She regretted her purchase. In fact she regretted it to such an extent that she took the azaleas up in the attic and hid them in the dark corner behind grandmother Perkins' old sideboard.

When Bob came home at noon he did not have much to say. Neither did Dot. Shortly after lunch the door bell rang. Dot answered the door. Immediately a boy thrust a box in her arms and fled to a waiting truck. Dot instantly perceived that the package was a flower box and was delighted beyond all measure of expression. Bob had remembered her after all.

She cut the string in haste and peeped inside the package. Tulips, like the ones in the yard, only these had longer stems. Perhaps that was Bob's manner of expressing extravagance. Bob was in the sunroom reading a paper. She made a dive in his direction and threw her arms around him. Before Bob could say anything, the door bell rang again, insistently. In walked Mrs. Potter who lived next door. Mrs. Potter was thoroughly vexed.

"Aren't delivery boys stupid?" she said. "I suppose the Easter rush has something to do with part of their mistakes. Anyway, I saw one leave my flowers here a few minutes ago."

Dot's face blanched, her head swam, her eyes blurred. She had a feeling that Mrs. Potter gathered up the tulips and departed. Bob laughed that big, boyish laugh of his.

"This is like April Fool's day, isn't it, Twinkles." Dot crumpled up in his arms like an abused kitten, and he stroked the back of her head in the same way that one would stroke a kitten. Then the door bell rang.

Before the door was half open, a delivery boy shouted, "Mrs. Robert Perkins," and shoved an enormous pasteboard box in Dot's arms. When she decided that the box was real, and actually for her, she opened it and found within—exquisite lilies and copper-colored roses.

"Oh," she cried delightedly. "Oh, you darling, they're the very ones I saw in the florist's shop this morning."

"And what were you doing in the florist's shop this morning?" inquired Bob.

"If you'll go up to the attic and bring down what you find behind Grandmother Perkins' old sideboard I'll tell you," laughed Dot.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Poultry Industry.

Mr. Editor: It is with sincere regret the undersigned learns, through the columns of The Bulletin, that the ordinance against rooster crowing in the city of Norwich remains in force. Although outside the city limits are not affected by the operation of the ordinance, it seems to this writer as though the ordinance is an ill advised piece of legislature, and only a half way measure at the best.

When one stops to consider the importance of the poultry industry of the United States, which in money value of pure wholesome delicious food represents 16 per cent. of the total farm products of the United States, being third in rank and exceeded in value only by such farm products as cattle and swine, it would seem that the industry, instead of being crippled, or handicapped, should be encouraged in every fair and possible manner. It has not been through the efforts of the commercial poultryman that the industry has attained to such popularity. No, indeed, it has reached its popularity through the untiring labors and diligent study on the part of a few men who 50 years ago, in Massachusetts formed a poultry association to improve the beauty and usefulness of the domestic poultry. Some of its founders are alive today. Judge Daniel Shove of Fall River, Lester Tompkins of Concord, both highly honored men in America, are alive and busy working at their profession of raising beautiful and useful poultry. Other clubs or associations have been formed, many of them being affiliated with the parent association, the American Poultry association, the Norwich Poultry and Pet Stock association, which is composed mostly of Norwich men and women, has for its main purpose the improvement of poultry. They are a lot of self reliant and generous fellows, and while they may indulge in a good deal of good natured banter occasionally, they are obedient to the law. They are the principal exhibitors in the poultry department at the New London county fair, and, if, by any means, they fail to exhibit there, visitors to the fair will miss one of the most attractive exhibits.

The human mind is a restless agent always prone to grumble. People grumble about the weather, yet nobody has offered to do anything about it. Poets have sung the praises of the robins' call, but who can conclusively prove that he is not calling a meeting of his mates to plot and plan for the annual holdup on the orchardist's berry patch? To this writer a better way would be to encourage a love of the beautiful and useful in the feathered world and, instead of the figure of a gargoyle, representing a heathen mythology, or the figure of a lion on the lawns, the lion representing the savage brutality of the forest, what could be more admired by the children than a pair, trio or pen of well bred bantams? For the grown ups, it might be suggested the historic American bird, the Plymouth Rock, while to the most fastidious, the writer would recommend as a great attraction, a pair or trio or pen of standard bred Rhode Island Reds, Reds; 100 per cent. American, thoroughly patriotic and which have never been suspected or accused of laying a plot or hatching a conspiracy against the government. But why exclude the hen from the operations of the rooster crowing ordinance? The crowing hen is not an uncommon bird by any means. One of the world's greatest professors of poultry science and pathology, Dr. Kaupp, relates "that he has had many such cases under examination from time to time." He states in Poultry Item, October, 1927, page 32, that these hens grow sickle and saddle feathers like a male, and in all other respects imitat the male."

Dr. Crew of Edinburgh goes even further in his findings.

Here is a problem for the evolutionist!

NEW BOOKS

Where's Emily? By Carolyn Wells. Cloth, 318 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott company. Price $2.

"I'll run over to the hospital and kiss the new baby for luck, and be back in plenty of time for the rehearsal." That was the last anyone saw of the bride; she never arrived at the hospital. Polly Pennington, the matron of honor, also left to walk home across the rustic bridge over the deep, woody ravine. And no one saw Polly again, either—until the police found her body huddled among the weeds at the bottom of the ravine—and a foot or two away, Emily's fur and six of her flawless diamonds, a wedding present from the groom. But where was Emily? The police believed she had run away to escape the blame of Polly's death. But that wasn't like Emily. Did Lal Singh, the Swami, know where she was? Had she become a member of the "new race"? Or was she too lying at the bottom of the ravine, hidden by the tangled undergrowth? Even Fleming Stone can scarcely find a clue. And then, one night—but that would give away Fleming Stone's secret and he likes to spring his own surprises. This volume is by the author of All at Sea and The Red Haired Girl and is a fascinating detective story.

The White Flower. By Grace Livingston Hill. Cloth, 320 pages. Published by the J. B. Lippincott company. Price $2.

How was pretty haired Rachel to know that the ad in the paper wasn't perfectly true? Why should she doubt that there was a sweet old lady out in California longing for a bright young companion? Rachel had been brought up to take the world on faith, so she set out for California under the protection of Mr. Trevor, the rich old lady's agent. And she might have gotten into no end of trouble if Chan Prescott hadn't sat near Mr. Trevor in the parlor car and heard his low toned conversation with the fat, sleek-looking Shillingsworth. And Chan, who loved to play the hero vowed he'd ruin their plot—he'd never let that lovely girl fall into such a villainous trap. But a rescue is easier thought of than accomplished, and it was a stony road that Chan and Rachel had to travel before they came to that happy ending that always rewards those who do their level best to help someone else.

Here's another of Mrs. Hill's eagerly sought stories—a romance as lovely as Joy's Nieve and as full of thrills as anyone could possibly wish. Mrs. Hill has also written Coming Through the Rye and A New Name.

Steep Ascent. By Jean Starr Untermeyer. Cloth, 57 pages. Published by the Macmillan company, New York. Price $1.25.

This volume of verse is by the author of Dreams Out of Darkness and Growing Pains and is dedicated to her son Richard. Attractively printed the book of poems should make a strong appeal to those who are fond of the products of poetical imagination simply yet beautifully presented.

Of the work of Mrs. Untermeyer, Amy Lowell has written: "Here we have a poetry of absolute direct speech so suffused and heightened that it attains high distinction and a stark perception of beauty."

Troubles We Don't Talk About. By J. F. Montague, M. D., F. A. C. S. Cloth, 248 pages. Published by the J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

This book should have been written years ago for the sake of the thousands who "suffer in silence, linger in doubt and carry on in despair." For the troubles we don't talk about create a false sense of modesty which prevents the sufferer from consulting a doctor and obtaining a permanent and often painless cure—and saving himself from untold misery.

Dr. Montague is a specialist without peer in this field. He tells the truth without fear or favor. He goes into the explanation of troubles, the importance of examinations and the dangers of using remedies which may or may not fit the case, but which may do more harm in the long run than good. Altogether the book will prove a godsend to thousands of sufferers today. It will do more than speak for itself; it will through the knowledge it brings, cause other people to speak for it. It is written primarily for the average man and woman in understandable non-technical language.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Henry Van Dyke, who celebrates his 75th birthday anniversary today, is one of America's foremost men of letters, who some ten years ago was called into the service of the nation to fill the post of minister to the Netherlands. He is an alumnus of Princeton university and of Princeton Theological seminary, and at the close of the administration of President Patton, when Woodrow Wilson was elected president of the university, Dr. Van Dyke, also was a candidate, backed by not a few supporters. He is a clergyman of the Presbyterian church and has served as moderator of the general assembly of that denomination. As an essayist, as a poet, and as a critic of literature he has an international reputation, and he has been a favorite preacher at colleges and universities of the United States.

Alexander P. Moore, former U. S. ambassador to Spain, whose engagement to Mrs. Dorothy Caruso Ingram is announced, born in Pittsburgh, 60 years ago today.

YOUR HEALTH

By Anthony Bassler, M.D., New York City Member of Gorgas Memorial.

About one-third of the adult patients who go to a physician for service do so for some form of digestive trouble. Of these the largest number have minor disorders which simple measures can diagnose and treat successfully. A considerable number, however, are really suffering because of some serious disease such as cancer, ulcer, or gall stones, and in the majority of these the symptoms are similar to those of the simple and minor forms of indigestion. It is for this reason that a person who has a continued form of indigestion should resect to a thorough examination. The experience of specialists in digestive diseases is that a great many people walk around with serious conditions of which they are ignorant or about which they are careless.

Disease is repeatedly found in people who have only a few months to live. In most of these there has been a continuation of indigestion symptoms to which little or no attention had been paid until the disease was so far advanced that little or nothing could be done in the way of a cure.

Disorders of the nervous system manifest their symptoms promptly in unmistakable ways. In diseases of the lungs and heart distinct symptoms are early, and there are certain sounds in the function of these organs that tell what is wrong. The abdomen, however, is a silent tomb, and in it are contained organs quite as essential to life as the heart and lungs. More than that, considerable extents of diseases can be present in the stomach, liver, gall tract, pancreas, intestines, rectum, kidneys, and bladder with hardly any symptoms. It is important, therefore, in all instances of a chronic or continued indigestion that a complete examination be made to find out just what is wrong. If it then turns out to be an insignificant matter, no harm is done. That assures in itself is worth much.

A gamble on the weather a month from now is much more of a sure thing than a chance on your life in a continued indigestion in the same length of time.

Stories That Recall Others

Father Ought to Know

Olive, age five, accompanied her mother for the first time to a wedding. She seemed very interested and attentive until the solemn affair was nearing the end. Olive studied the bridegroom for a while and then in a low but distinct voice she said, "Mother, I don't see Mr. B's blindfold."

Mother quite surprised at Olive's remark asked, "why, Olive, what on earth ever put such a silly idea into your head?"

Olive studied a moment and then she replied, "Well, I heard daddy say, 'Jim's going into this blindfolded just as I did.'"

"What Did He Get?"

Mary, age five, was recuperating from a serious illness. Her fond brothers and sisters made her hours as cheerful as possible by keeping her informed on any interesting bits of news they gathered from the outside world.

One of her brothers came to her bedside, and said: "Mary, this is George Washington's birthday."

Mary looked up at him and her eyes brightened as she asked: "What did he get?"

At a height of a mile and a half in the air, the coolest time of the twenty-four hours is in the day rather than at night.

MOTHER!

Look at Child's Tongue if Sick, Cross, Feverish

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

WEDDINGS

Tisdale-Sevin.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Sevin, daughter of Mrs. Susan W. Sevin and the late Clarence D. Sevin, and Reed Wadsworth Tisdale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Tisdale of 72 Columbia avenue, Edgewood, R. I., took place at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the bride's home, 28 Bliss place.

The bridal party entered the parlor as the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. William H. Godson, Jr., and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church. During the ceremony, Mrs. Godson played Kammennoi Ostrow (Rubinstein) and at the conclusion the Mendelssohn wedding march. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Clarence Whitney Sevin, of New London, was attended by Mrs. Frank W. Hewes, Jr., of Groton, as matron of honor, and Miss Marion A. Bliven, as bridesmaid. The bridegroom had as his best man Russell Clark Mason, of Edgewood, R. I. Miss Clara D. Evans and Miss Natalie E. Hamilton were the ribbon bearers.

The floral decorations were beautifully arranged with autumn foliage, white chrysanthemums, roses and lilies of the valley in the parlor and pink roses in the dining room, banked with white chrysanthemums and autumn leaves.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white satin with veil fastened with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and chrysanthemums. The matron of honor wore a gown of blue velvet and silver cloth and the maid of honor wore a gowned in brown velvet and gold cloth. Their bouquets were of white chrysanthemums tied with silver and gold ribbons.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for the 130 wedding guests, Mrs. Sevin and Mr. and Mrs. Tisdale receiving with the bridal couple, and refreshments were served.

Early in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Tisdale left upon their honeymoon, and upon their return will reside with the bride's mother. The bride's going away costume was a brown satin dress, over which she wore a brown coat trimmed with beaver.

The bridegroom was graduated at Fessenden school, West Newton, Mass. and Milton academy, Milton Mass., is a member of Harmony lodge, No. 9, F. and A. M., of Pawtuxet, R. I. and is employed in this city in the office of the Thamesville plant of the American Woolen company. The bride, whose home has always been in this city, is a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy, class of '19.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding were relatives and friends from Providence, Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Baker-Buffington.

Miss Evelyn Elizabeth Buffington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Buffington of 59 Connecticut avenue, New London, and Clyde K. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morton F. Baker, of Woolwich, Me., were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night. Rev. Chester H. Howe performed the ceremony. The bride's attendant was Miss Lillian Meyer, and Forrest Baker, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Miss Buffington wore an attractive gown of blue satin, trimmed with blue and pink rosebuds. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Her bridesmaid wore Nile green georgette and carried pink chrysanthemums.

A reception attended by only relatives and close friends followed the wedding. The house was decorated with laurel and pink roses. The couple received numerous beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Baker are to reside at 20 Clover court.

RAINBOW BAZAAR REALIZES $500 FOR BUDGET OF WOMAN'S GUILD

Under the general direction of the ways and means committee of the Woman's guild of the United Congregational church, a rainbow bazaar was held with a fine measure of success Wednesday at the Community house, as the estimate made at the close of the bazaar was that the net proceeds will be at least $500. This will go toward the annual budget of the Woman's guild.

The bazaar opened at 10 in the morning and continued till 10 in the evening under the auspices of the general committee as follows: Mrs. Joseph A. French, Mrs. Harold L. Carpenter, Mrs. William S. Elliott, Mrs. Richard Gregson, Mrs. Charles M. Olson, Mrs. Harold E. Robbins, and Mrs. Eugene Saunders, with Mrs. H. W. Gallup and Mrs. Archibald Mitchell 4th in charge of the supper tickets.

The main floor of the Community house presented an attractive appearance, the different booths being arranged around the sides and decorated in the rainbow colors of red, orange, yellow, green, blue and violet. At the rear of the platform a rainbow arch made a pretty background for a tea garden that was arranged with evergreen trees.

At 6.30 supper was served in the lower room, over 300 enjoying the menu which consisted of fruit cup, chicken pie, mashed potatoes, peas, celery, cranberry sauce, rolls, coffee and ice cream with butterscotch sauce.

The candy booth was in red with Mrs. Clarence A. Spear as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Harold F. Carpenter, Mrs. Roger L. Worthington, Miss Mollie Kampf, Miss Marion Beebe and Miss Mildred Francis, with the following girls selling candy: Betty Spear, Ruth and Anna Thompson, Janet Carpenter, Fannie La Pierre, Betty La Pierre and Barbara Fellows.

Orange was the color for the children's booth, for which Mrs. Edward A. Rich was chairman, assisted by Mrs. Herman Tubbs.

The booth for the sale of aprons and bags was in yellow and the committee consisted of Mrs. Alfred Bliven, chairman, Mrs. George R. Gifford, Mrs. Harry L. Sherman, Mrs. Thomas Smith, Mrs. C. A. Spear, Miss Gertude Bisbee and Mrs. Don Houghton.

The novelty booth was in green. Mrs. Arthur L. Peale was the chairman in charge with the following committee: Miss Jane McG. Aiken, Mrs. Charles D. Greenman, Mrs. Herbert W. Kind, Mrs. Jerome F. Conant, Mrs. C. R. Williams, Mrs. Carl Johnson and Mrs. William A. Buckingham.

The food table, which was in charge of Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, was in blue and the committee comprised Mrs. Frederic W. Lester, Mrs. W. M. Zumbro, Miss Margaret Campbell, Miss Miriam Campbell, Miss Elizabeth Huntington, Mrs. M. Leith, Miss Nancy E. Lucas, Miss Mary C. Lucas and Miss Elizabeth F. Pullen.

The brides' booth had violet for its color and was in chage of Mrs. Henry W. Lane, chairman, Mrs. Edgar H. Allen, Mrs. Fred C. Crowell, Mrs. Harry N. Ford, Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs, Mrs. H. M. Lerou, Mrs. W. H. Oat, Mrs. Chauncey D. Sherman, Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, Mrs. Lewis M. Young and Mrs. Arthur H. Lathrop.

The flower booth was arranged under arches in the center of the room and was in charge of Mrs. Christian R. March, chairman, Mrs. Marcus Leith, Mrs. Henry Lyon and Mrs. Henry G. Peck. Children in flower costumes who assisted them were Kathryn March, Lois Allen, Peggy Ross, Florence Smith, LaVerre Tubbs, Susan French and Marion Lyon.

The grab bags were in charge of Mrs. William H. Dawley, chairman, Mrs. Avery Gallup, Mrs. Arnaud La Pierre, Mrs. Richard Tracy, Mrs. Alexander Durie, assisted by Miss Alice Browning in a witch costume, Mrs. Warren Chaffin in a clown costume and Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup as the walking grab bag.

Afternoon tea, which was served from 2 to 6 p. m. at tables arranged upon the platform, was in charge of members of Charitable circle of the King's Daughters.

The supper committee comprised Mrs. Edward Adams, chairman, Mrs. Fannie Adams, Mrs. Ethel Krohn, Mrs. William E. Baker, Mrs. Rose Breckenridge, Mrs. George Anderson, Mrs. George Kampf, Mrs. John Walker, Mrs. Gertude Tiffany, Mrs. Lillian Young, Mrs. Flora Noyes, Mrs. Hans Rasmussen, Mrs. John Tefft, Mrs. J. H. Wetherbee, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. E. T. Paules.

Miss Grace Rogers was in charge of the dining room as headwaitress and the following were the waitresses: the Misses Isabell Barrett, Gladys Blanchard, Eleanor Sargent, Emma Thompson, Betty Spear, Betty Durie, Betty La Pierre, Susanne Higgins, Alice Higgins, Dorothy Sherman, Madeline Spalding, Dorothy Edwarde, Wilma Stanton, Beatrice Spicer, Gertrude Gallup, Dorothy Holden, Dorothy Rasmussen, Dorothy Messler, Helen McMillan, Ruth Whitehead, Lucille Spaulding, Vilette Peck and Gertrude Pickering.

WILLIMANTIC MAN HURT IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 9.—David Chimansky was taken to St. Joseph's hospital about 6 o'clock tonight following an accident near his home on Brick Top road, Windham, shortly after 5 o'clock when the wagon which he was driving was struck by an Overland touring car operated by George O. Monty of 219 Main street, this city. Monty, whose car ran into the rear end of the wagon, stated that there were no lights on the team. Chimansky was thrown to the road and suffered a cut on the head and bruises about the body. The accident was investigated by Motorcycle Officer Marrotte.

A Hudson coach operated by Cyril W. Blackmar of 126 North street and a Ford car, operated by Joseph Lorence of 136 Chapman street, were somewhat damaged in a collision at the intersection of Jackson and Ash street about 5 o'clock tonight. A New England Transportation company motor coach, driven by Walter Segar, of this city, was being turned around at the intersection. Blackmar went to drive by the coach, when the Ford arrived at the scene from the opposite direction. In reporting the accident to Officer Marrotte, the drivers stated that they would settle the damage between themselves. There was no damage to the bus.

FORESTERS' CARD EVENING HAS BIG ATTENDANCE

With an attendance taxing the seating capacity of the Foresters club hall the fourth of the series of card parties in the tournament being conducted by the S. M. D. club was held Wednesday night. The winners at pinochle were as follows:

MRS. SNOW, OF TAFTVILLE, CHAIRMAN SEAL COMMITTEE

Tuesday afternoon and evening, at Sterling hall, Yale university, there was an interesting conference dealing with measures adopted in the problem of tuberculosis in the state. Prominent speakers were heard at both sessions. Those attending from Norwich were Mrs. Albert H. Chase, Mrs. Richard Snow and four public health nurses, Misses Maher, Reid, McNamara and Murphy.

Mrs. Snow, of Taftville, is chairman of the tuberculosis seal committee for the Norwich district.

Hears From Montpelier Relative.

Mrs. Ray Lewis of 20 Nameaug avenue, New London, received a letter Wednesday from her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Tobin, of Montpelier, Vt., saying that Mrs. Tobin, her husband and two children, were safe but had lost practically everything they owned in the flood. The letter was brought out of Montpelier by airplane as regular mail service in and out of the city has not been re-established.

LORD'S POINT COTTAGE HAS $200 FIRE DAMAGE

A gallon of vinegar helped save the summer cottage of B. J. Fennyery of Springfield at Lord's Point Wednesday morning, from destruction by fire, which broke out from a defective chimney shortly after 3 o'clock.

The Fennyery family had gone to the cottage recently to pack up, preparatory to closing the place for the winter. Shortly after 3 o'clock Wednesday morning the family was awakened by smoke to discover a blaze over the fire-place.

The Stonington fire department responded to a call from the cottage and extinguished the fire by the use of chemicals. Investigation afterward revealed the fact that the gallon jug of vinegar on the mantle over the fireplace probably retarded the spread of the fire when it burst and doused the seat of the flames. This smothering action is also believed to have caused the house to fill with smoke and thus arouse the occupants with consequence of the timely discovery of the fire and the saving of the structure and possibly the lives of the Fennyrey family.

The damage was estimated at $200, which is covered by insurance.

QUIDNICK MILLS SALE NETS ONLY $179,497.98

Two cotton mills of the Quidnick-Windham Mfg company, at Quidnick, R. I., including machinery, dams, waterwheels, power plants and riparian rights, have netted only $179,497.98 when sold by lots at mortgagee's auction during the past two days. The properties, including a parcel of tenement houses which were not sold, were valued several years ago at $1,455,200. Property of the company at Willimantic is to be sold at auction during the next three days.

The mills and some of the equipment were purchased by Harry Leach of Providence, for the H. and H. Manufacturing company. The rated spindlage of the two mills is 57,800.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR MISS MARY CARTER

A delightful miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Miss Mildred Bergeron Tuesday evening in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Mary Carter. The bride-to-be received many beautiful gifts. Following the exhibition of gifts games were played. Miss Charlotte Palmer gave an exhibition of the Black Bottom. A very delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. S. Bergeron assisted by Mrs. Corbielle. Miss Mildred Bergeron added to the evening's enjoyment by providing music for the dancing.

De Laney Out of Game

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Jimmy De Laney, triple threat fullback of the Fordham eleven, will be missing from the lineup when the local team tackles Providence Saturday. Because of too frequent cutting of classes, school authorities announced today that De Laney had withdrawn from the squad. He has been the outstanding back on Coach Frank Cavanaugh's eleven this season.

EKONK (STERLING HILL)

The torrential rainfall of last Thursday night and Friday did much damage in this section. Those on the hill did not suffer as did residents in Sterling Center where dams and bridges were swept away. Many were warned to leave their homes and quickly gathered up some valuables and fled to higher ground. Herman Frink, who carries a truck load of milk to rovPidence daily was obliged to go by by of Danielson. Walter Frink who carries milk to Oneco met with a thrilling accident when a bridge collapsed as he drove on it and his automobile went down in the raging current. It was a wonder that he escaped with a few bruises.

There was no school Friday as the teacher could not reach here from Onsco. The grange meeting for Friday evening was also postponed.

Warren Tanner and men are repairing the roads.

A farmers' institute held in Ekonk Grange hall Thursday was well attended.

Mrs. Walter Congdon has been spending several days in Danielson with her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gordon and little son have been visiting for a few days in Hope Valley with Mrs. Nellie Phillips.

John Jacobs, Jr., of Jewett City has been visiting at William Jarvis' home.

Mr. and Mrs. Erik Souminen and Mrs. William Jarvis spent the week-end in New York.

The Ladies Aid society of Sterling Hill served a supper in the church vestry Tuesday, which was well attended. Many came from Moosup and Plainfield.

There was an unusually large congregation at the Sterling Hill church Sunday to listen to the talented soloist, George D. Hernandez, who sang three groups of Negro spirituals in fine voice.

AGGIES AND RHODE ISLAND ARE TIED IN GAMES WON

Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 9—When the Connecticut Aggies and Rhode Island State meet in football at Kingston, R. I., Saturday, it will be the twentieth game of the series that first started in 1897. Moreover, he game ranks as one of the season's objectives for both elevens, and it should develop into one of the most attractive small college games in New England for that day.

In the nineteen games played since 1897, each team has won eight games, and three have been tied. All of which means the victor in this season's fray will have a one-game margin over the other in the matter of games won and lost.

If Rhode Island does succeed in defeating Connecticut this Saturday, it will be the first time since 1922 that the Engineers have been able to turn the trick. In that year, a greatly under estimated Rhode Island eleven provided a real upset to win from the Aggies by a 12-7 score. Since that time, however, or ever since Sumner A. Dole has guided the gridiron destinies of the Nutmeggers, Rhode Island has never ben able to win from its traditional rival, its best showing of recent seasons was in 1925, when Rhody fought the Aggies to a scoreless tie at Kingston.

WITTMER SHOWS HIS SPEED AGAINST SCRUBS

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 9—(AP)—Priming his sped for the Yale clash Saturday, Ed Wittmer, sophomore star, scored the only touchdown for the Princeton varsity in a short scrimmage with the scrub eleven today. Jake Slagle and Stan Keck, former Tiger heroes, and Coaches Winn and Al Wittmer, played with the scubs.

Wittmer broke off tackle for the score while the varsity lineup, unchanged but for the substitution of Lawler for Stinson at end, was in action. The regular backs, Baruch, Wittmer, Norman and Malles, later gave way to Strubing, Jones, Requardt, and Owen.

After a long signal drill tomorrow, the team will attend a mass meeting of the undergraduates. The squad leaves for New Haven Friday morning in time to practice in the bowl that afternoon.

CALDWELL NOT EVEN PERMITTED PRO FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—Bruce Caldwell, ace of the Yale backfield, who has ben declared ineligible to compete against Princeton Saturday because of two freshman games he played at Brown, would be unable to play professional football with the major teams if he were to leave college now for that purpose.

Although officials of the National Football league admitted that Caldwell unquestionably would prove a fine drawing card, they pointed out that a rule of the organization states that no college player can join a team in the league until his class has graduated. The clause was written into the professional code purposely to prevent any team bidding so highly for a college star's services that he would prefer to leave school.

DOBIE WORRIES LESS ABOUT FLOOD THAN ABOUT TEAM

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 9—(AP)—"Gloomy" Gil Dobie isn't worrying about how he and his Cornell football squad are going to get through flooded New England regions for the Dartmouth battle Saturday at Hanover, as much as he is concerned with the chances he stands of rounding a team of several crippled regulars into shape for that important fray.

Dobie has five veterans, Schoales and Wickham, his best ends, Schumacher, next wing man choice, Katz, tackle and Wakeman, guard, still on the casualty list.

The squad went through a long formation, passing and kicking drill today mixing in plenty of scrimmage until late evening under flood lights. Dobie alternated Cohen with Scott at fullback.

CORNELL PLAYS RIP UP DARTMOUTH'S FORWARD LINE

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 9—(AP)—Dartmouth worked out in a snow flurry today in preparation for the closing game of the season with Cornell, in Hanover, Saturday. The scrubs, using Cornell's crushing off-tackle slants, ripped through the Green varsity forward wall in a maner entirely too much like the Ithacans of former years to suit Coach Hawley. Forward passing and signal drils completed the day's work.

NORTHERN RADIO LISTENERS HEAR VOICE OF STATION A B

Far north radio operators report reception of Station Aurora Borealis. And, according to the "listeners in" at Beresov, Tobolsk province, Siberia, Station A B's "program" is melodious, even if the less imaginative might merely call it "interference."

"Beresov is an isolated town of wooden huts, native dugouts, and 2,000 inhabitants on the Soswa river about 100 miles east of the Ural mountains and about as far south of the Arctic circle as the southern coast of Iceland," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Tobolsk, the nearest sizable town and Saltkova, the nearest station of the Trans-Siberian railway, are about 400 miles south of the village.

"While many Russians inhabit Beresov it is in the land of the Ostyaks, a race of people whose long heads, thick lips, round faces, protruding cheek bones, dark narrow eyes, smooth black hair, and yellow-gray skin, are in sharp contrast to the features of their European neighbors just across the Ural range.

"The Ostyaks are divided into small clans, each clan usually representing a family. In the winter they remain in and near the villages but summer time finds them in the fields in their tents of birch bark and deerskin.

"Few of the clansmen can read or write and figures are almost unknown to them. The notches on a stick are to the Ostyak what the beads on a counting board are to a Chinaman. A fathom is measured by the distance between the finger tips of outstretched arms. Time is measured by the interval for a pot of a certain size to boil.

"Medicine men and pagan priests hold sway over the Ostyaks before the Russians conquered them. Now many are Christians (Russian Orthodox) and Moslems. However, the clansmen still retain some of their old customs. In many of the huts clan images, carved out of wood and gayly painted, are still to be seen. Bleeding the sick is still a favorite cure—all and some clans insist that their children smoke tobacco to prevent sore throats and lung infections.

"The bear has always been held sacred by the Ostyaks. When they kill one, the clansman apologize to the carcass for several days. They insist the blame for taking the bear's life is not theirs, but the Russians' who sold them the guns. To swear by the jawbone of a bear is as sacred as swearing on the Bible in a Christian country. For three years after the death of a clansman an image of the deceased is dressed and undressed, set up to the table, and put to bed as if a living thing. Then it is buried with the remains.

"Good Ostyak wives are luxuries, and the clansmen often have more than one. An ardent swain might pay 10 fox pelts and a herd of deer for the girl of his choice. If he is not a matrimonial diplomat, he hires a professional go-between to bargain with the prospective bride's parents. After the ceremony, the bride settles down to her job of taking care of the home, and the reindeer herd too, if her husband is fortunate enough to have one. In her spare time she makes fine embroidery on linen, made of flax and hemp which she raises. Some of the men are skilled in wood and bone carving.

"Ostyaks seldom grow taller than 5 feet 4 inches. In the winter the numerous layers of deerskin clothing make them nearly as broad as they are tall. The reindeer is not only the chief source of clothing but also the chief means of Ostyak transportation. And raw reindeer meat is one of their principal foods. Corn meal boiled with fish bones, and entrails of fish, soaked in oil, are Ostyak delicacies.

"Old forts in the Beresov region recall the days when the Ostyaks were a well organized race that for many years staved off Russian aggression in western Siberia. Since they were conquered the race has disintegrated and through trade and intermarriage with the Russians, their language is rapidly disappearing."

PRINCETON EXPRESSES HOPE THAT CALDWELL WILL PLAY SATURDAY

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Suggesting that an exception under the transfer rule be made in the case of Bruce Caldwell, Yale halfback, just declared ineligible, the Princeton faculty committee on athletics today notified Yale athletic authorities it would receive "the great pleasure" any action which would permit the Eli star to play against Princeton in this Saturday's game at New Haven.

At the same time, President John Grier Hibben of Princeton wired James R. Angell, president of Yale, urging that Yale yield to the suggestion that Caldwell be permitted to play in the final game.

Similar [illegible] in behalf of Princeton's undergraduate body was expected later in the day after a special meeting of the student council.

The faculty committee on Athletics took the position that while it regarded the transfer rule as sound, it also felt that Caldwell's case was out of the ordinary and merited special consideration because "of the late date at which the facts have come to light," almost on the eve of the big game.

The faculty committee's statement follows:

"The Princeton faculty committee on athletics recognizes that under Princeton's agreement with Yale, all decisions of the eligibility of Yale athletes properly rest with the Yale committee. We have the most cordial confidence in any decision which the Yale committee may make. We believe in the wisdom and effectiveness of the transfer rule in its present form. But we wish to express regret that Bruce Caldwell should be lost to the Yale team almost upon the eve of the Princeton game. In view of the late date at which the facts have come to light, we wish to say that it is, it seems to the Yale committee in any way possible and proper to make an exception of that game and permit him to play against Princeton, such action would be received with great pleasure at Princeton."

President Hibben wired President Angell as follows:

"I am distressed to learn of the situation which has arisen concerning Bruce Caldwell. I hope that your athletic committee will yield to the suggestion of the Princeton faculty committee to allow Bruce Caldwell to play in the game on Saturday. We will rejoice as much over such a decision as all of you at New Haven."

YALE ALUMNI SPECULATE ON YALE'S CHANCES SATURDAY

Yale alumni in Norwich speculated on Yale's chances of beating Princeton Saturday without the services of the brilliant backfield star, Bruce Caldwell, who has been barred from further participation in Yale football because of violation of the "transfer rule." Of course, as can be expected there was a general feeling of depression in view of the brilliant work of the Ashton lad in previous games. The more optimistic saw a psychological effect on the team as a whole to make them fight even harder than had Caldwell been in the backfield.

Local alumni and Norwich people who have attended the Yale games are disappointed in the fact that they will be unable to witness the individual duel between Caldwell of Yale and Wittmer of Princeton, both candidates for All-American honors. Caldwell, it is admitted, has had the advantage of a line that is second to none in Yale football history, a line that has opened holes for Caldwell's speed; a line that has held on the punts and forward passes and a line that has played a brilliant defensive game. The line, in the opinion of the close follower of football, has added materially to Caldwell's greatness the same as the brilliant line that protected Red Grange. This same line will be working for Garvey and Hoben just as hard if not a little harder and there is little reason why both these understudies of Caldwell shouldn't make repeated gains. In the Dartmouth game it was Garvey that twisted and squirmed his way through the Green hordes for two touchdowns. Caldwell is a triple threat man, he can pass, punt and carry the ball whereas neither Hoben nor Harvey can punt with Caldwell. Caldwell could pass but Hoben is almost as good in this line as Caldwell as can be seen by his 56 yard heave in Wednesday's practice. The main thing is that with the removal of Caldwell it will be easier for Princeton to diagnose the punt and the pass.

Caldwell, had he played, would have been watched by Princeton with eagle eyes the same as Yale watched Myles Lane and Al Marsters in the Dartmouth game. With Caldwell out of the game Princeton will be at more or less of a loss to know who to watch and the play may be more effective.

Yes, Yale alumni are disappointed, but far from being gloomy. New football heroes will be in the making in Saturday's game.

RENE LACOSTE HAS INVENTED TENNIS MACHINE

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—In defeating "Big Bill" Tilden last August Rene Lacoste had a mechanical accomplice—a unique machine of his own invention—the French tennis marvel disclosed today.

Lacoste practiced on the London turf courts today with the apparatus which fires balls across the net so rapidly that the player is kept on the run. this tennis robot can be operated by turning a handle or by the use of an electric motor.

"I have been working on my invention for more than six months," said Lacoste after slamming several balls back at his creation. "The great advantage of the apparatus is that you can have the finest shots fired at you by a person who has never even played tennis. My mother and sister used to turn the handle for me when I was in training to meet Tilden this year—but I can work up my own model in Paris with an electric motor.

"It could be so arranged that any number of balls up to 1000 might be fired at you in rapid succession."

The French tennis star's metallic training partner propells balls at four angels.

Norwich Cancels Games

NORTHFIELD, Vermont, Nov. 9—(AP)—Cancellation of the two remaining football games on the Norwich University schedule as a result of last week's flood was announced today by the athletic authorities. Uncertainty of transportation and the feeling that to carry on football in the crisis now confronting Vermont would be inappropriate prompted the authorities to act.

Norwich was scheduled to play Massachusetts Aggies at Amherst on Saturday and a postponed game with Middlebury the week following.

Football fans have no difficulty in distinguishing the Everett (Mass.) high school eleven when it appears on the field. The Everett players are resplendant in tailor-made uniforms of bright scarlet—including scarlet headgear, jerseys, pants and stockings. The rigouts are said to be the costliest worn by any scholastic gridiron players in the country.

ACADEMY FAVORITE TO BEAT BULKELEY FRIDAY

Friday

N. F. A. at Bulkeley (N. L.) (Mercer Field, 2:30).

Stonington at Westerly (10:30).

Saturday

Bristol at Windham.

The two most important games of the season involving teams of this section form the grid slate for the week end. The Academy meets Bulkeley at New London and Stonington goes to Westerly high. These two games will hog all interest during this second last week end of the season. The Westerly-Stonington game will be played in the morning.

N. F. A.-Bulkeley

This Academy-Bulkeley game seems a queer thing to figure out. On first glance it would seem nothing short of a miracle if the Orange and Black could win or even tie the locals. Their scoreless record in seven games, five being lost, looks mighty cheap alongside the Academy's work of winning five in six games.

In any other series this pre-season dope might hold true but it hardly ever has in an Academy-Bulkeley affray.

Bulkeley has played some good teams, hence one reason for her poor showing. But so has the Academy played the leaders of the state.

Bulkeley's aces in the hole are the two scoreless ties with East Hartford and LaSalle academy. But an examination of their records shows neither as strong as Wilby, Windham or Torrington.

A brief comparison of the records might not be out of line here.

Bulkeley opened a week earlier than N. F. A., and lost to Weaver of Hartford 24 to 0. Chalk one against Bulkeley or for the Academy, in this case. The Academy opened by beating Chapman Tech 18 to 0 while Bulkeley was losing to Meriden by the same score. Conceding that Tech is not as strong as Meriden, nevertheless the 36 points difference in the scores places another point in the Academy column.

Bulkeley played a scoreless tie with East Hartford the next week while the Academy won from Torrington. Stretching points, we might call it a tie here.

The following week the Academy won impressively from Westerly while Bulkeley dropped the Mercer field dedication game to South Manchester, a team that is but mediocre. Another point for the Academy.

The next week the Academy lost to Harding of Bridgeport and Bulkeley battled LaSalle Academy to no score. There's a big difference between Harding and LaSalle but we can chalk up one for Bulkeley this time. Harding is right now ready to claim the state title while LaSalle has proven rather easy pickings for some opponents only last week going down by a five touchdown margin.

Both teams traveled the next week, the Academy winning by a late spurt from Wilby at Waterbury and Bulkeley getting a 25 to 0 trimming from Central of Bridgeport. Another point for the Academy.

Last week the Academy defeated Windham 7 to 0, a team that had been having its own way in this section for five years. Bulkeley lost to the second year Bulkeley of Hartford team 24 to 0, so all that can be done is put another point up for the Academy.

By simple addition that figures five points for the Academy, one for Bulkeley and a tie.

Both Coaches Canty of Bulkeley and Whitney of the Academy have been "pointing" for this clash. Anything is liable to happen and they are getting prepared.

Since 1904 the Academy has won 15, lost 13 and tied eight with Bulkeley.

Stonington-Westerly

This game, while probably not drawing interest comparable with the Academy-Bulkeley go still has the natives in southeastern Connecticut and southwestern Rhode Island all excited and should furnish plenty of fireworks. For the first time in many years the Westerly outfit goes into the game as the underdog. The Blue and White have won but one game to date while Stonington has three wins to its credit. Stonington also has weight advantage. This game, however, is not so crucial as the game at New London will be for there is another tilt to come Thanksgiving day at Stonington.

The annual cross country run of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league comes between the halves of this game. Westerly, Stonington, Chapman Tech and the Academy will compete. N. F. A. has beaten Westerly, which has beaten Stonington and Tech. Wilcox of Westerly is favored to finish first.

At Willimantic Saturday Windham closes her home season with Bristol high. The Callaghan outfit intends to start all over again after their defeat by the Academy and Bristol seems to be in for a busy afternoon. Bristol with bright preseason prospects has not done so well to date and it looks like another setback is coming her way.

INDICATIONS ARE THAT BAN WILL STAND

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 9.—(AP)—In absence of official action on Princeton's offer to allow Bruce Caldwell to play football for Yale against the Tiger Saturday although ineligible, indications tonight were that Princeton's suggestion would be declined with appreciation and that the ban on Caldwell would stand.

John M. Cates, director of athletics at Yale, said tonight a meeting of athletic officials would take place probably tomorrow to consider the offer. Professor George H. Nettleton, chairman of the board of control of Yale athletics, was out of town tonight and his associates hesitated to act without him.

"It's a nice question to decide," Mr. Cates observed. "It's a case in which the spirit of the rule has not been violated either by Caldwell or by Yale. There will be differences of opinion on what course to take.

"Princeton's action is very courteous, very gracious, of course, we have expressed to Princeton our appreciation and sense of gratitude for it."

Yale received information of Princeton's offer and expressed thanks without committing the university to accept, in a single long distance telephone conversation between the athletic directors of the institutions.

The wire from President Hibben of Princeton urging President Angell that Yale yield to the suggestion had not come to the attention of the Yale head as he was away from his home and office most of the day.

Cissell Is Arrested

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9—(AP)—Chalmer Y. Cissell, $100,000 rookie shortstop, recently purchased from the Portland club of the Pacific coast league by the Chicago White Sox, was arrested here tonight at the request of Sheriff P. A. Findley of DesMoines, Iowa, who said he had a felony warrant for the ball player. Cissel said it involved a woman.

CALDWELL ORDERED TO RETURN TO SQUAD

ASHTON, R. I., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Bruce Caldwell, Yale football star declared ineligible for further play because of past affiliations with a Brown freshman team, tonight at his home here said he had received a telephone message from Coach "Tad" Jones of Yale, ordering him to report tomorrow afternoon with the squad.

Caldwell said Jones told him to go to bed early, get a good night's rest and return to New Haven.

The unpretentious home of Caldwell and his parents at 38 Middle street, has been besieged by newspapermen seeking statements from the gridiron ace, in the event that he was found there. His whereabouts was unknown for a time after he left New Haven following the announcement of his disqualification yesterday.

He said tonight the action of the athletic board was a tough break, but could not be helped.

Receipt by him of Jones' order did not appear to cheer him greatly. He seemed to believe that the ruling would not be revoked.

At any rate, he declared, that he intends to continue at college to win his degree. He intends to keep himself in condition throughout the winter months and will try for a place on the Eli baseball team in the spring.

YALE PRACTICES WITHOUT NO. 48 IN THE LINEUP

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 9—(AP)—Bruce Caldwell's empty blue jersey with its emblazoned No. 48 hung limply in his deserted locker this afternoon as Yale's fighting men of football set to work to show the world and Princeton that this is not a one-man team.

At the end of a rough, tough practice session in which John Garvey fitted into Caldwell's left halfback post, the news reached the field house of the generous action of Princeton in urging that Caldwell be used in Saturday's game.

Among the players and close followers of Eli sport, however, there was little hope that Yale's athletic officials on the morrow would reverse their ruling of yesterday when Caldwell was read out of Yale football forever for violating the "transfer rule" in having played in two games as a freshman at Brown four years ago.

Caldwell himself was conspicuously absent from his usual haunts. His closest friends declared he had left the city temporarily and one report had it he was on his way to his home in Ashton, R. I., to recover in comparative solitude from the shock of his sudden disbarment on the eve of the "big game" in which he was expected to be the shining star.

Meanwhile Head Coach "Tad" Jones sent his men through a hard, brisk practice session chiefly devoted to finding a man to replace Caldwell as a forward passing threat.

Versatile Johnny Hoben, heady young quarterback, stood the test nobly. A burst of spontaneous applause swept through the little knot of watchers in the Yale bowl as Hoben tossed a pass of nearly 50 yards and Scott, left end, pulled it out of the air in full stride. Garvey had little chance to show his ball-carrying ability as the varsity was drilled only in signals, blocking punts and "holding that line." When Jones sent his scrubs swirling against that mighty bulwark it flung them back time after time. When the onslaught ended they were ten yards behind the point where they started in.

Bill Hammersley, 25 pounds lighter than the 180-pound Garvey but built like a race horse, appeared as a likely understudy for the Scranton lad with a chance of breaking into the game if he does not start. Hammersley today showed he could pass as well as run while Garvey was pretty shaky on his heaves.

The huge bowl with its 75,000 seats became a complete sell-out today with interest apparently keener than ever since the disqualification of Caldwell.

Formal consideration of Princeton's offer to allow Caldwell to play despite his violation of the rule was scheduled for tomorrow, but failed to shake the general opinion that the star halfback definitely is out. The action of the athletic officials yesterday carried all the earmarks of finality.

"It's a nice question to decide," said John M. Cates, director of athletics at Yale, however. "Plainly the spirit of the rule has not been violated either by Caldwell or by Yale. There will be differences of opinion on which course to take."

RADICAL CHANGES IN DAVIS CUP COMPETITION

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—Radical changes were disclosed today in the regulations for the Davis cup competition, effective next year under French control and involving advancement of the whole playing program to much earlier dates than previously.

Although the United States Lawn Tennis association has received no official notice of the changes, it is assumed that the French have received consent of the majority of participating nations to close the entries on January 3, make the draw on Feb 3 or 5, and start the elimination play around May, reaching a climax with the challenge round at Paris the end of July. Such consent is necessary under the Davis cup rules.

During the past seven years in which the United States has handled the challenge round, it has been customary to close entries on March 15 and hold the challenge round the second week in September.

The changes, as indicated in dispatches from France, have the approval of the U. S. L. T. A., however, although this country's plans for starting out on the challenging trail are still incomplete. One advantage of the earlier competition will be to permit a substantial foreign invasion for the American championships late in August or early in September.

The United States has not yet decided whether it will challenge for preliminary play in the European or American zone. The advantage of entering the European zone would be to provide more and perhaps keener competition but it also would necessitate sending a team abroad in May, at the latest.

Australia already has challenged for the cup in the European zone. If America did likewise, only Cuba, Canada, Japan and Mexico would be left in the American zone, of the nations that took part in the play this year.

The challenge round in Paris will be held on dirt courts for the first time in Davis cup history but this is not expected to be a disadvantage to American players, if they reach the finals. Although the chief American championships are played on grass courts, more than 90 per cent of competition in the United States is on dirt, clay or other hard courts.

Alabama Joins N. S. A.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—The Alabama state athletic commission has cast its lot with the National boxing associations, increasing to 25 the total number of states represented by the organization, according to announcement authorized today by Thomas E. Deshaw, president of the N. B. A.

PLAINFIELD OPENS SEASON WITH EASY VICTORY OVER NEW BEDFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 9.—Plainfield won their opening game handily here tonight at the Community house sending the New Bedford Pros down to defeat 56 to 14. Owing to unadvoidable circumstances the Kerr Mills Five which was scheduled to appear here was forced to cancel their game Wednesday morning and the New Bedford team was secured at the last minute, on the recommendation of the Fall River management, that the large number of fans need not be disappointed.

Madden broke the ice in the first minute of play with a foul shot, followed closely by two doubledeckers by Schofield, former Conn. Aggie flash, who was making his first appearance in a Plainfield uniform. From this time on Plainfield had everything its own way, holding the visitors to a lone foul goal during the first half while rolling up 33 points themselves.

At the opening of the second half the rest of the Plainfield squad was injected into the game and baskets by Norris and Stevens kept the ball rolling. New Bedford, however, bringing forth some long shots which netted them 13 more points before the half ended.

The whole Plainfield team played a consistent game giving promise of a fast, powerful attack which should place them high in state basketball circles this season. Norris was high scorer for the Plainfield team while MacDonald caged a good share of the visitors points.

The Buddies defeated the Willimantic All Stars in a fast preliminary 28 to 26. Plainfield's next game brings the Bristol Endees here. The summary:

Plainfield

AGGIE FRESHMEN CLOSE THEIR SEASON TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 9—The Connecticut Aggie Freshmen will close their football season here tomorrow afternoon in meeting the Rhode Island State yearlings. The game was originally scheduled for Friday of this week, but the date has been moved ahead one day because of a military inspection at Rhode Island Friday.

Coach Louis Alexander gave his men a short workout this afternoon, after which he announced his starting lineup as Parlowski and Murphy, ends; Levson and Eberle or Chubbuck, tackles; Crapulli and Lebutske, guards; Garrigus of Schwartz, center; Winslow, quarterback; Fisher or McCombe, halfbacks; Captain Harger, fullback.

The game is scheduled to start at 2.30 p. m. Prof. R. J. Guyer will referee, Arthur V. Williams '26 will umpire and Varsity Coach Sumner A. Dole will act as head linesman.

SPRINGFIELD AMATEURS FAIL AT MERIDEN

MERIDEN, Nov. 9—(AP)—A team of five Springfield boxers failed to register a single victory on the Mohican A. A. amateur card at the City hall auditorium tonight.

The results:

Al Bernard, Wallingford, outpointed Spike Hughes, Meriden.

Eddie Jacobson, Northford, won the decision over Tony Morrison, Waterbury.

Joe Falk, Waterbury, scored technical knockout over Pete Mykowski, Meriden, first round.

Pete Youseman, Hartford, stopped Bobby Nelson, Waterbury, second round.

Tommy Orlando, Hartford, outpointed Al Carpenter, Springfield.

Adolph Doniforo, Hartford, knocked out Pat Mariso, Waterbury, second round.

Ray Dolan, Waterbury, defeated Charley Shay, Springfield, decision.

Chic O'Day, Meriden, beat Georgie Kendall, Springfield, decision.

Al Ferguson, Meriden, shaded Al Anoni, Springfield, four rounds, decision.

Al Mariano, Waterbury, defeated Stan Zenricki, Springfield, decision.

Vince Gullo, Meriden, won decision over Jack Paoli, Waterbury.

KNOCKOUTS FEATURE AMATEURS AT PARK CITY

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 9—(AP)—Willie Lewis, Stamford, won a three round decision over Teddy LaCroix, Bridgeport, in the feature bout of the Red Men's amateur boxing show here tonight. Both are lightweights. Gilbert Payne, Bridgeport, heavyweight chalked up his third successive victory when he floored Paddy Grant three times in the first round to win on a technical knockout. Louis Eurle, Stratford, state amateur middleweight wrestling champion, defeated Jimmy Daley, Bridgeport in a special match. In the other bouts Johnny Duda, Bridgeport, defeated Al Traynor, Norwich, four rounds.

Nick Choffee, Norwalk, won on a technical knockout from Jules Young, Bridgeport. Frankie Smith, Norwalk, outpointed Tommy Carroll, Bridgeport, three rounds. Ralph Barrett, of New York city, won on a technical knockout from Al Scagnelli, Bridgeport. Billy Delaney, Norwalk, won technical knockout from Andy Williams, Bridgeport. Billy Attell, Norwalk, scored a technical knockout over Young Sportino, Bridgeport. Tommy Brown, Norwalk, outpointed Kid Cerrone Bridgeport. Jerry Griffin, Bridgeport, outpointed Sammy Lawson, Norwalk.

FLOWERS AND ROSENBLOOM FIGHT TO A DRAW

DETROIT, Nov. 9 (AP)—Tiger Flowers, Georgia Negro, and Maxie Rosenbloom of New York fought ten furious rounds to a draw here tonight. The men are middleweights.

Flowers scored heavily with a hard left to the heart in the early part of the contest but was slowed down in the seventh when Rosenbloom upset him with a terrific hook to the jaw. Flowers was up before the referee could start a count.

Jack McVey, Negro welterweight won the referee's decision over Joe Simmonich of Butte, Mont., in a ten round semi-final.

Billy Shaw, local featherweight outpointed Pete Zivic in ten rounds.

ROBERTI KAYOES JACKSON IN FOURTH ROUND

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9—(AP)—Roberto Roberti, Italian heavyweight, tonight knocked out Tut Jackson, Negro, of Washington Courthouse, Ohio, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout. Roberti weighed 212 pounds and Jackson 198.

Ray Neuman, Jersey City, slugged his way to a 10-round judges decision over Jack Townsend, Chicago, in a rough bout. Neuman weighed 200 and Townsend 196.

Two of the six round preliminaries also resulted in knockouts. Alex Bader, 170, Philadelphia, floored Ray Lawler, 180 U. S. marine corps, for the count in the third round, and Ralph Smith, 224, Los Angeles, knocked out Petro Corri, 198, Belgium, in the second round. George Smith, 170, Newark, N. J., won the judges decision over Joe Lill, 155, U. S. marines, in the other six rounder.

BINGHAM SILENT ON TALK ABOUT CALDWELL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 9—(AP)—"You may say that I have been talking on the telephone with Yale athletic authorities this morning, but that the subject of the conversation cannot be made public," was the only comment forthcoming from William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, on the latest angle of Bruce Caldwell's ineligibility at Yale.

Director Bingham made his statement after being informed of Princeton's suggestion that Caldwell be permitted to play against Princeton next Saturday under suspension of the transfer rule which bars him from further football competition at Yale. It also stood for his response to a request as to whether or not Harvard would make a similar suggestion in regard to the Yale star's participation against Harvard on November 19.

WESTERLY

FLOATING RUBBISH MOVED FROM PAWCATUCK PIERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 9—As the result of freshet waters in the Pawcatuck river from the heavy rains of Thursday, rubbish of all kinds has become lodged among the seventeen piers beneath the Broad street bridge and the adjoining buildings.

Samuel Bailey of Pawcatuck and men worked Wednesday morning freeing the floating rubbish from under the Briggs building, owned by Max Novogroski, at the junction of Main and Broad streets. The body of the dump cart of F. V. Burdick, which was backed off the river wall with pair of horses attached some months ago, at the rear of the store of the C. W. Willard company, and left on the river bottom when the horses were freed, had been carried down stream. The heavy water-logged wooden body became lodged against the northwest caisson and the pressure of water menaced the pier. The obstruction was drawn back by tackle until the swirl of waters released it to settle in the channel. A large wooden garage door also lodged against this pier was forced out into the stream and became fixed in the branches of a large tree trunk also in the river channel. Mr. Bailey and helpers released all the flotsam and jetsam from beneath the structure.

Beneath the Broad street bridge and under the Barrows block to the north and Pawcatuck side of the river are now lodged tree trunks, limbs of trees and debris of all kind upon which the river current exerts heavy pressure. The north end of the mid-stream island, known as "Joe Alcorn's Island," at the rear of the plant of the Westerly Textile company on Main street, has lost a large section of its material by the erosion of the swift running waters which left exposed a corner support to the building extending out over the island. The Wilcox dock at the rear of the coal yard remains intact, although bulwarked by sandbags.

MICHAEL T. KELEHER WINS NEW YORK JUDGESHIP

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 9—Michael T. Keleher, a former Pawcatuck young man, was a successful candidate in the New York city election Tuesday. Running on the democratic ticket he defeated his opponent and was elected to the judgeship of the fourth district Manhattan municipal court.

The South District Women's Christian Temperance union held its annual fall convention Wednesday at Quonochontaug Grange hall. State President, Mrs. Ethelyn Roberts of Providence addressed the morning session. Mrs. Fred Collings presided at both the morning and the afternoon session when National Director Miss Grace L. Scott was the speaker. Miss Scott in the morning spoke at Westerly public schools and in the evening at the union service of Westerly churches held at the First Baptist church. Among the Washington county delegates in attendance at the annual meeting were members from Ashaway, Bradford, Potter Hill and Westerly.

Utter, Mrs. E. S. Critchertson and Mrs. Edwin Hawks was appointed. Miss Ethel S. Doherty, superintendent of the hospital, spoke on the institution work and the benefits derived from the association.

The Westerly fire department responded Tuesday evening about 6 o'clock for a chimney fire in the large frame dwelling, owned by Mrs. Rebecca Deutsch at 106 Canal street. The chimney has been the cause of many previous calls and Chief George E. Egger is of the opinion that the chimney is defective and that means should be taken to prevent it from becoming a further fire menace.

The funeral of Mrs. David Hart was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home in Ashaway. Services were conducted by Rev. Luther G. Coburn, pastor of Pawcatuck Congregational church. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, the bearers being Fred Richardson, brother of Mrs. Hart, Albert Perrin, Earl H. Perrin, Homer Clark, Mark Naylor and William Green.

Westerly town council members, who have conducted the town's business for the past two years, met for their last session Wednesday evening in the council chambers of the town hall. The councilmen met as a returning board for the election of town officers held Tuesday when they checked the work of the two election district officials and declared their successors duly elected to office for the ensuing two years.

Reginald Werrenrath, well known baritone, who acquired fame while studying in Italy, who is to appear next week in Westerly under the auspices of the Westerly Music club, has been made defendant in a suit for divorce. Mrs. Ada Werrenrath filed suit Tuesday in Reno, Nevada, claiming desertion for over a year and in the complaint agrees to joint custody of three minor children, asking allowance for their support while in her custody. She and the singer were married in 1909 in New York.

The death of Frank Leonard Chapman, formerly of Westerly and brother of Mrs. Jonathan A. Church of this town, occurred suddenly Tuesday at Memorial hospital, Pawtucket, R. I. His wife was Elizabeth C. Kennedy. He was a member of Alfred Bailey lodge, F. and A. M., of Taunton, Mass.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Hears a Rumor

Be sure you sift a rumor well;
The truth it saw and then may tell.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was living in the Green Forest. He wasn't happy. He wasn't happy at all. He had utterly failed to find the handsome young rabbit who had aroused his jealousy and whose footprints he had found. He had failed to find Mrs. Peter. Nothing could make him believe that they had not gone off together. But where they had gone he had no idea. He had hunted through the Green Forest. Twice he had gone back to the dear

"Did you hear about Reddy Fox?" inquired Drummer the Woodpecker

Old Briar-patch. He had found it empty. There was no sign that Mrs. Peter or any other rabbit had been there since his last visit. So finally Peter had tried to make himself at home in the Green Forest.

"I couldn't live in the dear Old Briar-patch without Mrs. Peter," said he to himself, "and it is of no use going back to the Old Pasture. I might just as well live here. They have been here and sooner or later they are likely to come back again."

So Peter made his home in one of the bramble-tangles on the edge of the Green Forest and grew shorter-tempered every day. He was no longer the happy-go-lucky Peter Rabbit whom everybody loved. It got so his former friends didn't want to have anything to do with him. Even his cousin, Jumper the Hare, left him alone.

It happened that early one morning Drummer the Woodpecker and Yank Yank the Nuthatch happened to meet in a tree above where Peter was sitting. They didn't see Peter.

"Did you hear about Reddy Fox?" inquired Drummer the Woodpecker.

"No," replied Yank Yank. "What about him?"

Drummer began to chuckle. "Well, I didn't see it myself," said he, "but they tell me he had a hot time up in the Old Pasture."

"What do you mean by a hot time?" inquired Yank Yank.

Drummer chuckled more than ever. "Sammy Jay told me," said Drummer, "and Tommy Tit told him. He got it from Jimmy Skunk. The story is that Reddy was just about to spring on little Mrs. Peter Rabbit, when she jumped on a yellowjackets' nest and ran. So did Reddy run after the yellowjackets came pouring out. But he didn't run soon enough."

"Is little Mrs. Peter living up there in the Old Pasture?" asked Yank Yank.

"That's what I hear," replied Drummer. "I hear that she is living up there and that there is a handsome young rabbit living up there too. I haven't seen them myself, but that is the report."

By this time Peter Rabbit was sitting right up straight. Those two long ears of his were pointed right straight up to the sky and he was listening with all his might.

"I'll have to fly over there presently," said Yank Yank. "I didn't suppose little Mrs. Peter could be induced to leave the dear Old Briar-patch. I have heard say that Peter Rabbit left her."

"Yes," replied Drummer, "I have heard the same thing. It is too bad, isn't it?"

"It certainly is," said Yank Yank. "Well, I must be getting along."

With this, Yank Yank flew away, and a moment later, before Peter could ask any questions, Drummer also took to his wings.

"So," said Peter, "this is where they are!"

WILLIAMS' HISTORY OF 1827, TELLS OF EARLY NEWSPAPER

W. Storer, Junior Printer and Bookseller of Stonington, Conn., published in 1827, one hundred years ago, Dr. Williams' History of the American Revolution as a reading book for schools; price 37 1-2 cents single copy, $3.75 per dozen, $25 per hundred. Also published a 172 page book "Questions Adapted to Williams History of the American Revolution," for the use of schools, price 12 1-2 cents single, $1 per dozen. The Bulletin correspondent has one of the latter books in good condition. In Wheeler's History of Stonington it says in July, 1824, William Storer, Jr., came here and on July 28th was issued the first number of a newspaper, entitled The Yankee. It took for its motto, "Where Liberty Dwells There Is My Country." After three years its title was changed to the Stonington Telegraph. It existed till July 22nd, 1829 when it was discontinued. Mr. Storer was an able editor, but the enterprise failed. His advertisement for all kinds of book and job printing, neatly and expeditiously executed on the most liberal terms appeared on the back of Dr. Williams' History and Questions.

The seating capacity of the Union Baptist church was taxed Monday evening when Rev. Samuel Graham Neal, D.D., of Philadelphia, delivered his famous illustrated lecture on Scotland and the Scotch. At 7:30, Mrs. Ralph H. Wheeler, the organist, began playing Scotch airs and a medley of Scotch songs. Then headed by Dr. Neal, eight members of the Highland Kilties band of Westerly marched into the church and around the aisles playing Scotch music. After Dr. Neal went on the platform, owing to continued applause, they played another selection. Dr. Neal commenced by singing one of Sir Harry Lauder's most popular songs and was obliged to give an encore. He then began his lecture showing 135 slides and closed with President Coolidge's picture and that of ex-President Roosevelt, with pictures of the White House and capitol. He sang another song and then America was thrown on the screen and with the organ playing, it was sung most effectively by the large audience. The Kilties band played another selection and an encore. Dr. Neal thanked the people of their attendance and many courtesies shown him while here. Rev. Mr. Sharples closed with a brief address and the poem Be a Friend of Man. He also asked how many would like to have Dr. Neal come again and the responses were general. A number of Scotch people were present, and Groton, Poquonoc, Noank, Stonington and Westerly were represented.

Varicose Veins

Reduced Or Money Back

Simple Home Treatment That Is Giving Amazing Results.

The world progresses. Today ailments that took weeks to cure can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning as directed to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little time is required.

After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal size.

People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of running sores, ulcers, or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you and all druggists sell lots of it.

Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets and keep fit for the daily grind. Thousands of happy men and women use them regularly as an aid to success in their everyday tasks. Know them by their olive color, 15c, 30c, 60c.

$1000 First Prize

for a name worthy of Eastern Dairies' Ice Cream

A FEW years ago eight New England dairies combined to form Eastern Dairies, Inc. They had the vision of an ideal Ice Cream far beyond the scope of their individual efforts. So they pooled their knowledge and resources to make their ideal come true.

This makes it possible to combine the best features of each of them to be used by all, giving Eastern Dairies really wonderful advantages in perfection of formula, expert personnel, and efficient equipment.

United strength enables us to control our own source of pure, rich cream, and to establish a research department with laboratory facilities where the quality of the cream and syrups, fruits and nuts is constantly tested, and then scientifically blended.

PRIZES
1st	$1000.00
2nd	250.00
3rd	100.00
4th	75.00
5th	50.00
6th	25.00
Slogan	100.00
	$1600.00

As a result, there has been achievement worthy of recognition. A great stride has been taken toward our ideal of pure, wholesome, delicious Ice Cream—an Ice Cream worthy of a name all its own. To obtain that name is the reason for this contest.

How to Enter this Contest

Read and follow conditions carefully. Then use the coupon below.

Every store which sells Eastern Dairies' Ice Cream has been supplied with a quantity of printed contest coupons. They are free. These coupons give additional suggestions which will help you in selecting a name.

Get your thinking cap on and see if you can't win the grand prize of $1000.

CONDITIONS OF CONTEST

1. Any person, whether adult or child is eligible to compete, except employees of Eastern Dairies, Inc. By entering the contest each contestant automatically agrees to allow Eastern Dairies, Inc., at its option, to use any Brand name submitted.
2. A nominal sum will be paid for any submitted name accepted by Eastern Dairies, Inc., for which no prize was awarded, if such names are not already common property.
3. The Slogan contest is open to both adults and children under the same conditions as the Name contest. While slogan answers are not required from contestants in the Name contest, yet where identical names are submitted by two or more contestants, the judges' award will go to that one of such contestants submitting the best slogan.
4. A board of three or more judges will be selected and announced soon after the contest closes. Every decision will be published within thirty days thereafter. Contestants agree to accept the decision of the judges as final.
5. A letter will be given the same consideration by the judges as a ballot. Write on one side of the paper only—any paper will do.
6. The contest will close at midnight, November 30, 1927, and no letters postmarked a later date, or hour, will be considered.
7. Answers will be received at any time up to the closing hour, and contestants may submit as many answers as they choose. Address all contest mail to Eastern Dairies, Inc., Springfield, Mass., P. O. Box 1497.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

EVERY-OTHER-MONTH TESTING SUGGESTED FOR SMALL HERDS

Dairymen owning small herds may obtain many of the benefits of association testing at a lower cost per cow than would be obtained by the regular dairy herd improvement association method. This fact is brought out in Circular 1-C entitled "Testing Cows for Production Every Other Month," by Dr. J. O. McDowell, dairy husbandman of the United States department of agriculture. As the title suggests, the method involves testing every other month or six times a year, instead of every month or twelve times a year as in the regular association. In other respects the two methods are alike.

The figures used in the study on which the circular is based were those from a herd of 70 cows at the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment station and included the day-to day milking records for the year. With these figures as a basis, the feed, production, and income records were calculated for six test days and the errors were computed with the actual figures for the year. The average error due to testing one day in two months was 4.5 per cent. as compared with an average error of 2.91 per cent. in monthly tests. In 34 cases out of 70 the error was 5 per cent. or more as compared with 16 cases out of 70 in the monthly method. The greatest error was 12.5 per cent. as against 8.3 per cent. on the monthly basis.

The circular concludes: "It is not expected that the method of testing every other month will take the place of the regular dairy-herd-improvement-association method but that it may find its own place in those districts where the dairy herds are small."

FAIRY LAKE AYRSHIRES MAKING VERY GOOD RECORDS

The herd of twenty-two Ayrshires, owned by Fairy Lake farm, New London, Conn., averaged 63 pounds milk, 22.94 pounds fat during the month of September, tested under the Ayrshire herd test rules, according to a report received from the advanced registry office of the Ayrshire Breeders' association, at Brandon, Vermont. The outstanding producer in the herd was Fairy Lake Jean, that gave 1,360 pounds milk, 63.65 pounds fat in thirty days.

HINTS FOR THE FARMERS

Warehousing is essential to efficient cotton marketing. It affords physical protection from damage by weather or dust; from loss because of fire, mutilation or petty picking, and from "tag switching" and other forms of fraud or theft. It provides the means of converting the title to cotton into more desirable collateral and makes possible a policy of gradual marketing.

Storage rots, caused by various fungi, are a very serious cause of loss to cranberry growers, both in the quantity of berries and in effect on the good will of the trade. It has been demonstrated that two applications of Bordeaux mixture, the first just before blossom and the second immediately following blossom, will control the development of storage rots satisfactorily.

Open-flame lights never should be allowed in the garage or the building containing the farm tractor or gasoline engine, and such a building never should be heated by a stove. It is safer if the automobile and tractor are run outside before the tanks are filled, so that the vapor may be carried away immediately. Water, unless applied in very large quantities, has no effect on burning gasoline except to spread the fire.

Weeds in a grain field increase the cost of harvesting, because for any given quantity it costs as much to harvest and handle the weeds as it does to harvest and handle the grain. Weeds likewise increase the cost of threshing, because it costs as much, and often more to thresh a unit weight of weed seeds than it does for grain.

Noticeable infestation with the sugar-beet nematode is found only in fields which have produced many crops of sugar-beets with little or no rotation. Throughout the western states it is not unusual for a field to have grown beets almost continuously for 10 to 25 years. This condition is ideal for the establishing and rapid growth of nematode colonies.

Based on utility alone—apart from breeding or sales value—purebred livestock has an earning power from a third to one-half greater than scrub stock. The average superiority of purebreds over scrubs for all classes of farm animals is about 40 per cent. Of the principal points in which purebreds excel other stock, the most prominent are: Superiority and uniformity in conformation to type, greater sale value, early maturity and economy in the conversion of feed into meat, milk and wool.

SUMMER PASTURE INSUFFICIENT FOR GOOD DAIRY COWS

One of the hardest-working animals on the farm is the high-producing dairy cow. Proper feeding to supply her with the nutrients necessary for milk production is essential at all times. The fact that proper feeding is neglected in summer more often perhaps than at any other season is due no doubt to the mistaken idea that pasture is an all-sufficient feed.

Some hints on the feeding of dairy cows in summer are presented by J. R. Dawson, dairy husbandman of the United States department of agriculture, in a six page illustrated leaflet just issued by the department and known as Leaflet No. 7-L.

A cow producing as much as 35 pounds of milk a day, Mr. Dawson says, can not ordinarily eat and digest enough grass to furnish all the nutrients for her needs. A cow producing only 20 or 25 pounds per day will scarcely be able to get sufficient nutrients out of the good pasture grass which she can eat to keep up this amount of production. Yet thousands of farmers expect their dairy cows to produce more than this during the summer on poor pastures with no additional feed.

In addition to good pasture, cows producing more than 20 pounds of milk daily should be given 1 pound of grain to each 4 to 6 pounds of milk produced. The grain may be a mixture of the ordinary farm grains such as corn, oats, wheat bran, or barley, and should always be ground. For cows producing more than 35 pounds of milk daily a grain mixture should contain one high-protein concentrate, such as the oil meals; otherwise the ration will be too low in protein in comparison with the carbohydrates and fats.

When pastures are poor or dry, it is advisable to supplement them by other succulent feeds, such as summer silage or crops grown to be fed green. Plans should be made now for a supply of summer silage and green crops to supplement pastures.

SIZE OF FLOCK IMPORTANT IN FARM POULTRY RAISING

In poultry raising on the farm it may be poor management to raise a hit-and-miss number of fowls, such a number, for instance, as may happen to hatch from hidden nests. Poultry experts of the United States department of agriculture suggest that farmers who are unable to keep approximately 200 hens limit their flocks to a size only large enough to supply the table with eggs and poultry meat throughout the year. In this way the gain is largely a by-product and the chickens will pick up much of their food from material that would be wasted.

When a flock numbers more than enough for the home supply of eggs and meat, and is not as large as 200, it is likely to demand more attention and more feed than the returns warrant; that is, it will most likely not return enough profit to pay for the management and attention necessary in caring for it.

But if poultry is maintained with an eye to profits it is worth managing. A flock of 200 can be divided readily into two units for breeding purposes—50 yearlings for production, or breeding eggs and 150 pullets for market egg production. Similarly a flock of 400 would divide into 100 yearlings and two flocks of 150 pullets. Pullets are preferable for egg production, and the keeping of flocks of about three times as many pullets as yearlings allows the poultry raiser to cull his flock wisely and retain only the best of the pullets for breeding stock.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD SPEEDS UP ITS FREIGHT

During the past three years the New Haven railroad has answered the modern cry for speed by increasing the average speed per hour of the freight trains on its system from 9 3-10 miles per hour to 11 3-10 miles per hour. Speed has become an all-important transportation factor on the sea, on land, and in the air, but in no place is it more desirable than in the movement of freight traffic. The New Haven's action in speeding up the movement of freight traffic has aided in an increase of many miles per days in total freight car movement on the system.

Due to the necessity for classification and the extra handling required in the transportation of less than carload shipments, the average daily run of each freight car is not comparable with the average speed of a freight train. The increased speed and other factors of improvement, however, have served to increase the miles per day covered by the average serviceable freight car on the New Haven system. In 1920 the average serviceable freight car on the New Haven moved 12 4-10 miles per day. In 1923 the average movement was 15 miles per day, while at the present time the daily run of a freight car is more than 22 miles per day.

Improvement in freight service has also been attained through the operation of longer trains. The average length of a freight train on the New Haven at the present time is about 40 cars as compared with 34 cars in 1923. Freight speed has been so increased that practically all points in New England can be reached on 24 hour service. Goods shipped from New York can be carried to Portland, Me., in 27 hours.

REACTION IN STOCK MARKET FOLLOWED SHARP BREAK IN PRICES OF COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(A)—The recovery in stock prices which has been under way for about a week came to a halt today when a sudden movement developed downward and carried scores of leading issues down 1 to 5 points below Monday's closing levels. The reaction unquestionably was stimulated by the break in cotton to a new low on cotton prices on the publication of an unexpectedly bearish government crop estimate. Final quotations, however, showed a number of independent strong spots, the American Tobacco and Continental Insurance issues each gaining more than a point to new high records. The recent advance in prices, which was widely regarded as a correction of a temporarily over-sold position, had left the market in a vulnerable position to selling attacks of which the "bears" were quick to take advantage. In addition to the break in cotton, the market was disturbed by the calling of about $200,000,000 in loans and by erroneous reports that George F. Baker, veteran capitalist, was dead.

General Motors, which closed $ 1-2 points lower at 128 7-8, was liquidated on unconfirmed reports that directors, at their regular meeting after the close of the market tomorrow, would declare an extra dividend of 50 cents instead of $2.50 as was expected, in addition to placing the new stock on a $5 annual basis. Dupont, which has large General Motor holdings, broke from 214 to 206 1-4 and then rallied to 208 1-2, off 6 points net. Steels receded from an early high of 1 point, or 97 Mack Trucks from 102 1-4 to 100, Chrysler from 57 7-8 to 56 1-2, and Hudson Motors preferred from 46 to 43 1-4. Packard advanced 1-4 3 points to a new 1927 top at 31 and closed 1 point below the top.

While many trade reviews reported that November output to date was holding up to the October level, and emphasized the increasing inquiry for early 1928 deliveries, particularly for pipe and rails, U. S. Steel common, nevertheless, sold down from 137 7-8 to 134 1-4, off 3 3-8 net, but the independent steels showed fairly good resistance to pressure. Coppers lost ground, despite the further advance in export prices. American Smelting and Refining & Anaconda each breaking more than 3 points. Foundation Co. broke to a new low at 35 on the passing of the common dividend.

Heavy buying of Transcontinental Oil was based on reports that negotiations were pending with a large independent company, presumably Phillips, for the sale of some of its Texas properties. New 1927 peak prices were registered around Constable. International Business Machines, Lehn & Fink and Warner Bros.

The falling off in freight car loadings in the last week of October tended to chill speculative enthusiasm for the railroad shares. Southern Railway common recorded a new high for all time at 131 1-8 and then backed up to 128 3-8, off 1 1-2 net; Delaware & Hudson broke 5 3-4 and recovered 1; New York Central dropped 2 1-2 and recovered 1 and Atchison, Union Pacific and several others sold off a point or more.

Call money held steady all day at 5 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper were unchanged.

Cotton attracted major speculative interest in the commodity markets. Wheat declined about a cent a bushel and sugar and coffee held steady.

Establishment of a new high level for sterling exchange, London cables being quoted at $4.87 3-32, and a moderate decline in German marks to 23.8 1-2 cents in reflection of the recent drop in quotations on the Berlin bourse, divided interest in the mixed foreign exchange market.

REACTION IN STOCK MARKET

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—Broadening activity and firm prices in the bond market today was attributed largely to the favorable view in financial circles of the new treasury financing. Most of the government issues improved fractionally, and several high grade railroad and industrial issues gave good accounts of themselves.

Buyers again favored the railroad division, bidding up to new high prices a few such issues as Toledo & Ohio 4 1-2s, Southern Railway 4s, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis 5s, and Northern Pacific 1s. Several other outstanding issues sold well at or just under their previous peaks, including Erie 1s, Great Northern 4 1-2s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4s and Central Pacific 5s. Accumulation in the railway group was construed as testimony to a general confidence in the soundness of the current market. Some buying doubtless was in anticipation of interest and dividend disbursements due on November 15.

Industrials and public utilities, while less active than the rails, displayed firm tendencies. Western Electric 5s and Pure Oil 5 1-2s sold at their best prices of the year, and several others registered fractional improvement.

French issues continued to reflect the plans to refund the republic's 5 per cent bonds at a large annual saving in interest. The governmental 7s led the way with a quarter-point gain to 118 1-4, the highest figure of the year. German bonds continued to sag and there was some selling of Italian obligations.

Prompt oversubscription of the $45,000,000 Mortgage Bank of Denmark 5s and announcement that $20,000,000 North German Lloyd 6s will be offered tomorrow were the principal features outside the listed market.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—(AP)—With an increase of $27,658,000 bushels reported today in the world's available stock of wheat, the market price averaged lower. Forthcoming official estimates of the wheat yield in Canada and Argentina tended to make buyers cautious. Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-2c down, with corn showing 3-8c to 3-4c decline, oats 1-4c to 1-4c off and provisions unchanged to a set-back of 27c.

The fact that Argentine weather conditions were more favorable counted a good deal as an advantage to the selling side of the wheat market.

Corn owed its weakness largely to assumption that the government crop report to be issued tomorrow would show a good sized increase of yield as compared with a month ago. Oats trade was slow.

Provisions were responsible to price breaks in the cotton market and to a downward trend in hog values.

New England Industries

THE WATCHES AND CLOCKS INDUSTRY.

(Note: The information on which this article, issued by the Research Department of the New England Council, is based, was obtained by the Domestic Commerce Division, United States Department of Commerce, through an industrial survey of New England conducted in cooperation with the New England Council. The Department of Commerce is now preparing for publication a full report of this industry which will contain additional information of practical value to all New England business men.)

The watch and clock industry of established longevity in New England had in 1925 21 per cent. of the plants in the United States, twenty-seven of the total of 128 being in Massachusetts and Connecticut. Forty-five per cent. of the clock and time recorders made in the United States were produced in New England. The average annual output per establishment has been about $1,000,000, as compared with $600,000 in other sections. Annual sales run from $400,000 to $5,000,000. The combined 1925 sales volume of the firms reporting in a survey conducted by the United States Department of Commerce in cooperation with the New England Council was $15,000,000.

The average age of plants reporting in this important industry is forty-six years, with two concerns more than 100 years old. There has been little tendency to changes in management.

The total sales, eight per cent. of which were made in New England, reckoned upon 1921 figures as a base, rose nearly 100 per cent. by 1923, and remained at that level until 1925. Manufacturers find their stiffest competition has been from other firms in New England. Reasons generally given for increased sales are new sales methods and new products, and the cause for decreases was most often competition. One concern attributed improvement in sales volume to "improved business conditions since 1921, and alteration of our selling policy by selling direct to the retailer instead of through jobbers"; another stated that dollar sales had fallen off since 1923 on account of lower prices. Approximately 94 per cent. of total product in this group bears a brand or trademark.

There are no branch plants in this industry. Of the chief raw materials, brass is obtained from New England in every case, steel is bought here by 60 per cent. of the group, and lumber (principally mahogany) is obtained mostly outside of New England. Incentive wage methods such as piece work are reported in use by all but three concerns; the average ratio for all concerns in the group is 48 per cent. of employes thus paid. Activities in recent years have been toward improvement in standardization of product, control of production, organization and executive control, and continuous maintenance. Distribution is mainly through the wholesaler or jobber.

FIFTY POLISH CHILDREN HAVE RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holod who own and live on the Vergason farms, Oakland avenue, opened their home Saturday to Rev. Father S. A. Icick, who with two nuns—Sister Perpetua and Sister Serephas, from St. Joseph's Polish church, Norwich, enrolled a class of fifty Polish-American children. These will receive religious instruction every Saturday from 9 to 11, under their direction.

Mr. and Mrs. Holod are active in fostering religious instruction and their influence is a great asset to the community.

Selectman Bushnell has had men working on Oakland avenue this week. The road has been widened, the gutter deepened and a gravel top dressing put on, building up the road-bed several inches.

The last rain brought so much surface water from the hillsides that many cellars in the village were flooded. The worst situation being in the double tenement occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Lamphere. It rushed into their cellars so rapidly that the fire company was called out at 2:30 a. m. Friday to pump the water from the cellar.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gasselin, of Worcester have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jarvis for some time.

Mrs. Mosier and son of Providence were recent visitors here.

Misses Dorothy and Marjery Harvey spent the week end in Boston, attending the huge meeting of the Girls' Friendly society. The final jubilee service was held at Trinity Episcopal church Sunday afternoon, Bishop Murray presiding.

In the chancel with him were Bishop Lawrence, Bishop Slattery, Dean Sturgis of the Cathedral church of St. Paul, and Dean Washburn, of the Theological school of Cambridge, also thirty other clergymen. Bishop Lawrence conducted the services which were made colorful by the banners of the various branches of the societies represented.

The Lowell branch, the founder's branch—led the procession with a beautiful white brocade banner, embroidered with golden virgin lilies. It has not yet been decided where the next convention in 1928 will be held.

Mr and Mrs. Charles Molten have returned from a week end stay in Fitchburg with Mrs. Molten's mother, Mrs. Wagner.

Hermon J. Gibbs who spent the past week in St. Albans, Vt., was forced to return home by way of Albany Saturday. He has many tales to tell of the terrible disaster that has swept through the Connecticut valley being a witness of the conditions of desolation left in the wake of the flood.

Ralph Winters, of Barre, Va., who lost his life in the flood, was a friend of Frederick Steisner of this village. Mr. Steisner visited him at his home in Barre some time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harvey spent the week end in Maynard, Mass.

HANOVER

The Missionary program at the session of the church school Sunday was given by Miss Gelinas class of nine young ladies. Each member mentioned one of our fields, locating it on the map by a gilt star. A copy of the American board's new world map has recently been hung in the parish house for use on such occasions.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Jones of Allentown, R. I., and their daughter, Hazel, were visitors at the home of Deacon and Mrs. Henry A. Hazen over Sunday.

Miss Faith Lee of Willimantic normal school spent Sunday at the home of her parents on Lee Hill.

Eighteen from Hanover church attended the Six-Church conference at Plainfield last Wednesday. This completes the series of gatherings for the year, no more being held until next April when the first in the new series will be held at Jewett City, the second Wednesday of the month.

Rev. and Mrs. Slonn and Miss Marguerite Eadie are attending the general conference of Congregational churches at Bridgeport this week.

The Woman's Missionary meeting is to be held in the ladies parlor of the parish house Thursday afternoon at 2.30, with Mrs. Dunes Tucker and Mrs. Frank Crumbie as hostesses and Mrs. Robinson W. Dean leader.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, with their boys, visited their former homes in eastern Massachusetts over the week end and were obliged to make lengthy detours in order to reach home Sunday night.

Henry E. Smith's new building which is to house the store and one office, is practically ready for occupancy. It presents a fine appearance.

A representative of Storrs college met a number of local young men and boys at the Parish house Friday night for the purpose of forming poultry clubs among them.

R. Beverly Usher entertained a party of young friends at the Parsonage by the Pines, Saturday evening, on his fourteenth birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Park and Mrs. Roger Peck attended a musical in Hartford Sunday afternoon. The condition of the roads was such as to necessitate considerable delay both going and returning.

STUDEBAKER'S ERSKINE SIX

(4-door sedan, fully equipped)

victor in test of speed and endurance

American Automobile Association certifies to record unequaled by any stock closed car priced below One Thousand Dollars

NOTWITHSTANDING heavy rain and high wind throughout three-fourths of the test, an Erskine Sedan, fully equipped, travelled 1292.484 miles during twenty-four hours. This means an average speed of 54.103 miles per hour.

No stops were made except for oil and fuel and to change dirty spark plugs. These stops are included in the data. Immediately following the completion of the test the sedan went five miles at an average of almost 62 miles per hour—Think of it!

This record was made October 12-13 at the Atlantic City Speedway under the sanction and observation of the American Automobile Association. After the test the car was torn down by the technical committee and certified as a stock car in every respect.

What it proves!

Here is positive proof of extraordinary performance, of stamina and durability, of sound design from quality materials and superior workmanship in a car priced below $1000—proof of unusual pep and power, whether or not you care to drive long distances with the throttle wide open.

What Owners Say

Owners of the Erskine Six write us so enthusiastically you would think them to be salesmen. Send a postal inquiry to the Studebaker factory at South Bend and you will be sent, free of charge, comments which hundreds of Erskine owners have volunteered concerning their cars.

Make Your Own Test!

Or better still, let us loan you an Erskine so that you may drive it yourself and learn at first hand why it was able to establish the finest performance record ever set by a car in its price field.

Use PYRO and forestall trouble!

WINTER'S bitter cold is on the way—A sudden drop in temperature during the night . . .

Then in the morning a hissing radiator—a choking motor. Another car owner has gambled against the weather—and lost!

Don't risk the serious damage and heavy repair bills which nine times out of ten follow a freeze-up.

So easily prevented by Pyro Denatured Alcohol!

In any car, in any weather, Pyro gives absolute, safe protection. And it is guaranteed not to harm any part of the car.

Ten million motorists used Pyro last winter

Forty per cent of all American cars protected by Pyro! Proof enough of its dependability and recognized efficiency. The standard anti-freeze for more than a decade.

Garages and filling stations, hardware, paint and drug stores, can supply Pyro. In bulk from the Pyro drum with its distinctive blue label, or in gallon cans for your use in replacing evaporation.

Ask your dealer for a free copy of the Pyro Protection Chart, which shows exactly how much Pyro you need for adequate protection at any temperature.

Don't let cold weather catch you unprepared! Play safe—with Pyro.

This takes the guesswork out of anti-freeze protection!

The Pyro-Meter instantly shows the lowest temperature at which your car is protected against freezing. Then, if you need greater protection, the free Pyro Protection Chart will show how much Pyro to add. If your garage cannot supply a Pyro-Meter, send us $1.00 and we will mail it promptly. U. S. Industrial Alcohol Co., 210 E. 42nd Street, New York.

Burton Agency Sells Another

Mrs. C. D. Browning has sold her property located at No. 55 Sixth street to Milton M. and Regina Osborne. The house is a two apartment house of six rooms each and has all modern conveniences. The new owners will occupy one of the apartments. The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rose E. Burton.

Bread Theatre.

"What Price Glory," the merry war film now at the Bread theatre, is a screen play without a villain. Another novel feature of it is that you can use your own discretion in picking the hero. Nobody will dispute that the fiery Charmaine, played by Dolores Del Rio, is a more than adequate heroine, and that Privates Kipper and Lipinsky supply all the comedy necessary.

But who's the hero? Is it Captain Flagg, the hard-boiled Marine who uses profanity by the ton, gets gorgeously drunk at every chance and leads his men into battle as lightheartedly as he does a dance or a picnic? Or is it Sergeant Quirt, the tough and bluntly leathern neck who knows all the card tricks in the deck, steals his superior officers' sweethearts when he gets a chance, and takes his war as a matter of course?

Victor McLaglen plays the first and critics say it's his best performance yet; while Edmund Lowe is the shifty baby of the second part, and so cunningly did Laurence Stallings, one time captain in the Marines himself, and Maxwell Anderson construct the play that even on the stage the audience could choose its own hero.

In making the film, Raoul Walsh resolutely stuck to the same idea. There wasn't going to be any villain in his scheme of things, and if a hero or heroes were necessary, they wouldn't be of the mold commonly visible upon the screen. And so the audience can take its choice of the big hearted, bumptious Flagg, and the handsome, unscrupulous Quirt. But whichever is the hero, they have one thing in common—they are both real men.

Broadway Theatre

Aileen Pringle, whose reputation for the screen portrayal of sophisticated roles is world wide, will be seen in a new light with the showing of "Body and Soul," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which will be shown at the Broadway theatre the last half of this week.

The elegantly dressed Aileen of "Three Weeks," "His Hour," "Soul Mates" and other productions will be shown as a Swiss peasant girl, young, sparkling with vivacity and innocence. Throughout the picture she dresses in native costume and at no time is she seen in the up-to-the-minute wardrobes which she usually wears.

Her role calls for highly dramatic acting and offers opportunities which she has seized upon in a manner which will show her as a new Aileen Pringle.

Millions have read this vivid love drama of the Swiss Alps and know the opportunity it affords for dramatic action.

Lionel Barrymore has the role of the derelict English doctor and T. Roy Barnes has the comedy character role of the Swiss postman, whose antics precipitate a crisis in the lives of the other people. The featured male lead is taken by Norman Kerry.

Palace Theatre

The outstanding feature of the vaudeville bill opening at the Palace theatre, today is Clinton, Rooney and orchestra. This act has been heading on all the big vaudeville circuits of the country, being obtainable only through a week's open booking. The act is headed by Miss Julia Rooney, daughter of the late Pat Rooney and sister of the world famous Pat Rooney of the Rooney and Bent Revue. Miss Rooney offers some remarkable impersonations of her father and brother. The orchestra carried by the company consists of ten talented musicians led by Mr. Clinton. Four other acts of exceptional merit make up the remainder of the vaudeville program.

The feature picture co-stars Shirley Mason and Richard Arlen in "Sally of Cur Alley," a story of life in the tenements of New York city. Miss Mason is cast as an orphan with an Italian Jew, and a Scotchman as foster fathers. Arlen is seen as her plumber lover who does not meet with the approval of the guardians. In the supporting cast are Alec B. Francis, Paul Panzer and Kathlyn Williams.

Strand Theatre.

"White Pebbles" a western feature starring Wally Wales shows how Betty Wallace's son came to the rescue of the daughter of his dad's best friend, and how the situation provides comedy as well as action, romance and thrills can only be learned by seeing White Pebbles at the Strand with Olive Hasbrouck as the heroine.

"Money to Burn" from the popular novel by Reginald Wright Kauffman with a superb cast headed by Malcolm McGregor and Dorothy Devore is a photoplay that will delight millions. It is a romance of youth, love, mystery, adventure and a fortune that [illegible]

COUSIN, 21, LURED FROM TORRINGTON BY NEW LONDON BROTHER AND SISTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 9.—Gus and Rose Chioda, brother and sister, were presented in the police court this morning charged with violation of the liquor law and conducting a house of ill repute. Their cousin, Marion Lois Rondeau, 21, of 14 Lois street, Torrington, was charged with lascivious carriage. Chioda and his sister were held in bail of $1000 and $1000, respectively, for trial in the police court tomorrow, while the Rondeau girl was held in bail of $50.

Chioda and his sister have conducted the rooming house, known as the Fournier house, 147 Bank street, several months. The house has long been known to be a place where liquor was sold and recently it became the rendezvous of sailors. Last night sailors frequented the house in great numbers than in a long time and some of them became intoxicated. About 2 o'clock Acting Sergeant William Graham in charge of a raiding squad, consisting of Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolmen Frank Philopena, Elwood Bailey, Michael Dorsey and William Riordan, went to the house and what they found there caused the man and two women to be arrested. Liquor was found and from other evidence it was apparent for what use the house was being conducted. The Chioda woman was arrested on a simple charge of frequenting until the youthful cousin related her story as to how she came to this city.

When the cases of the three came up in the police court, the Chioda woman was not on hand, so her bond was called. It then developed from what the Rondeau girl stated that the Chioda woman was instrumental in the girl being brought here for purposes of immorality. The latter said that she was assured work at the rooming house in the care of the rooms and she decided to accept the employment. However, when she arrived at the house, the girl was informed that besides taking care of the rooms, she would have charge of a particular room where she would be compelled to entertain male patrons of the house. She objected to this, so she says, but when she was detained at the house against her will, she was forced to accede to the demands of the man and woman. When this story was revealed, Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh started a search for the Chioda woman. He did not have to search long for he found the woman and a friend seated in an automobile a short distance from police headquarters, waiting for her brother and the girl to appear. She was brought back to police headquarters and the more serious charge of conducting a house of ill fame was made against her.

MRS. W. J. MORGAN'S SUDDEN DEATH IN HOUSE SHE WAS BORN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 9.—Mrs. Charlotte Ann Morgan, 74, wife of William J. Morgan, died suddenly of acute heart disease at her residence, 318 State street, this morning. She was born in the house in which she died and had always resided in New London. Mrs. Morgan had been affected with heart disorder a long time and from time to time, but was apparently in as good health yesterday as she had been in a long time. She retired as usual, but about 1 o'clock she was awakened because of a difficulty in breathing. The family physician was summoned and prescribed for Mrs. Morgan, but she died a short time later.

TWO OF THREE CROOKS ARRESTED BY STATE POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov 9.—Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh, Lieut. Roy Streman and Officer George Webber of the state police, Groton barracks, have, it is believed, arrested two of three youthful crooks who have been committing burglaries in New London and vicinity for a long time. The crooks arrested today are Herbert Bunnell and Joseph Sersen, both of this city. They have made confessions in which they admit the part they have played in a series of robberies, including the theft of jewelry, automobiles and tires. They have also related the role played by the third crook, who has succeeded in eluding the police of other cities, who have been asked to arrest him. He is not a resident of New London, but he has a police court record here. In the police court this presented on a charge of burglary and sented on a charge of burglary and were held for trial at the January term of the superior court. Being unable to furnish bail they were committed to jail.

A week ago the residence of Henry Jansen, 91 Main street, over the Blue Ribbon bakery, of which Jansen is the proprietor, was burglarized, jewelry valued at $383.75 and whiskey were stolen. The jewelry included a platinum ring with 38 chip diamonds, a white-gold ring with three chip diamonds, a friendship ring with two chip diamonds, a wedding ring, a gold ring with ruby setting, hunting case watch, scarf pin and gold cuff links.

The man being sought was formerly employed by Jansen and is said to have been the brains of the crooks. About a week ago the man at large met Bushnell and Sersen on Main street and disclosed that he had a number of stolen tires and which had been stolen at a garage in Chesterfield. He requested Bunnell and Sersen to assist him in selling the tires. The automobile owned by Jansen was secured and the three men went to the place where the tires were stored. The tires were loaded into the car and taken to a field in Montville where they were placed behind a wall. The tires were eventually sold. Bunnell and Sersen claim that they received but $3.°2 as their share from the proceeds of the sales.

Oct. 25 the three went to the garage of Julian L. Williams, Norwich Town and stole a Buick car. The third man drove the Buick and Bunnell and Sersen drove the auto owned by Jansen. At the Enos garage at Quaker Hill a stop was made while the crooks forced the lock on a gasoline service tank, which permitted them to steal 16 gallons of gasoline. Coming to this city the Buick was driven to Federal street and parked. The following night the stolen auto was driven to Riverside park, and left there. The next day the crooks stole markers from an automobile owned by James Wall, 18 Stony Hill, when they found the car parked on Water street. The markers were taken to Riverside park and placed on Williams' auto. The next day the three crooks started for Hartford, but at Glastonbury the trip was abandoned because of a disabled muffler, which created such a noise that they feared they would be arrested for violation of the motor vehicle law and it would then be revealed that their auto had been stolen. The trip back to New London was made and another muffler being obtained, it was installed on the auto. Another trip to the Chesterfield garage was made and five more tires were stolen after a window had been forced. Returning to New London the auto was again parked at Riverside park and was recovered by the police when a resident of that vicinity reported the car as having been parked there several days.

Being without funds interfered with the thieving of the gang, so the missing member of their gang suggested going to the Jansen bakery and committing a theft. This was decided upon, but when they ascertained that Jansen and his wife would be absent from the city the next day the thieving was deferred. The missing crook entered the Jansen house which was in charge of two girls and as he was known to them they did not pay much attention to his movements. He succeeded in finding Mrs. Jansen's jewelcase containing the trinkets and he also found three bottles of Scotch whiskey. He placed the box of jewels in his pocket and deposited the whiskey behind a door. Going to the street he sent Sersen after the whiskey. The latter was heard leaving the house with it and when called he failed to stop. Sersen then joined his companions and they went to Baltic, where they forced an entrance to Miller's garage for the purpose of stealing another auto. A Ford found there was taken and the gang decided to go to Albany, N. Y. This they did and upon their arrival there, the third crook started to dispose of the jewelry and did so in part for many of the trinkets were sold at a pawnshop. With the money in their possession the gang decided to split. Bunnell and Sersen started for New London, leaving their companion in Albany with the remainder of the loot and stolen auto. Sersen and Bunnell remained together until they arrived in Bridgeport, then returned to New London separately.

In the meantime the New London and state police had been working on the case and when Sersen and Bunnell appeared at their customary haunts they were arrested. The third crook was believed to be in Albany and the police of that city were requested to arrest him, but he was not found. It is believed now that he is in New York and the police of that city have been asked to watch out for him.

The gang has perpetrated probably a score of robberies in this city and on the turnpikes between New London and Norwich, New London and Hartford and New London and New Haven.

Charles Bailey, 74, of Flanders, for many years employed as janitor of the Flanders school, died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital this morning. Mr. Bailey received injuries about two weeks ago when walking along the highway in Flanders, well to the side of the road. It was just after nightfall and Mr. Bailey was taking unusual precaution. Without any warning, an automobile driven at a high rate of speed struck Mr. Bailey, hurling him to one side of the road where he was left by the driver of the hit-and-run type. He was found a short time after the accident by a passing motorist who had Mr. Bailey brought to the New London hospital. It was found that he had sustained a fractured skull.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's licenses of Thomas Lynch, 481 Pequot avenue; Joseph C. Hatfield, submarine base, and Walter Charbonneau, 11 Peninsula avenue.

George Stevens, 42 Mountain avenue, claims to have been held up last night at the point of a revolver, but there are circumstances in connection with the alleged attempt to rob Stevens that make the claim doubtful. The police received a telephone message that the holdup had occurred and Patrolman Frank Philopena was sent to Stevens' home. There Stevens, when questioned, stated that he was walking along Mountain avenue on his way home. When he reached the corner of Prest street, Stevens says, the holdup man approached him and leveling the revolver at his head, demanded his money. Instead of complying with the demand, Stevens says, he seized the gunman's hand and forced the revolver from his grasp. The gunman then started to run through Prest street and as he did so, Stevens threw the revolver at him, instead of retaining possession of it, which might have revealed who owned it, as a record is kept of all revolvers sold in this city. Stevens then went to his home and summoned the police. He said the gunman was about 28, five feet ten inches in height, tall, slim and smooth shaven. He had a light overcoat and felt hat.

Frank A. Cometsk has sold a building lot on Williams street to George H. R. Lowery.

Angelo and Josephine Drago have sold a building lot on Cobman street to Francesca Paolo Emanuele.

The funeral of Nelson J. Beckwith was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence on the Niantic river road, Waterford, the services being conducted by Rev. E. E. Knapp, pastor of Jordan Baptist church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

EDWARD McCLUE ARRESTED—ADMITS CHILD'S CHARGE TRUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 9—Edward McClue, about 23, residing at 112 Howard street, was arrested tonight by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith charged with indecent assault. McClue was locked up in default of bonds of $1,500 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. The crime McClue is alleged to have committed occurred Dec. 1, 1926, but because of a child, a girl of 7, the daughter of Mrs. Edith Miller 48 Bilnman street, not being able to identify her attacker by seeing him on the street until recently, McClue has escaped arrest. A few weeks ago the child was on Bank street with her mother and espied McClue with friends. She pointed out McClue as the fellow who had assaulted her. Mrs. Miller gave the information to the detective bureau and after the child had made a statement of what had occurred, a warrant was issued for his arrest. McClue, it is claimed, met the child leaving the Crown theatre and induced her to accompany him to the rear of a building on Pearl street. That McClue is guilty there is no doubt for he signed a statement after his arrest, saying that "what the girl said I did is true." McClue has been arrested before, having been in court several years ago, for an offense of a serious nature.

May Pierson, Bank street, employed as a waitress at the Manhattan restaurant, is the owner of a furcoat, but she was without it last night and a part of today for it was stolen last night while she was performing her duties at the restaurant. Louis Richmann, North Bank street and Edward McClue, who is under arrest on a most serious charge, went to the restaurant and saw the coat suspended from a hanger. When the attention of the employes directed from the young men they seized the coat and left. A short time afterwards they went to the Fournier house, 147 Bank street, where they sold the garment to Marion I. Rondeau for $10, Richmann giving the young woman a receipt for the money and signing his name to it. Richmann was about the streets this morning, but since 10 o'clock he has remained in hiding.

A Ford touring automobile carrying registration N-5248, was taken in charge by the police tonight for it had been parked in front of 107 Ocean avenue since last night. The auto was removed to a garage where it awaits the claim of its owner.

GET TELEPHONE MESSAGE DAUGHTER IS MARRIED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 9—Mr. and Mrs. Lee H. Case, 4 Sherman street, believe that their daughter, Helen, 17 and Lee McTough, about the same age and residing on Bank street, were married this afternoon McTough and the girl left the Case residence about 2 o'clock and early tonight Mrs. Case received a telephone message from a person, who represented that he and the girl had been married during the afternoon. Mrs. Case demanded of the speaker that the girl be returned to her home and this demand was met with an insulting answer and the speaker hung up the receiver. The telephone message was sent from a pay station so could not be traced. The police have been requested to be on the lookout for the girl.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Radio Store

Smith's Radio Store on Franklin street is filling a long standing need in the community, in taking care of the immense amount of radio repair work here.

This store is operated by two enterprising and well known young men of our city, Lewis J. Smith and Douglas E. Sevin, both of whom have had no little experience in this sort of work and are well qualified, with their past experiences to handle most anything in this line.

Mr. Smith has followed radio as a hobby since the beginning, being with N. Soule, the first radio experimenter in town. Since then he has been employed for a term of years as an electrician, has had some experience working with the A. C. Swan Co., on storage batteries and ignition, with the gas and electric department on meters, and for the past four years, managing the radio and sporting goods department at Preston Bros. Co.

Mr. Sevin also is an old time fan, having followed radio as a hobby as well as a study for a number of years.

Mr. Sevin has served with our air forces as mechanic and ignition expert as well as instructor, has been with the Eastern Conn. Power Co. as operator and finally power director, during a period of five years; and, for the past six months has been connected with the Eastern Conn. Power Co., as man, specializing on Radiola machines.

At their store on Franklin street they have, perhaps the best equipped radio repair shop in eastern Connecticut. It would seem, they have hit the right responsive note, and should go far.

THE MARY F. CROFTON FUND PLANNED BY W. M. I. ALUMNAE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 9—A fund to be known as the Mary F. Crofton fund, as a memorial to a member of the faculty, the interest to be used as a general science prize each year, was voted at a largely attended meeting of Williams Memorial Alumnae association at the Y. W. C. A. last night. This was proposed by Mrs. Ernest F. Gates, president, some time ago and met the approval of Principal Colin S. Buell and Miss Annie R. Crofton. Each member of the alumnae association will be requested to give 50 cents toward the fund.

FRANKLIN

Whist parties given by Franklin Grange were resumed Tuesday. Their continuance will depend largely upon their popularity.

Local people having relatives and friends in Vermont and other New England towns seriously affected by floods are concerned about their safety and comfort.

Local students on the honor roll for the first marking period at Windham High school were: 90 per cent or over, William Glowacki, senior; 80 per cent. or above, Mildred Manning, senior.

Many have already paid the personal tax of two dollars to F. I. Date, tax collector.

People from this town who work and attend school in Willimantic were inconvenienced when the trolley car due in Willimantic at 7 o'clock ran off the track in South Windham.

Franklin has lost one of its oldest and most respected citizens by the death of John Brassil. Mr. Brassil was a man of very peaceful disposition and always had a kind word for everyone. In his business dealings he was always fair and just. The sympathy of the townspeople has been extended to his widow and children in their bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Woodward, of New Haven, have closed their summer home here, to return to the city.

Mrs. Emily Date returned home from Boston, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Fairbanks of Boston were recent callers in town.

At the last meeting of Franklin Grange No. 184, Neighbors Night was observed with Scotland and Pachaug granges as guests. An enjoyable program was presented by the visitors during the lecturer's hour. About 130 were in attendance, including representatives from Scotland, Pachaug, Berlin, Echo, Lebanon, Bozrah, Norwich and Franklin granges. There was also one Massachusetts granger.

Mrs. Emily Date spent Tuesday with Mrs. Ella E. Gager.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Rodman and daughter, Julia, who started to motor to New Haven Sunday, were turned back by flood waters.

Townspeople have reported finding spring flowers and roses. In some places fringed gentians grow beside bluets. Violets and dandelions are plentiful.

Thomas Nagle of New London has been the guest of his sister, Mrs. William Chappell.

W. Edgar Cox was a Norwich visitor recently.

There were several parties of ghosts, goblins, witches, tramps and clowns abroad Halloween night. The damage to property consisted principally in the wholesale painting of the letters K. K. K. on signs, bridges and buildings.

Edna White, a pupil at Pleasure Hill school, has been ill with a severe cold.

Many from here attended the Windham-Academy game in Norwich Saturday.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Mrs. Irving Paine of English Neighborhood is quite ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wendell Bosworth from ulcers of the stomach.

Alan Upham entertained 18 of his piano pupils at his home, Saturday afternoon. A short recital was followed by games and light refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. George Neely entertained a family party of 24 Sunday.

Miss Louise Pike, supervisor in this town and Eastford sang the solo, "Come, Ye Blessed," by Scott, at the Congregational church Sunday.

Clifford Parrone moved from the mill house last week to the house in Factory street recently vacated by Alonzo Davis and family.

Rollo Kelton and George Jeneks of Holyoke, Mass., were in town Saturday.

Mrs. George A. Wetherell and son Presley recently spent several days in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., with Maurice Childs and family.

Miss Freda Neely of Branford has been visiting the family of George Neely the past week.

GREENEVILLE

On Wednesday evening Miss Mary C. Carey was pleasantly surprised at her home, 235 North Main street, when twenty of her friends gave her a surprise shower in honor of her approaching marriage, which will take place Saturday morning. Miss Carey is the daughter of Mrs. Timothy Carey. During the evening games were played, radio selections furnished music for the dancing. Thomas J Dingivan gave an exhibition of latest dance hits. Miss Mary Dooley rendered several piano solos and solos were given by Miss May Uterstaedt and James Carey, while Andrew Bellefleur gave an exhibition of the black bottom. Miss Carey received many useful gifts. Luncheon was served by Miss Kelley assisted by Miss May Uterstead.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Campion of Golden street spent Tuesday in Hartford viewing the ruins caused by the rising of the Connecticut river.

Leslie Carroll who has been confined to his home on Prospect street with a severe cold has resumed his studies at Fordham university.

Harold Carrigan of New London was a business caller in the village Wednesday.

William Redhead, son of Harry Redhead, of 257 Central avenue, met with an accident about 3:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon while riding his motorcycle down Central avenue. He was near Third street when he noticed an automobile coming out of Third street, the driver making a right turn. Redhead, who was in the car track, turned his cycle to the right, but the front wheel hit the track and he lost his balance with the result that he was thrown from his cycle. He was unable to walk and two men who happened to be nearby took Mr. Redhead to his home. Dr. Agnew was notified and after examining Mr. Redhead stated that he had broken an artery in his foot.

The officers of the Catholic Ladies' of Columbus gave a shower in their club rooms Monday evening in honor of Miss Mary C. Carey. She was recipient of many beautiful gifts.

Mrs. Turner Upton and family have returned to their home on Fifth street after spending a few days with relatives in Springfield.

Johnny Cummings of Prospect street has accepted a responsible position in Thomaston, Conn.

Mrs. Albert Dawley and daughter are spending a few days at the home of her parents in Plainfield.

Mrs. William Ogden has returned to her home on Central avenue after spending a few days with her daughter in Boston.

Master Flynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Flynn of Boswell avenue picked a dandelion in full bloom on their lawn Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shea of Boswell avenue are spending a few days with relatives in Pittsfield, Mass.

TAFTVILLE

Wednesday evening was Old-Timers' night at the carnival being given by the Army and Navy club for the benefit of the Sacred Heart church at Parish hall. The opening of the doors was preceded by a parade with red fire and drum corps. Many of the older residents took advantage of the special evening to attend the affair and renew friendships with others, many of whom came from out of town. Old fashioned dancing was also enjoyed, Dave Lyons orchestra playing.

On Monday evening the joint installation of officers of Peter Gallan Post, American Legion and the Taftville Legion auxiliary was held at the Naturalization club. The installation ceremonies followed a sumptuous banquet, at which eight local girls served as waitresses. Past State Commander Kenneth Cramer of Hartford acted as installing officer for the Post, the district officers being first installed, followed by the installation of the officers of the local post. Representatives were present from Lyme, New London, Stonington, Mystic, Montville, Colchester, Baltic, Jewett City and Norwich. Past National Vice President Mary Coyle was the installing officer for the auxiliary, the district auxiliary officers being first installed, followed by the installation of the unit auxiliary officers. Representatives from auxiliaries at New London, Stonington, Mystic, Norwich, Jewett City, and Colchester attended. After the ceremonies, dancing was enjoyed until after midnight. Dave Lyons' orchestra furnishing the music. The committee in charge of the affair included Thomas Perkins Sears, Stanislas Benac, Edward Kelley, Ernest Colburn, Conrad Pepin, Leon C. DeCelles, Andrew Frohnader, Mrs. Ruth Grant Sears, Mrs. May D. Frohmader, Mrs. Clara T. Caron, Mrs. Elsie K. Pingree, Mrs. Dorothy Nagle, Mrs. Frances M. Kelley and Mrs. Lillian G. Molleur.

Thomas Robinson of Occum road has accepted a position with the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

The regular weekly meeting of the members of St. Veronica's T. A. B. society was held Wednesday evening at the society rooms on Providence street with the president, Miss Mary Ward presiding.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Buskey and daughter of Three Rivers, Mass., have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bateson of Occum heights.

Miss Mary Martin is confined to her home on South Fourth avenue by illness.

The last meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Versailles Methodist Episcopal church was held with Mrs. Harvey Conklin at her home in Baltic. Every member of the society was present and a delicious supper was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Frederick Laycock.

Mrs. Mary Blanchette of Norwich avenue has moved to Baltic where she has accepted a position.

The Dramatic club have begun work on the entertainments which they present annually in connection with the fair of the Taftville Congregational church. Rehearsals began this week on a minstrel show directed by Richard Oat, and parts have already been assigned for a three act comedy which is to be given under the direction of Miss Gertrude M. Young.

NORWICH GRANGE HOLDS ELECTION MAKING A. W. LILLIBRIDGE MASTER

ALBERT W. LILLIBRIDGE
Elected Worthy Master

Norwich Grange, No. 173, Patrons of Husbandry, held its annual election of officers at its meeting Wednesday evening in Steinar hall at which Worthy Master Ralph H. Marsh presided and the list of officers was chosen who are to be installed at the meeting on the fourth Wednesday in January.

The following were elected: Worthy master, Albert W. Lillibridge; overseer, Althea Brown; lecturer, Elizabeth Murray; steward, Lee Coles; assistant steward, Thurston Lillibridge; chaplain, Charles E. Ellis; treasurer, Edward Cook; secretary, Ruth Colt; gatekeeper, Adelle Spalding; Ceres, Louise M Avery; Pomona, June Woods; Flora, Thelma Marsh; lady assistant steward, Amy Coles; member of executive committee, Ralph H. Marsh.

One candidate was obligated in the third and fourth degrees and an invitation from Pachaug Grange to visit there Neighbor's night and the 17th was accepted. Norwich Grange is invited to give two numbers for the lecturer's hour.

Reports were made by the finance committee, the community service committee, the executive committee and the auxiliary supper committee.

Refreshments, consisting of Waldorf salad, Parker house rolls, and coffee were served at the conclusion of the meeting by the feast committee, Mrs. Teresa Watters, Mrs. Alice Marsh and Mrs. Clara Burke.

Gave Programme at Almshouse

A recent activity of the grange under the auspices of the community service committee, with Mrs. Mae LaValley in charge, was an entertainment given at the almshouse on Asylum street, which made a programme which was highly appreciated. This was carried out as follows: Piano solo, Miss Florence Hoffman; recitation, So Was I, Mrs. Clara Burke; clog dance, Lucille Gross; recitation, Frank T. Maples; song, Miller of the Dee, Mrs. Burke; song, Mrs. Olive Cousins; play, Saving the Situation; recitation, Mr. Maples; song, Mrs. Cousins; exhibition dance, the Charleston, Miss Gross; song, America.

THERAPY SOCIETY MEETS NEXT WEEK IN NEW HAVEN

STAMFORD, Nov. 9.—The annual meeting of the Connecticut Occupational Therapy society will be held at the Sterling Hall of Medicine in New Haven Wednesday, Nov. 16, with morning and afternoon sessions. There will be a business meeting at 11:45 a. m. with reports, election of officers and presentation of the program for 1927-28. There will be a luncheon at the Betsy Ross Tea room at 12:45 p. m.

There will be two addresses at the afternoon meeting, one at 2 p. m. by Dr. C. Floyd Haviland of the Manhattan state hospital, New York city, on "Occupational Therapy for Mental Cases." It will be remembered that Dr. Haviland was superintendent of the Connecticut state hospital at Middletown before he went to New York. At 2:45 p. m. Miss Marjorie Taylor of the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Boston will speak on "Orthopedic Occupational Therapy."

The public is invited to these sessions.

Petition By Coach Company

The New London Coach Co., operating busses between that city and Westerly, R. I., has petitioned the public utilities commission for permission to transfer part of its certificate to operate to Arthur L. Linn, Jr., of Newport, R. I., president of the New London Coach Co. The petition will be heard at the state capitol this (Thursday) morning at 11 o'clock.

CURRENT EVENTS TALKS INTEREST ROTARY CLUB

Norwich Rotary club will sponsor a "pet and hobby show" for the boys and girls of Norwich according to plans of the boys' work committee approved at the meeting of the club on Wednesday noon. The date of the exhibit has not been definitely set, but it is expected that it will be a Saturday, either the latter part of November or the first of December.

Several of these exhibits have been held in other cities and have proved to be very successful. The boys and girls are asked to exhibit their pets and their hobbies. In other shows, rabbits, dogs, chickens and many other of the pets of the children have been shown while the hobbies have included airplanes made by the boys, home made radio sets, ship models, drawings and many other things that the boys and girls have taken up in their spare moments. The committee will award prizes in many lines for the best work in the hobby line and for the best pets. Entries will be received very shortly and the children should watch the papers for the announcements.

President Clarence A. Spear presided at the meeting and Flint Brayton was the song-leader with Nicholas J. Spellman at the piano in the absence of Henry J. LaFontaine. Among the announcements made by Secretary Edward L. Jewett was a request from the New Bedford Rotary club asking that members of the Norwich club be on the watch for Philip F. Purrington, 16, who had disappeared on Nov. 4th, from Taylor Academy at Mattapoisett, Mass. He is the son of Ralph F. Purrington of New Bedford, a member of the New Bedford Rotary club. Young Purrington was dressed in the sailor uniform of the academy which is practically the same as the regulation navy uniform with the exception that the Taylor uniform has two white stripes around the collar instead of three. Anyone seeing the boy is requested to notify the New Bedford police or Rotary club.

Two new members, A. E. Payson and Thomas Burdick, were initiated into the club by President Spear. It was announced that Alex McNicol had been appointed sergeant at arms in place of Joseph Whelan, resigned.

At the conclusion of the business session the meeting was turned over to William G. Park, chairman of the program committee. Mr. Park introduced several speakers on current events and all were heard with a great deal of pleasure.

Lucius Briggs was the first speaker and he discoursed on several subjects which included the significance of Armistice day, the anniversary of the ending of the world's greatest calamity; the flood conditions in New England which were the worst since 1836 and Hartford's good fortune that the Holyoke dam held; Lieut Gray's recent altitude record which brought out many new facts of the upper atmosphere; and lastly the infliction of the death penalty as a means of instilling fear into a lawless element.

John J. O'Rourke was the second speaker. Mr. O'Rourke's talk dealt largely with public benefactors, the speaker citing the case of Jesse Currier of Portland, Oregon, a great fancier of rose culture and who through his interest in roses had given several parks to his city. Bringing the illustration home, Mr. O'Rourke spoke of the chimes at Park church which in his opinion was a most noteworthy public benefaction. In closing, Mr. O'Rourke showed Mayor Milo R. Waters how he could become a public benefactor by seeing that the schcarts in Norwich are covered when passing through the city streets and thereby eliminate the discomfort of having ashes and garbage blown in the faces of the pedestrians.

The father and son movement was stressed by Emory Davis in a brief talk. Mr. Davis urged more congenial relationships between the father and his growing boy. The substance of his talk was "Who is Daddying Your Boy—If You Don't Know, Find Out." The guiding influence of the boy should come from the home and not from the street.

First hand knowledge of the conditions in China were given by James E. Roantree who read a letter from one of the representatives of the American Thermos Bottle Co. in China. Mr. Hodges, the representative, wrote of the tyrannical rule of the nationalists in demanding what amounted to tribute from the heads of large Chinese business houses. However, the outlook was not as dismal as has been painted and he expressed the opinion that China would pull through.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

MAYOR TO INSPECT CITY'S NEW RESERVOIR

An inspection of the new Deep River reservoir is to be made Saturday by Mayor Milo R. Waters and members of the court of common council. This is expected to be the final inspection of the reservoir by the city officials, as the reservoir is now in its final stage of completion. There will be no special exercises.

It is expected that the reservoir will be completed the first of December by Contractor Louis Petressi.

The superstructure on the gatehouse has been completed and the gates could be closed at any time to begin the accumulation, which it has been estimated, will take about a year to reach full pond. One of the latest pieces of work has been the completion of the spillway. The spillway erected for some distance is a series of braded concrete slabs, built to break the force of the waste water when it pours out of the reservoir pond. At the lower end of the spillway the water discharges into the brook and there the big steam shovel has dropped a flooring of big boulders which will prevent the bed of the stream from being washed away by the flow of water.

Work of cleansing out the basin of the reservoir has also occupied much time, and everything in the ground, which will form the bottom of the basin, though detrimental will be removed.

CHAMBER TO HOLD ITS ANNUAL MEETING

The Norwich chamber of commerce is to hold its annual meeting Monday evening, Nov. 21. An announcement sent out by President James L. Case says in part:

That there will be "a little business, some fun, two good talks and a real chow feast. William Park will be the song leader of the evening. Activities for the evening will commence at 6.15."

Reports of the various committees will be heard, followed by the election of six new directors.

Howard C. Baldwin, educational director, Babson Statistical organization, Wellesley Hills, Mass., will be the principal speaker of the evening. His topic will be "What is the Business Outlook for 1928." Mr. Baldwin, according to the announcement, has had direct and personal contact with the real everyday affairs all over the United States and Canada, and he is well versed on his named subject.

Rev. John Nicol Mar, lecturer, will be the after dinner speaker, with his topic being, "Touchstones of Success."

VOLUNTOWN MAN'S NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

The friends of Edward E. Clarke, superintendent of the Brig[illegible] at Voluntown are congratula[illegible] his narrow escape from d[illegible] Friday when a plank in [illegible] which he was standing, b[illegible] was thrown against the rai[illegible] gave way, throwing him into the heavy current of water caused by the bursting of the Collins dam above the town.

He was carried by the fast current of water over rocks and broken trees and miraculously escaped being killed.

Charles Downing, Fred Brown and Clarence Kahn were with him on the dam and had cleaned away a huge pile of collected refuse when they missed Mr. Clarke and saw him being carried downstream rolling over and over in the water. They did everything they could to get to him and Mr. Kahn pulled off his boots to jump in after him but Mr. Clarke managed to catch hold of some broken trees that were floating down and worked his way to the bank.

Aside from being bruised and lame he was fortunate in his experience. When the dam burst, Mr. Clarke waded into water 5 feet deep to open the gates for freer flowage. Having recently been through a serious illness he doubly risked his life to prevent what would have been serious damage to the four mills as well as the entire village and destruction to the village of Glasgo where the water travels to after going over the four dams at Voluntown.

NORWICH AUTO DRIVER LOSES HIS LICENSE

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are thirty-one names on the list. Three cases were appealed. Four were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles. The list follows:

Bridgeport—William Allen, John J. Brown, Tony Capodagli, Frank W. Demme, John E. Sells.
Bristol—Peter Kukils.
Burnside—John Lichatz.
Collinsville—William Lyons.

MOTOR VEHICLE OWNERS MAY RESERVE REGISTRATIONS

Motor vehicle owners in Connecticut have only seven more days in which to apply for registration numbers held in 1927. An announcement made Monday by the state motor vehicle department states that numbers will not be reserved for the 1928 license plates after November 15, unless request has been made on or before that date, accompanied by the proper application and payment.

Requests for lower numbers than those held this year may also be made before that date, on the same terms, and the department will make every effort to co-operate with those filing early applications. Such requests must be specifically stated, however, or the application will be considered in the regular routine. Compliance is not always possible because of the large number of applications for plates with few numerals, numbers below 50,000 being especially popular.

Early applications for registration are fewer this year than for several years past. In 1925 and 1926, mail and personal applications received at all offices of the department had reached the 15,500 mark by November 7. This year only about 12,800 have been received. As approximately 153,000 motor vehicles may be expected to be registered before January 10, this means that 140,700 registrants have still to apply.

Mail orders will be received at the branch offices in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, New London and Stamford until November 15. After that date all mail orders must be made to the Hartford office. Every effort is being made to facilitate the rapid handling of these orders and it is hoped that there will be a large number of early applications to eliminate as much as possible of the annual last minute rush for registrations.

While full information has been mailed to each prospective applicant, the department has found it advisable to publish the following rules in explanation of the procedure to be followed and changes in the regulations made by the 1927 general assembly:

All registrations expire at midnight, Dec. 31. Only the 1928 form of application blank will be accepted as a change in the law requires that the age of each applicant be stated, an item of information not demanded in previous years.

Checks, postal money orders or express orders, made payable to the commissioner of motor vehicles, must accompany all mail applications. All fees must be absolutely correct and application cards completely filled out in ink or typewritten. All applications for registrations and transfers must be sworn to before a notary public or a justice of the peace.

Registration requirements and fees are the same as in past years except as they are affected by the following provisions:

The sum of the light weight and carrying capacity of a vehicle, or vehicles operated in combination, shall not exceed 26,000 pounds (formerly 25,000) except by special permit issued by the highway authorities.

Tractors and electrically operated platform trucks need not necessarily be equipped with approved headlight devices.

Appropriate fees are provided for registering pneumatic-tired commercial vehicles of more than four tons capacity.

Special fees and forms of registration have been provided for "industrial trucks," used for short distances only on the highways.

A minor cannot register a motor vehicle for 1928 unless he furnishes, as a prerequisite to registration, proof of financial responsibility.

Will Discuss Tax Legislation

A tax commissioner from every New England state, as well as from New York state, will be present at the New England tax conference to be held at Portland, Me., Nov. 17 and 18.

On the opening day, a review of 1927 tax legislation is to be given by Comissioner William H. Blodgett for Connecticut, Hon. Fred S. Jordan, former member of board of state assessors, for Maine; Commissioner Henry F. Long for Massachusetts, Commissioner Laurence P. Whittemore for New Hampshire, Commissioner Mark Graves for New York, Commissioner Zenas W. Bliss for Rhode Island, Commissioner Erwin M. Harvey for Vermont.

The Friday morning session should be of special interest to representatives of textile corporations and to other large industrial properties, when the subject of "Valuation of Industrial Properties for tax purposes," will be discussed by Philip Nichols, Boston, Albert B. Fales, director of local taxation, Massachusetts; Edward T. Kelly, chairman Boston board of assessors.

Dixon Back at Work

Alfred Dixon of Uncasville, who was injured Tuesday when caught in the shafting in the engine room of the Robert Gair Co. paper mill at Uncasville, where he is employed, was able to be back at work on Wednesday. His injuries were not so serious as at first supposed.

CENTRAL BAPTIST WOMEN PLANNING FOR RALLY

The Women's League of the Central Baptist church plan an indoor picnic and rally on Friday evening at 6.15. This is the first group to meet in the remodeled building. The meeting is to be held in the Young People's assembly hall and the woman's living room. A reception at 5.30 is to precede the meeting. This is to be held in the auditorium of the church at which time the Sunday school orchestra will play. The women of the church feel it a rare opportunity to have one as widely known as Mrs. Smith Thomas Ford to be the speaker of the evening. Mrs. Ford is from Tarrytown, N. Y., and has held positions in the national societies of the women of the Northern Baptist convention and is a most impressive speaker. Delegations from many Baptist churches in and about Norwich and New London are expected to attend.

MANUFACTURERS OF STATE TO MEET AT BRISTOL

President E. Kent Hubbard of the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut has announced that the annual meeting and banquet of the association will be held on Nov. 28 at the New Departure Manufacturing company of Bristol, a division of the General Motors corporation.

The association has in its membership 800 of the leading industrialists of the state, including Governor John H. Trumbull, president of the Trumbull Electric company, who will act as toastmaster at the annual banquet in the evening. The day's program will open with a luncheon at 12:30, to be followed by an inspection of the New Departure plant and by the business session at which the officers and four new directors will be elected and other business transacted.

The present officers, consisting of E. Kent Hubbard, president; John H. Goss, of the Scoville Manufacturing company, Waterbury, vice-president; and Robert C. Buell of Hartford, secretary and treasurer, have been nominated for re-election for one year. The four new directors, who have been nominated to succeed those whose terms automatically expire this year, are: James L. Goodwin, president of the Whitlock Coil Pipe company, Hartford, representing Hartford county; G. E. Hammann, treasurer of the Progressive Manufacturing company, Torrington, representing Litchfield county; William G Park, vice-president of the Airlie Mills, Inc., of Hanover, representing New London county; and Frank Goodchild, vice-president of J. & J. Cash, Inc., of South Norwalk, director at large. Each will serve for four years.

GORDON ESTATE SHOWS $7,041.39 IN BANK DEPOSITS

The estate of the late William H. Gordon, former Greeneville resident, has been appraised at $7,041.39, this figure being the total of two bank accounts. According to Mr. Gordon's will the bulk of the estate is left to the United Workers for use of the Sheltering Arms where Mr. Gordon had resided for some time before his death. James W. Semple of No. 69 Sixth street has qualified as executor of the estate.

DARTMOUTH STUDENTS HELP CLEAR AWAY FLOOD DEBRIS

Working Vigorously With Pick and Shovel in the Vicinity of White River Junction—Order is Being Restored n the Flooded Area as Relief and Reconstruction Work Takes More Definite Shape—Red Cross is Pushing Forward Food, Clothing and Medical Supplies to the Stricken Towns.

BOSTON, Nov. 10—(AP)—Order began to emerge today from the chaos created by last week's flood in New England as relief and reconstruction measures took more definite shape. The Red Cross, in direction of relief work in Vermont, pushed forward the provision of food, clothing and medical supplies to the stricken towns, while army and civil authorities and railroad officials assisted by volunteer workers dug away mud and debris, built temporary bridges and repaired highways.

The most picturesque group of workers today was seen in vigorous action in Hartford county, Vermont of which county the principal village is White River Junction, an important railroad center. This consisted of a large proportion of the student body of Dartmouth college at Hanover, N. H., a few miles away across the Connecticut river.

Dressed in their oldest clothes, the boys wielded pick and shovel with a will.

In Massachusetts state officials continued their survey of the damage done in the Connecticut valley and Berkshire county. West Springfield was found to have several of its paved streets undermined by the flood and a number of breaks occurred, in one of which a truck load of food bound for the Winooski valley in Vermont was stalled for several hours. Northampton continued to feed 225 flood refugees and to provide sleeping quarters for 198 in Memorial hall.

A more definite idea of the extent to which the flood swept away bridges in Vermont was ordered when highway district commissioners meeting in Montpelier reported that 334 bridges were gone in nine of the 12 districts of the state. They estimated that the total for the state would reach 500 and were given authority to expend up to $600,000 for the construction of temporary bridges.

Regular air mail service to Vermont points started from Concord, N. H., today. Five planes also went to Vermont from Boston with mail, food and blankets. One of them carried Major Generia Preston Brown, commandant of the First Corps area, who announced that he would fly back and forth every day or two during the emergency.

Citizens took an active part in providing relief funds. Among the contributions reported today was $1,725 given by seven Rotary clubs in the 37th district, in New Hampshire. The Associated Industries of Massachusetts reported $8,490 in contribution from its members.

The Boston & Maine railroad reopened one of its important lines today when service was restored between Boston and White River Junction.

RECOMMENDS SPECIAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 10.—(AP)—A special session of the Vermont legislature to consider flood relief measures was recommended to Governor John E. Weeks by the State Emergency board tonight. Tonight's session of the board was the first ever held since its creation in 1923 to serve with the governor in time of emergency.

DEMAND MADE FOR ARREST OF REV. JOHN ROACH STRATTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—Arrest of Rev. John Roach Stratton, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, was demanded today by the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, officials of which charged the clergyman with practicing medicine without a license at his "divine healing" services.

Characterizing Dr. Stratton as "a man who is a menace to public health," Charles Smith, president of the association, declared in a letter to District Attorney Joab H. Banton, that Christian scientists and chiropractors had been prosecuted by the district attorney and that Dr. Stratton's prayer healing brought him into the category of those who "undertake to heal diseased persons without obtaining a state license."

Mr. Banton said he would refuse to prosecute Dr. Stratton for his "oil cures." He knew of no case in his administration, he said, in which chiropracters or Christian scientists had been prosecuted and he knows of no law against the work of the Rev. Stratton.

Earlier in the day Dr. Stratton and Dr. Louis I. Harris, health commissioner, had engaged in a controversy over the "divine healing" services.

"The practice may become a distinct menace to the public and cannot be too severely condemned," Dr. Harris declared.

"Dr. Harris could not have stopped the divine work of Jesus and the Apostles," Dr. Stratton replied, "nor can he halt God's work now."

The health commissioner, likening Dr. Stratton's creed of health through prayer, to the practice of mesmerism attributed to psycho-therapy cures reported from the church prayer meetings.

UNITED STATE EXPORTS TO LATIN AMERICA

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—The United States is selling Latin America annually $10,000,000 worth more goods than England, Germany and France combined, virtually one-fifth of this country's exports finding a market between the Rio Grande and Cape Horn, O. K. Davis, secretary of the national foreign trade council, announced denying a rumor that the country was "slipping" in this trade. Mr. Davis declared the United States is now the first supplier of goods to every country in Latin America except Paraguay. He asserted that due to $5,000,000,000 American investments in Latin America, the network of new steamship and cable communications a trade promotion campaign and the fundamental asset of the Panama canal, the American trade not only has held its own since the World war, but has been increasing steadily at the expense of competitors.

"We are now selling Latin America almost a billion dollars' worth of goods annually, compared with our average annual sales of $3,000,000 before the war," Mr. Davis said. We have raised our share of South America's imports from 14 per cent in 1910-13 to 24 per cent in 1926. And according to current figures we will supply 30 per cent. of all South America's foreign purchases this year.

"Our chief competitors, England Germany and France, have seen their proportion of Latin America's imports as a whole decrease from one fr more than 50 per cent. in 1913 to one of 23 per cent. in 1926."

15 ARTICLES RATIFIED BY RADIO CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Under the chairmanship of Secretary Hoover, the international radio conference completed today the most strenuous day since its inauguration, with the ratification in plenary session of 15 articles of the new radio convention and of the accompanying wireless regulations referred to it by committees. Five other articles were referred back to committees for re-drafting.

The articles adopted only slightly different from those of the old London convention, specify the procedure for communications between land and ship stations and include rules for the licensing of stations and safeguards against interference with ship distress calls.

MILWAUKEE HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS OUT ON STRIKE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 10—(AP)—Students of another Wisconsin high school have gone on strike in support of an ousted faculty member.

Rebelling at the ouster of Superintendent E. C. Seifert by the Milwaukee school board because of alleged "insubordination, impudence and failure to meet his responsibilities," several hundred girl and boy students of the Cudahy high school deserted their class rooms today and issued an ultimatum to the board that they would not return until Seifert was re-instated.

The strike paralleled the circumstances of the 30-day strike of 400 students of superior, Wis., high school last spring in sympathy of Miss Lulu Dickinson, English teacher, who finally was returned.

Seifert was ordered discharged by the board following a meeting last night. As soon as word was received of his dismissal, senior leaders at the school called an impromptu meeting and decided to call a sympathy strike. Their action was indorsed by virtually every student in the school.

Throughout the day, the strikers paraded the downtown streets shouting: "We want Seifert, and we won't go back until Seifert comes back!" Many of the strikers carried banners on which were emblazoned ultimatums to the school board.

John Madro, chief of police, sought to persuade them to return to school, but failing, made no attempt to halt their demonstration.

The superintendent, who has been connected with the Cudahy school for 11 years, attributed his ouster to politics, and charged the reorganized school board has been antagonistic.

OFFICIALS OF CONNECTICUT LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

WATERBURY, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The state convention of the Connecticut League of Women Voters concluded its general sessions here this morning with the election of officers. Miss Mary Bulkeley of Hartford, was re-elected president. Others elected are: Vice presidents, Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, Farmington; Mrs. Annie G. Porritt, West Hartford; Mrs. Emerson R. Newell, Greenwich; Mrs. Henry H. Townsend, New Haven; secretary, Mrs. Stanley M. Cooper, New Britain; treasurer, Mrs. William P. Couch, Cromwell; directors at large, Mrs. Harry S. Coe, Waterbury; Miss Georgiana Davids, Riverside; Mrs. E. F. Dustin, West Hartford; Miss Elizabeth Parmam, New Haven; Mrs. G. S. Hubbell, South Norwalk; Mrs. F. L. C. Kitchelt, New Haven; Mrs. D. R. Mitchell, New London; Mrs. William Worrall, Meriden.

NEGRO, 107, FATHER OF 35 CHILDREN, IN ALMSHOUSE

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 10.—(AP)—After nearly 107 years of life, unable to walk more than two or three steps at a time without falling, Plenty Kelit, father of 35 children and grandfather and great-grandfather of more children than he can keep count of, was taken to Hillside home today in the Emergency hospital ambulance.

The man lived 40 years in slavery. He came here recently from Reevesville, S. C., to stay with a son, James P. Kelit, 42 of 852 Warren street. James is his youngest. Although the ex-slave was too feeble to walk, he insisted on trying to get about by himself, and caused so much trouble that Mrs. James Kelit, who is the mother of an infant child, was unable to take care of him and so sent for the ambulance to take him to the almshouse.

WATERBURY PATROLMAN IS GUILTY OF ASSAULT

WATERBURY, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Patrolman Walter Gabriel, charged with assaulting Max Omelchuk, changed his plea from "not guilty" to "guilty," during the hearing held here today by a committee of the board of safety on the charges against the officer. He has previously maintained that he did not strike Omelchuk, but found him in a drunken condition lying on the sidewalk, picked him up and had him placed under arrest.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

DUBLIN, Irish Free State—(AP)—Eamon de Valera's motion for repeal of the public safety act was rejected in the Dail Eireann tonight by a vote of 76 to 71.

LONDON, Nov. 10—(AP)—Princess Mary and her husband, Viscount Lascelles, were among a number of well known persons who rushed from bedrooms, many in night clothes, when fire broke out at the Bretton Park residence of Lord Allendale where they were guests, says a Wakefield dispatch to the Evening News.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE CALLS FOR SUPPORT OF RED CROSS ENROLLMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The support of the people of America for the annual roll call of the Red Cross was urged in a statement issued today by President Coolidge. The enrollment campaign begins tomorrow.

"The unprecedented demands upon the American National Red Cross for relief in disaster during the past year have demonstrated most forcibly to the American people the necessity for still further increasing the support which we must give to this great humanitarian institution," said the president. "It is the permanent voluntary agency of the people, created by the government of the United States, to act for all promptly, practically and efficiently in time of distress."

ANNUAL THANKSGIVING DAY PROCLAMATION

HARTFORD, NOV. 10.—(AP)—The annual Thanksgiving proclamation, issued by Governor Trumbull today, reads as follows:

"Harvest time is not a special privilege of those who till the soil. The healthy smiling faces of children who have spent weeks in the out-of-doors; bodies toned up to a renewed zest for living; more energy to face and solve every-day problems; these, no less than well filled barns, are the fruits of the summer. There is never a time when one may not properly thank God for all those blessings which are common to most of us. But the harvest season seems to afford occasion for special gratitude, and a happy custom gives me the privilege of designating a special opportunity for the expression of it.

"I therefore proclaim Thursday, the 24th day of November next, to be a day of thanksgiving throughout the state; and I urge all of the people of Connecticut to gather on that day in their several places of worship, there to render hearty thanks to almighty God for his continued care and providence. It will need no word from me to further the gathering of families on that day, or to stimulate those festivities which are a part of our New England tradition. Let us, however, not fail to remember at this time the homeless and the unfortunate, knowing that he is most surely blessed who shares with others the bounty with which God has favored him."

EXECUTED CHINESE HAD CATHOLIC BURIAL

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 10—(AP)—In the faith they had professed while in the death chamber at state prison Chin Lung and Soo Hoo Wing, who were hanged at state prison Tuesday morning, were buried in Zion Hill cemetery this afternoon.

Rev. Dr. Thomas D. Greylish, pastor of St. Peter's Roman Catholic church, read the service as the bodies rested in their caskets at an undertaker's parlors. Outside a hundred or more curiously inclined persons waited for the service to end that they might see the funeral procession which was headed by the Foot Guards band.

It had been understood that the On Leong tong, of which the dead Chinese had been members, provided for the funeral and of the eighty Chinese who sat close by the caskets a considerable number had come from New York and other cities. Mrs. Kitty Soo Wing and her sister-in-law, were among the mourners each of whom wore a black crepe band about his arm. The body bearers had black and white armlets.

SECOND DAY MARCH OF ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED

Bath, England, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Ancient roads built for the war chariots of Julius Caesar led the way for Cook's little army of unemployed into Bath today.

The 400 jobless men collected by A. J. Cook, secretary of the British miner's Federation for a 200-mile march to London, was divided into two detachments when it completed its second day's journey.

Upon arrival, the marchers were quartered in halls that had been engaged and placed in readiness by local sympathizers. The hosts served hot meals and arranged for various entertainments including a dance. Only a few of the younger marcher felt light enough on foot for such athletic amusement after the 15-mile hike from Bristol.

The procession expects to start early in the morning for Chippenham.

RUMANIAN GOV'T TO EXPOSE CAROL'S EFFORTS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Former Crown Prince Carol's effort for the restoration of his rights to the Rumanian throne will be laid bare during the coming weeks so far as the Rumanian government can do so. A former under secretary of finance, M. Manoilescu, went on trial today before a court martial, charged with conspiracy to bring Carol back to Rumania to replace the little King Michael, his six-year-old son.

Seemingly all Bucharest clamored around the little whitewashed courtroom when proceedings opened, and within its walls were more than a hundred lawyers willing and ready to defend the accused official. The colonel, two majors and two captains composing the court martial, appeared somewhat overwhelmed at this vast array of legal talent.

On his part, Manoilescu appeared blithe and debonaire, with no conscious display of fear at the outcome.

ENGINEER KILLED IN SOUTHERN TRAIN WRECK

BRISTOL, Va., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Southern train No. 35, known as the Memphis Special, turned over at Loudon, Tenn., about 30 miles south of Knoxville, Tenn., tonight, the dispatcher's office reported here. The engineer was killed and several persons were injured the advices said.

Vanderbilt Divorce Suit Filed At Reno

Mrs. Vanderbilt Files Cross Complaint to Action Brought by Cornelius, Jr.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 10—(AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., filed suit for divorce in the district court here against Rachel Vanderbilt. Late later counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt filed an answer and cross complaint in which she alleged desertion.

Vanderbilt in his complaint charges that his wife discouraged his newspaper work and wanted him to enter some business that gave him more time for social affairs. Her objections to his affairs, he said, caused their differences and they finally separated more than a year ago.

It was reported here that Mrs. Vanderbilt will file depositions to prove her charge of desertion and that Vanderbilt will not contest her charges and probably will permit the decree to go to his wife.

Mrs. Vanderbilt is a half sister of Martin Littleton, prominent New York attorney. Vanderbilt formerly was a newspaper publisher and lives in New York.

DRIVE AGAINST OPEN GAMBLING IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Open gambling in Chicago has been stopped, Michael Hughes, chief of police said tonight, but the police and the gamblers were at variance on the reasons for stopping it.

From the sumptuously furnished places where men and women in evening dress gathered to wager large sums on roulette and faro, to the dingy little dens, where black jack, poker, dice and the ponies predominated, the lights were out and the doors locked in pursuance of a new plan to drive crooks out of Chicago.

The police said it was just another move in chief "Go-Get-'Em" Mike's and enforce the laws. They said they started a war on the gamblers before the gamblers started a war among themselves likely to result in a number of killings.

At this explanation, the gamblers laughted. They said the police were trying to "freeze out" the little gambler and place all control of gambling in the hands of one or two large syndicates.

The gamblers, plying their trade surreptitiously on street corners by the non and wink signal, said they would be back at the old stands in a few days.

SEARCHING FOR BANDIT WHO ROBBED P. O. CLERK

READING, Pa., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Intensive search continued tonight by state, county and local police for the man who, armed with a sawed-off shotgun and his face blackened as a disguise, stole two packages containing $22,000 in currency from a post office clerk at Birdsboro today.

The lone bandit knocked the postal clerk unconscious with a black-jack and seized the money which he carried in a sealed satchel. The money had been sent through the registered mail by the Philadelphia Federal Reserve bank to the National bank of Birdsboro and was to have been used in making up a payroll.

STATUS OF STRIKE IN COLORADO COAL FIELDS

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Peace proposals sponsored by the workers to settle the coal miners strike in Colorado made little headway today and prompted a declaration from the state's leading operators, which, in effect, expressed satisfaction with prevailing conditions in the coal mining area.

Announcing that there was no strike at the mines of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, President J. F. Welborne declared men were returning to work in increasing numbers and he saw no need for petitions proposed by the miners to submit the dispute to the state industrial commission.

MARRIED WHILE FACING A 20-YEAR PRISON TERM

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Facing a prison term of 20 years to life for murder, Edward J. Glasser, 27, was married today in the Tombs chapel a few hours after he had been sentenced.

The bride was Miss Mary Konkle, 18, who came to the prison with several girl friends and left immediately after the ceremony. The mothers of the bride and groom witnessed the marriage.

Canadian Cross For American Dead

Will Be Unveiled in Arlington Cemetery as Armistice Ceremony.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—(AP)—Nine hours will have rolled by at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, French time, since the strident barking of the guns along the western front ceased for the first time in four years of destruction and slaughter.

An emotional outburst of thanksgiving that the struggle was ended swept the world on that day. When the vexing business of rebuilding among the economic and physical wreckage left by the World war began. It still goes on, but with a slowness at painful variance with the rushing speed of the war destruction that had overwhelmed the contending powers.

As in the past, there will be no formal celebration in America of this ninth anniversary. Only once, in 1921, when the Unknown Soldier was entombed at Arlington National cemetery, has the day been marked for Americans by an organized and nation-wide tribute to its significance.

Yet tomorrow a new touch will be given the day so far as Washington is concerned with the unveiling at Arlington of the Cross of Sacrifice erected there by the government of Canada to the memory of Americans who fell in the rank of Canada's fighting legions in France.

Canadian and American troops, with their colors and bands, again will march side by side and President Coolidge, after laying a wreath on the Unknown's tomb will entertain the Canadian contingent at luncheon and a reception at the white house.

It will be the first time since the stirring war days that armed forces of another country have passed through the streets of Washington. On Saturday the Canadian troops and bandsmen and their honor escort of American doughboys will be reviewed by President Coolidge at the white house.

As usual, tributes to the Unknown Soldier will cover the great white block of stone beneath which he rests before the day is over.

There also will gather the little group of army chaplains of many creeds who shared in the services at the entombment of the Unknown. Later they will go to the separate memorial to their own war dead which stands among the many monuments at Arlington.

The customary pilgrimage to Bethlehem chapel of Washington cathedral to decorate the crypt of President Wilson will be made by friends of the war president.

TWO INTOXICATED MEN NEGLECTED ANIMALS

NEW BRITAIN, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A dog that apparently died of starvation, chained to a ramshackle dwelling, just over the town line in Plainville, and a horse nearly dead in a nearby stable from the same cause, were matters brought to the attention of the Connecticut Humane society by local police tonight.

Police were called in by Wooster street neighbors to investigate conditions at the place. The found, beside the suffering animals, William Leonard, 55, and William Miller, 50, in a state of intoxication. The appearance of the dwelling indicated that the men had been in this condition for the better part of two weeks. Officers said that the interior of the house was in a deplorable state of filth.

ARRESTED ON CHARGES OF RECKLESS DRIVING

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 10.—(AP)—David J. Driscoll, 37, a New Haven railroad engineer, was today arrested on charges of reckless driving, evading responsibility after an accident, and failure to report an accident. The arrest was made by direction of Coroner Eli Mix who has been investigating reports that the machine which struck and fatally injured Charles Feinstein, Monday night, bore the markers issued to Driscoll.

Driscoll declared that Fierstein was struck by another car, which sped on, and thrown against his machine. He was released under bonds of $1,500 for appearance in city court tomorrow morning, at which time the case will be continued pending the report of Coroner Mix.

MAY PRODUCE GAS FROM ANTHRACITE COAL

MT. CARMEL, Pa., Nov. 10.—(AP)—An intimation that a new "producers gas" obtained from anthracite coal has been discovered was given in an address here today before the cooperative anthracite congress by Dr. Benjamin L. Miller, of Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa.

Discussing how research may assist the industry, Dr. Miller said that an eastern college had discovered how to produce such a gas. Later he declined to amplify his statement.

HARTFORD WILL HOLD LANDLORDS RESPONSIBLE

HARTFORD, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A public warning, to be followed by no further notice, that east side landlords will be held responsible for the lives of their tenants whose homes were made unsafe by the recent flood, was given out tonight by Philip A. Mason, city building inspector.

WILKESBARRE SCHOOL WAS DAMAGED MORE THAN $10,000 BY DYNAMITE BOMB

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Nov. 10—(AP)—More than $10,000 damage to the newly constructed $500,000 West Pittston high school and damage totaling more than $20,000 in the surrounding neighborhood was caused today when dynamiters placed a dynamite bomb at the front of the structure and blew in the main entrance.

Windows in houses for several blocks were shattered and the magnificent windows in First M. E. church, directly in rear of the school, were blown to bits. No one was injured.

A second "time" bomb was found, constructed of fourteen sticks of dynamite in a dinner pail, which had been left with the fuse burning beside the South Pittston bridge of the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valley railroad. It was discovered by Michael Reilly who hurriedly cut the fuse.

Authorities tonight were without any clues to the identity of the dynamiters but the belief was expressed that in view of the other recent dynamittings, a maniac was responsible.

Persons living near the school claim to have seen an automobile drive rapidly away from the building a few minutes before the blast.

Four weeks ago the Wilkes Barre Maid Candy factory was dynamited and two weeks ago St. John's Roman Catholic church was damaged by a bomb.

CRIMINAL CONSPIRACY TO INFLUENCE JURY VERDICT

Charge Brought Against Sheldon Clark, Wealthy Chicago Oil Man, an Associate of Harry F. Sinclair—Clark Was Smiling When He Entered the Jury Room—He Was Red in the Face and Nervous When He Came Out—Clark Was Released on Bond of $10,000.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—(AP)—A charge of criminal conspiracy to influence the verdict of the Fall-Sinclair Teapot Dome trial jury was laid against Sheldon Clark, wealthy Chicago sports and oil man, who was another of Harry F. Sinclair's associates.

Following in the footsteps of Henry Mason Day, vice-president of the Sinclair Exploration company, Clark stood upon the ground of possible self-incrimination in refusing to testify in the grand jury investigation of the oil jury scandal.

Like Day, he was taken from the grand jury room across the street to the office of United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, where the complaint was laid and a bail bond of $10,000 was required and furnished.

Clark was suave and smiling when he went into the grand jury room for the second time shortly after noon. He was red of face when he came out a few minutes later and his apparent nervousness increased during the proceedings before the commissioner.

An immediate hearing was demanded by Clark, but Neil Burkinshaw, assistant district attorney in charge of the government investigation, objected. November 25 was set as the time for the preliminary examination in the charges.

Besides this exciting incident of the inquiry, another interesting break came with the examination of Harry Jeffries, confidential personal clerk to Sinclair. He said that on October 18, Day called him on the long distance telephone at New York from Sinclair's apartment at the Mayflower hotel here and told him to inform the head of the Burns Detective agency to get in touch with Day.

This was after it became apparent that the jury in the oil conspiracy trial was not to be locked up as was done with the Fall-Doheny trial jury. The Burns agency was employed on that day to set its operatives on the trail of the jurors, an action which finally led to the declaration of a mistrial.

Both William J. Burns, founder of the agency, and his son, W. Sherman Burns, again were before the grand jury during the day. Before they were called the younger Burns and Burkinshaw had a brief talk outside the grand jury room over the methods used by the assistant district attorney in having the trial jurors undertake to identify the private operatives.

Young Burns suggested that when his men are lined up for inspection by the entire jury, some newspaper correspondents and others be mixed in with the detectives. Burkinshaw emphatically refused to do so and Burns wanted to know if the prosecutor did not want to be fair about the thing.

Other Burns operatives were questioned during the day by the grand jury, it is hoped that the whole investigation can be concluded either on Saturday or Monday. After the evidence is in it is for the grand jury to determine whether a presentment is to be made upon which indictments could be based.

When Clark reached the court house, W. Sherman Burns was before the grand jury producing and explaining the records of his agency, and Clark had to wait in an ante-room for more than an hour.

His turn finally came and District Attorney Gordon took over his questioning. A telegram Clark sent to the district attorney after it had been published that he was being sought in the grand jury investigation was taken into the jury room as a basis for some of the questioning.

Clark was here during at least part of the Fall-Sinclair trial and it is known that for a number of days the government had detectives watching his apartment at the Willard hotel and also keeping watch on his mail box at the hotel. At that time the identity of the witness had not been clearly established.

After Clark had declined to tell the grand jury whether he had received any of the reports from the Burns detectives or had made contact between them and Harry F. Sinclair he was excused and voluntarily accompanied Burkinshaw to Commissioner Turnage's office to have a charge laid against him.

MILLICENT ROGERS RAMOS BAFFLES THE CAMERA MEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Millicent Rogers Ramos, a bride of three days hid in a stateroom of her honeymoon steamer today and left her husband to face a barrage of questions from reporters.

Even the photographers had no chance to focus their cameras upon the newly married heiress. Reaching the Grace Line pier in Brooklyn an hour before sailing time, she leaped from a taxcab, buried her face in the fur collar of her coat and dashed up the gangplank of the steamer Santa Elisa before the camera batteries could swing into action.

Once aboard the ship, she took cover in one room of the bridal suite while Mr. Ramos stayed in another to meet his questioners.

The Ramos suite was barred to all comers for a short time after the honeymooners had come aboard, but just before the ship got ready to sail, Mr. Ramos admitted a squad of newspapermen.

As they entered the stateroom, a door slammed and Mrs. Ramos had vanished.

ARMY ENGINEERS CRITICISED AT FLOOD CONTROL HEARING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Criticism of methods of flood control of the army engineers and the Mississippi river commission by committee members developed today, at the house hearings on the subject after two witnesses from Mississippi had praised the war department's past efforts to keep the river within its banks.

Declaring that he had heard "the commission panned from one end of the valley to the other," Chairman Reid of the flood control committee, asserted that the army engineers and the commission had an unexpended balance of $10,000,000 for flood control work in the Mississippi valley at the time of last spring's flood. He said congress "has never been derelict in its appropriations for flood protection to the commission."

Representative Sears, republican, Nebraska, said that the army engineers showed they were not prepared for the flood by the fact that "they had to take until December 1 to prepare a flood control plan for congress."

PURNELL LOSES THRONE IN HOUSE OF DAVID

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Nov. 10—(AP)—Aged ruler of a religious cult, King Benjamin Purnell, has been banished from his throne.

Circuit Judge Louis H. Fead of Newberry today entered an order in the Berrien county circuit court decreeing that a layman, businessman or attorney, shall assume the direction, as receiver, for the House of David colony which the state of Michigan sought to dissolve as a public nuisance.

The order is emphatic, that Purnell whom the state charged practiced fraud and immorality behind a cloak of religion, must leave forever, the colony he founded a quarter century ago.

Title to the reputed vast holdings of the cult which now reposes in Benjamin and his consort, "Queen" Mary said to exceed $1,000,000 in value, will be transferred to the receiver.

DECISION AGAINST ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE OFFICIAL

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Finding the statements published by the Rev. Dr. Marne S. Poulson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, "untrue and false," and with "no basis or foundation in fact," the Essex county grand jury today exonerated the police magistrate alleged by Mr. Poulson to be "in on the gambling game."

ADVOCATE REPEAL OF TAX ON THEATRE TICKETS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—(AP)—Interwoven with an appeal for elimination of the miscellaneous taxes remaining from the war, testimony at the house ways and means tax hearings today told a story of the gradual decline in the popularity of the spoken drama throughout the country.

Representatives for actor and managerial associations asked the committee at its concluding public session to provide specifically for repeal of he 10 per cent. tax on theatre tickets costing 75 cents or more when it takes up the writing of revenue bills behind closed doors next week.

The spokesmen for the stage were joined by other witnesses in seeking repeal of the excise levies, especially th taxes on baseball admissions, club dues and wines, and a revision of the rates on cigars.

William A. Brady, speaking for theatrical enterprises in New York declared the popularity of the actor had given way in favor of personages such as Babe Ruth and Gene Tunney.

Frank Gillmore of New York City, speaking for two Actors' Equity associations, said that as a young man he had played each night for six weeks in Texas, adding:

"Tonight I don't believe you could find a single spoken drama in the whole of the great state."

"I doubt if half of the actors pay income taxes," he continued, and the average working year of an actor in New York now is only 22 weeks."

TREASURY CERTIFICATES WERE OVERSUBSCRIBED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Subscriptions for the seven months' 3 1-2 per cent. treasury certificates offered to retire outstanding second Liberty bonds nearly trebled the total offering of $400,000,000, the treasury announced today, when books were closed total subscriptions were in the neighborhood of $1,200,000,000.

After these certificates are issued on Nov. 15, when the second liberties mature, treasury officials indicated there would be no further financing until the regular March quarterly issues.

PICKETT NOMINATED FOR MAYOR IN LIVELY CAUCUS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 10.—In a five-battle of ballots the democrats nominated John R. Pickett for mayor and James J. Lee for city clerk as standard bearers for their party in the city election Dec. 5, at a city caucus held in the town building this evening. The caucus was one of the most largely attended held in recent years. Although the balloting was heavy and there was competition for the offices of mayor and city clerk, the meeting was quietly conducted without expression of bitterness from any of the opponents or their supporters.

The meeting, which was opened shortly after eight o'clock by John R. Pickett, chairman of the city committee, was in session for two hours and a half. James F. Twomey was chosen chairman and Aime J. Marteneau, clerk. The first nomination for mayor was in favor of Robert O. Snow and was made by Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. Valentine L. Murphy nominated Mr. Pickett. The voting was by ballot of which there were 343 cast, necessitating 172 to be elected.

Mr. Pickett had 191 and Mr. Snow 87. On motion of Mr. Snow, the nomination of Mr. Pickett was made unanimous. The next selection was for aldermen at large, affirmative ballots being cast for these positions for the nomination of Stephen J. Bergeron and George Parker. Affirmative ballots were also cast for Robert E. Casey and Joseph P. Gaudreau for assessors and John E. Ryan for city sheriff. John M. Brandegee was nominated to be reelected as city auditor.

The battle of the evening was centered around the position of city clerk. There were four candidates presented, Michael E. Sullivan, James J. Lee, Albert J. Piche and Louis J. Flynn. In the first ballot 342 votes were cast and divided as follows: Sullivan 44, Lee 108, Piche 106 and Flynn 87. Mr. Sullivan withdrew his nomination and in the second ballot in which 344 votes were cast, Mr. Lee had 142, Mr. John 129 and Mr. Flynn 72. Mr. Flynn then withdrew, leaving the field open for the two highest contestants. In the third ballot 322 votes were cast, necessitating 162 for nomination. Mr. Lee had 180 and Mr. Piche 137. On motion of Mr. Piche, the nomination for Mr. Lee was made unanimous.

Prior to adjournment, several attempts were made to select a chairman of the city committee, four nominations being declined in rapid succession. It was then voted that the city committee be instructed to select a chairman and the meeting adjourned.

QUIDNICK PLANT SOUGHT BY WILLIMANTIC MEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 10—The extensive plant of the bankrupt Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company, including mills and water power on both sides of Bridge street and bordering the Willimantic river, was purchased at auction today by four Willimantic men, Aime J. Marteneau, William E. Clark, Ernest P. Cheshre and Samuel Cheshre. The purchase price was $45,000, which is considered unusually low, won out over about 30 bidders. The plant was assessed on the grand list of the town of Windham for several years at $300,000. Last year the figure was $229,000 and the receivers of the company filed the list at about half of this amount. The receivers gave the value of the three mills and water power at $40,000 and this was raised to $80,000 by the assessors. On the list of 1927 filed recently by the receivers the valuation of the three mills was given as $50,000, water power $20,000 and dam $16,800, a total of $90,000. The mills have a total floor space of 200,000 square feet and the water power is rated at 1,140 horsepower. The purchase made by the local men does not include machinery and equipment which includes 27,152 spindles, listed in 2,000 lots. The sale of the machinery was started this afternoon following the auctioning of the mills. Bidding was quite brisk and the auctioneers hope to make large disposals by continuing the sale the remainder of the week. The auctioning also includes 11 houses with 46 tenements, a store, stone storehouse and 36 parcels of land. It is understood that some of this property has already or will be disposed of through individual sale as allowed by court order.

The sale of the plants and connecting properties here and in Quidnick, R. I., was brought about by virtue of a judgment in the Windham county superior court made some time ago. The plant went into the hands of receivers some 18 months ago and the manufacturing of cotton goods was halted November 1, 1926. The property of the company in Willimantic as it was before sales started included 31 parcels of land and property summarizes as follows: Three mills, connecting buildings, several tenement houses on Main street, known as White Row, double tenement houses in Yellow Row and Brick Row.

TWO CASES ARE THROWN OUT OF COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 10—The hearing of two cases in which the plaintiff was the same man, came to an abrupt halt at the session of the Windham county superior court here today when Judge Marvin learned that the plaintiff and the defendants were residents of Mansfield and Columbia respectively and the case was one for the Tolland county superior court, the residences being in the latter county. The cases were called off to be tried, if the parties involved so decide, in Tolland. In these cases Solomon Chus has brought suit against Lena Kosin, P. A., to recover on an alleged bill for meats purchased in January and March, 1926, to the amount of $32.35, and Chus also brought action against Fred Kosin, D. A., to recover the balance of $2.50 due for a cow purchased in January, 1926, and $82 on another cow purchased in December, 1926, according to his allegations. Chus had taken the witness stand and when he gave his residence as Mansfield and that of the defendants as Columbia Judge Marvin halted the case. The case had previously been heard in a Windham justice court.

The case of Laura H. Wyman vs. Samuel Hall, both of Coventry, was settled out of court, it was announced. The action was a suit for damages of $2,000 alleging that trespass from the land of Hall, the defendant, had flowed on to the property of Mrs. Wyman, rendering the land unfit for use.

The decision of Moderator Harry E. Back that John A. Gilbert, republican, had been elected to the office of first selectman at the October 3rd, last, elections of the town of Killingly, was reversed by virtue of a recount allowed by the superior court. Attorneys Elbert L. Darble of Danielson and Edward R. Perkins of Norwich, appointed by Judge Marvin to recount the votes presented their report to the court at the session held here today. Their report showed that Alcott D. Sayles, democrat, had received the most votes. According to the finding which was accepted by the court, Sayles received a total of 732 votes and Gilbert 632, giving Sayles a majority of an even 100. The original count on election night at Killingly showed Sayles as having received 752 and Gilbert 684, but a total of 271 ballots cast for Sayles and 95 cast for Gilbert did not have the distinguishing mark "1" opposite the names and were thrown out. This resulted in 589 votes for Gilbert and 471 for Sayles.

Secretary Egbert A. Case of the Windham town school committee stated today that the board was seriously considering the purchase of a suitable site for an athletic field to be affiliated with Windham high school. It has been pointed out that practically every high school in eastern Connecticut has an adjoining athletic field. The purchase of Windham field at the corner of Main and Watson streets has been considered but no action taken as yet.

Edwin J. Donnelly, resident manager for F. B. Kingston & Company was host at a formal banquet held in the Nathan Hale hotel this evening to the sales and executive force of the company, banking officials in this section and other guest. Covers were laid for about 100, the banquet being served at 6:30 o'clock. General Lincoln C. Andrews, Timothy J. Shea of New York and State Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee and several other noted guests were speakers during the evening. The evening closed with a business meeting by those affiliated with the company.

Robert T. Newton was elected president and Walter S. Barnes secretary-treasurer of the Willimantic Business Men's association at the annual meeting held in the chamber of commerce parlors this forenoon. A committee composed of the following was appointed to have charge of Christmas decorations: James H. Hurley, chairman, Harry Cohen, William B. Sweeney, Nelson A. Daniels, James B. Fullerton, P. D. Donohue and Walter S. Barnes. The association voted to rescind the action of November 3rd, in regard to keeping stores of members open on Good Friday, it being the desire of the association to take no fixed attitude in regard to that holiday, at this time.

Rev. Harold H. Critchlow is in Bolton today attending the meeting of the delegates from New England convening in the world service program of the Methodist church. Friday he represents the Norwich district at a group meeting on stewardship.

Miss Harriet Gerould, dean of the State Normal school is spending the holiday and week-end at her home in Woburn, Mass.

Miss Florence Boss of Bridgeport, who has been at the home of her brother, John G. Boss for several weeks is now with Mrs. Fannie Anthony who is recovering from an illness.

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Reid of Philadelphia, Pa., have removed to this city, Mr. Reid having accepted a position with Tracy & Wolmer, jewelers. They have been entertaining this week, her mother, Mrs. J. W. Brooks of Bridgeport.

A. Butleman has returned from a two-day business trip in New York city.

Walter Day, Windham high school graduate and now connected with the Craftex company of New York has been visiting friends here and in Norwich.

Mrs. Arthur S. Wheelock with the Misses Helen Heise, Lucy Reddish and Edith Havre of the Model school faculty left today to spend the week end in New York.

Miss Catherine Sears, art teacher at the normal school is spending the holiday at her home in Taunton, Mass.

Leslie Nichols of the Windham Battery company has instituted civil action against Martin Flynn, doing business as the Keene Transportation company of Boston, Mass., to recover a bill of $70, claiming damages of $100.

Principal George H. Shafer of the State Normal school is attending a three-day educational conference at Boston, Mass.

Peter Haddad underwent an operation at St. Joseph's hospital this morning.

JEWETT CITY

WASHINGTON TELEGRAM URGES SPEED FOR RED CROSS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 10—The following telegram was received by Mrs. J. H. Tracy, secretary of the local chapter of the American Red Cross today. This chapter began the roll call at an earlier date with permission from headquarters. The enrollment is not closed and every person within its jurisdiction may become a member, and so help in the urgent relief work. The chairman, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, will receive at her home, or call at any place if notified, any memberships or contribution. The canvassers are doing splendid work, visiting every home, often two and three times, when the family happens to be out.

Washington, D. C.
Nov. 8, 1927.

Mrs. J. H. Tracy, Jewett City.

New England recent floods have brought the greatest disaster those states have ever experienced, just on the eve of the Red Cross roll call for membership. The national officers of the Red Cross believe adequate relief to the sufferers can be given through a greatly increased number of persons enrolling in the Red Cross during the coming roll call. Chapters may receive voluntary contributions for flood relief at the time of enrollment and they should make this clear. But New England's expression of sympathy for those who have suffered should come largely through membership in the Red Cross. Your roll call appeal should therefore be intensified by giving everyone an opportunity to join and thereby directly assist the flood sufferers.

JOHN BARTON PAYNE.

This is not in any sense an appeal for contributions as the Red Cross is relying upon the response in the roll call to meet its needs, other than for very large emergencies.

It is to meet situations such as this, without the necessity of a special campaign for funds that the goal of 5,000,000 Red Cross members has been fixed for the annual roll call.

Finn's tonight, The Whirlwind of Youth, with Lois Moran. Added attraction Leach's orchestra.—Adv.

CONDITIONS IN VERMONT AS BOROUGH MAN SAW THEM

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 10—Raymond Cheney returned from Vermont Wednesday night. He went by automobile a week ago Sunday to visit friends in Jamaica, Vermont. In that township ten bridges were swept away and no mail was received until Tuesday. Mr. Cheney traveled all day Thursday in the terrible rain, and can tell from experience some stories of the conditions he saw.

MISS CROWELL, NORWICH, TELLS OF LIFE IN INDIA

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 10—The Women's Missionary society of the Congregational church enjoyed a very pleasant and instructive afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. D. Ballou today. The stories of the people and conditions of India told by Miss Hannah M. Crowell of Norwich and illustrated by pictures were very vividly expressed, and wre intensely interesting. Mrs. Ballou, assisted by Miss S. K. Adams, served tea and cakes.

Rev. G. F. Goodenough, pastor of the Congregational church and Mrs. E. A. Faust delegate, attenedd the general conference of Congregational churches of the state at Bridgeport.

The banks and library will be closed today Friday). Otherwise business will continue as usual. The postoffice will be open all day. All business will cease for two minutes while the whistles are blown and bells are rung at eleven o'clock.

The K. of C. conducted the second in a series of whists in their rooms Wednesday evening. There were twenty-five tables. The winners were: Ladies, first, Rena Bachand; second, Mrs. C. L. Dudkowski; consolation, Mrs. Eva Oakes. Gentlemen, first, Eli Lariviere; second, Edward Blanchard; consolation, Alfred Bryant.

Temperatures as low this week as 15 degrees have been reported, particularly Tuesday night.

OCTOBER WEATHER WAS FAVORABLE TO CROPS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—(P)—Practically all late maturing crops were described today by the agriculture department as having been helped in October by favorable weather which averaged three degrees above normal, making it the warmest October since 1918.

In its November crop report tod the department said corn improved the extent of 150,000,000 bushels during the month, the preliminary estimate of production being 2,753,249,000 bushels, of 116,000,000 bushels more than harvested last year.

DANIELSON

PICHIE NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 10—Augustin Pichie pleaded not guilty and was found not guilty of failure to grant the right of way when the car he was driving was in an accident at Dayville Four Corners two weeks ago. He was represented by Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam. A diagram of the scene of the accident offered by the prosecution and prepared by state officers who handled the case was offered in evidence. This diagram tended to indicate that the actual point of collision between the machines was to the west of the Putnam-Danielson highway down which the car owned and driven by Clifford W. Barnes of Westerly, R. F. D., just before it was in contact with the Pichie machine, and over on the road leading into Dayville. Pichie was so injured in the accident as to require hospital treatment, while the light Ford truck he was driving was wrecked.

Chief John McFarland this morning gave warning that shoplifters are operating in Danielson. One firm here has reported the los of a newly received dress. It was taken from the store yesterday. There are reasons to believe that a party of young women who entered the store are responsible for the theft. These young women are not residents of Danielson, but happened into town on a shopping trip. The dress was so cleverly taken and concealed that Chief McFarland believes a warning to all business men to keep a sharp lookout for repetitions of such thefts is desirable.

The death of Mrs. Addie Kies Strait, 80, widow of Herbert Strait, occurred at her home on North Main street early this morning. She had been ill for some time. Mrs. Strait was a native of Canterbury, a daughter of Horace and Annie Dimmock Kies. For many years the family lived at South Killingly. For other years, while her husband was engaged as a mill superintendent, Mrs. Strait lived in Rhode Island and was resident in Anthony when her husband died there. Mrs. Strait leaves no relatives nearer than cousins, one being a resident of Johnstown, N. Y., the other of New London.

The body of Lorraine Henesult, 9, daughter of Alcid Henesult of the West Side was brought to Danielson this noon in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy and taken to the home. The child died last night at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, where she had been a patient the past six weeks and had undergone a surgical operation. She was a native of danielson. She leaves her father and a sister, Madeline.

All was in readiness tonight for the observance of Armistice day in Danielson. More decoration were being put up today and there was the promise of a gratifying and beautiful display of flags along the parade route especially and all over town for the holiday. As has been a custom, for a decade, whistles will be sounded and bells rung here at 11 a. m. to mark the actual hour of the armistice.

It is the intention of Grand Marshal Ira A. Warren to get the parade organized and underway at 2 o'clock the divisions assembling at North Street for organization and then proceeding down Main street over the route previously indicated in this column.

Chief McFarland, who will have a number of extra police officers on duty, said this morning that it would be nice if motorists avoided insofar as may be possible crowding into the business section at parade time, though the usual parking privileges will prevail.

Harry E. Mercier of Central Falls is spending a few days visiting with relatives and friends in Danielson.

MR. AND MRS. BENNETT ARE IN BROOKLYN JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 10—Today witnessed the official taking apart of a forlorn family that, insofar as its heads were concerned, had already practically fallen to pieces. Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bennett were in Brooklyn jail, the man serving a 30 day sentence for theft, the woman awaiting trial on a charge of adultery, which, she has admitted to state officers is true. Four children—one, two, three and four years of age—have been turned over to the Child Welfare service to care for. Mrs. Bennett is again to become a mother.

The Bennetts have been residents on the Canterbury road leading out of Brooklyn. Some time ago Bennett abandoned his wife and went into New Hampshire and obtained work. His wife filed a non-support charge against him and he was brought back from New Hampshire to Brooklyn to face the charge. After being presented before Justice Laura Pike he was allowed to return to New Hampshire and his work on his agreement to support his wife and children. He went back, ran up a store bill and then left the shack he was being allowed to use, without charge, taking some bedding and other furnishings that were in the place. Failed to the owners of the property seeking Bennett out in this territory and arresting him again, recovery also being made of the stolen goods.

Bennett asserted that his difficulties up in New Hampshire were largely due to the fact that his wife would not remain with him, and he insisted that while he had been away she had been living with a Peter Hart of Putnam. That led to the arrest of Mrs. Bennett and Hart and of the filing of the adultery charge, which they admit, against them. After presentation in the Putnam city court this morning they were held for trial at the superior court. Bennett was sentenced to jail by Justice Laura Pike at a session of court held in Brooklyn.

Red itching blisters on baby's face healed by Resinol

After reading your ad in the paper I purchased a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap. Only a few applications stopped the itching entirely and within a week the redness was gone and his skin practically clear. Your ointment is really wonderful and I will make it to everyone." A. D. SAYLES BECOMES FIRST SELECTMAN ON RECOUNT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 10—By decision of Judge Waldo Marvin in the superior court at Willimantic today Alcott. D. Sayles, democratic member of the board, becomes first selectman, displacing John A. Gilbert, republican, who was declared elected first selectman at the annual town meeting the first Monday in October. The court ruling followed a recount of votes made Tuesday, this recount, as decided, giving Mr. Sayles 732 votes to 662 for Mr. Gilbert. Tonight the town of Killingly has a member of its party for first selectman for the first time out of memory and the democrats are jubilant.

One effect of the recount of proceedings is to bewilder and befuddle the voters more than ever before as to their ability to vote split tickets so that they will vote as they wish to. The technical legalities involving split tickets are altogether too much for the average voter, and not altogether so clear to the great majority as to leave them certain that they have done just what they wanted to do after voting one.

Owing to the fact that Dr. Hugh Campbell of Norwich has been ill, the chest clinic he was to hold here this week has been cancelled for the month.

The exact time of the signing of the armistice at 11 a. m., Nov. 11, 1918, will be observed in Goodyear Armistice day by the suspension of operations at the Goodyear mills for a three-minute period, from 10:59 to 11:02 a. m.

Temperatures as low as 15 degrees were reported from territory about Danielson this morning, the coldest of the season.

Mrs. Cosmer A. Young and daughter left here this evening to sail from New York Friday en route to New Symrna, Fla., for the winter season.

Armistice day will be a holiday of the pupils in the schools of this town and in Brooklyn, all the public schools and the parochial schools closing for the general observance here.

From some sections of Rhode Island just over the Connecticut line east of here comes reports that it will be impossible to repair this fall some of the roads so badly wrecked in last week's storm, lack of funds and lack of time being given as the chief reasons.

At Sterling the highway bridge washed out on the Central Village-Providence trunk line last Friday has been restored to its foundations and new materials used in repairing it where necessary.

A detail of state officers from the Danielson barracks will ride in the Armistice day parade in Danielson.

The harvest supper at St. Alban's parish house last evening was well attended and a success from every viewpoint. It was arranged by the Men's club of the parish.

Further additions to the Civic Federation's Tag day fund has advanced the total to $576, and it is likely, it was said today, to finally reach $600, as further contributions have been promised.

The weaving of cloth has been started at the new mill of the Connecticut Mills company at Albany-Decatur, Ala. Experienced weavers from Danielson are assisting in the instruction of the new help in the south.

Mr. and Mrs. John Handel of Attawaugan left tonight to spend the winter in Florida.

The postoffice will close at noon on Armistice day, and there will be only the morning delivery by carriers. Mails will be received and despatched as usual.

During the week so much repair work has been done on dirt highways of Killingly that it is possible to traverse them without any great difficulty, though repairs are far from completed.

BOZRAH

The Bible study class met with Mr. and Mrs. Bailey of Yantic, Friday evening. There was a large attendance showing that the interest in these meetings is increasing. During the evening Earl Swan, of Norwich, entertained with violin selections. The next meeting is to be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wichtman of Elmwood avenue, Norwich.

The Sunday school held a successful social at the Town Hall Wednesday evening. The entertainment consisted of patriotic recitations, songs and music. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Lloyd Abel had charge of the arrangements.

Mr. Harry Sykes, of Brodgeport spent a few days in town recently.

Miss Doris Grandy who has been ill for several days is somewhat improved.

Mrs. Maynard of Lyme is spending several weeks with her son, John Chapman.

Mary Alice Abel, who was at Backus hospital recently for a minor operation was pleasantly surprised Tuesday afternoon by her classmates from the Center school. They brought her a basket of fruit and flowers.

The Womnn's Missionary society meets with Mrs. Lawrence Abel of Fitchville Saturday at 2:30, p. m.

CHILDREN CHRISTENED AT GROTON CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roessler and Mrs. Charles Rossler and daughters, Jeanne and Anna, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Clark of Groton, Sunday. Mrs. Clark's children Marjorie and Theodore, were christened at the morning service of the Groton Congregational church, it being the 225th anniversary of the founding of the church.

PUTNAM

MANY ATTEND NEIGHBORS' NIGHT AT PUTNAM HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUNAM, Nov. 10.—It was neighbors' night at the meeting of the Parent-Teachers association at the auditorium of the Putnam high school and there was an attendance of about 200. There were representatives from Plainfield, Wauregan, Windham, Chaplin and Woodstock, who gave talks on the work each association was doing and a musical number from each town.

Mrs. Beatrice Wilbur, president of the local organization, in a very interesting way told of the work accomplished by the Putnam association and announced that the ways and means committee and the local chapter D. A. R. are making plans to give a minstrel show in the early spring. The project that the Putnam association have in mind for the coming year is to improve the playgrounds at the Israel Putnam school.

During the evening musical numbers were given by a local quartette and a musical trio. Refreshments of sandwiches, ice cream, cake and coffee were served.

The Haleke Camp Fire Girls of Putnam have perfected a reorganization and have elected the following officers: Guardian, Miss Ethel Spooner; president, Miss Hazel Ames; vice president, Miss Dorothy Mansfield; treasurer, Miss Kathleen Kerr; secretary, Miss Helen Kolet; scribe, Miss Lucy Carpenter; business manager, Miss Astrid Hermanson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Otis Fox left Putnam by automobile, stopping at Winchester, Mass., where they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Lovejoy, and together they are making a trip to points in Canada.

The Thompson Girl Scouts are booked next month with the following dates: On this coming Saturday, a hike to be directed by Ruth Logee, who is preparing for her first class test; Nov. 19, Betty Mansfield has a surprise for the girls at her home, Mr. Lyons is expected to meet with them; Tuesday, Dec. 6, Miss Standen has secured Miss Macdonald from the Storrs Extension service to give the girls a talk on nursing and answer any questions they may have. At the last meeting of the Scouts, the girls made some delicious tomato soup. Sarah Ballard has passed her second class test.

The Putnam lodge of Masons of Woodstock, one of the oldest lodges in the state, have lost eight of their members so far this year. The deaths were as follows: Robert K. Safford, Jan. 23; George G. Spalding, Feb. 4; Ralph J. Sabin, April 1; Herbert W. Bowen, May 29; Gustave W. Erikson, July 30; Charles R. Tripp, Aug. 6; Gardiner H. Sumner, October 15; Seymour Peal, Oct. 23.

Ground has been broken for the new Hall Memorial gymnasium connected with the Woodstock academy. This building is to be a memorial to the late Prof. Eli Hall who for a number of years was at the head of the academy and was widely known in this vicinity.

The regular monthly meeting of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter will be held next week at Odd Fellows hall in this city. They are planning to make this meeting one of unusual interest and the topic for discussion will be on the history of Woodstock and the program is being arranged by the members from Woodstock. Miss Louise Lawton from that town will be the soloist, who is a very talented musician and has received many complimentary notices from music critics for her beautiful soprano voice.

The town of Thompson is in a peculiar position. George E. Whitney is the only remaining selectman in the town at present and it has not yet been decided definitely what will be done. The death of Mr. Bellerose coming so soon after the resignation of Dyer S. Elliott, town treasurer for twenty years, and the appointment of Charles V. Chase, one of the selectmen, as his successor, leaves the town with but one member of the board, George E. Whitney, of North Grosvenordale.

The appointment of Mr. Chase, a member of the board, who resigned to accept the office of town treasurer, took place at the meeting of the board held the day before Mr. Bellerose was taen ill. It is probable that a special town election will be held soon to elect two members of this board, as the affairs of the town cannot be conducted by one member.

Rev. B. K. Anderson, who has been pastor of the Swedish church at Woodstock for a number of years, has resigned his pastorate and has moved into the little house he bought at East Woodstock some time ago.

Miss Julia May who fell and was badly injured at the Worcester railroad station several weeks ago while on her way from a visit to friends in this vicinity, remains in the City hospital at Worcester and her condition is but slightly improved.

The Parent-Teacher association of Putnam is making a drive for 200 members. The committee consists of Mrs. Martin Robertson, Mrs. James H. McCulloch, Mrs. Zenon Robillard, Mrs. L. Edwin Hill and Mrs. Charles L. Torrey.

At the republican caucus in Ward 1 last night, Robert T. Chadwick was nominated for alderman and at the republican caucus in Ward 4, Eugene Migneault was nominated for alderman. E. C. Rogers and Desire Labby, who now represent these two wards, were not candidates for renomination.

In the republican caucus in Ward 2, John M. Dean was nominated for alderman, and Leo Dulisle was renominated as alderman from the third ward.

Miss Olive Milot has returned from Torrington where she attended a reunion of the class with which she graduated as a nurse at St. Francis hospital, in Hartford. Every member of the class is living and attended a dinner given in her honor. Miss Milot has recently resigned as matron of the Emergency hospital at North Grosvenordale and leaves this week for the Pacific coast.

Milton academy plays Pomfret school at Pomfret on Saturday. This is the last scheduled game of the season in Pomfret. These two schools are old rivals in all branches of school athletics and a hard fought contest is expected.

A novel letter-box is being tried out in Belgium. The letter is placed in an opening and then coins corresponding in value to the stamps required are dropped in slots provided for them. Thereupon the envelope is automatically stamped and the letter falls into the box.

ARMISTICE DAY

Today there will be a widespread observance of the anniversary of the signing of the armistice which put an end to the fighting in the World war. Armistice day has its significance to the whole country. There is the special appeal to those who participated in the war, and only those who were on the battlefield or preparing for such service can fully appreciate it, although it likewise has its peculiar meaning to everyone who in any way felt the effect of that struggle and especially to those who had loved ones participating in it.

Armistice day is a time for continued rejoicing and for furthering the demands for international peace. Some communities will enter into celebrations more extensively than others today and there has been a desire expressed that there might be a general form of celebration in harmony with national sentiment. In such cases it is proper to point out that the president has urged the marking of the occasion "with thanksgiving and prayer and by exercises designed to further the cause of permanent peace through the maintenance of good will and friendly relations between countries."

It is perfectly evident that while Armistice day is a legal holiday in some states and not in others that there can be a general compliance with the idea of halting work for a minute at 11 o'clock today and the ringing of church bells and the blowing of whistles. There can be rejoicing over the act that brought peace and a better understanding between nations. It is an occasion when the veterans may with full propriety parade and it seems a bit far fetched when the claim is made that military organizations ought not to participate since it would have the effect of making a display of war organizations at a time when emphasis is being laid upon peace. Such organizations are most certainly not clamoring for war. Like everyone else they know the desirability of peace for their own individual welfare and nothing urges it more than the conditions which prevailed prior to the signing of the armistice.

GET AN AVIATION FIELD

Following his return to this country it was the opinion of Charles Lindbergh that transatlantic commercial flying was not only possible but probable, and he fixed the time in which he believed it would be established as a regular thing at ten years.

Since his memorable flight there have been other crossings which have added much weight to his opinion although there have been certain losses of life which have had their dampening effect. Regardless of the hazards which have been emphasized and the record of the past year in losses, the preparations which have been and are being made for flights during the next year lend strong support to the Lindbergh opinion, for it is to be noted that such preparations are not being confined solely to this side of the water.

But while transoceanic flying is getting a healthy stimulation, it is not to be overlooked that aviation is getting more and more attention in this country. There is a demand for the transportation service which is furnished and that demand is certain to grow. Aviation hasn't as yet gotten well started, but it is expanding each year and it is certain of steadily increasing attention.

This fact cannot be overlooked by the cities of this country. Norwich included. If the full benefit of air transportation is to be obtained there must be airports established. Sentiment in this behalf is even exceeding development. Airports must therefore not await the call of the flying machines, but must give encouragement to them. If we are going to have regular service established between continents within ten years we certainly should encourage such service between cities in this country before then. We cannot lag behind and wait to see if the prediction that the city which hasn't a landing field within the next ten years will be completely out of date and left far behind proves true. The progressive community today has or is interested in getting a landing field for ships of the air, and may Norwich not be the last to awaken to this need.

CALDWELL'S DISQUALIFICATION

The appeals which have been sent from Princeton to Yale asking that Caldwell be permitted to play in the football game between Yale and Princeton on Saturday indicates as clearly as possible the feeling of injustice which it is believed the imposition of the rule eliminating Caldwell has created.

It is apparently one of those cases where exceptions might easily be recognized in connection with a rule, but with no provision for such exceptions and with no desire to give the impression that the rule was being stretched to meet its own purposes Yale has applied it as it exists.

It is one of those situations where it was not realized either by Caldwell or the university that the rule was being violated. Because Caldwell had played in two games while a freshman at Brown he is disqualified from participating this year. This doesn't necessarily mean that Yale is eliminated from putting up a good game without this star player, but it means the loss of a valuable man, on whom much dependence has been placed and upon whose services calculation has been made in the training of the aggregation.

It is unfortunate that any effort to have him disqualified should have been delayed until this late date in the season. In fairness to all concerned it should have been revealed some months ago. Yale has indicated by its action in immediately taking him out of the game that it had no idea that there was any infringement of the rules, and Caldwell isn't that type of man who would have tried to cover up his Brown playing had he realized that it was against the Yale rule.

Princeton authorities take a very generous position in their communications which indicate their willingness to waive the operation of the law. The understanding of the circumstances is such that they appreciate the hardship of the rule and seek to have the injustice to player and team eliminated, regardless of what effect it may have upon Princeton. In other words they are undesirous of receiving such advantage as the application of the rule gives them in this instance.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL

With the opening of the Red Cross roll call here today Norwich is not only going to be called upon to do its part, but it is going to do it. This is an organization which has established such a record that it commands the confidence and support of every individual. The knowledge of the service it was organized to render, the knowledge of the work it has performed, the knowledge of what it is equipped for and ready to do is such that there cannot fail to be a generous response to its appeal.

Wherever disaster occurs, wherever humanity is in need of assistance because of flood, pestilence, tornado or fire, there the Red Cross is found promptly and effectively ministering to the wants of the suffering and unfortunate.

Isn't it a great relief to know that there is such an organization ready to meet just such emergencies?

Is there any organization through which such service can be as effectively or promptly rendered?

The opportunity which lies before each and every one to have a hand in maintaining such an organization is compelling. Such work as it has done in the past simply creates the desire in the hearts of all individuals for endorsement, but furthermore it prompts provision for the uncertainties of the future.

Let Norwich stand strongly behind the Red Cross for such activities as it sponsors locally, but also for the maintenance of that organization which is ever ready to respond to the call for help no matter from which quarter it comes. Make the response express the real Norwich sentiment.

PANAMA OR NICARAGUA

According to Chairman Madden of the house committee on appropriations there is need for an appropriation of $10,000,000 for the construction of a reservoir at the head of the Chagres river in order to increase the flow of water to the Panama canal.

This increase, it is believed, is intended for increasing the capacity of the waterway. The canal has rendered such a service and has accommodated such a large volume of business that it is probable that anything reasonable in the way of provisions for insuring sufficient water for the locks and making it possible to take care of more business will get careful consideration. But it is not improbable that the effort to bring about an increase in the capacity of the canal will result in reviving the demands for the building of the canal through Nicaragua. Pressure will be brought to bear to the effect that if this outlay were applied to the Panama canal the increased capacity would be limited, whereas if it should be devoted to the construction of another canal there would be insured a much greater capacity and a shorter water route from the east to the west coast of this country. Such a claim will be based upon the belief that the Nicaraguan canal will be ultimately built and if that is the case whatever outlay is sought for increasing Panama's capacity might better be applied to the other work, which when it is completed would make the greater capacity of Panama unnecessary.

If, however, the reservoir is necessary in order to provide for the Panama canal even if the other is built it will be another matter. The report of the engineers concerning the need of the Nicaraguan waterway ought to be forthcoming soon.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Armistice day and an anniversary which few will fail to remember.

The man on the corner says: It is just the day to let Old Glory wave.

Are you longing for snow just for a chance to try out that new snow shovel?

From the way they slide from one scandal to another it shows the skids were well oiled.

Look over the calendar and it will be seen that early Christmas shopping ought to be well underway.

"Canada has a woman grave digger" says a news item. Doctors say there are many on this side of the border who dig their own graves with their teeth.

The president says on retiring he plans to go to Vermont and whittle. Well, that's something more to talk about, but not a very noisy job.

From the way in which the Red Cross responds to the needs of suffering humanity it is evidence that public support is not going to be withheld from such a worthy organization.

A MATTER OF TIME

Can you tell me the time, Pingree?" asked Sturges. Mr. Pingree put his hand in his pocket, and with a caught-in-the-act look, withdraw his hand empty.

"There," he said, with annoyance, "if I haven't come out and left it at home again. You know the way one does just before plunging into a narrative?

"One of the things I won't do usually is to now—" a MK," he began—somewhat irrelevantly, Sturges thought. "I don't like to take chances. Well, once every month or so I have to go to our main office down east. Last time I went I was waiting for a bus out near the works. I waited a heck of a long time, but the bus didn't come.

"Finally a man drove up to the curb in a nice-looking little boat. He called out to me: 'Are you going to town? I can give you a lift.' I looked up the street, but there was still no bus in sight and I did want to get to the bank before closing, so I accepted his invitation. He was a nice-appearing fellow—a man about my age. We got to talking and I found him a very pleasant chap—interesting, too. He asked me if I was in a rush, because if I wasn't he wanted to stop at a factory for a minute on the way in. I told him all I wanted was to get to the bank before closing. Then I reached into my pocket for my watch to see just how much time I had. My watch wasn't there. I eyed the other fellow. He didn't look like a thief, but he was bigger than I and my watch was gone!

"I didn't know just what to do. My watch is a beauty—a present from the wife. I began to realize that that fellow was pretty slick and the more I though about it the madder I got. Well, I made up my mind I wasn't going to be robbed in broad daylight—not without a fight anyway!

"He was going about 40 miles an hours, or maybe it was only 35. Through one of those poor neighborhoods, gloomy and run down. In as casual a voice as I could command I said to the driver, 'Mister, I'll just trouble you to hand over that watch!'

"He jerked his head around as though he'd been shot. He gave me a funny look, sort of measuring me up, I suppose. Then—would you believe it—slowed down and gave me the watch! I grabbed it and stuck it hastily into my pocket. Then I said, 'Now, you stop this car, and let met out of here!' I must have been quite fierce, because he let me out, and started off as if he were going to a fire.

"I wandered around out there until I found a street-car line, and by riding all over creation I got to town finally. Even got to the bank before closing.

"When I got back to my room at the hotel I decided to lie down on the bed a while. Felt kinda tuckered out after all the excitement. I took off my coat and went over to the dresser to lay the watch down. And what do you think? There was my watch lying on the dresser!

"I looked at the one I had in my hand—it was a good one, too! I had held up that man for his own watch!

"I thought: 'He knows where I'm staying and he'll be justified in having me arrested. But I'll be darned; right there I began to see the funny side of it all, and was especially tickled over the way that fellow let me hold him up! I guess there's a lot of cave man in all of us, eh?

"Anyhow, after I'd admired myself for a bold bad man a while, I went out and asked where the police station was. And when I got there, who should I see but the fellow that gave me a lift.

"I'll never forget the expression on his face. I dare say I was the last man he ever thought he'd see coming into that place without forcible persuasion by a cop or a plain-clothes man.

"Of course we staged a grand finale, explanations, apologies and graceful fade out. We had dinner together that night and wound up the even at a show.

"But say," mused Mr. Pingree "isn't it funny how there are some things you never learn? I still go off and leave my watch behind!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The romance of an artist's long climb to success under most adverse circumstances lies behind an exhibition of paintings which was opened in London recently and startled the critics and public. They were the work of Orlando Greenwood, a former Lancashire lad who began the struggle for existence under the handicap of dire poverty. At the age of twelve Mr. Greenwood was earning his living as a mill-hand, going to work at six every morning. Till he was twenty-one he remained at the mill, spending every available moment of his time and every penny he could spare learning how to paint. When the war came he went to the front with the Royal Engineers and for the time being his art work was interrupted. With the close of the conflict he returned to London and started to study art seriously. Then his first exhibition was held in a London gallery. Nearly every picture sold in a few days.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Armistice Day

Mr. Editor: Nine years ago the people of many nations lifted up their voices in joyous thanksgiving. Millions of hearts thrilled anew to a word which seemed to have almost lost its meaning on the lips of even the most hopeful, that magical word "peace." We should on this day commemorate our World war dead. We should rejoice at our victory, we should give thanks for our blessings assured by our sacrifices in blood. It is a day that we should rededicate ourselves to the higher and finer and nobler ideals, a day that should inspire us to a finer determination to solve the problems before our country and combat the enemies within. This day is an occasion to reconsider and enliven that spirit of "Americans all" of the war days. We must intensify, if possible the true American spirit of pacifism peace, but peace only with honor. We must be ever watchful of the elements within that would tear down that policy. This is a day of reckoning but let us be mindful that it is of no profit to us to eulogize the men who served their nation well, unless we take to heart the lessons which they have taught us. It is our proud heritage to keep fresh and green the memory of their achievements and the achievements of all those who have made the great sacrifice. Largely by the efforts of the American Legion this day, November 11th, has been added to the list of legal holidays. While there is no such celebration of the day in our own town as there was a year ago, nevertheless, the fact should be brought home to the children of the present day, many of whom were yet unborn, what the day means, the sacrifices that were made that their country might endure, instilling in them that spirit of patriotism and love of country that filled the hearts of their ancestors enabling them to surmount almost impassable obstacles to make our great country what it is today. The proclamation of our Mayor Waters is one way to bring out the feelings of our citizens, but, along these same lines special programs should be arranged for the children of our local schools, programs of a patriotic nature. The local legion post has called the attention of the Merchants association and also the school board to the fact of this day being added to the list of legal holidays and while it may be too late now to ask the merchants to close their places of business and the schools to observe the holiday by at least a half holiday it is hoped that when another year rolls around that November 11th, Armistice day, will be placed in the same class as the Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, Christmas and Labor day. This day may not mean to some people what it means to the ex-service man or woman that had an active part in its consummation but to them it means the end of human beings giving, risking, enduring the treadmill of drilling, marching, the living in dugouts and of will grinding on will, puncturing, slashing, mashing, tearing and rending of human flesh which in so many cases ended in death.

Flag Should Be Replaced.

Mr. Editor: On looking out of a window from the Disco building one can plainly see what was once a flag, flying from the top of a nearby building, but, it is now so badly torn that one would never know it was once a thing of beauty. There is only the Union and two or three stripes left. It is certainly a disgrace to our flag, also to Norwich. It is surprising to me that the people of Norwich show so little respect for the flag our beloved ones fought so hard for; it is too sacred a thing to be abused.

On some of our public buildings, I have seen our flag flying after the sun had set, which is wrong. The sun should never set on our flag. Thanking you Mr. Editor for giving me this space in your paper and trusting the owner or manager of the building will read this and put up a new flag, I am just a

Stories That Recall Others

Katy Never-Did

A farmer has a small daughter whose sister had just seen the bug that makes that mysterious noise of "katy-did, katy-didn't." Their father told them to go to the barn and see a large katy-did that was on a plow. The beauty killer

HERE, it strikes a beautiful woman—and in a few years her charm will have fled. . . . Here, it grips a promising man—soon he will sink, with blighted prospects, into obscurity.

What a deadly affliction constipation is! Thief of youth. Robber of strength. Evil forerunner of disease and misery! It destroys health! It kills beauty!

What a blessing that there is relief from this dreadful scourge! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—promptly.

Why ALL-BRAN alone is effective

ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it through the intestines, gently distending them—cleansing, eliminating poisonous wastes. How different from part-bran products which contains so little bulk that there is hardly enough to have any effect at all. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because ALL-BRAN is 100% bran.

Different from habit-forming drugs

And contrast ALL-BRAN with dangerous drugs and pills—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Let it soak a few moments to bring out all its nut-like flavor. Serve it with other cereals. In soups. Recipes on every package.

Don't risk a part-bran substitute. Insist on genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants and cafeterias. On diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

A Message to Underweight Men and Women

The one supremely good health building tonic that is also the one great weight producer known to modern science the country over is McCoy's Tablets.

They build flesh where flesh is needed—sunken cheeks, neck and chest—and many a man and woman, skinny and scrawny have thanked McCoy's after a few weeks' treatment for the decided improvement in looks and figure.

Many times the increase in weight is astonishing—one exceedingly thin woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes, any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at Lee & Osgood Co. or any drug store in America.

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible thru the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

tried various medicines. A friend of hers spoke of Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Miss Schmidt gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 112 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon. For sale by all druggists.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HAS WEEK OF ACTIVITY IN NUMEROUS LINES

An unusual amount of activity has been on schedule in the Norwich chamber of commerce this week.

A special committee is now in New York interviewing a prospective manufacturing concern relative to locating in Norwich. A nominating committee, under the leadership of Edwin A. Harris, chairman, held three meetings and made a very careful study of the membership roster, with a view to the selection of six new directors for the coming year.

The Christmas decorations committee held a meeting and is actively working on the plans for the Christmas season. The program committee, headed by John M. Lee, has been developing a schedule of events for the coming year's activities of the Merchants' bureau. Another committee with John Lyston, chairman, is studying a consolidation plan for the Merchants' and Credit bureau. Abner Schwartz, Archibald Mitchell and C. E. Fitch are actively working on a proposed retail merchants' institute for next spring.

The directors of the Credit bureau held a meeting Thursday morning at which it was decided to co-operate with the Merchants' bureau in their expansion plans for the coming year. The committee on publicity is working on the publication of a new booklet, photographs are being taken of the principal buildings in Norwich. One of the special features in connection with this booklet that the committee is hoping to develop, provides for a two-page spread, devoted to pictures of Norwich manufactured products. A special committee has been appointed to handle this feature.

C. V. James is chairman of a committee which is making a study of the United States chamber of commerce referendum on the subject "Mississippi Flood Control" Charles S. Eaton is chairman of a special committe working on another referendum on the subject of "Taxation."

The industrial survey committee, headed by H. D. Larrabee, has at its disposal samples of surveys made in various parts of the country and is holding a meeting within the next week to make definite plans for submission to the new board of directors who come into office November 21. Louis M. Crandall is chairman of a committee having in charge the sale of tickets for this latter event.

In addition to the foregoing, reports will be heard at the annual meeting, from the committee on fire prevention, Walter F. Lester, chairman, and the preliminary campaign organization committee, which was headed up by Ernest O. Rodier.

The regular November meeting of the board of directors has been called for Monday, Nov. 14, at which time progress reports of the various committees now in operation will be considered and acted upon; financial reports considered and a general round-up of the year's work completed, so as to leave things in shape for the new directors.

LIONS TO GIVE BOYS THANKSGIVING DINNER

Again this year the Norwich Lions club will entertain a number of the boys in the city at a Thanksgiving dinner at the Wauregan hotel. This was voted by the Lions at their weekly business meeting Thursday noon at the hotel. The dinner will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 22.

The meeting was addressed by Walter Pilcher, secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce, upon the subject of the industrial competition that Norwich is facing and the need of an aggressive campaign for industrial development. He spoke of the possibility of having a revolving fund which could be used in three different ways, either for the purpose of investigating possible new industries which might come here, for putting factory property into condition such as would make it attractive for the location of the new industries or for aid to presen manufacturing concerns which this assistance might insure as strong and acting units on the manufacturing business of Norwich. Declaring that he did not wish to sound a pessimistic note, he yet declared that there was a positive necessity for Norwich to be alive to the danger there was in the competitive bidding for its industries from many parts of the country.

There was a debate on the question as to whether the manufacturers should observe Armistice day. C. E. Carpenter and Attorney J. J. Barry asserted by J. B. Caron and Thomas Savard spoke on the subject. Mr. Carpenter said that although the factories could not close all day owing to conditions which prevail, they should observe the day by closing at noon. Attorney Barry stated that as the state of Connecticut had passed a law authorizing the observance of Armistice day he thought that it is the duty of every citizen, whether a manufacturer or not to observe the day as a patriotic duty to the country and state.

PROGRAMME AND PRIZES AT NIGHT SCHOOL SESSION

An assembly meeting of the night school students of the Broadway and Greeneville schools was held in Broadway school on Thursday evening. Members of Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., were present. A short patriotic program carried out by the pupils was as follows: Singing, America; reading, Our Flag, Mr. Leone; reading, The Landing of the Pilgrims, Mr. Neiman; reading, Our Country and Our Flag, Mr. Plath; paper on Why I Came to Night School, Mrs. Queenie Bush; civic creed; singing, America The Beautiful.

This was followed by the speaker, Raymond Congdon, who told the students what he believed a good citizen is. In his talk he explained the meaning of real freedom. He also said being a good citizen is helping to make good laws through the power of voting and then standing by those laws and seeing that everyone gets a square deal.

At the close of Mr. Congdon's talk a prize of $5 offered by the local chapter of the D. A. R., to the night school student who had brought in the greatest number of new pupils and who had attended school regularly himself was awarded. The score being a tie the prize was divided between the two winners, Kostantinos Veros and Lucien Daigle. The presentation was made by Mrs. Frank I. Royce of the patriotic committee of the D. A. R. Mr. Veros received great applause when he most generously told Mrs. Royce to give his share to the Red Cross. The program closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

At the present time there are seven classes operating, four in Broadway, one in Greeneville and two in Taftville. The total enrollment is 150.

COUNTY LEGIONNAIRES HELD ARMISTICE EVE BANQUET

Members of the American Legion in New London county held an Armistice eve banquet Thursday evening at Cinderella inn, Quaker Hill. John McWilliams was toastmaster of the evening and Edward T. Connelly sang several selections, William Page presiding at the piano. During the evening a telegram was received from Governor John H. Trumbull as follows:

"My heartiest congratulations to you upon your hour of recreation from your duty of 1917-1918."

During the evening, the Bogue employes presented Mr. O'Connor a $20 gold piece.

BEGIN ANNUAL ROLL CALL FOR RED CROSS HERE

The annual membership campaign of the Norwich chapter, American Red Cross, will start today, Armistice day. This announcement was made Thursday by Charles Colt, chairman of the chapter. A letter signed by Chairman Colt and Treasurer Theodore R. Sage, has been sent out as an appeal to the citizens of the city and town to support the campaign. The letter says:

"Having lent its aid within the year to sufferers from 75 domestic disasters, including the Florida hurricane and the Mississippi flood, the American Red Cross, through its Norwich chapter, will launch its annual roll-call campaign here on Armistice day, Nov. 11, the goal of the national roll-call has been fixed at 5,000,000 members, the greatest total ever aimed at since the war.

"In addition to its work at home, the Red Cross has recently contributed to relief measures in 20 foreign countries; its labors in the United States were aided by emergency subscriptions in two instances only, those of the Florida and Mississippi calamities.

"During the past five years, excluding the special work for ex-service men and the League of Red Cross societies—the restricted funds, the general expenditures of the Red Cross have exceeded the general revenue by almost $6,000,000 with an average drawing upon the reserve fund of more than $900,000 a year.

"The larger membership this year will be commensurate with the increasing importance played by the Red Cross in national and community life; a larger enrollment here in Norwich will allow the local chapter to enlarge the scope of its work and thereby render a more considerable service to this whole community.

"Contributing memberships are especially desired at this time; we know the generosity with which Norwich responded to the appeal for the sufferers from the Mississippi flood and we feel confident that Norwich will not fail to live up to its opportunity to show approval of the work of this wonderful organization by enrolling in increased numbers at this time as members of the Norwich chapter of the American Red Cross."

PROVIDENCE-NORWICH THROUGH BUS SERVICE

The petition of the New London Coach company for permission to turn over to Arthur L. Linn, Jr., of Newport, R. I., that part of its operating certificate which authorizes bus service between Norwich and Westerly, R. I., was heard and granted by the public utilities commission at the state capitol Thursday morning. The coach company operates busses between New London and the state line at Westerly and to Norwich. Mr. Linn, who is president of the company, and also owns in his own name several lines in Rhode Island, operates a bus route between Providence and Westerly. It has been necessary for passengers bound for Norwich to change busses at Westerly but through this transfer of part of the coach company's certificate, passengers will hereafter be able to make a through trip from the Rhode Island capital to Norwich.

TO RECEIVE BIDS ON WESTERLY FIRE STATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 10.—The committee on the building of a central fire station with a $150,000 appropriation met this evening with Architect Robinson. It was voted to have sealed bids in the hands of Chairman Campbell on Dec. 1, at 8 p. m. Specifications will be available for all bidders at the office of the Westerly town clerk. Heating and plumbing contracts to be let separately from the general contract and every effort will be bent to have the building of stone, if possible.

The adjourned fire district meeting to be called Nov. 22 will probably be again adjourned to Dec. 7 to give time for the presentation of full reports.

JUDGE DETERMINES FATHER BY CHILD'S RESEMBLANCE

Judge Allyn L. Brown in superior court at Middletown Wednesday determined the father of Ethel Cable's baby girl by its physical resemblance to a man in court. Two young men were involved but Judge Brown decided that Everett Clark was the father of the child. He based his decision on the fact that the child's mouth and chin resembled those of Clark.

Clark will have to pay $3 a week toward the support of the child until she is 14 years old and half the hospital expenses of the mother. Clark must furnish a bond of $2,200.

The wedding will take place the latter part of December.

Why Pay More?

WHY pay more for a diamond than a rhinestone? Why pay more for silk than cheesecloth? Why pay more for platinum than tin? Why pay more for YUBAN than ordinary coffee?

YUBAN costs more because YUBAN is worth more. Try it and you will know why.

How to Make French Coffee

Cafe Au Lait it is called in Paris. The Parisian has his coffee made very strong and served black together with a pitcher of boiled milk. These are blended—half milk and half coffee. Many who cannot drink coffee to which cream has been added find this combination perfect.

PILES

Go Quickly Without Cutting or Using Messy Salves

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in hundreds of cases with a marvelous record of success, such a wonderful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood Co. today. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and must do the same for you or money back.

The Chimes of Reveille

IN this Seth Thomas the notes of the Reveille Bugle call have been woven into a new and pleasing quarter hour chime. The tone is clear and vibrant — the arrangement of notes is always cheerful.

If you have not heard this new chime—by all means do so. You will find it in our clock section.

ACADEMY RENEWS ANCIENT GRIDIRON FEUD AGAINST BULKELEY TODAY

The fighting Academy eleven, now riding on the waves of great success goes down to Mercer field, New London today for another chapter of the traditional Academy-Bulkeley rivalry, to face an Orange and Black eleven that has also fought but fought in vain so far this year. For the first time since the war an Academy football team goes to New London as a real favorite over its ancient rival and probably for the first time in history does the Red and White enter a grid conflict against the Orange and Black as the favorite by so wide a margin. The game starts at 2:30.

An Academy team that has faltered but once in six starts faces a Bulkeley outfit that is as yet to get started. As far as the records show it is probably the first time in the long history of contests between these two schools that one of the principals enters the annual battle without having scored a point. Bulkeley now boasts that unsavied stand in seven games. The Academy is of an almost exactly opposite type having scored in every game and in five of its six run up enough points to win.

But all this talk and all this speculation will go for naught once the game gets underway for the favorite does not always win and especially in an Academy-Bulkeley game.

Both coaches have not driven their squads extra hard for this game for each team has been "pointed" for the clash ever since the opening of the season and all that remained to be done during this final week's preparation was to point out minor faults and keep the squads on edge.

Coach Whitney at the Academy had but one genuine scrimmage for his men this week. That was on Tuesday and then it was not of long duration. Wednesday and Thursday found light work, mostly on signals. The local squad seems to be in good physical condition, as evidenced by their work in the past few games when not an injury, coming from being out of condition necessitated a time out. In fact the only injury remembered lately was when Mish received a cut on the forehead in the Wilby game. The Academy is ready for its most important game and has a feeling that Bulkeley is due for a real trimming, a feature that has been lacking in these contests for some time now.

At Bulkeley, Coach Canty had a scrimmage for his charges Wednesday with light signal work Thursday. The Orange and Black herd realizes that sooner or later they must score, the law of averages and the fact that goal lines were made to be crossed puts them in that frame of mind, and they agree that no time would be better than to score and score aplenty against the Academy. In the drills this week the squad has shown improvement all around and that may mean something in this game.

The probable lineups:

A. F. A.—le, LaCroix; lt, Cruickshank; lg, Fox; c, Ingalls; rg, Mish; rt, Kahn; re, Greene; qb, Tirrell; lhb, McGlone; rhb, Kelly; fb, Marks, (Capt.).

Bulkeley—le, Ellis; lt, Avery; lg, Perry; c, Gray; rg, Schneider; rt, Watterson; re, Palmer (Capt.); qb, Walsh; lhb, Casey; rhb, Ferguson; fb, Bernstein, Lubchansky and Locke are reported not fit to start for Bulkeley tomorrow but it is a pretty safe bet that both will see service.

Looking over all sides of the question it seems that all things being equal and going right the Academy should win. However if Bulkeley can stop the Red and White strong quartet of backs Billy Tirrell Harry McGlone, Jim Kelly and Capt. Jack Marks, then it has a fairly good chance of at least battling on even terms. The local backs have done well over their share of the work to date, in some games getting a goodly percentage of the tackles in addition to scintillating work on the offensive.

According to reports from the cities where Bulkeley has appeared this year the line is also below standard, more so than the Academy's. Inexperienced material has failed to chime in with the result that a fair set of backs has been made to look poor several times.

NORWICH BOYS APPEAR IN HARTFORD AMATEURS

HARTFORD, Nov. 10—(AP)—A team of Hartford amateurs defeated the Providence, R. I., quintet here tonight in the bouts to two on the Massasoit A. A. boxing program. The Providence team was recruited from Norwich and Westerly.

In the 108 pound class, Rocco Curto, Hartford, won on a knockout in the first round over Burt Tripoli, Rockville; 115 pound class, Eddie Reed, Hartford won the decision over Johnny Gusta, Hartford; 125 pound class, Barney Touseman, Hartford, won the decision over Al Koziol, Norwich; 128 pound class, Tony Lubecheaky, of Springfield, won on a technical knockout in the first round over Charley Africano, Windsor Locks; 118 pound class, Mickey Anthony, Norwich, won the decision over Adolph D'Onofrio, Hartford.

In the 112 pound class, Bill Bruno, Windsor Locks, won the decision over Harold Durant, Springfield; 126 pound class, Marino Pagoni, Springfield won on a technical knockout in the third round over Charley Romano, Hartford; 135 pound class, Frank Colombo, Windsor Locks, won the decision over Pancho Villa, Hartford; 175 pound class, Harry Seeche, Hartford, won the decision over Walter Main, Westerly; 147 pound class, Joe Bruno, Westerly, won on a foul in the first round over Taylor, Hartford.

ACADEMY SECOND CROSS COUNTRY TEAM BEATEN

The second teams in cross country of the Academy and Bulkeley met Friday afternoon at New London after a pleasant jaunt along Bulkeley's new course, the Orange and Black returned to Mercer Field with their first victory at this sport. The score was 28 to 37. Laskowitz of the Academy came home first, but three Bulkeley performers swarmed in right behind him to construct an obstacle course for the locals to climb over. The Academy's first team beat that of Bulkeley here last Saturday so that the performance in the football game was duplicated, win over Bulkeley.

ACADEMY CROSS COUNTRY TEAM IN MEET TODAY

The Academy's cross country team, undefeated in two starts, goes to Westerly this morning for its stiffest test of the campaign to compete in the annual run of the eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league. The locals are slight favorites for they have beaten Westerly, which in turn won from Stonington and Chapman Tech, the remaining members of this athletic council. The Academy's other victory came over her ancient rival, Bulkeley, of New London, last Saturday.

However, today the locals may be minus the services of Weisgraber, their star performer as a result of a death in his family. He has performed consistently well all season, both in scholastic competition and in practice affairs and he was looked on to place way up among the leaders today.

The course is said to be one of the most rugged in this section and this may handicap the locals, who to date this year have competed all of the time at the local layout. The Academy only beat Westerly by one point and that may be conducive to closeness today. And then against Stonington and Tech, who have owned many strong teams in this sport in past years, and who have shown little to date, may spring a surprise.

The Academy will leave at 9 o'clock and the run will be held between the halves of the Westerly-Stonington grid game.

AGGIE-BOSTON COLLEGE TICKETS ON SALE TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 10.—Tickets for the Connecticut Aggies-Boston college football game, which is to be played on Clarkin Field, Hartford, November 19, will go on sale here tomorrow according to the announcement of Head Coach Sumner A. Dole today. The Aggie athletic authorities hope to announce that tickets will also go on sale in Hartford, the place to be announced later, within the next few days.

Fournier Signs With Newark.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Jack Fournier, first baseman of the Boston Braves today signed to play with the Newark International league club according to an announcement here tonight by Paul Block, owner of the Newark club. Block said the deal was closed in St. Louis by Manager Walter Johnson and James Binnott, representative of the Newark team.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press.)

Renewal of old football rivalries Saturday will find Yale on the long end of its series with Princeton, Harvard with more games than Brown, Notre Dame with more than Army, Colgate with more than Syracuse, Penn with more than Columbia, and Cornell and Dartmouth even. The record of these feuds:

First Game	Games Won		Ties
1873 By Yale 26	By Princeton 15	9
1894 By Harvard 24	By Brown 6	1
1913 By Notre D. 9	By Army 2	1
1891 By Colgate 15	By Syracuse 10	3
1878 By Penn 12	By Columbia 3	1
1900 By Cornell 5	By Dartm'th 5	0

Sidney Quarrier, left tackle on the Yale team that meets Princeton Saturday, doubles in football and rowing with such success that he gained regular berths in both. The big red-headed youth from Short Hills, N. J., rowed No. 4 in the Eli shell last spring. He is the only oarsman in either of the probable starting lineups.

Bruce Caldwell, Yale's disqualified football star, lives in the famous Harness Memorial quadrangle at Yale with two non-thletic room mates. Their cards are on the door, but his is not—mute evidence of his modest distaste for particular prominence.

The "thundering herd" of little Bucknell college which surprised the football world this fall by trimming a strong Penn State eleven was built up by a new coach who gained his training producing prep school teams. Carl Snavely went to Bucknell this fall from Bellefonte academy which he carried to the crest of national preparatory school success and proceeded to produce the first Bison team since 1900 able to beat Penn State.

Three Americans and three Europeans already are signed to ride around Madison Square Garden in the six-day bike race set for the week of December 3. The six are Bobby Walthour, Jr., and Franco Georgetti of Italy, who teamed together to win the recent Chicago race; Reggie McNamara, winner of more of the grindy than any other rider; Fred Spencer, Alphonse Goosens of Belgium, and Gaetano Belloni of Italy.

GARVEY SEEMS LIKELY TO FILL CALDWELL'S PLACE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Every bit a sportsman, Bruce Caldwell, who was declared ineligible as a Yale football player yesterday, reported at Eli practice today and gave the varsity squad a tough session in defense work against the passes he hurled down the field. After throwing forwards that would make Jim Thorpe, the Carlisle Indian, jealous, Caldwell united with the coaching staff to organize a defense that would spoil the best efforts of Princeton in the aerial game.

The Bulldog had its best session of the year promoting and breaking up the great old overhead battle.

This afternoon's workout was a long one. New backs were drilled in heaving the pigskin in an effort to find a likely candidate to replace the peerless Caldwell at the passing game. While the absence of Caldwell had crippled the Blue backfield in the passing department, it was generally felt the other backs would meet the situation with colors flying.

Norman Hall replaced Firpo Greene on the first team for a short time today, and he may be called upon to play much of the Princeton game as Greene was suffering somewhat today from a recent injury, the effects of which were still hanging on. Hall was given a workout with the first team today purely for the experience he might gain, and, at the time of his transfer, Greene filled a similar birth on the second eleven. This constituted the only change in the line-up today.

Johnny Garvey seemed to have easily won the battle for Caldwell's place at halfback, although Hammersley, his chief competitor, will be used against the Tigers, Saturday.

Running back kick-offs and a short dummy scrimmage completed the afternoon's work. Tomorrow's practice was scheduled to be very light and probably short, with a signal drill as the main work of the day.

ONLY FAINT HOPE THAT CALDWELL WILL PLAY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Undergraduate Yale today clung to a hope, faint though it was, that Bruce Caldwell, the varsity halfback who has been declared ineligible, would yet play in the Princeton and Harvard games. It was a ray of optimism in a very gloomy atmosphere to be dispelled only by decision of the athletic board of control which was expected to meet tonight.

It had become known, in the discussion of Caldwell's case that the conference on Tuesday which declared Caldwell ineligible because he had played freshman football while at Brown in 1923 was at best only an informal one. Tonight's meeting was to see all members of the board in a session which had been especially called for the purpose of passing upon the case.

Caldwell, himself, arrived at the university in the afternoon from his home in Ashton, R. I., in response to a summons from Head Coach Tad Jones who had told him to return and "carry on" in his studies. Caldwell, himself, upon arrival, said that he had come back to give the varsity squad all the aid in his power. His disbarment from the varsity lineup does not prevent his turning to and playing as a scrub and make his former team mates who will be his opponents do their utmost to meet him.

AMHERST PLAYER FOUND TO BE INELIGIBLE

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 10—(AP)—With football's "Big Three" thrown into a turmoil by the barring of Bruce Caldwell from further gridiron competition at Yale, New England's famous "Little Three" uncovered an ineligibility mixup of its own when Lynn Warren, star fullback of the Amherst team, was declared ineligible tonight on the eve of the Lord Jeff's 54th annual encounter with Williams.

William Shankwiler, president of the Amherst student council, announced Warren's suspension from further athletic competition at Amherst this year under the terms of the "one year transfer rule" in vogue in most colleges, which reads:

"Any student who represents any other college or university on any athletic team shall be ineligible to represent Amherst in any athletic contest until he shall have been enrolled as a regular student during a full college year."

His loss will be a severe blow to Amherst' hopes of a victory over Williams at Williamstown the day after tomorrow.

Head Coach Dad White had nothing to say tonight, beyond expressing his disappointment that young Warren should be deprived of his chance to wind up a successful season against William.

DUNDEE PERMITTED TO RETURN TO THE EAST

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10—(AP)—Joe Dundee, welterweight boxing champion and his manager, Max Waxman, were given permission tonight by City Prosecutor E. J. Lickley to return east at once, despite charges of false advertising pending against them in connection with the champion's failure to appear for his title bout with Ace Hudkins last Thursday.

The prosecutor refused to comment on whether his action meant that the charges against them would not be pressed. Dr. Lickley gave his permission after a conference with the title holder, his manager and their attorney this afternoon.

The trial of Dundee, Waxman, and Dick Donald the promoter of the "no contest" fight, had been set for December 2. The fighter and his manager were placed under $2,500 bail each after their arrest on an eastbound train the day following the Wrigley field affair.

Dundee and Waxman have been suspended indefinitely by the state athletic commission. Failure to receive an unofficial $60,000 guarantee from Donald has been the reason assigned by Dundee for his failure to fight.

TIGERS HAVE SHORT SECRET SIGNAL SESSION

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 10—(AP)—Forty minutes of secret signal drill formed the Princeton varsity workout today. Passing and kicking plays were stressed. Baruch practiced drop kicks while Wittmer tried a few place kicks. The team reported in good shape. Stinson and Caldwell are in condition but will not start against Yale. Lawler will be at left end in place of Stinson and French at left guard in place of Caldwell. The rest of the lineup will remain the same as against Ohio State. The squad leaves tomorrow morning for New Haven and will practice in Yale bowl tomorrow afternoon. A party of 43, including coaches, trainers managers and 32 players, will make the trip.

Nedlinger Appointed Hockey Coach

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 10—(AP)—Lloyd K. Nedlinger, All-American tackle for Dartmouth in 1923 has been appointed varsity hockey coach for the coming season, the Princeton university athletic association announced today.

Nedlinger played hockey for Dartmouth for three years and was considered the best goal guard in intercollegiate circles. He will take graduate work at Princeton in addition to his coaching activities.

YALE BOARD OF CONTROL DECIDES AGAINST CALDWELL PLAYING SATURDAY

NEW HAVEN Conn., Nov. 10—(AP)—Having fought his way against seemingly insurmountable obstacles to the glory of being Yale's greatest halfback in a decade, Bruce Caldwell tonight saw the destruction of his all-American football hopes and received the bitterest blow of his college career when the board of control of the Yale Athletic association bared him forever from representing Eli on the gridiron.

The action of the board came after a prolonged session in which every phase of Caldwell's case was completely discussed. Full cognisance was taken of the generous action of both Princeton and Harvard in suggesting that Caldwell be permitted, if possible, to play in their coming games with Yale. The findings of the board confirmed the action of the informal committee of Yale football officials who first declared him ineligible last Tuesday because of his football activities while a freshman at Brown university, in 1923.

More than two hours and a half after convening, the board announced its decision. Hundreds of students had gathered near the Y. A. A. building to learn Caldwell's fate. While they waited, now hopes were built up, as it had been expected that the board would quickly confirm the earlier action taken in his case. Every added moment increased the tension, and hushed expectancy attended the final announcement of the decision.

Professor George H. Nettleton, chairman of the board, gave out the following statement regarding Caldwell's case:

"The board of control of the Yale University Athletic association deeply appreciates the general initiative of both Princeton and Harvard in suggesting that Bruce Caldwell be permitted, if possible, to play in their coming games with Yale. Both Harvard and Princeton clearly and courteously recognized that, under our dual agreements, final responsibility for determining all questions of eligibility rest with the university concerned. Under the existing rules, Mr. Caldwell is clearly ineligible to compete in football against Princeton and Harvard, and it seems equally clear to us that no single university can change the rule themselves. After careful consideration, our board has accordingly unanimously reaffirmed the decision already announced. With like accord our members unite in expressing their hearty appreciation of the generous action of Harvard and Princeton and their belief that it confirms and strengthens our mutual friendship and regard."

ROPER TO PLEAD FOR CALDWELL'S REINSTATEMENT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10—(AP)—William W. Roper, head coach of the Princeton football team, announced tonight that he would go to New Haven tomorrow determined to bring every friendly effort to bear to have Bruce Caldwell reinstated, at least for the game against Princeton on Saturday.

"It is decidedly an unhappy state of affairs," said Roper.

"I wish that Caldwell would play for Yale. I am going down to New Haven with a team that I feel is the master of Yale. I am firmly convinced that we would win, even if Yale had Caldwell in her backfield, although he is a mighty sweet football player.

"Personally whatever friendly efforts I can use to bring him into the game will be used, although I realize that Yale must be the judge of the fitness of her own athlets.

"I know that President Hibben's letter reflects the wish and hope of every Princeton man—that Caldwell will be reinstated and permitted to play."

DISPLAY NOSES OUT JOCK TO WIN BALTIMORE

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—With Jockey Malhen up, W. J. Salmon's Display nosed out Jock at the wire to win the Baltimore handicap, worth $3,500 in added money, the outstanding event for all ages at the Pimlico track today. The victor paid $6 for a $2 ticket. Canter was third. Display trailed back in the field until the last sixteenth when he closed with a rush and won by a head. The time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:44 1-5.

Jockey C. Phillips, who had the mount on Mrs. W. L. Brodie's Wallet in the first race at Pimlico, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting for rough riding. His badge was taken up and he was denied the privilege of the grounds.

Revolver, which gave backers $18 for a $2 play, was home first in the third race at Latonia a $1,500 claiming event over the mile and a sixteenth distance. Arregal took the place with Uncle Al, third. The time was 1:50 3-5.

C. F. C. Five Starts Practice

The C. F. C. which has piled up creditable records for many years back in this city, started preparations for another campaign Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. when the first practice was held.

Coach Emory Davis had but light work for his charges on the initial trip out but things are expected to get stiffer before many more workouts have passed.

The first game is slated for Nov. 26 with Battery E at Westerly.

Fresh water can be dipped from the Atlantic ocean for a distance of 50 miles or more off the coast of Brazil. This is due to the enormous amount of water that pours out of the mouths of the Amazon river.

SPORTING NOTES

From 1876 to 1889, inclusive, Yale never lost to Harvard at football.

Harvard's highest score against Yale is 41 to 0, which was the score in 1915.

The Yale eleven has shut out Harvard sixteen times and Princeton fifteen times.

Association football has developed into the most popular sport in Austria since the war.

The biggest football score which Princeton has been able to run up against Yale was made in 1925, when the Tigers won, 25 to 12.

A press stand with accommodation for 400 newspaper representatives is included in the plans of the Olympic stadium at Amsterdam.

Football figures of the present season show that few winners of sectional and conference championships for 1926 are destined to repeat this year.

The Yale-Princeton football series started in 1873. Of the 50 games played to date Yale has won 26 and lost 15, while 9 games have resulted in tie scores.

Three boxing brothers from Halifax—Dick, Alex and Percy Hunt—are now displaying their fistic wares in the United States, frequently appearing on the same card.

Jan Wils, who is building the Olympic stadium at Amsterdam, has made a special study of architecture in connection with sports and is the author of a book on this subject.

Three French lawn tennis stars, Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus, have started on a seven months' world tour, embracing South America, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa.

With a number of stars from western Canada in the lineup and with "Spunk" Sparrow, former Calgary player, as captain, the Minneapolis Millers are expected to furnish a good brand of hockey this season.

In "Frenchy" Belanger, the Toronto boxing fans believe they have a promising candidate for the world's flyweight crown recently laid aside by Fidel La Barba. In his recent bouts Belanger has displayed considerable class.

Organized athletics were not in a very flourishing condition financially when the Harvard football team journeyed to West Point in 1896 for its first game with the Army. At the conclusion of the game the Crimson manager was handed a bag containing $350 in small bills and checks, the amount guaranteed for the team's expenses. It was evident that the sum had been made up by small contributions from army officers and cadets and the Harvard players displayed their sportsmanship by returning the guarantee.

The first stallion to trot a mile in 2:28 was Ethan Allen, in 1858.

Central Park, in New York city, was first opened to skaters in the winter of 1857-8.

Ice-yachting has been a popular sport on the Shrewsbury river of New Jersey for almost a century.

The Canadian intercollegiate basketball season will open January 28 and continue to February 25.

Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania will meet at basketball this season for the first time since 1923.

Buenos Aires boasts a dozen golf courses, and the standard of play among the Argentinians is credibly high.

Martin J. Barry, 175-pound hockey star from Montreal, has been working out with the New York Americans in New Haven.

The next international squash racquet matches for the Henry G. Lapham trophy will be played January 28 at Buffalo, N. Y.

Association football predominates in Austria, English Rugby and the American type of football are almost unknown in that country.

The University of Illinois, in 1925, was the first of the big colleges to cover its football field with a rubber "raincoat" to protect it from the weather.

One hundred thousand tickets have been sold for the Notre Dame-University of Southern California football game to be played November 26 in the Soldiers' Field stadium in Chicago.

"Olympic City" at Amsterdam, where the Olympic games are to be held next year, is expected to be entirely completed by March or April, in ample time for the start of the competitions in June.

A record field of "Big Ten" harriers has been entered for the annual cross-country championships of the Western Conference to be held under the auspices of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor on November 19.

CENTRAL VERMONT R. R. HAS LOST 23 BRIDGES

Six Canadian National railway work trains, steam shovels and men and equipment of the New Haven railroad and the entire maintenance and repair staff of the Central Vermont railroad are engaged in repairing the damage to the Central Vermont railway system north of Brattleboro and between that city and Montreal. Traffic between this city and Brattleboro has been maintained without interruption since the devastating storm on last Thursday, but everything to the north of Brattleboro has been paralyzed.

According to information given out through Central Vermont channels, a total of 23 bridges of the system, all north of Brattleboro, have been washed away and the company faces a tremendous task in replacing the bridges and rebuilding many miles of trackage which was destroyed when the Connecticut river changed its course in places. Some of the lost bridges were of steel and many of them were of wood, but all will have to be replaced before normal train movements will again be in order over the Central Vermont.

It was stated Thursday that although herculean efforts are being made to restore conditions to normal, that it will be a long time before the damage can be repaired and that the entire winter might be required to correct conditions if freezing weather should develop.

Superintendent E. J. Guthrie left New London last Friday en route to White River Junction with a work train and all available men and equipment, hoping to work his way through to White River Junction. However, conditions were found to be far worse than had been anticipated and Superintendent Guthrie left the train at Brattleboro and continued by automobile, over a circuitous route to White River Junction. He is away for an indefinite period personally directing the restoration work.

CENTRAL VERMONT WORKING ON RE-OPENING ITS LINE

Faced with the greatest repair task in the history of the company, the Central Vermont railroad, which runs through this city, is working feverishly to repair its lines washed out by the flood north of Brattleboro, Vt., and again be able to run its train over an uninterrupted track of rails from New London to Montreal, Can.

Already the line has been cleared to Brattleboro and with every available man of the personnel working overtime each day, work is being pushed on the filling in of the roadbed between Brattleboro and Claremont, with the prospects of clearing the line between those two places by the last of this week. When this work is completed the line will have been reestablished to White River Junction, for the washouts between Claremont and White River were not as bad as those south of Claremont and have been put in shape again for traffic.

Arriving on the scene late last week, Superintendent E. J. Guthrie of New London, has been on the job ever since, co-operating with other officials in making every effort to open the line through to Montpelier as soon as possible. A survey of the situation north of White River has revealed that with the aid of equipment and men from other railroads besides the available employes of the Central Vermont, the task of completing repairs will be a matter of weeks.

Included in the equipment being used to rush the work to completion is the huge steam digger borrowed from the New aven railroad capable of filling several cars with fill laily. Equipment has also been obtained by the C. V. from other railroads in northern New England which have not been hit so hard by the flood.

While detailed reports on the conditions found north of Brattleboro have not been received by the New London office of the company, it is evident by the intense application of repair facilities of the road that final reports will show hundreds of washouts of less significance than the major ones which are known about.

It has been learned that serious washouts occurred between Essex and White River and that large sections of the roadbed were carried away by the flood south of White River. Except for the roadbed north of White River the greatest damage was between Brattleboro and Claremont.

The worst delay in the repair work is being occasioned by the rebuilding of the several bridges which were swept away.

The comparatively little damage done to the New Haven system has all been repaired and delay occasioned by the flood was only experienced for a few hours in some cases the first day of the flood.

HOUSE OF LORDS DEBATED THE GENEVA CONFERENCE

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Failure of the Geneva conference on the limitation of armaments came up for debate in the House of Lords today. Lord Wester Wemyss, who was 2d command of the squadron at the landing of troops at Gallipoli in 1925, first sea lord in 1917, opened the discussion.

WESTERLY

PAWCATUCK MEMORIAL TO BE DEDICATED TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 10.—Friday, Armistice day, the Westerly post office will observe holiday hours. While town offices will be closed, the Memorial and Public Library will remain open. Public schools will close and in the morning on Westerly Athletic field, the annual football game between Westerly and Stonington High school elevens will be played. Some of the manufacturing plants of the town will be closed all day and others, with the retail stores, will close at 1 p. m.

The Pawcatuck World War memorial at the junction of South and West Broad streets, will be dedicated, the exercises beginning at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at the conclusion of the street parade. The service at the memorial will be conducted by members of Harley P. Chase post, No. 1265, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the speakers will be Lieut. Governor J. Edward Brainerd of Connecticut, and Walter A. Towne, former headmaster of Bulkeley school, New London.

The Westerly band will play The Star Spangled Banner during the program and pupils from the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the West Broad street school will recite and sing in unison.

The street parade, which will precede the dedication, is to start at 1:30 from the eastern end of Broad street. The line of march will be up Granite street, over Grove avenue, down High street, through Broad street and up West Broad street to the memorial lot.

At the Elm Tree inn, the parade will be reviewed by the Connecticut Lieutenant-Governor, the Stonington Board of Selectmen, the Westerly Town Council and representatives in the state legislatures from Stonington and Westerly.

The line will form as follows: Detail of Connecticut State Police and Westerly motorcycle police; Marshal Bourdon A. Babcock and aides; members of Pawcatuck World War Memorial committee; Westerly Band; sailors from the Submarine Base; Battery E, 243d C. A. C., R. I. N. G., Veterans of Foreign Wars; Harold W. Merrill Post, No. 16, American Legion; disabled veterans; Budlong and Hancock Posts, G. A. R.; Gold Star mothers; Red Cross nurses; the Kiltie Band; British-Colonial World War veterans; Veterans of Foreign Wars from New London and Norwich; James W. Harvey Post, American Legion of Stonington; Robert Brucker Camp, United Spanish War Veterans; St. Michael's Fife and Drum Corps; Board of Engineers of Pawcatuck Fire District; P. S. Barber Hose Co.; band; Stonington Fire Department; Westerly Sanitary Corps; Amos P. Chapman Post, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War; Spanish War Veterans' Auxiliary; Westerly Boy Scouts; St. Michael's Boy Scouts; Stonington Boy Scouts; fraternal organizations.

Alwyns Lawrence, arrested for intoxication, was presented by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown in a special session of Third District court at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon before Judge Oliver H. Williams. He pleaded guilty and paid $11.80 and costs.

Robert Cornish of New York was before Clerk Herbert P. Clark Wednesday evening in a special session of Third District court on complaint of Deputy Chief of Police William L. Kay that while on his way to Vermont, Wednesday afternoon, he operated his auto recklessly in Hope Valley. On his plea of guilty, he was fined $10 and costs. He paid.

This (Friday) morning, Armistice day, the regular session of the Third District court will be confined to the calling of the docket. There will be no cases tried as previous continuances were for two weeks because of the holiday.

During the coming week, the Ladies' Aid society of Pawcatuck Congregational church is to meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Elizabeth Archie, 112 High street. The meeting of the Home Missionary society will be held Friday evening in the vestry.

The Young People's Fellowship of Christ Episcopal church met Wednesday evening at the rectory with Rev. G. Edgar Tobin on Elm street. The meeting partook of the nature of a surprise party for a society member, William Morey, whose birthday is Saturday. Games were played and a social time included the serving of refreshments.

Phebe Green Ward chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its annual meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of the retiring president, Mrs. Carrie E. Savage, 7 Elm street, with forty-one members present. The chaplain, Mrs. Samuel G. Cathcart was absent so the regent opened the meeting, repeating the Lord's prayer with the members in unison.

The regent gave her report of the board meeting held at the Biltmore in Providence. The treasurer reported $118.49 in the treasury. The following officers were unanimously elected: Regent, Mrs. Fayette F. Freeman; vice regent, Mrs. William C. Thompson; chaplain, Mrs. Frank L. Payne; recording secretary, Mrs. Edmund Hyde; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. E. Litchfield; registrar, Mrs. Elbert Clarke; treasurer, Mrs. William Critcherson; historian, Mrs. Howard Barber; board of management, Mrs. C. Grant Savage, Mrs. William Hoxie, Mrs. Fred Ople, Mrs. Allan Thompson, Mrs. Everett Barns, Mrs. William A. Wilcox, Mrs. Hobart Saunders, Mrs. Herbert Segar. The regent presented and welcomed the incoming regent. It was voted to appropriate $25 to buy index and lineage books.

The first meeting of the season for the Westerly players was held Wednesday evening, when the reading was the two-act play "Suppressed Desires" by Susan Glaspell. The three characters selected were: Henrietta Brewster, Mrs. Laurence Duryee; Stephen Brewster, Frank G. Ahern, and Mabel (Mrs. Brewster's sister), Ruth Rockwell. The play proved a clever satire. Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Hammond were in charge of the program.

During the business session it was announced that new committee heads had been chosen as follows: Mrs. Harvey Perry, program; Mrs. Florence Agard, reading; Miss Fannie E. Wilcox, librarian; Miss Jennie B. Stanton, custodian of properties and Lewis R. Greene, publicity.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 30.

Charles Byron Coombs, who had been living with his daughter, Mrs. Ralph Geyer, at 186 1-2 Main street, died Thursday morning. He was born October 9, 1856, at Bristol, Me. In 1915 he and his wife came to Westerly from Round Pond, Me., to make their home. Besides his wife, Abby Poland Coombs, Mr. Coombs leaves four children, Mrs. Ella Geyer, Gilbert W. Coombs, Linton F. Coombs and Samuel Johnson Coombs, four grandchildren, also a sister and brother in Maine.

James B. Salimeno left Thursday morning for Providence.

Henry Harris of New London returned by way of Westerly Thursday from a business trip to Boston.

Richard Slaughter of Lower Pawcatuck returned Thursday from New London.

Elmer E. Babcock of Pawcatuck who sustained two fractured and two cracked ribs in an automobile accident, Oct. 15th, in Arctic, R. I., has so far recovered as to be able to leave his home and be out for a short time daily.

The Girls' Friendly society of Christ Episcopal church met at the home of the president, Mrs. Herbert E. Cooke, in Pawcatuck, Thursday evening.

Walter L. Clarke, having been a patient at the Margaret Edward Anderson hospital for the past few weeks was able to return to his home on Narragansett avenue Wednesday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bicknell of Pawcatuck has been the guest of New London friends.

TOWN COUNCIL ORGANIZES—HORACE BURDICK PRESIDENT

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 10—Westerly town councilmen, elected at the annual town meeting Tuesday, assembled in the council chamber of the town hall this evening. Armistice Day

I think I hear them stirring there, today,
Who have lain still
So long, so long, beside the Aisne and Loire,
On Verdun hill.

I think I hear them whispering, today,
The young, the brave,
The gallant and the gay—unmurmuring long,
There in the grave.

I think I hear them sighing there, today—
They sigh for all
The glory and the wonder that was life—
Beyond pain.

I think that their young eyes are wistfully
On us who go
So gayly to our sports, this holiday * * *
I think they know!

I think that they are listening today * * *
I feel them near!
Our orators declaim—they answer back,
"Why lie we here?"

Across the fleet, forgetting years it comes,
Today—their cry,
"O World, O World, if it was all in vain,
Why did we die?"

Above the earth's enduring hates, they ask,
Was it—for this?"
I think they are remembering, this day
Of Armistice!

And oh, I think I hear them weeping there
Who should be sleeping * * *
A plaintive thing—to hear across the world
The young dead weeping!

—Rosalie Mercier Montgomery.

Good Laying Means Longer Life For Your Linoleum Floor

Did you know that the boards in your wood floor swell and shrink as the temperature changes and the seasons come and go? Warm, damp weather expands each board, closing the spaces between. Cold dry weather contracts the boards again, opening up those spaces.

When your linoleum is tacked directly to the wood there is always the danger that this gradual movement of the boards will cause it to crack, buckle, and open up at the seams. Our modern way to lay linoleum is to cement it over a layer of builders' heavy deadening felt.

This felt takes up all expansion and contraction of the wood underfloor. It makes your linoleum floor warmer, silent, and more resilient. Laying your linoleum this way takes an hour or two longer at the start, but there's no second call to cut and refit—your floor is finished. Also this new method of linoleum laying means longer life, better service from your floor.

MOUSE CAUSES TROUBLE AT TRANSFORMER HOUSE

A large red brick building at Groton Long Point is the transformer house where the current is sent across to Fishers Island. Recently a mouse was trying to find a warm spot out of the chill wind and touched his feet to a wire causing a cross-circuit. Soon smoke came out in the room and the wire became so hot it melted three or four shingles on the roof. The little mouse never lived to tell about it. Two transformers were burned out and the power men worked for several days to get everything in first class shape again.

George DeVoe is engaged as pipe fitter for J. H. Webster at the school house.

Carl Ashcraft has returned from a visit in Edgartown, Mass.

M. Beebe is spending the day in Niantic.

C. Starts and Joe Walsh planned a bicycle race from Hope Valley to the waiting room. Buck claimed he would set a record that the village would talk about the coming winter. So Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, the race was run. Near Stonington, a crowd watched them go by and cheered them. Coming near the village, the finishing line was in sight and the judges were Edward Mahoney, Leland Bishop, some one in the crowd said, "There they come!" Huch was ahead and he went over the line several feet in the lead of Walsh and with Starts a bad third. The time was, Taylor, 1 hour and 35 minutes; Walsh, 1 hour 40 minutes; the last man's time was not taken. Billie Fitzgerald held the watch. Taylor's wish came true as the record was set. The last record for the village was made in 1886 from that town by Sam Terry, time 1 hour, 50 minutes. The bicycles today are far speedier than of the old days.

Leland MacGrath recently saw New Yor for the first time. He went on York for the first time. He went on taking in the views, then attending a show where Jack Donahue, the funniest man on Broadway, was on the list. While in the big city, he saw the tallest building in the world, the Woolworth. He wonders how long it would take to walk to the top. After spending a week there, he said even then he had not seen it all.

The roads at Groton Long Point are being scraped and rocks taken out along the side of the road and the holes filled in with gravel to get ready for the winter storms which hit the Point with awful force and piles seaweed across the roads and far on the land of the cottages. Road Commissioner William Wheeler has a large force of men putting the roads in shape.

Four new cottages are being built but the prospect for building this winter does not look very bright.

Groton Long Point today is a city by itself and some of the cottages are the best built among the summer places in the state and some of them cost $15,000 to build.

Leaving by a bus from their rooms on Elm street Wednesday evening, Liberty council, No. 4, Daughters of American Veterans, a party of 28, went in charge of Edward Andrews, to Wakefield, to help dedicate a new hall of Wakefield lodge.

Miss Pauline Christie of Groton was in Noank Wednesday.

Thomas Lawler, who has a cottage on Elm street, Noank, and has spent over 20 seasons in the village, went to his home in Springfield to see how bad the flood was. After reaching his home, he called up on the telephone to his son, John, to come home at once, for the water in the cellar was rising and was nearly seven feet. They got ready to move some of the household goods. He said the flood is still raging and the armory is packed with women and children who have been driven from their homes.

Peter Is Sorely Puzzled

When puzzled be at least discreet;
Do naught from which there's no retreat.

Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was back in the Old Pasture. He had wasted no time in getting there. Just as soon as he heard the rumor that little Mrs. Peter was up in the Old Pasture, he had started. But he didn't go about looking for her boldly. No, sir, he didn't go about openly. I might say he sneaked about. He started to search through that Old Pasture, trying all the time to see, but not be seen.

"I'll surprise them together," Peter muttered to himself. "I'll surprise them together. Then we'll see what Mrs. Peter will have to say." He no longer called her "Fuzzy" even to himself. By "them" Peter meant Mrs. Peter and the handsome young rabbit he had heard about. He was absolutely sure that Mrs. Peter had gone off with that handsome young rabbit. Now, he wanted to find them together. My, but he was in a bad temper!

Almost right away he found signs of rabbits in the Old Pasture, which had not been there when he had left it. He found where more new paths had been cut through bramble-tangles. In soft, damp places he found footprints. The first of these he found were Mrs. Peter's. There wasn't any doubt about it. The scent of Mrs. Peter was in them. They were smaller footprints than his own, smaller than those of the strange rabbit, or of Old Jed Thumper. Peter started to follow them. Pretty soon he came to a place where there were tracks everywhere and he couldn't seem to follow them. But after a little while he found a single line of tracks leading away from that place. They were just the size of Mrs. Peter's. Peter hurried along, following them. But presently he became aware that there was something wrong about those tracks. He smelled of them. He didn't get the scent of little Mrs. Peter at all. No, sir, he didn't. The scent he got was a new one. Certainly, it was the scent of a rabbit, but a strange rabbit. Peter was puzzled. He went back to a little muddy spot and looked at once of those footprints closely.

"It certainly looks like Mrs. Peter's," said he to himself. "It certainly looks like Mrs. Peter's footprint. But the scent in it isn't the scent of Mrs. Peter. Now, what am I to make of that?"

There being no one to answer that question, Peter finally moved on. He would try to find the maker of those footprints. After a time, he came to a bramble-tangle. He took care to approach it very cautiously. He didn't want to be heard and he didn't want to be seen. He didn't want to be smelled. So, he took care that none of the Merry Little Breezes would have a chance to carry his scent into that bramble-tangle.

Peering between the brambles, Peter at length made out some one sitting in a form. It looked like little Mrs. Peter. It looked so much like little Mrs. Peter that he was on the point of speaking to her. Then she lifted her head and Peter saw that it wasn't little Mrs. Peter at all. It was a good-looking young rabbit, who was a total stranger to him. He opened his mouth to speak and then closed it again. He could wait to find out who this stranger was. The thing to do now was to find Mrs. Peter and the handsome strange.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Canaries have been kept as pets since the 16th century.

The city of Osaka, Japan, is awaiting central government approval for the construction of a rapid transit system, 20 miles of which will be subway and 13 miles elevated. It is expected the project will require eight years for completion at a cost of about $80,000,000.

Country ministers in England are becoming more and more anxious to make the automobilist welcome at church, and more than 500 of them have offered to provide parking space for automobiles, states the secretary of the Owner-Drivers' club in London. In many instances clergymen, are offering their own grounds for parking cars, while in others suitable space close by is suggested. There are also numerous cases in which a clerkyman, in offering parking facilities, adds the hope that the motorist visiting his church will make himself known after the service, so that the minister can exchange greetings.

One of the memories of Edward J. Meagles, tombstone engraver for 49 years at Colma, Cal., is of that day when a group of performers from a straggling little circus came to him with money they had collected among themselves for the burial of an old clown. "Six and four are eight. It's all circus," was the inscription they wanted. Meagles protested that ten was the right answer, but was met with the rejoinder that if he inscribed it that way he would receive no pay. "It's all circus" was the only reply he could get to the enigma and he plied his chisel as directed.

COOPERATION IS THE GREAT NEED OF THE FARMER.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

It beats all how many things some people know which aren't so.

It is even stranger how ready ignoramuses who wouldn't know how to relieve a bellyache are to advise treatment for cancer and tuberculosis.

But I think the very wildest nonsense extant is that which non-farmers are constantly slobbering over working farmers.

The amount of misinformation with which they drench us is amazing; the flood of impractical suggestions which they emit is still more amazing; the deluge of absolutely impossible advice in which they seek to drown us would have made Noah's flood look like a summer mud-puddle.

Men whose only knowledge of rural conditions is obtained from driving in a limousine past the sun-burned fields, or from boarding for a two weeks' vacation with some rural resident whose inability to earn a living by farming has driven him to try and make one off city "easy marks,"—these, apparently, are the sort of critters who do the most talking and writing about the "farm problem."

Men who couldn't tell a Guernsey calf from a Percheron colt in the back pasture; men who wouldn't know whether a horse had a spavin or blind staggers; men who don't even know the world-wide difference between a farm and a "country estate,"—these, apparently, are the ones who are cockiest in their assurance that they know just what is the matter with farming and just what to do about it.

Once, many years ago, when I was working the farm with horses and taking two or three professedly agricultural papers in the credulous hope of finding in them, sooner or later, some really helpful suggestion, I was moved by the amount and variety of "horse-talk" they printed to try a little experiment. I thought I would clip out the advice and directions they gave for the care of farm horses and try them all out for a time. But, before doing so, it seemed wisest to classify and sort the clippings and arrange them in some sort of order. I did this for a year. Then I took the mass and proceeded, in accordance with its rules, to lay out a daily treatment for my nags. I took several dull winter days and several long winter evenings for this preparatory compilation. Then I began to "figger out" just what the completed plan involved.

I would do all that the various Sir Oracles required, except in cases where different advisers commanded different action. In those cases, I'd do what seemed the simplest and most sensible.

Well, I found that it would require me something over six hours a day to carry out the various instructions in regard to preparation of food, care of harness, "valet-de-stable" work with currycomb, brushes, etc., to say nothing of six or eight additional hours which must be taken every two weeks to go to the blacksmith shop and have the shoes re-set. Not that it took a blacksmith six or eight hours to re-set eight shoes. But it took a good hour to just drive there and back, and one usually found other horses on the floor ahead of him, and had to wait his turn."

In other words, if I followed, conscientiously and faithfully, the peremptory orders issued by the various "horse men' of my agricultural papers, I should be required to use something more than half my possibly available working-time in just nursing and coddling my horses.

Theoretically and on a "country estate" with a regiment of paid hostlers, such a procedure might be quite the thing.

Practically and on a farm whose income the farmer depended upon for his living, such conduct would be simply idiotic.

Not having yet qualified either for the legislature or any other asylum for the feeble-minded, I decided, right then and there, to drop my laboriously garnered "wisdom" of the veterinaries into the waste paper basket, and "go it blind" rather than turn myself into a double-distilled dunce trying to do the impossible.

Even now, when horses have given way to autos and gas-driven trucks, the amount of advice a fellow in trouble with his engine can get from people who really don't know a carburetor from a solar plexus is something astonishing. The other day my Ford sputtered and coughed at the foot of a hill and then stopped. A passing driver halted just long enough to tell me I was "out of gas." But the tank showed seven gallons still in it. People began to stroll out from adjacent houses ostensibly to help, to see, anyway. One lifted the hood, monkeyed a bit and assured me that "No, two spark plug" was not firing. So we took it out and put in a brand new plug I had among my spares. Nothing doing, however. Another one crawled under the car and tapped away at various contraptions, emerging to tell me that I had "stripped a gear." Still another volunteered the opinion that my carburetor was clogged. About that time the expert mechanic for whom I had telephoned to the nearest garage honked up. He asked no questions, just got into the car, tried the starter, listened a minute to the resultant spittings and sputterings, took the "timer" out, readjusted a displaced roller, said "Two dollars, please," and we all went home our different ways.

The only credit I can possibly find due to myself in the case is that I didn't know what was the matter and sent for some one who did. The bystanders didn't know either, but, with hardly an exception, pretended that they did. And I really don't think it can be called self-conceit to admit one's own ignorance.

I wish I knew as much about cars and engines as that mechanic did. But I don't and am too old and clumsy to learn, now. You see, he didn't ask for opinions or advice. He found out by tests his own long experience had taught him what the trouble was and remedied it by direct action. The rest of us might, possibly, have stumbled on to it, in time. Also, we might have spent the whole day fumbling with false motions and no results.

The very latest explanation of why the farmer is still discontented comes from one Louis H. Bean who is officially known as an agricultural economist, and whose statement is published in The Eexcutive magazine. The heading of his article sufficiently summarizes its content. This heading explains that "the farmer still grumbles" because "rural returns remain lower than urban." This contention is based on tables showing the cash income from farm production as contrasted with the wages of factory employees and the rates earned by corporations on their capital. These tables, assuming that they are based on assured facts and dependable figures, seem to bear out the statement that the average farmer's cash income from farm production is much lower than the cash income of corporations and the wages of corporation employees.

Suppose it is? The average farmer has other sources of income besides "cash," which the average city worker does not have. He does not actually need so large a "cash" income to live equally well, have as many comforts, and save as much money.

The average city worker has to pay rent out of his income; the average farmer owns his place and pays taxes which are always, necessarily, less than rent. He doesn't need so much money for this item.

The average city worker has to buy all his meats and groceries and butter and eggs and milk and vegetables out of his income. The average farmer can get a part of his meats, his milk, butter, and eggs and vegetables for the cost of producing them which if he works industriously and with reasonable gumption, is always less than the city's retail prices. He doesn't need so much cash for these items.

The average city worker has to pay water rates. The average farmer has his own well or spring.

The average city worker has to spend more money for car fares or shoe leather going to and from his work; he has to wear more expensive clothing himself and furnish much more costly garments for his family; he must be all the time pulling money out of his pocket to meet demands for this, that or the other "drive," such as pester the average farmer only occasionally and sporadically.

I know, from personal experience, that a cash income of $100 a year from the farm,—with farm-produced supplies considered,—is practically equal to $200 cash income to the city worker.

For the life of me, I can't see why the mere fact that his cash income is less should be held, by itself alone, as a cause for grumbling.

There's altogether too much talk about "cash income" in this farm discussion, anyway. It isn't so often enlarged income that spells prosperity as decreased out-go. It isn't so much what a man gets as what he doesn't spend which fills savings banks.

Mind you, I don't say the average farmer has no cause to grumble. He has,—plenty of it. But it isn't because his cash income doesn't measure up to city levels. It is, more often, because he doesn't get a square deal in city markets, isn't given what his products are intrinsically worth, doesn't get an equitable share of what the ultimate consumer pays.

When transportation and handling and delivery costs, within the city itself, amount to more,—as they often do,—than the entire sum received by the producer for his product, there is cause enough for grumbling. There is cause for more than grumbling, there is demand for action which shall depose and abolish this enthroned injustice.

But experienced drivers who wish to arrive don't make the initial mistake of hitching the cart before the horse.

Experienced physicians who want to cure your rheumatism don't try to do it by administering cough medicines.

No one is likely to remedy any evil if he persistently ascribes it to the wrong cause, and bangs away at the wrong target.

The only present visible means by which farmers can remedy the ills which they admittedly suffer under is through co-operation in production, co-operation in selling, co-operatin in buying co-operation in all things instead of cut-throat competition.

To preach this, as public sentiment now shows itself, may be about as effective as trying to dig Lantern Hill away with a cambric needle and a teaspoon.

But even that folly wouldn't be as foolish as trying to remove Lantern Hill by standing ten miles away and swearing at it.

PLAINFIELD

The following has been issued from the office of Superintendent of Schools John L. Chapman, at Central Village:

To parents and students of Plainfield high school:

Referring to stormy days:

In order to avoid further misunderstanding relative to the policy to be followed in the matter of school sessions or no sessions on stormy days the following statement will govern future occasions.

The high school building will be open every school day whether it is stormy or not.

School sessions will be maintained except in cases of a storm bad enough to make roads dangerous or impassable.

Parents should use discretion in sending children out in bad storms, especially where such children have long distances to walk or in cases where the physical condition of any child is such as to render it inadvisable to expose such child to the weather.

While we strive for perfect attendance, we do not counsel sending children to school when it would endanger their health, or when their physical condition is such as to make it advisable for them to remain at home.

Because of the fact that children attending Plainfield high school come from many localities, often from a considerable distance, and from towns other than Plainfield a no-school signal will reach less than half our enrollment, hence it becomes necessary for parents to decide whether or not to send children to school in any particular instance.

On the other hand children who do come to school will be given the opportunity to do school work every day they come.

Mr. Byron Barstow of Englewood, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Cassius Barstow and daughter, Margaret, of Windham spent Sunday with W. P. Barstow.

Mrs. N. Vaillant and daughters spent the week end in Gilbertville, Mass.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. Fred Greenwood Wednesday, a good number being present. They planned to have a chicken supper the middle of December.

The Jolly Eight met with Mrs. Everett Dawley Wednesday evening. Whist was played. The first prize going to Mrs. George Babcock and the consolation to Mrs. John C. Kingsley. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Arthur Homer Jr., is ill.

SELLING PRESSURE IN FINAL HOUR CAUSED CONFUSION IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—Extreme nervousness characterized the trading in today's irregular stock market. An irregular opening was followed by an interval of strength on publication of the unexpectedly large increase of nearly 200,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation, but a renewal of selling pressure against some of the leaders in the final hour resulted in widespread confusion. Total sales did not reach 1 3-4 million shares.

Except for a further break in cotton prices in belated reflection of the large government crop estimate, the day's news was largely favorable. In addition to the gain in steel tonnage, reports from mill centers indicated a slight increase in ingot production by all leading companies during the past week. Directors of the General Motors corporation placed the new common on a $5 annual basis, as expected, and declared an extra cash dividend of $2.50, setting at rest fears in certain quarters that the extra would be only half as large. U. S. Steel common closed 1 3-8 higher at 125 5-8, after having sold a point above that figure, and General Motors showed a net loss of 1-8 at 128 3-4 after having sold at 130 1-4.

Call money continued in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 3 1-2 per cent. The weekly Federal Reserve report of brokers' loans showed an increase of $12,824,000, bringing the total to $3,384,529,000. The prompt oversubscription of the new U. S. treasury and North German Lloyd bond offerings was regarded as bullish on the credit situation.

Bullish demonstrations centered largely in a select group of tobacco, mercantile, business appliance and public utility shares. New high records for the year or longer were established by both classes of American Tobacco common, Reynolds Tobacco B, General Cigar, R. H. Macy, Bloomingdale Bros., Arnold Constable, Outlet Co., Burroughs Adding Machine, International Business Machine, Warren Bros., International Paper, American Can, Victor Talking Machine and General Outdoor Advertising Certificates.

Continental Insurance broke 19 points to 221 and then rallied to 226 on the traditional "selling on the good news" following the announcement of a 50 per cent stock dividend. Pressed Steel Car jumped 5 1-2 points on the publication of unofficial terms of the recapitalization plan. Selling pressure was particularly acute against U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and American Machine & Foundry in the late trading.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Cotton opened firm on an accumulation of over-night buying orders but a renewal of selling pressure later carried final quotations down $1.50 to $2.50 a bale below last night's close. Wheat and sugar prices showed little change but coffee quotations sagged 6 to 14 points.

Mixed price movements characterized the foreign exchange market. Italian lire sagged below 5.43 cents and Japanese yen broke about 15 points to 46.04 cents, or close to the year's low level. Spanish pesetas again rallied above the 17 cent level and demand sterling ruled steady around $4.86 13-16.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—A rather strong bond market followed the announcement today that the books on the treasury department's new $400,000,000 issue of 3 1-8 per cent certificates had been closed after more than a billion in subscriptions had been received. This, coupled with the prompt oversubscription of the $20,000,000 North German Lloyd 6s, offered this morning, gave new testimony to the fundamental soundness of the current monetary situation, and contributed much to the conference of investors.

As in several recent sessions, railway mortgages were in chief demand, although a number of industrials and public utilities gave good accounts of themselves. More than two score issues recorded new high records for the year or longer, while almost as many others duplicated their previous highs.

Among the rails, the so-called secondary issues were buyers' favorites, but good demand also developed for the first grade mortgages. New peaks were reached by Rock Island 4 1-2s, Great Northern 5s, Illinois Central 4 3-4s, Mobile and Ohio 4 1-2s and several of the St. Louis Southwestern issues, along the various others.

International Paper convertible 5s followed the company's stock into new high territory, and Central Leather 5s and several other industrial and utility issues sold at their best prices of the year.

The foreign list was less active than recently. The demand for French issues appeared to have been filled for the moment, while Italian and German obligations were easy.

Treasury securities reflected another wave of buying, but liberty bonds received little notice.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 10—(AP)—Grain traders received a big surprise this afternoon, the United States government of corn production being far in excess of the highest unofficial forecast and completely did speculators fail to anticipate the bearish showing. Corn prices actually advanced today, the result not coming to hand until after the close of business.

Final quotations on corn were firm 1-8c to 1-2c net higher, with wheat unchanged to 3-8c up, oats a shade to 1-8c off, and provisions varying from 47c decline to a rise of 20c.

Prevailing unfavorable weather had much to do with the fact that corn prices advanced after a decline at the start.

Wheat values averaged a little higher today. Meanwhile, there were advices also of crop damage in western Kansas countries because of dry weather.

In the provision market, the chief feature was a sharp set-back in quotations on bellies, selling orders disclosing a dearth of buyers.

LEGAL NOTICES

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 7th day of November, A. D., 1927.
Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
Estate of Annie Bergunn late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.
Ordered, That the Administrator cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.
NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE
All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at 58 Dunham street, Norwich, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.
AUGUST BERGMAN, Administrator.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Montville, within and for the District of Montville on the 9th day of November, A. D., 1927.
Present, DAN D. HOME, Judge.
Jerome W. House, first selectman of the town of Montville, appeared in Court and filed a petition, alleging that James Edward Watrous, formerly of said Montville, the father and sole surviving parent and natural guardian of Nina Florence Watrous, of said Montville, a minor, has deserted and abandoned said minor and gone to parts unknown to the petitioner, and therefore is a cruel and unfit person to be the natural guardian of said minor, and praying for the reasons therein set forth, that he be removed as such natural guardian, and some proper person be appointed in his place and stead.
Whereupon, It is Ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the town of Montville, in said District on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1927, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon be given by the publication of this order one time in some newspaper having a circulation in said District, at least five days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to this Court.
DAN D. HOME, Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest: CARRIE W. CRAIG, Clerk.

CLARK'S FALLS

Mr. Robbins preached at Clark's Falls chapel Sunday regardless of bad roads.

Laurel Glen dam gave way early Friday morning, flooding Clark's Falls. Water flowed in the first floors of a village house so the children had to be carried upstairs for safety. Two bridges leading to Ashaway were carried away.

Mrs. Katherine Thomas of Taunton, and Mrs. Fred Hartwich, her daughter, visited Mrs. Richard Main this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robbins were guests at the last Ladies' Aid society meeting.

George Jones is having the chimneys repaired on his house and the roof shingled.

Mrs. Nellie Palmer's friends are glad to hear that she is recovering. She is now able to walk around the room a little.

SEEKS DIVORCE FOR CRUELTY AND DESERTION

Suit for divorce from John Treloar, alias John Trelour, of Stamford, has been brought in the superior court for this county by Bertha Armstrong Treloar of this city. They were married Sept. 9, 1914, and the plaintiff alleges that her husband treated her with intolerable cruelty from July 1, 1916, and deserted her in September, 1920. She asks for the custody of a daughter, aged 11, and a six-year old son.

WHY NOT LAUNDRY SOAP FOR THE HANDS?
Some men seem to think any old soap with which they wash their hands is good enough for shampooing. Though they wouldn't use laundry soap for bathing, they never think they may be shampooing with an unsuitable soap. Specialists have prescribed Packer's Tar Soap for shampooing for 55 years. Its pine tar is antiseptic, stimulating—ends dandruff, helps avert baldness, keeps hair and scalp healthy. At all dealers.

BRAKEMAN M'CORMICK KILLED— TWO OTHERS AT NEW LONDON HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 10.—Philip McCormick, head end brakeman in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, and residing in Stonington, where he has a wife and family, was almost instantly killed last night, and Engineer Bailey Sprague, and Fireman Francis Wrightington, both of New Haven, were painfully injured, when a section of the boiler of a locomotive hauling a heavy freight train exploded near Westbrook, about 24 miles west of New London.

Sprague sustained third degree burns of the face, head, back, ankles and legs, while Wrightington received lacerations of the head, right elbow, right leg and left foot. Both are now receiving treatment at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where it was stated this afternoon that while the injuries of the men are considered serious they were as comfortable as was possible.

McCormick, Sprague and Wrightington composed a part of the crew of a 60-car freight train bound from New Haven to New Bedford. The train was pulled by one of the largest types of locomotives on the New Haven system, No. 3346. When the train was nearing Westbrook and running at a speed of about 45 miles an hour, an explosion occurred, causing volumes of steam to enter the cab. Sprague applied the brakes, but because of the speed at which the train was traveling, it was not until the train had covered its own length that it was stopped. In the meantime when the clouds of steam filled the cab, McCormick, who was riding on the fireman's seat leaped from the locomotive, sustaining a fractured skull and he was dead when the train crew reached him. Sprague and Wrightington were found terribly injured, for Sprague, in his effort to bring the train to a stop, had remained at his post so that his burns were severe. Wrightington was thrown violently against the cab and entrance to the firebox. Both men were brought to New London and rushed to the hospital.

The cause of the explosion is not know, but it is being investigated by officials of the railroad. The locomotive recently was attached to a train that was wrecked at Providence.

CHIODA ESCAPES JAIL BY PROMISE TO LEAVE TOWN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 10.—Gus Chioda, proprietor of the Fournier house, 147 Bank street, and his sister, Rose, were in the police court today, the former charged with violation of the liquor law and keeping a house of ill fame and the latter with keeping a house of ill fame. Chioda was fined $200 and costs on the liquor charge, and was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 18 days in jail on the second charge. Execution of the jail sentence was suspended upon Chioda's promise to leave the city. The charge against the woman was nolled. Marie Iola Rondeau, 21, of Torrington, cousin of the Chiodas, was charged with frequenting. She was fined $50 and costs, and execution of the sentence was suspended. She was then charged with lascivious carriage and was committed to the State Farm for Women.

Chioda and his sister and cousin were arrested early Wednesday morning when the rooming house was raided. With the disposition of their case in court, probably one of the most notorious resorts existing in this city has been wiped out.

RAILROAD MEN AT FUNERAL OF CONDUCTOR ROWLAND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 10.—The funeral of George F. Rowland, former veteran conductor in the passenger service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 30 Harris court, and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, among whom were many employes of the railroad. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church. The bearers were members of the Order of Railroad Conductors. Burial was in Union cemetery, Niantic.

Edward McClue, 27, of 112 Howard street, was in the police court today, charged with indecent assault. He demurred to the complaint but probable cause was found and he was bound over to the January term of the criminal superior court for trial. In default of a surety on his bond of $1500, McClue was committed to jail. The act of McClue, which, if he is convicted, carries a long term in state's prison, will never become public unless McClue fights the charge and that he will probably do for he has made a confession in which he acknowledges the truth of the accusation of the accuser, a girl of seven. The acts of McClue are so brutish and revolting that if the case does go to trial but little of the testimony will be published.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's licenses of Wencislao C. Caima, United States Coast Guard academy; James Carter, 34 Bilinman street, and George T. O'Connor, 33 Union street.

Lieut. Thomas, United States Coast Guard destroyer Cummings, reported to the police today that a .45 calibre automatic service revolver had been stolen from the armory aboard the boat and requested that a watch be maintained for the thief in the event that he attempts to dispose of it at pawnshops or otherwise.

John J. Donovan, of Morris street, Roxbury, Mass., was arrested last night by Automobile Patrol Officer Martin charged with violation of the city's parking ordinance. He failed to present himself in the police court today and his bond was declared forfeited.

A large dining car was forwarded from the western part of the state to a New England point today and this afternoon when the car was being towed through the streets of New London by a five-ton truck, congestion of traffic resulted. On Bank street the congestion was greatest, especially between Tilley and State streets. At one time, trolley cars figured in the congestion. No congestion was encountered on State street, but an interruption to traffic resulted as the diner passed through Main street.

Robert Coleman, of 38 Hill street, colored, was arrested this evening by Patrolman Michael Dorsey, charged with violation of the motor vehicle law in driving his auto without having a license. After he was admitted to bail, Coleman returned to police headquarters with his license, which, he said, he had found behind the back seat. He will, however, be compelled to present himself in court, for he was without a license when he was arrested.

Changes are being made in the police court room to accommodate the detective bureau. A small room was assigned to the detective sergeants when the bureau was created the first of the month, but it is so small that with the scant equipment there, it is hardly possible for two persons to get into the room at the same time. Today carpenters were at work closing the space along the front of the room and between the detective bureau and a room used by Policewoman Jane Cassidy, which will triple the space now occupied by the bureau. It will be completed tomorrow so that equipment and furnishings can be placed there and will give opportunity for questioning prisoners and witnesses in secrecy.

Mrs. John Appleby, of 208 Bayonet street; Mrs. Ray Wilcox, Mystic; Mrs. Wilbur Otis and infant son, 10 Twelfth street; George Mazza, 14 Thames street, Groton; John Latham, Stonington; Franklin and Caroline Chipman, 42 Granite street; Ray Smith, 46 Main street and Mrs. Peter Cascio, 324 Jefferson avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Joseph Barnett, 8 Clement street, reported to the police tonight that while driving his automobile on State street earlier in the evening, a man who was intoxicated walked in front of the car and to avoid hitting the pedestrian, Barnett caused the auto to swerve to the side of the street with the result that it collided with an automobile carrying Rhode Island registration, 37230, parked beside the curb. The latter machine was damaged.

Lieutenant of Police James C. Sullivan, Steward street, left today for Chicago, having been summoned there because of the sudden death of his brother, P. J. Sullivan.

GIRL CLAIMS T. P. M'CUE TRIED TO ASSAULT HER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 10—Another molester of young women was arrested tonight when Thomas P. McCue, 37 Mahan street, was apprehended on a charge of attempted rape. He is being held in bail of $3,000 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. McCue's father, Thomas McCue qualified as surety on his son's bond.

Miss Anna Grasso, 18 Vietz street, visited the detective bureau this afternoon and lodged complaint against McCue, who, she said, attacked her last night as she was about to enter her home. Miss Grasso said that she had attended a dance and just before the final dance at 11:15 o'clock she decided to go home. She was driven to Willetts avenue by a young man and after arriving there the two remained in the auto in conversation. When she left the car and while walking along the approach to the entrance of her home she asserts she was seized from behind by being grabbed by the throat with one hand, the other hand and arm was forced around her shoulders. In this predicament she was dragged from the door-entrance a short distance away and where there is a field and a stone wall. The Grasso girl declares that her assailant attempted to lift her from the ground over the stone wall, but that he was prevented because of the fight the girl made. She obtained a good view of her attacker and recognized him as McCue. Today she decided to make a complaint to the police and went to headquarters. When she had related her story, McCue was arrested and at police headquarters he is said to have made a statement, which, in part, is an admission of the allegations of the Grasso girl, who was at police headquarters when McCue was brought there, being accompanied by her father, Joseph Grasso.

NORWICH FOREIGN WARS VETERANS TO PARADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 10—Everything is in readiness for the Armistice day parade here tomorrow to start at 10 o'clock. The parade will form on Bank street, corner of Reed and on intersecting streets. Headed by a platoon of 30 patrolmen and two motorcycle officers the parade will move through Bank street, to State to Broad. At Williams Memorial park one of the bands will play the Star Spangled Banner, opening the exercises. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth will deliver the invocation and Mayor James A. May will make a brief address. Kenneth Kramer of Winsted will deliver the patriotic address, after which another band will play "America."

There will be 36 units in the parade and five bands, one of the largest units being the Veterans of Foreign Wars from Norwich. For an hour prior to the starting of the parade automobiles will not be allowed to pass through Bank street between Howard and State streets, the only traffic to be allowed being trolley cars. Neither will parking be allowed on either State or Broad streets. It was originally planned to hold the exercises at Williams park, but today it was decided to hold them at the memorial park.

NORWICH TOWN

FIRST CHURCH MINISTER ANNOUNCES ANNUAL CANVASS

The following circular has been sent to its friends by the committee on Finance and Benevolences of the First Congregational church of Norwich:

Another autumn is here and again we are planning for the annual canvass of our parish. Visitors will call upon you Nov. 13th between 1.30 and 5 p. m.

The enclosed pledge card furnishes an opportunity for you to subscribe towards the maintenance of our church in this community, also of extending the Christian religion in other parts of the world.

Together with other Congregational churches we are adopting the Project Method in our missionary giving, concentrating our gifts upon certain definite pieces of work in the Home Land and some specific work abroad.

Concerning our church at home we have before us, in addition to the regular expenses of the year, two most worthy objects to present to your attention, viz:

(a) The rebuilding of the church organ, and (b) the installation of a new furnace in the chapel building.

The rebuilding of the organ with electric action and motor, an additional manual or key-board, extra stops and modern connections has been the dream of some of the older members of the Church for many years. Early in the year the generous offer of $2000 by a former member of our church toward this object made it seem opportune to proceed at once with the work. It is the expectation of the trustees that the organ will be in use by December 1st.

Our faithful organist has operated the old wood traction for over fifty years and we feel sure you will rejoice with him in the improved equipment whereby he can render a larger service in the music of the church and with increasing satisfaction to himself.

Kindly receive our canvassers in the spirit of true Christian hospitality. We are all grateful to them for making the canvass of the parish.

If your church calendar distributed in July 1926 is ready please hand it to the visitor November 13th.

May the Lord prosper us in all our worthy undertakings, granting unto us a knowledge of His truth, and in the end life everlasting.

In behalf of the committee on Finance and Benevolences,

Fraternally yours,
Gurdor F. Bailey,
Minister of the Church.

From Deaconness home in Fall River, Mass., a representative is to be sent to the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church for a special service, Sunday evening, at 7 o'clock. All interested will be privileged to attend. Because of this the usual Christian Endeavor service will be omitted.

The November meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters is to be held Monday afternoon at the Johnson Home. The leader, Mrs. William C. Manning in charge.

Miss Ruth Miller of Wightman avenue picked a cluster of buttercups in her yard Thursday morning.

A paper mill in Reval, Estonia, has celebrated the 250th year of its continuous operation.

ZENITH —LONG DISTANCE— RADIO
Here is REAL A. C. Operation!
REAL ALL-Electric operation means no batteries, no chargers, no eliminators. REAL ALL-Electric sets use the marvelous new CX-326 or UX-226 tubes—operating direct from your light socket at a cost of less than 1c per hour. REAL ALL-Electric sets require no thought or care—no battery replacements or frequent supplies of distilled water.
Yet, hundreds of radio buyers today are having these facts misrepresented . . having ALMOST-electric sets sold them as ALL-electrics. ALMOST-electrics are the old-fashioned battery sets with tricky, troublesome eliminators and chargers hidden within their cabinet. These sets use CX-301A or UX-201A tubes.
Protect yourself by looking for the CX-326 or UX-226 tubes. This is one means of assuring yourself that the radio you buy is a genuine All-Electric.
Another, and better way, is to buy a Zenith. For not only are you assured that Zenith is a real ALL-Electric—you know too that it is the finest radio money can buy—the world's champion long distance radio receiver . . . and equally a champion in every other desirable radio characteristic.
For Battery Operation—$180 Completely Electrical—$225 (tubes extra)
16 Models—3 different circuits—6, 8 and 10 Tubes—Loop, antenna or antennaless, Battery or Electric—$100 to $2500

Building Quality into Used Cars
Unusual facilities for reconditioning automobiles make possible the high value found in our dependable used cars.
In the first place, we can tell exactly what needs to be done to a car without long and expensive experimenting. Our mechanics are thoroughly competent — and, working with special tools, they accomplish a given task in the minimum time. Furthermore, we use only genuine parts for replacement purposes.
As a result, our reconditioned cars simply cannot be matched for value.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Octave Bousquet and son of South B street have moved to Norwich.

Lewis A. Brown of Boston, Mass., has been a business caller in town this week.

Mrs. Richard B. Snow of North C street spent a short time this week in New Haven.

The Basketry club met Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Occupants of places of business about the post office were startled Thursday morning by a loud crash, and when numbers of them ran out to investigate they found Theodore LaBarre of Hunters avenue climbing out of a Ford delivery truck which had turned over on its side while turning from Norwich avenue to Providence street. Mr. LaBarre was not injured and assisted by several others who had collected at the scene, righted the truck and continued on his way without trouble. Although the tools from the Ford had been scattered over the road, and one of its fenders slightly dented, the machine appeared none the worse for its experience.

Accompanying the recent cold snap, large flocks of juncos made their appearance in town this week.

Mrs. Frank B. Ricketson of North C street has charge in Taftville of the annual membership campaign of the William W. Backus hospital auxiliary.

An enjoyable and successful Armistice eve dance was given Thursday evening at Ponemah hall by the members of Peter Gallan post, American Legion. There was a large attendance, and many interesting novelties and surprises were introduced during the evening. Ben Lyon's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing. The committee in charge included Napolean J. Pepin, chairman; Eugene Lavalle, Eugene Mercier and Andrew Frohmader.

Postmaster Edward Adams has announced that the last mail leaving the postoffice goes out at 6:20 instead of 7:20 as formerly.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Benoit, former Taftville residents, have returned to their home in Bristol after spending a few days in town, the guests of Mrs. Benoit's relatives.

Christopher Kraus of Blissville, George Kramer and William Kramer of Greeneville were on a hunting trip to Colchester Thursday.

Japanese barberry bushes about the town are unusually heavy this year with scarlet berries.

Stanley Sydlo of Terrace avenue has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah mills.

Chief Ranger Joseph E. Benac presided at the regular business meeting of Court Wequonnoc, No. 88, Foresters of America, held Thursday evening at the court rooms on Merchants avenue.

MONTVILLE TO HAVE ARMISTICE DAY UNVEILING OF HONOR ROLL

Montville is to observe Armistice day by the unveiling and dedication of the honor roll of World war veterans at exercises which are to be held at Uncasville in the afternoon.

A parade will open the celebration, starting at 2:05 at Uncasville. The parade will proceed up Maple avenue to Palmertown, down Main street to Uncasville, to the Community house, from which it will go to the Uncasville schoolhouse where the exercises are to be held. Heading the parade will be two state policemen on bicycles.

Included in the parade will be a landing force of the Coast Guard, section base, No. 4, which totals about 300 men, who will be sent to Montville by boat. The flotilla that will convey the coast guard men will consist of six vessels, which will land at the Robert Gair Co. wharf about 1:30 p. m.

The parade formation will be as follows:

Fleet Division.

Marshal, Lieut. Comdr. Frederick B. Craven, U. S. N. R., and aids.
U. S. Coast Guard Band.
Corps of Cadets, U. S. C. G. academy.
U. S. Marines, Submarine Base.
Sailors, U. S. Patrol force, Atlantic fleet.
Div. No. 1, U. S. C. G. Sailors from Base 4.
Battery A, 182nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., New London.
Battery B, 182nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., Norwich.
Combat Train, 182nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., Norwich.

Second Division.

Swahn's Band, Norwich.
Fifth district, American Legion, Ten Posts.
Oxoboxo lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows.
Cochegan camp, Modern Woodmen of America.
Pequot council, No. 25, Knights of Columbus
Boy Scouts of America, Montville troop.
Girl Scouts, Montville troop.
American Red Cross, Montville branch.
Catholic Women's society.
Red Cross float

At the school house the following exercises will take place.

Invocation.
Song, America—School children.
Remarks—Rev. Charles Smith.
Address—Past State Commander Kenneth F. Cramer, American Legion.
Remarks—Rev. John Landry.
Unveiling of honor roll—Town officials.
Acceptance—American Legion.
Placing of wreath on honor roll for departed comrades.
Taps.
Star Spangled Banner—Massed bands.

At the conclusion of the exercises the military units will march to the Community house where supper will be served. In the evening, Montville post, No. 112, American Legion, will conduct a dance at the Community house.

The committee in charge of the observances has requested that flags be displayed along the line of march.

WHY NORWICH MERCHANTS WILL KEEP STORES OPEN

Abner Schwartz, president of the Retail Merchants' bureau, makes the following statement as to the reasons why the Norwich merchants do not intend to close their stores on Armistice day this year:

"We understand from Mayor Waters' office, that arrangements were negotiated last year with New London, which provided that if the celebration were held in Norwich in 1926, it would be observed in New London in 1927. After checking up on the matter, our organization has found that there is to be no general celebration in Norwich this year.

Therefore, at a recent meeting of the Merchants' bureau, they voted to remain open all day. This is in line with the policies the manufacturers are pursuing in not closing their factories during the day. We are however, planning to observe the one minute of silence, as suggested in the mayor's proclamation.

Please feel assured that next year, should there be a general observance in Norwich, the merchants will gladly cooperate."

BARDO IS TO MEET RHODE ISLAND GOVERNOR

Assurance that Rhode Island officials will have an opportunity to present their claims of advantage of Providence over New London and other ports as the logical western terminus of the proposed four-day steamship line of the American Brown-Boveri Co. has been received by Governor Aram J. Pothier of Rhode Island in a message from C. L. Bardo of the shipping company selecting next Tuesday as a convenient time for a meeting with the Rhode Island men.

Governor Pothier took immediate steps to have all available data on the Providence harbor on hand that day by communicating with the state harbor commision, foreign and domestic commission, Mayor Dunne of Providence, City Engineer Noland of Providence, Traffic Manager Southwick of the Providence chamber of commerce, and Capt. Robert B. Clarke, federal inspector of vessels, and others, requesting they be present at the conference to be held at 9:30 Tuesday morning.

NORWICH ELKS MAKE MEMORIAL SERVICE PLANS

Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E., has voted to conduct the annual memorial services at the home Sunday, December 4th, instead of at The Broadway theatre as has been the custom in past years. The services in respect to the deceased members of the lodge will be conducted by the lodge officers, Exalted Ruler James M. Osten presiding. The principal speaker will be Mayor Norman E. Stevens of Hartford and an appropriate musical programme will be in charge of Prof. Hugh Kinder. Swahn's ten-piece orchestra will furnish several numbers and Prof. Kinder will play Andante Pathetique, composed for the occasion by himself. Just as I am by Hanser, soprano solo, will be sung by Miss Sadie Thompson and the Rosary will be played by Herbert Rich, professor of violin with Prof. Kinder accompanist.

BELL WILL BE RUNG FOR ARMISTICE DAY SIGNAL

Arrangements have been made through conference between Mayor Milo R. Waters and Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton to have 11 blows struck on the fire alarm system at one minute before 11 this (Friday) morning in recognition of Armistice day, and as a signal for the churches to toll their bells, and factories to blow their whistles in memory of the heoric dead who gave their lives for this country.

Last year the signal was given by two strokes in the test alarm, but both the mayor and fire chief feel that 11 strokes is more appropriate, in view of the fact that the signal is given on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the month.

In the mayor's proclamation which was issued early this week he requested the citizens to cease their daily labors for one minute at 11 o'clock.

FORMER NORWICH TOWN GIRL TO WED IN NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—A marriage license was issued at the municipal building here today to a former resident of Norwich Town, Conn., Miss Moretta O. Allyn, 21, now of Stamford, Conn., to Ded Elmer J. Umnitz, 27, of 206 East 68th street, New York. They stated that they would be married this month, but did not say where.

Miss Allyn who is the daughter of Edward A. and Mabel Fox Allyn, was born in Norwich Town. Mr. Umnitz was born in Erie, Pa., the son of John E. and Margaret Bartholomew Umnitz.

The prospective bridegroom was a former linotype operator on The Bulletin.

WITHDRAWAL IN SUIT OVER EMPLOYE'S INJURIES

Withdrawal without costs has been filed with the clerk of the superior court in the $1,500 suit of Federal Mutual Liability Co., of New Haven against Standard Machinery Co., of Groton. The plaintiff company which carried the workman's compensation liability of the Duval Rubber Co., of Providence, was obliged to pay a total of $1,018.83 to Benjamin Stillman, an employe of the rubber company, who lost an eye on April 29, 1926 while engaged in setting up a press at the rubber company works, which press had been sold to the rubber company by the Standard Machinery company.

The suit was brought to recover from the machinery company on the ground that it was the negligence of one of the mechanics of that company, Joseph Foley, which was to blame for the injury to Stillman. The two men were engaged in tightening up some bolts, Stillman holding a bar and Foley striking it with a hammer when the bar flew out and inflicted the injury which resulted in Stillman losing his eye.

Soprano At Park Church

Announcement has been made that Mrs. James A. Bidwell has been chosen to succeed Mrs. Vandalia H. Burgy as soprano of Park Congregational church choir. Mrs. Bidwell has long been identified with local musical circles and has a voice of much sweetness and power. Mrs. Burgy resigned her position in the choir when she and Mr. Burgy left in September to make their future home in St. Louis.

METHODIST WOMEN HELD DISTRICT MISSIONARY MEETING

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Mission society of the Norwich east district was held Tuesday in the Moosup Methodist Episcopal church. The president, Mrs. E. F. Kimball of North Grosvenordale presiding.

The morning devotional exercises were led by Mrs. S. F. Main of Attawaugan.

Greetings were given to the visiting delegates by Mrs. H. E. Main of Moosup. Response to the greetings was made by Mrs. Fred Chandler of North Grosvenordale.

The rest of the morning was devoted to reports from the different officers and auxiliaries.

The noontide prayer and memorial service was led by Mrs. Albert Boardman of Norwich. The scripture lesson was read and prayer made by Rev. F. C. Baker of North Grosvenordale.

The afternoon session was opened with a very pleasing and enjoyable organ recital, given by Mr. Everett Dawson of Moosup. A solo was also sung by Miss Salisbury of Moosup.

The afternoon devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor of the church, Rev. W. H. Dunnack. Reports of the branch meeting at Melrose, Mass., were given by Mrs. Fred Chandler and Mrs. W. F. Carter. Reports of the Minneapolis convention were read by Mrs. E. F. Kimball, Mrs. J. C. Gallup, Mrs. H. E. Main and W. W. Lewis. The reports were followed by a playlet in charge of Mrs. Abbie Scott assisted by Mrs. John Blake, Mrs. Earle Covell and Mrs. Floyd Potter.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Albert Boardman of Norwich; first vice president, Mrs. J. H. Graham, Norwich; second vice president, Mrs. W. Baker.

$343,390 CONTRACT FOR BUILDING AT STORRS

HARTFORD, Nov. 10—(AP)—On a low bid of $343,390, Charles Smith & Sons of Derby were awarded the contract for the construction of the new administration building at Connecticut Agricultural college at a meeting of the executive committee of the state board of control this morning at the state capitol. Twelve bids were received for the building of the latest addition to the college which is to house, beside the administration offices, recitation rooms and laboratories.

The following action was also taken by the committee:

State park and forest commission authorized to purchase 71 acres of woodland, to enlarge the new state forest in the town of Killingly.

PROCLAMATION OF MAYOR ON RED CROSS ROLL CALL

The membership campaign of the Red Cross begins on Armistice day Nov. 11. This brings to our mind the wonderful work of this organization during the World war. Its work during the great Mississippi flood has to a large extent depleted its treasury. As practically all the money raised here will be expended in New England among the Connecticut River Flood sufferers, appeal to our people to be doubly generous at this time.

ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVED IN ALL WORLD WAR NATIONS

Ceremonials of Gratitude Were Held Throughout the United States—In Paris the Stars and Stripes Were Flown Beside the French Flag—In London Ceremonies Were Conducted at the Grave of the Unknown Soldier.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP)—The nation today paid its annual Armistice day tribute to the dead of the World war.

From Maine to California and from the Great Lakes to the gulf, the ceremonials in gratitude over the ending of the great struggle were carried out by Americans without regard to creed or station in life.

First on the list of those dead to whom reverence was paid was the unknown soldier lying in Arlington National cemetery. The tomb of this hero became the mecca toward which patriotic pilgrimages turned to pay homage.

President Coolidge led the American people in rendering honor to America's symbol of all the dead of the war. Without ostentation he journeyed to Arlington and placed a wreath on the impressive tomb.

Mrs. Coolidge laid a single white rose beside it.

A short distance away the people of Canada presented to the people of America a cross of sacrifice in memory of American boys who died in Canadian uniforms before the United States entered the war.

To emphasize the bond of friendship between the two countries two hundred Canadian soldiers were permitted to march through Washington streets bearing arms, marking the first time British troopers have so paraded here since the war of 1812.

Backed against the gold and red of sunset, the tall white cross of sacrifice, set with a bronze sword of the old days of knightly chivalry and flanked by the glowing folds of the British and American flags that had draped it to the moment of unveiling, served to seal the close of the ninth anniversary of armistice in Arlington national cemetery. The gift of the government and people of Canada, its like stands guard over the war dead of the British commonwealth, wherever they sleep on the far thrown battle fronts of the great war.

The actual presentation ceremony was brief. Vincent Massey, first Canadian minister to the United States, delivered the memorial to Secretary Kellogg with scarcely a hundred words and the reception was as short. Yet, in the addresses that followed by Hon. H. L. Ralston, Canadian defense minister and Secretary Davis of the war department, rang a strong current of friendship of the two peoples, symbolized in this tribute on hallowed American soil to Americans who died and sleep in France with Canadian comrades.

On the high hill where Bethlehem chapel of the National Cathedral stands, Woodrow Wilson, the dead war president, was accorded his share of the honors by those who annually go there on Armistice day to hold memorial services at his tomb.

Lacking the wild aspects of the original Armistice day, the ceremonies in many American cities were impressive. In New York, Chicago, Washington and many other places, the traditional two minutes halt to business activities was ordered at 11 o'clock.

Chicago's celebration surpassed anything except the spontaneous outburst when the armistice was signed. There were parades in every section of the city, and buglers throughout the downtown area sounded taps when the memorable hour was reached.

To augment the period of silence which was generally observed throughout the land. There were solemn ceremonials in many cities.

The eternal light in New York furnished the setting for a ceremony at which Mayor Walker spoke and school children sang patriotic hymns.

A touch of sadness enveloped the celebration of the day in flood swept New England. Although in Vermont, the day is normally a holiday, the sorely pressed population could give only two minutes to its observance while it was in the midst of a struggle of rehabilitation.

In nearly every large city in the nation, services were held and floral tributes laid, with veteran's organizations leading in the arrangement of the programs. General Pershing was a guest at Cleveland, where 25,000 participants were gathered. Other prominent figures of the world participated in exercises, in various cities.

A feature of the day was the unveiling at Pittsburgh of a tablet in memory of President Wilson. Mrs. Wilson was present to see it received.

While business was not generally suspended throughout the country, there was an appreciable memorial day aspect hovering over the activities of the people who wanted to express their gratitude at the ending of the war nine years ago.

ARMISTICE DAY WAS IGNORED IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—(AP)—There was no rejoicing in Germany in memory of Armistice day; in fact the anniversary as a fete day was left severely alone.

News of celebrations in other countries was published in fairly complete detail but without comment by papers of either the left or the right.

Even the man in the street declined to take notice of the ninth anniversary of the war's ending, the general attitude being, as one individual replied to a query, "it is best to bury bygones. The future is serious enough for all concerned."

The only event foreshadowing Armistice day was a ceremony with something of the characteristics of mourning for the downfall of the monarchy by the Prussian Monarchists' league the day before yesterday. The climax of this meeting was the dispatching of a telegram of allegiance to the former kaiser. On the same evening the former crown prince joyfully attended a performance of "The Mikado."

HOW ARMISTICE DAY WAS CELEBRATED IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Once again the great silence of the armistice hour fell on London today in a gesture of remembrance for her million men who died in the World war.

Ceremonies at the cenotaph with King George, his sons and high officers of state present, opened the day of commemoration and through the hazy afternoon and far into the night, a procession of those seeking to honor the war dead wound along Whitehall and through Westminster abbey where is the grave of Britain's Unknown Soldier.

The crowds which converged on the cenotaph and Westminster abbey from all parts of the city and surrounding country were estimated to be even larged than those of last year.

Queen Mary watched the ceremony at the Cenotaph from the balcony of a building in Whitehall while King George, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, taking part in the ceremonities, placed the first wreaths at the foot of the monument.

A great torchlight procession of 2,000 veterans from Albert hall to the cenotaph made tonight's observance of the day spectacular.

The Prince of Wales, attending a song service at Albert hall at which 10,000 persons were gathered, broadcast to the empire an Armistice day message.

THE STARS AND STRIPES WERE FLOWN IN PARIS

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—All France turned back its thoughts today to the war and the armistice which put an end to the great struggle.

Along the great battle line from the channel to the foothills of the Alps, towns and villages that were wiped away by the holocaust of war stood resurrection, bright with flags and busy with the coming and going of civilian celebrants.

In the forest of Compiegne, at the very spot along the railway track where the armistice was signed, the dining car in which this event took place was the center of a ceremony at which Marshal Foch was the principal figure. The event was the dedication today of a building, erected with funds from the United States, to shelter the car.

In Paris there were of course more French flags to be seen than any other kind, but the Stars and Stripes ran a strong second and there were far more American flags than those of any other foreign country. On this day last year there were not so many of them to be seen in Paris, but since then Premier Poincare has steadied the franc, Lindbergh and Byrd have spanned the air from the one republic to the other, the American Legion has held its convention in Paris and the subject of the war debts has been kept off the front pages—all of which has made a great difference in the feelings of M. Jean Dupont, as the man in the street is known in France.

To all the great military cemeteries that mark the hillsides and plains of northern France with thousands of white crosses, pious pilgrims brought flowers and stopped to remember and to pray. Under the spires of myriad churches and cathedrals in the nation, there were special services on observance.

In Paris, the tomb of the Unknown Soldier under the Arc de Triomphe was the scene of a procession of visitors all day long. The government paid its tribute to the sleeping warrior in the morning, soldiers and sailors from every branch of the French military and naval establishments marching up the Champs Elysee under war-torn flags to salute the tomb of the symbolic hero.

At Versailles representatives of millions who fought for France in those days of war gathered to discuss how best the promises made to the soldiers when the war ended, may be filled.

EXPLOSION ON TANKER, TWO OF CREW MISSING

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Her bow ripped open by an explosion, two of her crew missing and another badly burned, the tanker Beta was making a hazardous way to this port tonight convoyed by a half-dozen ships.

Thirty-three miles from New York and "down by the head," the tanker was in such a condition that "anything might happen," her owners, Walker and Daly, said. A coast guard cutter acted as convoy in case the still smoundering fire in the Beta's hold should bring new disaster.

An S. O. S. call today sent revenue cutters and other ships hurrying to the aid of the tanker which reported by wireless that she was afire ten miles off Barnegat after an explosion which had wrecked the ship's bow.

The steamers Hannawa and Vaarill sped to her aid and within a short time four coast guard cutters were on the way.

Medical assistance was rushed to the Beta aboard the destroyer Henley and the sea-going tug Gresham was sent to take the tanker in tow if possible. This, it was believed, would be a difficult task because of the condition of the Beta's bow.

The Beta left New York in ballast for Baytown, Texas.

MARY GARDEN ADMIRES LINDBERGH AND TUNNEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Mary Garden thinks a lot of Charles A. Lindbergh—enough to sing for him for nothing, which she terms her highest tribute—but she doesn't think so much of William Tilden's scholarship. So she said today when she arrived on the Aquitania.

Turning impatiently from the subject of nude bathing at midnight, and kindred things, she related an incident of the Lindbergh reception in Paris.

"You must know I admire him when I would sing for him the 'Star Spangled Banner.' My gods, 'The Star Spangled Banner,' of all songs."

When asked if she knew the words to the National Anthem she replied "of course I didn't."

"I asked Bill to give me the words and he went so far as to sing, 'O, say can you see' the he ta-daed the rest. What scholar he is, I finally had to have the words looked up in a library."

One of the first questions Miss Garden asked her interviewers was:

"Where is Gene Tunney? That boy is decidedly a dear." When informed that Tunney was out of town she declared herself distressed, but no so distressed as she was when he was on the canvas in the seventh round in the Chicago fight.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 11—(AP)—The Swedish academy awarded the 1926 Nobel prize for literature to the Italian author, Signora Grazia Deledda, the second woman to win this prize. The 1927 award was postponed until next year.

LONDON, Nov. 11—(AP)—Of the numerous mayors elected in English and Welsh towns, fourteen are women, including Miss Margaret Beavan, welfare worker, Lord Mayor of Liverpool. It is an anomaly in British civil life that women mayors are not mayoresses.

MILWAUKEE STUDENTS REMAIN OUT ON STRIKE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 11—(AP)—War clouds appeared on the horizon today to further disturb the peace of the city of Cudahy, Milwaukee suburb, with intimations by teachers that they may join their students in a strike against the ouster of Superintendent E. C. Seifert.

Prospects of further strife developed at a meeting of teachers and promised "drastic action" unless he was reinstated by the school board.

The meeting was followed by another session of the teachers with Mayor Paul M. Lodka and the city attorney, when the teachers made their dissatisfaction with the operation of the school system known. This action together with the formation of the Cudahy Women's club, at the first conference, pledged to work for the best interest of the children, constituted the major developments today.

The 300 students who walked out Thursday morning remained passive. They refrained from demonstrations, but their lines held firm against returning until their demands are acceded to by the school board which ousted Seifert for what they termed "insubordination," "impudence," and "failure to co-operate." A decision to picket the school where 157 students who refused to join the strike have continued was abandoned after consultation with Police Chief John Madrow.

Madrow's daughter, Evelyn, is one of the strikers, whose ranks include all but 13 members of the senior class, the entire football squad and prominent leaders in extra curricular activities.

WESTERLY BOY INJURED; MOTOR DRIVER ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 11—John Dirico, 7, son of James Dirico of Oak street, is a patient on the critically injured list at Westerly hospital as a result of being struck by the Essex coach driven by William Sorenson, 27, of North Stonington. The accident ocurred Friday at 5:40 p. m. on Oak street when Sorenson operating the automobile owned by his brother Gilbert, was returning from the Sullivan granite works at Bradford. He was accompanied by Otis Chapman, R. D. No. 2 and Jack Sylvia, also of North Stonington.

Sorenson reported to Investigating Officer Robert M. Kessel, who found the left headlight glass broken by being pushed in, that at a place a short distance from where the auto was stopped the boy was in the middle of the road at a point below Tower street, on an up grade and came right in front of the car to the right.

From the home of the boy's parents where he was taken he was removed to the hospital by Dr. Michael H. Scanlon. An examination showed scalp wounds, a two inch cut under the right eye and a deep fracture on the right side of the skull.

Following investigation by Chief Brown and Lieut. Champlin who visited the hospital, Sorenson was locked up at the Westerly police station.

COOLIDGE IS READY TO TALK WITH FARM LEADERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP)—President Coolidge is ready to talk business with farm leaders in an effort to frame a relief program which would insure passage of a bill by congress and signature by himself.

This compromise mood on the farm issue was disclosed today at the white horse where it was said the president was looking hopefully to the efforts of Senator McNary of Oregon, new chairman of the senate agriculture committee, for solution of the agricultural legislative tangle.

No doubt was left at the white house of Mr. Coolidge's unaltered opposition to the equalization fee provision of the McNary-Haugen bill which he vetoed last spring, but it was emphasized that he is of an open mind and ready to consider other proposals than those already advanced by the administration for meeting the surplus crop problem.

An agreement among the farm organizations themselves will go a long way toward bringing about legislation, in the opinion of the president.

VICTIM'S APPEAL TO BANDIT WAS GRANTED

HUDSON, Mass., Nov. 11—(AP)—After a bandit had held up Morris Shindler, proprietor of a wholesale rubber jobbing busines here, and had robbed him of $59 at the point of a pistol, he asked his victim if the loss would seriously inconvenience him. Shindler replied that he would like a dollar to tide him over until the bank opened in the morning.

The robber peeled a bill off Shindler's roll and handed it to him, expressing at the same time the deepest regret that stern necessity forced him to steal. "I shall pay you back if it takes all my live," he declared.

Shindler looked at the money returned to him by his polite assailant and discovered that it was two $20 bills stuck together.

COLD WAVE WITH SNOW HAS HIT THE MIDDLE WEST

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 11—(AP)—Indian summer fled from the middlewest tonight before a fast moving cold wave borne down from the snowy peaks of the Canadian Rockies by a stiff and icy wind.

The advance of the first real winter weather of the season was heralded by snowfalls in parts of Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa and by tumbling temperatures from the Canadian border to Oklahoma.

Cold wave warnings were issued for the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri, with near zero temperatures forecast for the northern belt. States eastward from the Mississippi river also were in for lower temperatures.

Articles of incorporation were drawn up in Hammond, Ind., for the Anti-Prohibition League of America, an organization which will seek to repeal the Indiana Wright bone dry law, to modify the Volstead act so as to permit the use of light wines and beer and to repeal the 18th amendment.

10 Tons of Dynamite Lost During the Flood

It Will Constitute a Serious Menace to Relief Workers in the Winooski Valley.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Ten tons of dynamite that mowed down the Winooski Valley from Bolton during the flood have become a serious menace to human life and property both during the reconstruction work now getting under way and for farming in the seasons to come.

When the flood struck Bolton, it carried a score of highway workers to their death and with them down the stream went the boxes of dynamite and percussion caps they had been using in road building.

At first it was believed [illegible] might have soaked the [illegible] to such a degree that [illegible] rendered harmless. [illegible] two 50-pound boxes f[illegible] were used and found to be unimpaired.

Engineers [illegible] ledge that the explosive was a real menace but could offer no suggestions to how serious accidents might be prevented.

MEN BELIEVED DROWNED ARE FOUND ALIVE

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 11—(AP)—Eight employes of the state highway department who were believed to have been drowned at Bolton during the flood in the Winooski river valley last week have been found alive in Burlington, an official of the state highway department reported today.

What's Inside?

The woman who started out to fill her library only with books with red bindings, or books whose names suggested red—Red Pepper Burns, The Song of The Cardinal, The Scarlet Letter—made a whim the basis of her choice. She wasn't particularly interested in the merits of those books. Her aim was to fill up space.

Yet when you buy books you are concerned with what's inside them. And when you buy a flashlight, a refrigerator, a radio—you want wiser than whimsy buys. You want to know the inside goodness of those products, know it before you buy them, be persuaded by what's inside.

You can't tell by the appearance which is good or which is better. Advertisements could tell you. They point out the underneathness of a product. And not only the "now" inside merits, but the future inside merits.

Read The Bulletin advertisements. Then you can know a product to its center before you buy. Read the advertising regularly.

TO HOP OFF FOR HONOLULU ON FLIGHT TO NEW ZEALAND

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11—(AP)—Despite a storm menace hovering over the Pacific ocean, Captain Frederick A. Giles, British flier, continued preparations tonight to hop off tomorrow morning for Honolulu on the first leg of a 12,000 flight to New Zealand.

Captain Giles heard the warning of storms in his path and declared he would not change his plans at least not until he had consulted personally with weather bureau officials. He believed the storm might be merely a small disturbance and off his route by tomorrow.

Weather officials were not so optimistic. They declared the storm covered an area of 2,000 square miles slightly north of the great circle along which Giles expects to fly. Instead of diminishing, weather officials said, it has been steadily increasing in force and if Giles takes off tomorrow he undoubtedly will have to buck rains and a 20-mile head wind from the shore to a point about 1,100 miles out. The rest of the trip would be through partly cloudy weather, but more favorable, the forecasters said.

FIVE "SPEAK EASIES" RAIDED IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Twenty federal agents armed with John Doe warrants, descended on Waterbury late today, raiding five alleged "speak easies." Under orders to suppress reports until their work was accomplished the agents refused to reveal their names or under what office they were working although reports were current that the men were working out of Hartford.

Jeremiah T. McCarthy, of 168 South Main street, was one of several restaurant and alleged speak-easy proprietors arrested on a charge of illegal possession of liquor when 20 federal agents swooped down on Waterbury late this afternoon. McCarthy has been ordered to appear before U. S. Commissioner Edward J. Fion here tomorrow morning.

FOG PREVENTED OPENING OF WALLINGFORD AIRPORT

WALLINGFORD, Nov. 11. —(AP)—Unfavorable, foggy weather conditions today upset plans for the three-day program which was scheduled to accompany the opening of the airport here.

Five planes came here today from Mitchel field, while two others remained there awaiting better flying conditions.

Thea Rasche, German aviatrix, did not fly from New York, as she had expected, and announcement was made that she woud arrive tomorrow, weather permitting. General activities had been postponed in connection with the inaugural exercises at the airport until tomorrow.

NEGRO YOUTH WAS TAKEN FROM JAIL AND HANGED

COLUMBUS, Tenn., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Henry Choate, 18-year-old Negro, was taken from the county jail here tonight and hanged for an alleged attempted attack on a 16-year-old white girl.

A mob which was previously eluded by Sheriff L. C. Wiley, stormed the jail shortly after 9 o'clock. It had given warning it would attempt to lynch Choate, even though the mother of his alleged victim had urged that he be permitted to stand trial.

Colorado Ignores I.W.W. Strike Leaders

Arbitration Not to Be Considered Unless Proposal Comes From Employes.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Striking coal miners in Colorado, their cause already officially outlawed by the state, tonight faced a blunt declaration from the state industrial commission that their petitions proposing arbitration could not be considered.

Thomas Annear, chairman of the committee, held that the state law required that petitions in wage controversies must be signed by actual employes. Since the coal strike has been declared illegal, the strikes do not have the status of employes, the commission contended.

Another rebuff for the workers came from Jesse F. Welborn, president of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, largest coal operators in the state, who denounced the petitions of the strikers as "a scheme of I. W. W. agitators to force coal operators into a conference with them."

Undaunted by these complications, however, the strikers in southern Colorado fields continued their plans to circulate petitions asking the industrial commission to intercede.

Word that I. W. W. leaders of the walkout proposed to expand the movement to the sugar beet fields aroused no concern among beet growers. Most of the beet crop already has been harvested, they said.

Miners on strike in northern Colorado held a meeting at Fort Lupton urging beet field workers to join them in a sympathy walkout but the plan met with no success.

The only sign of picketing in the mining area was reported from the Columbine mine in northern Colorado. They were disregarded by an increasing number of men who operated the property.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY GOOD WILL CONGRESS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Outlying war by international agreement, dimunition of armament, further consideration by the United States of a permanent world court and "co-operation" not necessarily entailing, "organic membership" in the league of nations were urged in resolutions adopted here today at the closing sessions of the International Good Will congress.

Delegates unanimously adopted 12 resolutions which eiptomize the congress' efforts to banish international strife and to prolong peace times.

They placed taboo on militarrism in educational instit utions, except those specifically founded for military instruction.

TO PROVIDE SUPPLY OF MILK FOR BAY STATE

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Acting Governor Frank G. Allen today appointed an emergency commision to take such action as will provide a proper supply of milk for Massachusetts. Damage to rail and highway communications in northern New England in last week's flood seriously cut down the available supply. The commission will consist of Philip R. Allen, Frederick S. Snyder and Reginald W. Bird, all of whom were associated with the federal milk commission during the war.

OBITUARY

Alwin H. Drury.

ATHOL, Mass., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Alwin H. Drury, 73, for over 30 years well known on race tracks of New England as an owner and driver of race horses, died here today. He had owned several hundred horses within that period including Baron Atta, Roan Wilkes, Jr., and Star Chatham. Mr. Drury was one of the old type of horsemen who always insisted on driving his own horse.

He had been in the provision business here for many years.

William K. James.

A STARTLING DISCLOSURE IS PROMISED IN OIL CASE

Prosecuting Officers Assert That a New Angle is to Be Developed Monday or Tuesday—They Refuse to Even Hint at the Nature of Their Discoveries—Expectation is That There Will Be Many Indictments or a Single Indictment Naming a Number of Persons, Including Some Not Heretofore Identified With the Scandal.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Stray ends of the skein of evidence in the Fall-Sinclair oil trial jury tangle were gathered together today by the grand jury, while prosecuting officers prepared for presentation of what they described as a startling disclosure in the case.

These officers said the new angle would be developed Monday or Tuesday and that meantime they could not even hint at its nature as premature announcement might result in a checkmating of their carefully laid plans to piece this into the whole fabric.

The grand jury will conclude its second week of work with a two hours' session tomorrow and those directing the investigation hope to complete the presentation of evidence by Tuesday, then the grand jury will decide whether it is to make a presentment upon which indictments should be based.

While no one can tell what is in the mind of the grandjury, the expectation now is that there will be many indictments or a single indictment naming a number of persons, including som not heretofore identified with the naval oil lease scandal.

W. Sherman Burns, who was employed by Henry Mason Day, one of Harry Sinclair's most confidential associates, to assign detectives to shadow the oil trial jury, today presented additional records of his agency, showing the activities of his operatives after October 26, the last date in the records he produced yesterday.

Several more of the Burns' operatives were examined on the basis of reports they made to their superiors and which went into the hands of Day and Sheldon Clark, another Sinclair associate, who with Day, now stands charged with conspiracy to influence the verdict of the jury.

The day's investigation brought information that no such automobile licenses as some of those described in reports of the Burns men ever have been issued in the District of Columbia.

Mrs. Maggie Dodd, a boarding house keeper on Four and a Half street in the southwest section of Washington, was called for checking up one report of operative Samuel Kirby that he rented a room in the Dodd establishment so he could better watch Juror Charles Holt.

Mrs. Dodd said Kirby rented the room, but never slept there. She added that he would come in during the morning and again in the evening, but would leave around or before midnight. Kirby lived at the Wardman Park hotel.

Evidence received by the grand jury is regarded as intended to link counsel for Albert B. Fall with the operations of the Burns men. This evidence is that when Mark B. Thompson, of New Mexico, one of Fall's lawyers, was informed by Dan R. Jackson, a special assistant to the attorney general, that Harris R. Lamb, of the justice department was a special assistant to the attorney general, Thompson said his reports on Lamb apparently had been erroneous.

Lamb, or rather his automobile, was trailed for days by the private detectives and the belief of the prosecution is that Thompson called Jackson for information about Lamb after he had received the reports of the operatives.

Tomorrow the grand jury will pick up more loose ends of the case, examiping records os to long distance telephone calls emanating from Sinclair's apartment at the Mayflower hotel and from other persons. The purpose is to establish with whom Sinclair or his agents talked over the long distance telephone while the trial was in progress.

WOMAN KILLED HER FOUR CHILDREN, THEN HERSELF

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Twenty-five dollars a week does not go very far when there are five mouths to feed and the rent is $22 a month.

So, Mrs. Hildegarde Wywias today gave up the fight. The 45-year-old mother had said that she would rather see her four small children dead than be separated from them, so she watched them die and then followed.

Opened jets of a gas stove brought death to the destitute family but even death could not be found without a struggle, for the gas meter had been locked on account of non-payment of bills and the mother had to break it open.

Neighbors discovered the bodies in a 31st street tenement. Mrs. Wywias, dressed in street clothes, knelt to die by the bodies of the children, all clad in clean, white "nighties."

Three girls and a boy made up the family group. Mary was 11; Helen, 10, Sonia, 8, and Carl, the baby boy, five.

Mrs. Wywias came to New York from Fort Worth, Texas, five years ago, leaving her husband from whom she had separated, behind.

SHOT HIS WIFE AND A MAN AND THEN DISAPPEARED

BROCKTON, Mass., Nov. 11—(AP)—The police of Randolph and adjoining towns tonight continued to search for Joseph N. Iannacone of New York, charged with shooting his wife and Hyman Freeman, both New York laundry workers, at the home of the woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Catone, in Randolph, this morning.

Freeman and Mrs. Iannacone were operated upon at the Brockton hospital today for the removal of bullets. The man was shot in the right shoulder and the woman in the abdomen. Physicians said Freeman was in little danger but that Mrs. Iannacone was weak from loss of blood.

Neither victim would discuss the cause of the shooting. It was known that Mrs. Iannacone came to Randolph from New York ten days ago to visit her parents and that some time later Freeman followed her. The husband appeared suddenly this morning with a shotgun.

CONSIDERING CHANGES IN ADMINISTRATIVE TAX

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—While it was being reiterated at the White House today that President Coolidge would support the treasury recommendations for tax reduction, the joint congressional tax committee gave its attention to suggested changes in administrative features of the present revenue law.

The report of the joint committee will be presented to the house ways and means committee the first of the week, and Representative Green of Iowa, who heads both groups, said it probably would be made public tomorrow.

The White House announcement was somewhat similar to that earlier in the week, and it was emphasized again that Mr. Coolidge believed that it would be unwise for congress to attempt a reduction greater than the limiting figure of $225,000,000 set by Secretary Mellon.

RUTH ELDER MAY BECOME MOTION PICTURE ACTRESS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—(AP)—Ruth Elder is not overlooking the possibilities of becoming a motion picture actress, Joseph M. Schenck, movie magnate, revealed today when he arrived on the Aquitania. On the way across, he said, Miss Elder, a fellow-passenger, had asked him for "tips" about getting in to the pictures.

"I gave her some advice," he said, adding that he saw no reason why she should not capitalize on her hazardous flight by signing motion picture contracts. She should be a success, he declared, for "she has brains and temperament and would screen well."

NEW YORK WELCOMED RUTH ELDER AND CAPT. HALDEMAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—(AP)—Two aviators who faced death fearlessly over the lonely wastes of the Atlantic were abashed today when they returned to the thunderous welcome New York accords its heroes.

Miss Ruth Elder, and Capt. George Haldeman, showed their trepidation when Mayor Walker, at City hall, gave them an illuminated scroll lauding their courage and extolling their accomplishments.

The girl flier from Dixie, blushing like a school-girl, said with a choking voice, "My dear Mr. Mayor, I'm sorry you asked me to speak because I can't speak, especially in a crowded place like this. My heart sticks in my throat, but I want you to know how much I thank you. It is much mare than we expected."

Capt. Haldeman, who followed, said: "When Miss Elder and I started our flight we wanted it to be a success for commercial aviation and for the interest of flying in general. Although we did not reach our goal, we hope that our trip will in some way be a benefit to flying in the future."

And both retired as fast as they could from the ten thousand persons who jammed the square in front of City hall.

From the time the city tug Macon took them off the liner Aquitania, they had heard the shouting crowds and the shrieking sirens that welcomed them home. Up Broadway to Miss Elder's hotel, the cheers followed them.

Lyle Womack, Miss Elder's husband, was one of the first to greet her, and as Capt. Haldeman clambered over the side of the Macom, his wife was waiting with outstretched arms. At the formal reception at City hall, both were shy and obviously ill at ease.

FOUR MEN WERE KILLED IN STREET BATTLE AT OPP, ALA.

OPP, Ala., Nov. 11—(AP)—Four men, two of them officers were killed here tonight during a pitched battle on the main street which followed an attempt to arrest O. C. Dauphin, 18, a participant. Two bystanders were wounded.

The shooting, witness said, followed the attempt of Leo Clark and Edward Nix, patrolmen, to arrest Dauphin when he drove his automobile down the street at an excessive rate of speed and created a disturbance. When he failed to stop his car at the command of the officers, they fired.

Dauphin outdistanced them, and returned a few minutes later with his father, Cleve Dauphin. When the officers appeared, the father and son began firing, bystanders said. Clark and Nix returned the re.

Clark and both of the Dauphins were killed instantly. Nix died shortly after being removed to a hospital.

Two persons who were passing along the sidewalk as the firing began suffered minor wounds.

The Dauphins were said by police to have ben arrested recently on charges of violating the prohibition law.

CLAIMS PRINCE CAROL DID NOT SEEK THE THRONE

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 11—(AP)—Speaking with eloquence in a rich full voice which held audience and judges spellbound two hours, M. Mamolescu, former under secretary for finance, who is on trial for alleged complicity in a Carolist plot, today revealed for the first time that former Crown Prince Carol did not seek "the throne he had renounced but only membership on the regency."

"The prince is too loyal and decent to think of dethroning his own son," Mamolescu declared in highly emotional tones. With a courage that astonished even his own lawyers Mamolescu lashed at the present government as a disaster to Rumania.

"We live in a state of political abnormality without issue or hope," he declared, "the only solution is the return of Carol through the joint action of opposition leaders and persistent moral pressure on the country."

QUIDNICK PLANT ADD TO THEIR HOLDINGS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 11.—The four Willimantic business men, A. J. Martineau, William E. Clark, Ernest P. Chesbro and Samuel Chesbro, who purchased the three mills of the Quinebeck-Windham Manufacturing company plant at a mortgagee's sale held here Thursday by order of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust company, trustees of the property, acquired controlling interest of the Bolton Lake corporation today. The purchase price of the controlling interest in this important water right was not made known. Shares not owned by the local men are held by the American Thread company and members of the Lake corporation. The securing of the Bolton Lake water rights will insure water power at the plant which is derived from the Willimantic river. The local quartet also purchased all of the machinery for cotton or rayon cloth manufacturing in Mill No. 2, on the east side of Bridge street and formerly known as the Hayden Mill. The No. 3 plant was purchased intact and is ready for operation. It was said by one of the officials that the machinery was sold for $4,000. The machinery in Mills Nos. 1 and 2 was sold in lots to small manufacturers and to Thomas Fine of Fall River, Mass., a dealer in machinery. The sale today included the disposal of the machinery and equipment in the blacksmith shop connected with the mill, card room, weaving room, slashers, warpers, twisters, speakers, etc. The sale of land holdings scheduled for next Monday was postponed for 60 days to comply with the law. It was announced this afternoon. At the start of the real estate sales there remained to be disposed of 11 houses with 46 tenements, a store, storehouse and 36 parcels of land. The continuance allows time for private sales of this property.

DEMOCRATS HAVE TO COMPLETE THEIR TICKET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 11.—The democratic ticket which will be voted on at the city elections in December and which has John R. Pickett, mayor candidate and James J. Lee, city clerk candidate, as standard bearers, is not yet completed, it became known with the adjournment of ward caucuses. Eight persons attended the first ward caucus with David P. Ahern chairman and Albert J. Piche, clerk. Mr. Piche who was defeated as a candidate for city clerk at the city caucus, was nominated for alderman of Ward One, but he declined. The ward committee was authorized to select a candidate.

The second ward caucus was attended by 30, Arthur Bergeron being chairman and J. Francis Moriarty clerk. M. Eugene Lincoln was nominated for alderman. The only choice for re-election to the common council was from the third ward where 34 voters nominated Arthur J. Durbrell, present incumbent, as candidate. T. Frank Cunningham was chairman of this caucus and William B. Shea, clerk.

There was a contest in the fourth ward caucus between William P. Dinsen and Joseph Bernet. A vote was taken and Dineen received 24 and Bernet 6. Valentine L. Murphy was chairman and Robert O. Snow, clerk.

The city committee now has two vacancies to fill. It must select a chairman and nominate for alderman-at-large. J. Zephir Bergeron and George B. Parker were nominated for the alderman-at-large positions at the city caucus. This morning Mr. Parker said that the presentation of his name must have been through some misunderstanding and that he declined the nomination.

VOLUNTOWN

A recent news item that Voluntown post office would be closed on Dec. 1st, made very unwelcome reading to the people of the village, who do not believe that an R. F. D. route would adequately serve this community. There are almost as many families in the village as there were when the mills were running; many are working in Jewett City or Glasgo, but who prefer to reside in their Voluntown homes. Possibly if other means fail a petition may be sent to Washington asking that the Voluntown post office be retained.

The rainstorm of last Thursday evening and Friday morning was the heaviest downpour in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. It filled all the brooks and roads to overflowing, causing flood conditions. Collins dam, which held back a small reservoir, gave way early Friday morning and washed out a small section of highway near Potter's bridge. Beechdale dam which is the largest dam in town on the Pachaug river, held its own against the elements, as did the other mill dams in the village. The greatest damage was done to the town roads, the Beach Pond road being almost impassible. The selectmen and road supervisors are at work trying to put them in condition for travel again. The main road to Jewett City and through the village held up well. Nearly all roads in Griswold leading to Glasgo are in poor condition and have been closed temporarilly.

An entertainment given in Union hall Saturday evening by the Finnish corporation was largely attended, one of the attractions being a concert by the new Finnish brass band.

Union hall was crowded Sunday evening when it was reopened as a moving picture house having been closed about two years. Manager James had provided a good line of pictures.

Mrs. Henry Rindon, 39, of this village, was instantly killed Sunday evening by an automobile driven by Anderson Gauthier of Glasgo. The accident happened near the residence of Asher B. Popple, in Griswold. Mrs. Hindon had been taking a walk and was returning to her home when the accident occurred. Mrs. Hindon was the wife of Henry Hindon, who operates a local sawmill. She was esteemed by all who knew her.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hatch, Mrs. Theresa Duffy and daughter, Elizabeth, were guests of relatives in Danielson on Sunday.

Local young people attended a dance in Glasgo Saturday night.

WESTERLY

WORLD WAR MEMORIAL DEDICATED AT PAWCATUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 11—Two thousand gathered this afternoon at the junction of South and West Broad streets, Pawcatuck, to witness the dedication of Pawcatuck World War memorial. Preceding the dedication a street parade of patriotic bodies as announced in Friday morning's Bulletin was held and ended at the memorial site.

The formal program opened with the dedication ceremony by Harley F. Chase post, No. 1366, Veterans of Foreign Wars, who were grouped in two lines along the central walk of the area plot. At the right of the veiled memorial was the temporary speaker's stand. The actual unveiling was done by nine year old Joseph Alfred Ossanne, who never saw his father as the latter died in his country's service. At the flag staff was raised the stars and stripes, which was used to drape the coffin of Harley F. Chase, when his body was brought back to America from the battlefield of France. An oration, "Flag of My Land," delivered from the speakers' stand by Max Richmond, was followed by the presentation of a flag from Hancock post, Woman's Relief Corps, which is to be used on the staff in the future, the presentation speech being made by Post Patriotic Instructor Sarah Vredenburg. Commander Michael J. McCarthy, Jr., of Chase post, accepted the gift.

Lieutenant Governor J. Edwin Brainard of Connecticut was next on the program, to enable him to make the afternoon express to return to his home in Branford. In his patriotic address he concluded by admonishing the youth to avoid the delusions of propagandists, by keeping fit and their powder dry, and decried the disregard for things serious by those treading along the primrose path of pleasure. He urged his hearers who crowded the adjoining streets and lawns to read the reverse side of the monument and to visualize what the monument stands for—God, Country and Americanism.

He said that it was not for an event that they were gathered there but an ideal. At the close of the lieutenant governor's address Commander McCarthy presented him a framed picture of the memorial.

The American creed and salute to the flag were given by pupils from the V, VI, VII, and VIII grades of the West Broad street school. The song, America, the Beautiful, was given by the school children. The deed of the memorial to the Pawcatuck Fire district was presented by Commander McCarthy. It was accepted in behalf of the Pawcatuck Fire district by Chief Engineer Francis J. McMahon. The presentation of the deed of land to the town of Stonington being made by Comander McCarthy, the gift was accepted by John Fribance, of Mystic, in behalf of the board of selectmen of the town of Stonington.

Thomas McKenzie spoke for the Red Cross drive now being conducted in Westerly.

Walter A. Towne, formerly head master of Bulkeley school, New London, prefaced his address with a reference to a former Westerly man, a college classmate, the late ex-Governor George H. Utter. George R. McKenna, Stonington prosecutor, read an original poem and the exercises closed with the singing of the national anthem in which all were requested to join.

The memorial is constructed entirely of the best grade of Westerly granite quarried at Bradford in the quarries of the Sullivan Granite company and were cut by Kavanagh Brothers Co., of Quincy, Mass. The design was conceived by Louis A. Whitehouse and carried out under his supervision. The figure was modeled by Gerald Horrigan, of Quincy, Mass., and cut by his father. The memorial is 24 feet, six inches long, eight feet, six inches wide, and 12 feet, six inches high. The rough stock used weighed 45 tons and about 38 tons finished. This central figure is a single piece of granite weighing 20 tons.

The two pylons on either side of the figure symbolize the two never-to-be forgotten years of the war, 1917 and 1918. The foundation of the military efforts of the United States was the navy and the marine corps. Likewise in the memorial, at the base of the statue are the seals of these two branches of the service and out of them emerged the great army as typified in the statue of the doughboy. The memorial faces the east, the scene of the world's greatest conflict and the American military forces' most glorious triumph.

Two honor rolls, separated by the width of the memorial are in fact joined by a continuous band of laurel which symbolizes achievement. On the backs of the tablets, containing upward of 300 names of Pawcatuck boys who served in the army or navy during the war, there are carved laurel wreaths, symbolic of memory.

New cement walks have been constructed around the plot and a new 50-foot flag staff has been erected. In addition, the sector has been beautified by the planting of 30 trees, four sugar maples, five Oriental spruces, 14 Japanese cypress trees of several varieties and tints of green, and eight arbor vitae.

The porch of the Elm Tree inn on West Broad street was used as a reviewing stand for the official party and the members of Westerly town council who were guests. All members of the police force of the town of Stonington were present to direct traffic and prevent disorder, together with six representatives of the Connecticut department of state police. Following were the officials of the day:

Honorary chairman of the joint committee, Rear Admiral H. O. Dunn, U. S. N., retired; chairman of joint committee, Frank L. Furness; secretary of joint committee, Karl G. Stillman; treasurer of joint committee, Harry M. Bricker; members from the V. F. W.: Capt. E. B. Byers, James A. Keane, Michael J. McCarthy, Jr.; members from Pawcatuck board of trade, H. M. Barber, L. C. Purtill, A. Marr, Russell Hemphill, William Maxwell, Henry Crandall, Albert Sylvia, Bourdon A. Babcock.

An error was made in Thursday morning's Bulletin in the announcement that Michael Kelcher had been elected judge of the fourth district Manhattan municipal court. It should have been state William T. Kelcher, formerly of Pawcatuck, who is the attorney elevated to the bench. Michael Kelcher is a Boston attorney. Previous to his election to the bench in the New York court where civil cases are tried Attorney Kelcher has acted as secretary to superior court judges. He is a graduate of Yale law school. His sisters reside in Westerly.

Maud Ella Williams of Stonington, became the bride of Paul Wilcox Tourjee of Westerly at a ceremony Friday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock, in the First Baptist church, Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, the pastor, officiating. The attendants were Miss Olsen of New Haven and Miss Williams, a sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Tourjee will make their home on Granite street, in Westerly.

William Williams of Providence, formerly of Westerly, was at Armistice day guest of local relatives and friends.

Westerly Town Solicitor John Ferguson left for New York.

Miss Margaret W. Grant, ticket agent at the Putnam station of the New Haven railroad, was the guest Thursday, evening of her sisters, Misses Sarah J. and Elizabeth M. Grant.

Miss Mary Scanlon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Michael H. Scanlon, left for New Haven Friday afternoon.

George Ernest Robinson, architect of the new Westerly Central Fire station, left Friday afternoon for his home in Boston.

Henry Metivier returned to Boston on Friday afternoon after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Metevier in Pawcatuck.

Edward J. MacKnight has returned to Norwich after a visit in Pawcatuck.

Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck is entertaining a business associate, Mr. Babson of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Driscoll have returned to Pawcatuck from a visit with Jewett City relatives.

John Finney, manager of the Old White House Inn, on the Westerly-Stonington highway, during the summer is now manager at the Putnam Inn, at Putnam.

WELL MEANING NEIGHBOR THOUGHT CHURCH AFIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 11—A fire starting in the sacristy on the northeast side of the Church of the Immaculate Conception on High street, this afternoon was the cause of the sounding of the Westerly fire alarm bell at 3.05 p. m. When Hjalmar E. W. Larson, from the house next door at 122 High street, saw Rev. Fr. J. P. Cassagne rush from the door followed by clouds of smoke, he notified the Westerly automatic telephone central and the alarm was sounded. The Seagrave pumper and force of firemen responded, only to find their services not needed. The fire started in a drawer and the priest, throwing the burning material upon the adjoining lawn was slightly burned. A fire extinguisher was sufficient to put out the blaze before serious damage was done.

The funeral of their infant daughter, Theresa Tetlow, was held Friday at 1.45 o'clock from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Tetlow, 13 State street, Pawcatuck. The services at 2 p. m. in the Immaculate Conception church was read by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M. Burial was in St. Sebastian cemetery.

At the Thursday evening session of the newly elected Westerly town council the following were named police constables, to serve without pay: William R. Chapman, Edward C. Brown, Leon Bliven, Edwin H. Lewis, Alexander Mitchell, Phillip H. Gavitt, Henry W. Sutcliffe, Edwin M. Greene, William R. Wilcox, Rudolph Saunders, Michael J. Burke, Guy B. Page, Frank Iacano, Robert Sankey, C. NOANK

George Griswold turned out to be quite a farmer and in a local store he was telling friends about the big pumpkin he raised, before Jack Frost hit it. Taking it to a scale, it weighed 45 pounds. It will make around 37 pies, this monster from the vegetable garden. The grower is a mail carrier and soon he is going to give the mail carriers a party and try the pies from the record pumpkin. The other amateur farmers will have to take off their hats to Gentle George.

Capt. Elmer Hewitt, of the boat Ethel H., is on a week's hunting trip in the woods of Lyme. His place is taken by Mate Billie Banks.

Alden Brocky has gone to Provincetown, Mass., for a few days' visit.

Mrs. Lewis Martin of New York spent a day at Groton Long Point this week.

Mrs. E. Sinnott of Hartford was calling in the village Thursday.

Clayton Fox, of Caribou, Me., came from that state recently to pay a short visit to his brother, Harold Fox in the village. He told about the potato crop in Aroostook county, the leading potato section of that state. He said a fair crop had been raised for this year, but could not equal that of last year. The crop here is not so large as former years due to the fact that so many rotted in the ground because of so much rain during the summer. Young Fox said that his father sends out car-loads of potatoes to different places. This season the prices will be higher than last year, but there will be plenty of potatoes everywhere.

Work on the 90-foot fishing boat at the shipyard is being rushed, under Foreman Charles Butson, who has a large force of men working to win two boxes of cigars to be given by the owner if the craft is completed in three months. Engine sharp, Alman Meister of the yard is getting ready to put the engines in the boat in about three weeks. He has never got stuck on any gasoline engine built and his fellow workmen say they never saw a man like Meister among the engines. Before real cold weather comes, Foreman Butson says the boat will be bound for New York.

Boat Northern Lights, which used to take out the poor little rich girls of New York from Camp Mystic during the summer, was hauled out at Rogers' boat yard Thursday for the winter.

Keith Ebsetta was in Niantic recently.

The house of Clarence Carrington is having miner repairs made.

Walter Palmer has returned from Wakefield.

Terry Long was taking a walk along the shore with his pal, Jerry Stack, to see how the ducks are this season. He is a great hunter and getting near Mumford's cove, three ducks were in the water. Turning to his friend, he said, "I think I can hit one of those ducks with a stone." Getting close to them, without the ducks noticing, with a good sized stone in his right hand, as he used to throw them over the plate for the Carolina team in the Southern league, taking good aim, he hit the duck on the head. The duck turned over once or twice and was dead. It proved to be a shelldrake. Taking home his Saturday dinner, he said you don't have to have a gun to hunt ducks—only stones! But his friend Jerry said "You could not do that again in 1000 years!" "I don't want to—that is too long to wait!"

Mrs. Lewis Main is in Middletown, Conn., on a short visit.

ABINGTON

Mrs. Myrtle Covell, 53, wife of Willis Covell, died at her home Tuesday morning after a short illness. Mrs. Covell had not been in the best of health for some time, but her death came as a great shock to her family and friends. She had just entered her fifty-fourth year, having been born in Putnam, Oct. 9, 1874. She married Mr. Covell, June 19, 1892 and three years later came to Abington to live.

Mrs. Covell always took an active interest in the social life of the community, where she was much beloved for her bright and kindly spirit. She was a member of Wolf Den Grange, the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Order of Eastern Star. She had four children, the oldest, Herman, dying while in camp at the beginning of the World war. She is survived by her husband and three children. Funeral services were held at her late residence at two o'clock Friday afternoon. Burial was in Abington cemetery.

Mr. and

DANIELSON

ONE KILLED; POLICE SEARCH POND FOR TWO OTHERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 11—State officers from the Danielson barracks were engaged in dragging the waters of a mill pond at Wilsonville, above North Grosvenordale, in the town of Thompson at nightfall today for the bodies of a woman and a child who are supposed to have met death sometime last night while riding in a closed car driven by Jerome Vincent Sheldon, 29, whose body was recovered this morning from the submerged machine.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said this afternoon that the finding of a woman's hat, a handbag containing toilet articles, a milk bottle and a baseball in the car in the pond has left a definite impression that Sheldon was not alone in facing death and that the other bodies eventually will be recovered. Late this afternoon Coroner Bill had been unable to get in touch with any relatives or friends of the dead Sheldon at Watertown, Mass., which the car registration and operator's license recovered from the wreck, indicates is the home town of the dead man and apparently fixes his identity. The body of the dead man believed to be Sheldon was removed to undertaking rooms in Putnam.

A lighted taillight protruding above the waters of the pond early this morning caught the eye of Antonio De Carli, carrying mail on an early trip up in the outlying section of the county where the accident occurred. Investigation on his part revealed a submerged machine, lying on its side under the water. De Carli made known his find and that a broken guard rail indicated where the car had plunged off the state highway and into the pond sometime during Thursday night. Subsequently the body of a young man was recovered from the car and sufficient material to indicate that a woman and child also had gone to death in the wreck and that these bodies still were in the water. Coroner Bill, when he returned here at noon today, had in his possession various papers and other properties recovered from the car to indicate that the dead man was Sheldon and that his home was in Watertown, Mass.

The place where the wreck occurred is on a bad curve on the state highway leading from Webster to Putnam through the Grosvenordales. A heavy telephone pole was set up as a barrier along the edge of the state highway and bolted into stones to make it particularly secure was snapped off like a pipe stem when the car struck it, and then plunged into the pond. Just when the accident occurred is a matter of conjecture, but Coroner Bill said this afternoon that he had found a woman this morning who lives near where the accident occurred who told him that she had noticed at about 8 o'clock Thursday night that the pole was broken, so it is believed that the car took the plunge that probably caused three deaths very early Thursday evening, and that the machine had been in the water for many hours before the beacon like taillight showed DeCarli where there was a watery grave.

State Officers Nelson, Cassagne and Bell were on the detail from the local barracks engaged in the dragging operations this afternoon.

ARMISTICE DAY SPEAKER UNABLE TO MAKE ADDRESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

bands played, cannons roared, bells bands played, cannons roared, bells rang and whistles blared away today as incidents of the Danielson's most impressive observance of the Armistice anniversary in a number of years. And all of this had to do with and leading up to the very fine parade of this afternoon, the subsequent exercises of a formal nature in the town hall, the day closing with a dance under the auspices of the American Legion in the town hall this evening. All in all, it was very considerable of a day in Danielson, brought out the populace enmasse and attracted people from various surrounding towns. Excellent police arrangements perfected by Chief John McFarland were a factor in the bringing about the pleasant task of recording that there were no accidents to mar the day's observance.

The afternoon's parade was the outstanding feature. It got away from where it had been organized at North street under the direction of Grand Marshal Ira A. Warren to traverse the route that had been announced for it, and the marchers were hailed along the line by applauding spectators.

With an Uncle Sam at the head of the line, the parade moved rapidly along, with the Storrs contingent of the R. O. T. C. with band, having the right of the line and all the previously announced organizations filling out the divisions in an impressive gesture of remembrance for all that the World war veterans did and sacrificed and as a demonstration of the affection in which the people hold them, though there is no evidence of this from day to day as the years roll by.

The principal addresses of the afternoon were delivered by Rev. Leonard R. Richards of Danielson and Rev. J. C. Mathieu of North Grosvenordale.

The principal speaker scheduled for the afternoon was Rev. John C. Mathieu, of Grosvenordale, who became ill and had to stop, after speaking for a while. Rev. Leonard R. Richards of Danielson and Albert DeForge, of Moosup, the latter an official of the Connecticut organization of the American Legion, filled out the program by giving patriotic talks.

This morning a letter came through to Attorney A. G. Bill from his son, Lester, an electrical engineer who is with the Twin State Gas and Electric company at St. Johnsbury, Vt. The letter brought a most interesting description, in general way, of some of the things that happened in that area of northern New England during the flood period of the past week. Mr. Bill wrote his father that three of the company's plants were washed out, and that St. Johnsbury was without gas, light or water for three days. Typical of the resourcefulness of New Englanders, the electric company's organization drove ahead with restoration work so that lights were restored in three days, and now things are gradually working back to normal. Mr. Bill mentions in his letter that a bakery in St. Johnsbury normally doing a much smaller business is now turning out 15,000 loaves of bread a day, and the inference is that bread, as always through history, is the chief staple of life up there. Incidentally, yeast for this bread is being brought to St. Johnsbury in aeroplanes, other and usual means of communication and transportation being closed until repairs can be made.

At the Foster Center church today funeral services for Mrs. Phoebe M. Gorton were conducted by Rev. F. M. Buker, formerly of North Sterling, now of Anthony, R. I. During the service Mrs. Buker sang The Sweet Bye and Bye. The bearers were Everett Howard, Olney Knight, George Nichols and Frank Brayton Burial was in the Spear's cemetery at Foster. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Esther A. Jacobs left here tonight for Melbourne Beach, Fla., to attend the funeral of her brother, J. Alton Burlingame who died suddenly at that place, Thursday night, just a short time after he had motored there from his home in Chicago, Ills. Mr. Burlingame was a native of this town, a son of Ezekiel R. and Sarah A. Burgess Burlingame. He had lived in the west for many years. Mr. Burlingame leaves his wife and two sisters, Mrs. Esther A. Jacobs of Danielson and Mrs. Sorph M. Butts of San Luis, Obisco, California.

William Penn, 60, long a resident of Wauregan and engaged there as proprietor of a barber shop, died suddenly today. He had been ill with heart trouble for a considerable period of time, but his death came so suddenly as to be a shock to his relatives and friends. He was a native of Vermont. He leaves his wife and the following songs, Edmond and Everett of Wauregan, Arthur and William of Moosup and Lawrence of Bristol, Conn.

There will be general interest in this section of eastern Connecticut for all of those who know the Buker twins, as they were known when their father, Rev. F. M. Buker, now, with Mrs. Buker, resident of Anthony, R. I., to learn that they are having an amazing success in that section of China that is not distant from the Burma border. One is now Rev. Raymond Buker, the other Dr. Richard Buker, a doctor of medicine also, since he reached China, an ordained minister of the gospel. They write that people in that far off section of the world are flocking to them, with hands outstretched to hear the preaching of the gospel of Christianity. Dr. Buker writes that during the month of June 3,000 people came to him for medical treatment, a sufficient number to impress upon him that he really is a medical missionary in a far distant land.

Through action taken by its board of directors for the Danielson Rotary club $35 will be forwarded to the governor of the 27th Rotarian district, which includes Vermont, for the relief of flood sufferers.

Federation members expressed their gratitude over the success of the drive to all who made it possible, especially mill officials in Danielson, Dayville and Goodyear.

Holders here of stock of the Canadian Connecticut mills at Sherbrooke, P. Q., understand that the recent sharp rise in the price of the stock, just after it had passed its October dividend, was due to the fact that there is a fight for control of it on, with a big Canadian Textile corporation interested to hold a majority of the stock.

Another Killingly man who was caught in the Vermont flood the past week was Ivan P. Elfgren of East Killingly, who was at Rutland, Vt. Mr. Elfgren is a civil engineer in the employ of the Rutland railroad.

Rt. Rev. Chauncey Bunce Brewster, bishop of Connecticut, will make a visitation to St. Alban's church here and to Trinity church in Brooklyn on Sunday, Nov. 20.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Rene Caron, who are motoring in New York state, are expected to return from their wedding trip on Sunday.

A very special drive for members will be made by Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross during the coming week, the work to be done being well organized.

Mrs. Laura Reynolds of Mechanic street will have the members of the Ladies' Prayer circle at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

If you have been foregoing the pleasures of oil heat because you think it unduly expensive, or because you think it has not yet been perfected, let us tell you about the New Silent Nokol. A ten-minute demonstration will convince you that here at last is perfect oil heat.

The following local residents have Nokol Oil Burners in their homes or places of business:

PUTNAM

PUTNAM OBSERVES HOLIDAY WITH PARADE AND EXERCISES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 11—This morning it looked as though the Armistice day celebration would be rather a damp affair and it rained during the morning. However, the weather cleared shortly before noon and the sun was shining brightly for several hours and it remained clear until after the celebration parade and exercises were over. The observance of Armistice day began with the ringing of bells and blowing of whistles at eleven o'clock.

This is the first year that Connecticut has made Armistice day a state holiday and the celebration in Putnam was under the auspices of the local American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts. The street parade started promptly at 12.30 from Union square and from there went to Grove street to Soldiers' monument, Ring street to the square, Pomfret street over the Memorial bridge, Church street, Woodstock avenue, Marshall street and Providence streets to the high school where the patriotic exercises were held.

When the parade reached the high school grounds, Thomas deCoudres, president of the chamber of commerce introduced the speakers. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of Willimantic, chaplain of the 23rd infantry in France and Rev. Fr. Ulric O. Bellerose of this city delivered the addresses.

Major A. D. McIntyre acted as marshal of the parade and was assisted by Dr. E. F. Perry, representing the legion and Commander Ernest J. Durand of the Veterans of Foreign Wars as mounted aides. The football game and the carnival of the V. F. W. were afternoon attractions and evening brought the nickel bazaar at the high school and the carnival at St. John's hall.

One humorous feature of the parade was that as the parade, which was headed by the police department, reached one street the police turned down it, the remainder of the line kept straight ahead. The police kept "eyes front" for an entire block when it was discovered they were having a parade all their own. They counter-marched and were able to fall in at the tail-end.

A check for $1,000 has been given by Edwin T. Robbins to the trustees of the First Baptist church of this city in payment of the bequest in the will of his wife, Mrs. Louis Robbins, who died a few weeks ago. The trustees have sent a letter to Mr. Robbins expressing their appreciation of the gift and the promptness with which he carried out the wish of Mrs. Robbins.

At the Congregational church last night there was a most interesting lecture on "Beautiful Foochow—Where the Mine and the Mountain Meet" by Mrs. W. L. Beard. Mrs. Beord whose girlhood home was in Putnam, has lived in China for the greater part of the last thirty years. Both she and her husband, Dr. Willard L. Beard are members of the Foochow mission of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions and have returned from there only since the trouble in China. Mrs. Beord is a sister of Miss Emma J. Kinney and Elbert Kinney of this city.

Rev. John E. Duxbury of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city has been preaching during the week at the North Grosvenordale church which has been inaugurating special series of meetings and continuing for two weeks. During the first two weeks in December special meetings will be held in the Methodist church here and Rev. Mr. Baker of the North Grosvenordale church will preach.

A brother of Mrs. Charles Rothe of East Putnam, Calvin Rockwood is a patient in a Worcester hospital where he underwent an operation for appendicitis a few days ago. Mr. Rockwood's son figured in a motor cycle accident recently and his father-in-law, Charles Cordin, 84 years of age, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital.

Dr. Hugh Campbell of Norwich will not hold his tuberculosis clinic at the Day Kimball hospital this month. He is not able to come to Putnam because of the illness of a member of the staff at the Norwich hospital.

G. O. P. NAMES C. A. RICHARD FOR MAYOR OF PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 11—At the republican caucus last night, Charles A. Richard who has been alderman at large was nominated for mayor, and Warren S. Ames, the present alderman from ward No. 2 was nominated for alderman-at-large. Archie Macdonald, Jr., was named as tax collector and Charles H. Brown as city treasurer. The nominees for alderman from the several wards were ratified.

There was no opposition to any of the candidates. Judge M. H. Geissler was moderator and Arthur C. Keith was clerk.

The nominees from the wards for aldermen on the republican ticket are as follows: Ward one, Robert T. Chadwick to succeed E. C. Rogers; ward two, John M. Dean to succeed Warren S. Ames; ward three, Leo Deliale to succeed himself and in ward four Eugene Mignaule succeeds Desaire Labby.

The public schools of Putnam and the state trade school observed today as a holiday and no sessions were held either during the day or evening. The trade school, however, will reopen for the morning session on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Putnam and son Charles of Westboro, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Johnson and children of Willimantic have been the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Adams of South Main street.

P. F. Brady of Providence street is ending several weeks with friends and relatives in Woonsocket.

Miss Mary Carpenter, an instructor at Abbott's Academy at Andover, Mass., has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. Alice Carpenter, Grove street.

Mrs. John E. Duxbury, wife of the Rev. John E. Duxbury of the Methodist church is a patient at the Deaconness hospital where she recently underwent an operation.

Mrs. J. F. Carpenter who has been critically ill at the Day Kimball hospital is reported as improving and is now able to sit up.

Miss Addie Holland of the Sawyer district has returned from a visit with Mrs. L. Howard Cross of Central Village.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Sandstrom who have been visiting relatives in the city have returned to their home in Aquebagne, L. I. Miss Marion Wilcox returned with them for a visit.

George Mc[illegible]nald of School street spent the holiday with friends in Boston.

Lieut. Pauline Bryan of Ansonia, Conn., has been the guest of Capt. Ivy Martin of the Salvation Army.

GALES FERRY

Mr. and Mrs. J. Otis Manchester and Mrs. Ella Draper of Norwich motored here in the Draper car Thursday afternoon on a business call at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Winchester.

Miss Foster, a representative of the household service bureau, of New York gave an interesting talk on the care, cleaning and renovating of fine textiles, at the club house, Monday afternoon. Miss Foster's coming here was arranged by Mrs. Belle H. J. Robynson home demonstration agent, of the county farm bureau, with the educational department of the Village Improvement association.

Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, a member of the board of directors of the Norwich Red Cross branch, who is in charge of the auxiliaries, as in other years, has appointed Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins, local chairman of the annual drive for membership, which began Armistice day. Mrs. Joseph Clark is chairman of the work at Ledyard Center.

The November meeting of the auxiliary of the Woman's Home Missionary society, was held at the home of Mrs. C. E. Colver, at the Submarine base, Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. G. H. Wright, presiding. The program had been arranged by Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt and opened with singing Brighten the Corner Where You Are, Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt at the piano. Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins, conducted the devotions. Roll call and minutes of the October meeting were given by the secretary, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop. The treasurer's report by Mrs. Colver, was approved as read. A card was read by Mrs. Molthrop from Mrs. B. I. Eaton, district thank offering secretary, of Stafford Springs in the interest of thank offering. Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt was elected thank offering secretary of this auxiliary and an open meeting will be held at the church in December when she will be hostess. Mrs. Robert Bitgood of New London will be invited to speak. Mrs. Jerome Greer, corresponding secretary of the M. H. M. society of the conference, Miss Sarah L. Latimer and Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, delegates to the 44th annual meeting of the W. H. M. society at Trinity M. E. church, Norwich, gave interesting reports of the meetings. Mrs. Marie Cathcart conducted the enigmas, Mrs. John Harold gave the numbers with Thanksgiving cards. One new member joined, Mrs. Fred E. Richards, making three new jubilee members. During the social hour Mrs. Colver, assisted by Mrs. Harold and Misses Helen and Margaret Colver, with Matilda Harold, served ice cream and cake.

An Achievement Night is to be given at the Country Club house one evening this month, by the local 4-H club, the Jolly Cookies and So-ers, under the direction of the leader, Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt. A committee of the second year members, Ethel Main, Dorothy Baudeo, Helen DeRusha and Rose Norcross, will be in charge of the program. There will be an exhibition of their sewing the articles, including laundry bags, towels, sewing bags, pin balls and other things. Fourteen girls were present at the home of the leader Mrs. Hurlbutt at Woodlawn farm, at the last meeting.

SOLVING SHIPPING PROBLEM

Any plan which is put forth for the settlement of a much discussed problem is bound to get attention, either because of a recognition of its outstanding merits or because it is felt that it contains ideas which can be utilized with others. Thus when Edward N. Hurley, formerly chairman of the shipping board, comes forward with a suggestion for handling the shipping question it is due to get attention. It should be considered for the help that it may contain. Possibly he has hit upon the very thing that will be the means of solving the problem.

The former chairman has had much experience relative to shipping affairs. He proposes that a revolving fund of a half billion be created by congress to be loaned to American shipbuilders at 2 1-2 per cent. for the construction of freight and passenger vessels. That he believes would take care of the demand for new ships under the American flag. He understands the importance of such construction but he also recognizes that it is the the desire of the country and the administration that the government get out of the shipping business. To meet this phase of the matter he would require those getting the assistance of the federal revolving fund to purchase a certain amount of the tonnage now possessed by the government. That wouldn't dispose of the entire government owned merchant marine over the week end but it would gradually whittle it down in accord with the amount of new shipbuilding that was indulged in when the aid of government funds was sought. In time, but not what could be regarded as brief, the government would work itself free from the ownership of merchant vessels.

It is an idea of course for the experts to pick to pieces. Its merits are nevertheless entitled to consideration and there will be no hesitancy in pointing out its handicaps. Mr. Hurley has been careful to keep away from the idea of a subsidy and he has figured it out that if put into operation the plan would inflict no great burden upon the government. Congress cannot do otherwise than accord it a thoughtful once over.

HELPING VERMONT

The appeal which has gone out by the governor of Vermont for assistance in dealing with the situation which has been created by the floods in that state will meet a ready response. Offers had been previously made and it is a bit unfortunate that there was a misunderstanding at the state regarding the attitude of the state concerning outside help.

In that state of hills and valleys the swollen rivers have raised havoc. Factories have been damaged, homes have been wrecked, roads have been given rough treatment and railroad lines have been put out of business. How this was possible and what it means is plainly indicated by the statement of the Central Vermont railroad to the effect that 23 of its bridges were swept away. Restoring such conditions cannot be accomplished in a twinkling.

Vermont's plight is such that it will not only awaken sympathy but will get the needed help. Already it is on the ground or on the way. Dealing with the health situation, providing supplies and restoring order must precede the reconstruction of homes, the reopening of factories and the reestablishment of business in general.

Even the pictures which have been furnished of the flood fail to present the general situation. They deal with certain of the high spots but havoc has been extensive and it will be a long time before there is a restoration of the previous conditions.

Under such conditions, made all the worse by cold weather and snow, help is urgent. With the Red Cross assuming its characteristic relief work, with students volunteering and with other forces lending their moral and financial assistance Vermont will gradually recover from its sudden and destructive blow. What will be required to accomplish the necessary relief work is not known, but neither the Red Cross, the government nor the states would see it lack for funds to properly overcome the distress. It is because of its readiness and efficiency in such emergencies that the Red Cross never fails to command support.

WHEN CONSUMERS BALK

Reluctant though it is, the owners and operators of anthracite mines and the miners of anthracite are obliged to recognize the fact that hard coal is open to serious competition, that consumers are no longer at the complete mercy of the anthracite region, that there has been open resentment of the hardships and handicaps caused by conditions in the anthracite industry and that the resort to substitutes is not merely a threat but an actuality.

Up to the time it became necessary to look about for substitutes, anthracite was depended upon in practically all homes in certain sections of the country and particularly New England. When conditions became intolerable and the people were annoyed and made to suffer there was a resort to substitutes which has continued to increase. It is inevitable that the industry should recognize it. President Warriner of the anthracite operators' conference didn't hesitate to present the situation as it exists. He made reference to some of the facts as being unpleasant but they cannot nevertheless be dodged.

Although the tax on anthracite which is collected by Pennsylvania does not add a huge burden to the consumer, nevertheless it is regarded as grossly unjust and it has caused widespread resentment. It is one of the straws which have helped to break the back of the anthracite camel. People have not only found out to their own satisfaction, but they have successfully demonstrated to the producers that they can get along without anthracite. There has been a revolt over the injustice and even Pennsylvania authorities are giving recognition to it as evidenced by the statement of Governor Fisher declaring the state's willingness to abandon the tax as soon as a revenue substitute can be found.

The consumers have brought about a recognition of their importance to the anthracite industry. They would have been satisfied if they hadn't been forced into it, but inasmuch as they were they did the only thing possible. The reason for it lies in the conditions in the anthracite fields.

PEANUT SHELLS

Many congratulations will be extended to those upon whose shoulders fall the task of cleaning up Central park, New York city, over the fact that they have been able to get through such an order as that directing that no more peanuts in shells can be sold in that area.

This is going to be received with indignation by the many thousands who are not quite at ease or happy unless they are munching at a bag of peanuts. They have a chance to resort to the salted peanuts or the shelled variety, but the warm roasted peanuts have been banned.

This order was made necessary because of the lack of consideration on the part of the peanut eaters. They distribute the shells wherever they fall. If the eater is sitting there will be a pile at his feet. If he is traveling about they will be scattered to such an extent as to be unnoticeable.

At many other places than Central park have peanut shells long since been looked upon as a nuisance. It isn't possible to ban the peanut eaters for they are a peaceful class even though they have difficulty in resisting the appeal of the peanut, but it is possible to stop the sale of the shelled variety. Thus peanuts in the park will never be the same again, but for those who have to clean up such rubbish the relief will be considerable. It is another one of those instances where the failure to give consideration to the effect of litter upon appearances and the labor of others has brought restrictions which might easily have been avoided. The humble peanut isn't in disgrace but the eaters must indulge elsewhere or get a substitute. The untidy always penalize others as well as themselves.

HOUSE NUMBERING

Is your house numbered? There's probably a great many things which are much more important than the numbering of houses. It can be figured that those who seek can find out by inquiring, where the person wanted resides or where the number looked for is located. That is entirely possible but it may require going about an entire neighborhood before the desired information is obtained.

The desirability of having houses plainly and conspicuously numbered must make its appeal to all those who have had an experience in trying to find a certain house on a street where there were no numbers displayed, or trying to locate at night the numbers on the houses where the owners seemed to have taken delight in trying to hide them from the eye of the searcher.

For the accommodation of the people, residents and non-residents alike, it is a valuable service that is rendered when the streets of a city are carefully and prominently marked, but it is of much additional importance that the houses upon these streets should be plainly and prominently numbered, thought even being given in the placing of them to the fact that it is quite as often that a person that help at night as in the daytime.

It can hardly be expected that there will be uniformity or that each one will provide an illuminated number at night. Other things of course call for attention before such a detail as this, but house numbers ought not to be put in obscure places any more than house numbering ought to be neglected. As the householders must realize it means quite as much to them as it does to those who rely upon such assistance.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Private enterprise in Scotland is justified in taking steps to preserve the birthplace of David Livingstone, the great missionary-explorer. His romantic life sounds much more like fiction than actual fact. It is only another illustration of the old sayong that "truth is stranger than fiction." Livingstone's career is one of those that presents a fine object lesson for ambitious young men of today. Born in quite humble circumstances, at the tender age of ten he was put into a cotton factory, where the hours were long and the pay small. However, he made the most possible out of an evening school; was enabled to study medicine, and eventually was sent by the London Missionary society to Africa. His great contribution was in putting central Africa upon the map. He was the first white man to travel from the ambeni to the Congo. In 1871, Stanley, of the New York Herald, found him in great destitution, and furnished the means for further explorations. He died in 1873, and his remains were brought to England and lai din Westminster abbey.

Speaking of birthplaces, how perfectly natural it is to associate great men with the locality in which they were born and where they lived. It is a great pleasure for the American people—as they have never seen Washington—to visit Mount Vernon thus coming into direct contact not only with the locality but with the home in which he lived for many years and in which he died. No foreign tourist thinks of returning home without a visit to Mount Vernon, and it must be a source of great joy to the father of his country to see the honor that is given to his memory—provided he is now conscious of mundane affairs. The writer remembers the thrill he had in visiting the home of Longfellow in Cambridge. Unconsciously he found himself repeating the Psalm of Life: "Lives of great men all remind us; We can make our lives sublime."

Probably no American writer is quoted more frequently than Ralph Waldo Emerson, and the following is one we often see in print: "What you are speaks so loudly that I cannot hear what you say." This is certainly a great compliment to the unuttered accents of the human personality. A still older and better known saying along the same line is this, "actions speak louder than words." This, I think, is exactly what Emerson means. If we are to know anything of the human personality it must have some means of communication. It is not provided with any material vocal structure like that of the human throat, and yet no one can escape the power of the human personality. The writer remembers vividly the trouble a certain school committee had with a big, burly school teacher who talked in a loud voice most of the time, and the children talked also. It was such a farce that the teacher had to be removed. The new teacher was a 17-year-old girl, small in stature, but quite forceful. The order was perfect. It was personality in evidence.

When the weather is a bit out of the ordinary we say that it is fitul; when a human being does things that the crowd doesn't understand we call him erratic. We are weighed, measured, and rated according to set rules, and any deviation therefrom gives rise to the freak. It is a dangerous thing for anybody to take the initiative because it makes one appear as abnormal. On one occasion a railway train refused to start out of the Waterloo station in London. Mechanics went about tapping this part and that with their hammers, confessing their inability to do anything because they never knew a train to act so before. It seemed to them that some supernatural agency was at work. There was a time in this country if any young minister dared to preach anything out of the general run, he was called queer. But let us thank God that such an age is largely passing!

In one of his minor poems, Robert Browning says: "Not failure, but low aim, is crime." The degree of censure that attaches to failure ought to be measured according to ther strength and character of our effort. Just how much of our real selves have we thrown into the attempt of accomplishment? Has there bee nany inexcusable stupidity in our method of procedure? No person should be harshly criticised for failing to reach the goal if he has done all that was humanly possible to get there. The papers have no criticism—as far as I have seen—of the young man who put forth heroic effort to save a young child from the wreckage that was swirling down from the Berkshires into the Westfield valley during the recent flood, ro mthe absolute standpoint it was a failure because he did not gain the object sought, but in no possible way could it be construed as a crime. The man who lives for low gratification fails and his act is criminal.

Anton Long who impersonated Christ several times in the Oberammergau Passion play, is said to have grown more and more into the moral image of the Master; but Wilhelm Zwink who took the part of Judas went out and hanged himself. Psychologists have often remarked that there is a tendency for a person to grow into the image of what delights him most of with which he has the most to do. During his brief life, rederFick W. Robertson, the eminent divine of Brighton, England, is said to have had such a spiritual face that when he appeared on the streets of London strangers would stop and stare at him. The high moral and intellectual trend of his whole life was so marked that it even made the physical nature radiant. Is it not also true that if one lives a beastial life he can hide it no more than the "leopard can change his spots or the Ethiopian his skin?"

The following is one of the wise sayings of Plutarch (Parallel Lives) "It is well to go to another man's fire for light, but one should not tarry there so long as not to kindle one of his own." Most men who are engaged in intellectual pursuits find it necessary to resort statedly to the springs of thought; that is, the best that can be found in literature in order to keep the mind in a producing capacity. Unless we have access to such sources we very soon run dry. Cut a branch from a tree in the growing season and how soon the leaves droop! If we stay too long at "another man's fire" the tendency will be to appropriate it to ourselves as our own. This is downright stealing, or, in literary language, plagiarism. It is one thing to go to another man's fire to get warmth and light, but quite another thing to steal his fire. If we get the light and there is in us any creative energy we will soon have a fire of our own.

It was once said that "the pen is mightier than the sword," but recently it has been shown—at least in one portion of the globe—that "dolls are stronger than armies." We all remember with some occasion for deep regret the Japanese exclusion clause appended to the Immigration bill. Its moral effect upon a sensitive race was very depressing. Probably this was not considered at any time a casus belli between the two nations. But a little thing arose later that created quite a different atmosphere. The children of America sent over to Japan a shipload of dolls, and the moral beauty of the act captured the nation. The mayors of the leading cities expressed the gratitude of the nation's little girls with no uncertain sound. The exclusion act was forgotten when the real heart of America was thus expressed. It is still true that "a little child shall lead them."

Sunday Morning Talk

For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord; walk on children of light.—Eph. 5:8.

Light by its very nature radiates. It strikes one spot only to slant from it to another. One may sit in a window and catch the whole disk of the sun in a hand glass on the neighbors across the way. Sometimes in war the signal service men stand on a hill top and flash the light from one mirror to another, until at last there was transmitted far across the country the plan of the campaign. Under the same principles of radiation, the messages of God are transmitted to the people. The mirror of one pure life catches the light on its undimmed surface and then the light slants on to other lives, and across the years the purposes of God are conveyed and made plain. It takes a very small mirror to reflect the whole circle of the sun. It takes no more than a very insignificant life to transmit in a clear image, the reflection of the light of God. And that is what gives to life its great significance to reflect, to lighten and be a light in the world to lighten others on the journey of life. "Ye are the light of the world."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

J. Alfred Spender, who is now touring America as first Senior Fellow to be appointed through the American Newspaper Fellowships of the Walter Hines Page Memorial, is one of the leaders of British thought and one of the most prominent editors and journalists in London. He is considered a clear-sighted politician and thinker from a liberal point of view, and for years he has been credited with having a great personal influence with leading politicians in Great Britain. In 1912, at the retirement of Viscount Bryce, he was mentioned for the British embassy at Washington. Mr. Spender is 75 years old and is an Oxford graduate. He began his journalistic career as editor of a paper at Hull in 1886. In the early '90s he went to London and for a number of years was editor of the Westminster Gazette.

OCEAN FLOOR VALUABLE FIELD FOR INVESTIGATIONS.

Great canons in the ocean's floor from two to five miles deeper than the surrounding ottoms, with widths a field of investigation and exploration, valuable in seismology and in other fields of science, it was stated at the Coast and Geodetic survey. Study of these gorges in vast ocean deeps was recommended at the recent convention at Prague, Czechoslovakia, of the International Geodetic and Geophysical union. It would be valuable if such a study should be made by the United States, according to the chief of the survey's division of geodesy, William Bowie.

"The deeps," Mr. Bowie explained, "are those parts of the ocean floor that are three miles or more below the surface of the ocean waters. And below these ocean bottoms, there are in many places gigantic gorges that are from ten to fifty miles in width and from two to five miles deeper than the surrounding bottoms of the ocean. The grand canyon of the Colorado in Arizona is dwarfed to insignificance by these tremendous canyons that drop down to fearful depths below the already deep beds of the sea.

Most Quakes Occur in Ocean

"Approximately three out of four earthquakes occur under the surface of the sea. Of these earthquakes of submarine origin most of them probably happen in these gorges. There is one of these sub-sea gorges off the Aleutian islands, there is another off the Philippines, there is one off the west coast of Mexico that follows the coast line for many miles, there is one off the south coast of the island of Java, which has been the subject of investigation by the Dutch government, and there are many others.

"Steamships passing over the one off the Aleutians might be of service in investigation of that gorge. Investigation could determine whether there is lava in the gorges, the character of the crustal material underlying the deeps and many other matters that would be useful to the science of today."

Dr. Bowie was one of the American delegates to the convention in Prague. "One of the great problems discussed at the Prague meeting," he said, "was the charting of the oceans. It is rather remarkable that, in spite of the fact that the oceans support, or rather furnish food for millions of people, very little, scientifically, is known about the oceans, the causes of the ocean currents, why we have a submerged range along the axis of the Atlantic with only a few peaks rising above the water as islands, and why there are ocean troughs at least six miles deep.

Work Easy With Sonic Sounder

"We could easily find out much about the oceans at a very small cost. We have the sonic sounder which will furnish the depths of the water when it is used on a steamer that may be making 20 knots or more per hour. If each of the navies of the world should send two or three destroyers, each equipped with modern apparatus, we could know the exact configuration of the ocean bottoms within a very few years.

"It is a remarkable fact that nearly all the great earthquakes occur under the oceans, near the edges of the continental shelves and in the great ocean depths. We need to have a large number of seismological stations which will record the shocks. From such records the exact location of the earthquake can be determined.

"Some of these days we shall have an earthquake map with dots of varying sizes or colors showing the earthquake locations and the intensities of the quakes, just as now we have cyclone and hailstorm maps. All of these studies require the cooperation of men of different countries; the problem cannot be solved by any one nation.

"Cooperation can only be obtained by having the men come together to talk over formally or informally the various problems before them. After the conferences, committees could be appointed which could set forth the various problems to be attacked and outline methods by which these problems may be solved.

"We have the big question as to why we have oceans and continents or, rather, why we have an irregular earth's surface, with broad hollows and wide uplands. This problem has confronted the scientists for generations.

Gravity Observations Helpful

"We have found out something about continents and oceans by means of gravity observations, but until recently these observations were made only on land.

"A few years ago a Dutch scientist devised an apparatus which could only be used on a submarine in determining the value of gravity over the oceans. He has circumnavigated the globe in a submarine, and he has found that the oceans are in inistatic equilibrium, just as previously we had found this condition to obtain under the continents.

"All this means that the material forming the outer portion of the earth, under the oceans, is denser than that under the continents. This may not seem to be a great discovery, but it is having a marked influence on geological and geophysical thought.

"Then there is the question, which needs international cooperation, of the shape and size of the earth. This is a problem that has been attacked by many people, starting with Erastothenes, about 300 B. C., who did a very good job for his day, down to the present.

"It is a rather dicult matter to determine exactly the shape and size of the earth from observations made in only a small area. The best values are from work done in the United States, and our area is only 3,000,000 square miles while the entire surface of the earth is close to 300,000,000 square miles. Methods must be adopted among the workers of different countries which will provide data of uniform quality for studying this problem."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"Companionate Marriage"

Mr. Editor: One great advantage of travel is the opportunity of observing the thought and actions of other people. We are aware that north is north, south is south, east is east, and west is west, each having their own peculiar characteristic, nevertheless human nature is fundamentally the same, moral and ethical problems concern each alike.

At the moment California is acutely excited over Ben Lindsey's proposal for "companionate marriage" that has received wide publicity and has roused the women of the State Federation of Women's clubs to take a sharply barbed resolution against it. The resolution in full reads: "Whereas, there is abroad today excited discussion pursuant to the proposed new form of marriage contract through which the sanctity of the home and its marriage relations have been held up to ridicule and caricature, and whereas, as a body of women consecrated to principles of high moral ideals and believing the home, the cradle of national ideals, and whereas, we know the youth of our land is receiving wrong impressions of our standards of living through widespread propaganda and the ideas of individuals and that such education is attacking the fundamental principle and is of a nature that will take years of training to eradicate.

Therefore, be it resolved that we, the members of the board of the Los Angeles district California Federation of Women's clubs, go on record, as standing firmly for the dignity and sanctity of the marriage relations, the protection of its ideals and its children, the future hope of our nation." This is a matter that should rouse the indignation of fall right thinking women; for it would be the women who would be the miserable victims of "companionate marriage." They will never sanction such a blow to their ideals of family life. They recognize only one way to reach their ideal and that is not to lower them, but to raise themselves up to them. "Companionate marriage," would be a step backward to the dark ages. California has reason to be proud of her women.

Central Village

Mr. Editor: Central Village is one place without a peer in this part of Connecticut, and one place so located, that no matter what railroads, bus lines or any one else chooses to do, it just happily grins and buckles on its armor conscious of the fact that its location is perfect, its good roads reach all points east, west, north and south and when you start a journey in any direction that passes through Central Village you are assured that no matter what may befall you and yours the remedy is just ahead. The motorist finds every needed article, there is a tip top country hotel and first class stores of all kinds and best of all in the very centre of the beautiful village you can stop and get a copy of The Bulletin, that is as necessary in Connecticut as pork and beans are of a Saturday night.

Don't fail in laying out your trip through Windham county to see that very heart of the county, Central Village as your objective point at the start and when you get here its mighty easy to go the rest of the way.

The glad hand is always on the outside of every one's door and the hearty "I've enjoyed your visit, call again" is the last thing you hear.

YOUR HEALTH

MILK IS OUT BEST FOOD

By R. R. Kime, M. D., Orlando, Fla.
Member Gorgas Memorial

Milk contains practically all the essential elements of food to preserve life and health. It has proteins, carbohydrates, minerals, and vitamins, being deficient only in iron, vitamin C, and possibly iodine in some sections. These deficiencies can be easily supplied by giving orange or tomato juice, egg yolk, green vegetables, and supplying iodine in sections where needed. Milk and milk products should form part of the diet of every person, unless one has a peculiar idiosyncrasy that precludes their use. With milk and milk products, a well-balanced diet can be arranged with other foods which will meet all demands of the body for growth, exercise, and health.

No food equals mother's milk for the infant. If the nursing baby does not thrive, the mother's milk should be analyzed, the deficiencies corrected, and the milk brought back to normal standard. No baby should be deprived of mother's milk or fed on artificial foods except under the advice and care of a physician.

Milk should be one of the most universal articles of diet, but should be handled with extreme care. It is easily contaminated and rendered unfit for use. All dairy buildings and cows should be kept clean, cows should be tested with tuberculin, and should have proper food and pure water. The milk should be handled in sterilized vessels and immediately strained, cooled, bottled, and kept below 50 degrees until used, because germs develop at a rapid rate in standing warm milk.

Milk bottles should not be opened after being sterilized until ready to use the milk. Then they should be emptied, filled immediately with water, washed and sterilized.

Sterilizing, boiling, and pasteurized milk destroys most of the harmful bacteria (not all of their spores,) destroys part of the vitamins, produces some changes in enzymes, and renders milk more constipating. Ordinary milk that must be kept for some time or shipped should be pasteurized and the deficiencies made up in the other articles of diet or specially supplied. Pasteurizing destroys typhoid, tuberculosis, and diphtheria germs and other harmful forms of bacteria. Since pasteurization does not destroy all the spores of the germs, the milk should be kept cool the same as unsterilized or certified milk.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

KALGAN

"Kalgan, important trading-center of northern China, recently occupied by nationalist forces, occupies one of the most ancient crossroads in the world," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "There the caravan route from Peking to Urga, on the other side of the Gobi desert, crosses the great wall of China. The great wall has fallen into disuse and is no longer a military highway, but the caravan route to Mongolia has kept pace with the times and now automobiles mingle with the camel trains on its long and tedious path.

"Kalgan is situated near the border of the province of Chili and Mongolia, about 125 miles by rail, northwest of Peking. At this point the great wall has formed a horseshoe curve. Kalgan is on the outer edge and Nankow on the inner. The traveler from Peking thus crosses the old fortification twice, once at Nankow and later at Kalgan. The railway journey from Peking occupies an entire day, due to the steady rise in the landscape toward the Mongolian plateau, which has Kalgan on its rim.

"Thence tea and tobacco for the northern trade must be hauled across the Gobi by cart, camel, or an occasional motor truck. Such a journey occupies many days, wells being twenty, thirty and even fifty miles apart. Caravans are enormous, some numbering between three and four hundred camels. Many camels succumb to heat, cold, hunger or thirst and the trail is marked by bleached bones of dead animals. For the most part they get through, however, and on their way south pour the products of Mongolia into Kalgan. Hides, wool, and furs reach this outpost of civilization in enormous quantities from the grazing lands of the north.

"Another Mongolian product marketed through Kalgan is the hardy little Mongol pony of the plains. These are in demand throughout the northern provinces, especially gray and white ponies, the latter being favorites with the Chinese. Foreigners find these tough little beats first rate for saddle purposes, though they have a reputation for stumbling.

"Plains, ponies, and herds give Kalgan the air of the old American West, an illusion not dispelled by its reputation for lawlessness.

"The city has an estimated population of 70,000 who are largely employed in trading and allied industries, such as the manufacture of saddles, harness and rope. Low mud and brick houses with tile roofs stretch in dirty monotony on either side of the Ta Ho, which stream cuts the city in two, and during the rainy season sometimes floods the neighborhood. There are many Russian inhabitants and they have their own bank and church. Modern architecture is represented by a few business buildings belonging to the fur and tobacco trade and native stores. The white population other than Russian has always been small, limited to a few traders and missionaries.

"Kalgan is a name unfamiliar to the majority of China's inhabitants, the city being known by the Chinese as Chang Chia Kou. Mention this name to a home-loving Chinaman and he pictures for you a wild frontier settlement in whose streets galloping Mongol horsemen from the plains jostle tea caravans enroute for Siberia, and soldiers from the local garrison. Such a picture of Kalgan has been drawn by Chinese narrators from the earliest times and is equally true today. It is known among foreigners resident in China, as a city of the 'wild and woolly' West where the hospitality of the traders is only equaled by a bracing upland climate."

Stories That Recall Others

Maybe They Did!

In mission week auntie took Sonny to her church with her and an evangelist was the speaker of the evening. He made a touching appeal. Several came to the altar, some kneeling at the front benches.

Sonny, who is not quite three, watched the proceeding with much interest, and the next day said to his mother:

"Mother, they was a-cryin' down to auntie's church."

"They were!" exclaimed mother, surprised.

"An' they were down on their knees a-lookin' under the benches!" he added.

"Well, what were they doing that for?" mother asked.

Sonny appeared puzzled. "I don't know," he confessed. "Maybe dey lost anything."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter's Suspicions Are Confirmed

The truth is jealousy most blind;
The thing it seeks 'tis bound to find.
—Old Mother Nature.

How long Peter sat watching the strange young rabbit, who looked like, yet wasn't, Mrs. Peter, he never knew. He didn't want to make himself known and this modest young rabbit seemed quite satisfied to do nothing. The fact is, she presently closed her eyes for a nap. Peter wanted to go on and yet he didn't want to go on. He was fairly burning up with curiosity. He wanted to know who she was.

At last something happened that for the time being put this young stranger out of his head completely. His long ears caught the sound of a faint thump. It was so far away that he could only hear it faintly. Perhaps it was Old Jed Thumper. Peter strained his ears. He heard another thump. This time it was from another direction.

It was little Mrs. Peter who was touching noses with that handsome stranger

"That," said Peter, "was Old Jed Thumper. And that came from that bramble-tangle where Old Jed Thumper lives. No, who thumped that other thump?"

Once more he heard it. It was still too faint orf him to recognize it. Right away he started in that direction. He proposed to find out, and find out right away, who was up there thumping in the Old Pasture. As he hurried along he heard another thump. He stopped short to listen. This thump was not Old Jed Thumper, nor was it the other thump he had heard. Old Jed Thumper's thump had been an angry thump. This thump was not an angry thump. It was just such a thump as little Mrs. Peter had often signaled him with. Could it be Mrs. Peter signaling that other thumper? Peter ground his teeth at the thought and hurried on.

The next time he heard those thumps they were not far away. They were where he could locate them. There was no doubt that two rabbits were signaling each other. Peter could tell by the sound of one set of thumps that it was a big rabbit who was doing the thumping. It must be that handsome stranger who was doing the thumping, the one he was looking for. He knew now exactly where that thumping was coming from. It was coming from a certain bramble-tangle through which he himself had cut paths when he first came up to the Old Pasture expecting to stay there. This in itself was enough to make Peter very angry. He didn't like the idea of some one else using his paths.

Peter longed to thump a challenge to this strange rabbit. But he didn't do it. Instead he took the greatest care not to let that other rabbit know that he was about. Very carefully he crept nearer and nearer. At last he reached a place where he could look into that bramble-tangle. There sat a big rabbit. He was a fine-looking rabbit. Much as he disliked to, Peter had to admit this. He was young, good-looking and big. He thumped strongly with his hind feet. There was an answer—a light thump from near by. Peter waited.

Just a few minutes later a much smaller rabbit appeared. She entered the bramble-tangle and went over and touched noses with the stranger. Peter saw it all very plainly. It was little Mrs. Peter who was touching noses with this handsome stranger. It was just what he had expected. Yet now that he saw it he couldn't believe it. His suspicions were confirmed. You know that means that they were proven well founded. Much as he disliked to, he had to believe his own eyes. There was Mrs. Peter touching noses with this stranger. He had heard this stranger thump, he had heard Mrs. Peter answer, and now there they were together right before his eyes. He was filled with such jealous anger that he didn't hear another thump not very far away. But the stranger heard it and answered it instantly.

MONTVILLE UNVEILS HONOR ROLL ON BOULDER ON SCHOOL GROUNDS

Armistice day was observed in the town of Montville by the unveiling and dedication of the World war honor roll, a bronze tablet set into the face of a large boulder placed on the grounds of the Uncasville school on the Norwich-New London highway. The exercises were held in the afternoon, preceded by a parade that started at 2.30 over the line of march along Maple avenue to Palmertown and back along the Palmertown road to the Uncasville school house, covering about 5 miles. House and mills along the line displayed the national colors and parked automobiles at many points along the line of march made vantage points for those who viewed the parade.

Lieut. Comdr. Frederick B. Craven, U. S. N. R. F., was the parade marshal and the first division was headed by the coast guard band of New London followed by a corps of cadets Xfrom the Coast Guard academy, marines from the submarine base, sailors from the U. S. patrol force, Atlantic fleet; Div. No. 1, coast guard sailors from Section Base 4, Battery A, 192nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., New London; Battery B, 192nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., Norwich; and Combat Train 192nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., Norwich.

The second division, headed by Swahn's band of Norwich, was composed of delegations representing the American Legion, fraternal organizations, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and the Red Cross. The first unit in the second division line of march was a contingent from the fifth district, American Legion, composed of legionnaires from ten posts.

The next three units represented Oxoboxo lodge, I. O. O. F., Cochegan camp, Modern Woodmen of America, and Pequot council, No. 25, Knights of Columbus, Montville branch, American Red Cross, had the next position in line, followed by Montville troops of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. A Red Cross float an automobile for the gold star mothers and other automobiles brought up the rear.

The programme at the schoolhouse opened with the invocation and the singing of America by the school children.

Armistice Day Address

Past State Commander Kenneth F. Kramer of the American Legion made the Armistice day address in which he spoke of the contrast between Armistice day at the front and at home, and went on to say that it has ever been the attitude of this nation to resort to war only when every other recourse has failed.

Continuing he said, "We must devote every bit of our intelligence and energy to preventing war but we cannot stop there. We must be ready to end a war quickly if one should break out in spite of our best efforts. There is no conflict here. There is no contradiction of ideas. While striving for peace wholeheartedly, we must admit the possibility of war and therefore we advocate a reasonable preparedness.

"Every generation has seen the U. S. unprepared for war and has witnessed the dire results of such a policy. It was so in 1775—it was so in 1814 and it was so in 1898. As for the late war, I trust you will pardon an inference drawn from my own experience. While waiting to be thrown into the Argonne battle my regiment received 360 replacements. Almost all of them with less than three months service and practically all of that time spent in equipping and travelling en route to the front. The two days intervening before we were ordered in were spent in teaching these men the rudiments of soldiery, how to load, aim and fire a rifle. A condition should never have been allowed to arise necessitating the battle service of such men.

"In 1920 this country adopted the national defense act, the first consistent preparedness policy that we have ever had. Under this act we believed that we could have at least the minimum military establishment necessary for national safety.

"But we have found that this act does not assure us an adequate national defense. We have seen congress fail to appropriate enough funds to carry out the provisions of the act. We have seen the regular army reduced below what we believe to be the dough point and the whole scheme of defense endangered by lack of support.

"The citizens of the United States must insist on the provisions of this act being carried out.

"In closing let us again take thought on this glorious memorial day of the men who by their sacrifice have created and perpetuated this nation. Let us make the ceremonies today a fresh strating point in service to the nation. Let us take inspiration from the men whose memory we renew. Let us live again."

Rev. Charles Smith, Rev. John Landry and Mayor James A. May of New London were others to speak.

The honor roll was unveiled by officials of the town of Montville, who on behalf of the town, presented the memorial to the American Legion. Officers of Montville post spoke in acceptance.

After the dedication, a brief memorial service took place during which a wreath was placed on the honor roll by Legionnaires in memory of their departed comrades while a bugler sounded taps. The exercises closed with the Star Spangled Banner played by the massed bands.

In the evening there was a supper for those who took part in the exercises, followed by a dance given under the auspices of Montville post, No. 112, American Legion, which was held at the Community house.

BAPTIST WOMEN ENJOY INDOOR PICNIC RALLY

Women of the Central Baptist church, with whom the women of seven other Baptist churches united by invitation, enjoyed an indoor picnic and rally of the Women's league Friday, which began with a reception from 5.30 to 6.30 in the church auditorium in honor of Mrs. Smith Thomas Ford of Tarrytown, N. Y., a former national president of the Women's Baptist Home Mission society. During the reception hour the Sunday school orchestra played.

At 6.30 supper was served in the new women's parlor and the young people's assembly room, covers being laid for 200, and the following menu was served by the domestic committee; baked beans, potato salad, brown bread, pickles, rolls, ice cream, cake and coffee. The committee serving the supper consisted of Mrs. Henrietta Tefft, chairman, Mrs. Jennie Davis, Mrs. Willis P. Hill, Mrs. W. H. Covey, Jr., Miss Nellie Rathbone, and Mrs. E. Walter Phillips. The table decorations were in charge of the social committee, Miss Emily Gallup chairman.

Following the supper, Mrs. Lucius Brown conducted the devotional exercises, and Mrs. George A. Ashbey, president of the league, introduced the speakers on the programme. After a well rendered duet by Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., and Mrs. Olive Adams Potter, there were brief remarks by Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt and by Mrs. Pitt and the address of the evening was given by Mrs. Ford. She spoke in an inspiring way of the work of the women and the church, which she said was the only organized agency in the world through which God reaches and touches mankind. She urged that those in the church should give the best they have in the service of God and that the women should strive to develop leaders and initiative. She spoke also of the work done by the Baptist missionary training school for women and of the success of Christian Americanization work and she congratulated the women of the church upon the admirable facilities for their work which the new equipment at the church provides.

In conclusion she asked that the women pray that a wonderful impetus may be generated this year which will bring the world to the feet of Jesus Christ.

The singing of God Be With You closed the meeting.

Churches represented were the First and Third of this city, Waterford, Bozrah, Jewett City, Quaker Hill and Leffingwell.

MAY CUT PURSES ON BAY STATE CIRCUIT

A proposal was made Thursday afternoon before the Bay State circuit magnates that the $10,000 purses at Avon and Windsor, Ct., be cut in half next season, as it is regarded as too big an expense for the circuit to carry. This was brought up before the directors of the circuit at the business meeting held at the Eastern States offices on Worthington street, Springfield, Mass. No action was taken on the subject, but it will be taken up at the next meeting.

These large purses at the Nutmeg tracks have ben a feature of the Bay State light harness racing for several years. But some of the other cities want this cut to $5,000. No intimation that this cut would be made in the purses was revealed at yesterday's session, but it is thought there are several opposed to the idea.

The seven stops on the circuit were represented with President Charles A. Nash of Springfield presiding. Greenfield, Sturbridge, Springfield and Northampton were particularly loud in their claims that they enjoyed better seasons than ever before, while the interest in the three Connecticut towns, Avon, Windsor and Norwich, was ever on the increase. These same seven tracks will be members of the circuit again next year and while nothing definite has been done regarding the schedule, things point to the same route for the horses as during the past year.

This means opening at Greenfield and closing at Northampton, visiting Sturbridge, Norwich, Avon, Windsor and Springfield, respectively, in the interim. There was no talk of the recent rumor that had Providence seeking admission among the Bay Staters, and there was no representative here to settle the rumor.

New officers were elected for the coming year, with W. H. Dickinson of Northampton succeeding Charles A. Nash as president of the circuit. Thomas Ashworth of Sturbridge is the new vice president, while M. W. Delaney of Avon is the second vice president. Frank Kenney and John O'Reay, both of Boston, remain as secretary and treasurer of the circuit, respectively.

Plans for the annual banquet were made and H. A. Wilson of Boston has been named the chairman for the committee. He will immediately start plans for this big session of the Bay State horsemen. The banquet will be held in Boston and although no date was settled upon, it is hoped that it can be held the first week in February.

Another business meeting is scheduled to be held here early in January, when final plans for the banquet will be discussed and there also may be a few remarks to be made about the proposal to cut the purses at the Avon and Windsor tracks.

WEST COAST SERVICE TEAMS BATTLE TO TIE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—(AP)—West Coast service teams of the army and navy battled to a 6 to 6 tie in their annual game at Merkeley today.

The weighty sailors pushed over their first score in the opening period when Tout, fullback, carried the ball over after the team had rushed the ball near the goal posts from the 50-yard line. Army crashed over its touchdown in the last period. Each team's try for the extra point was blocked.

A brilliant military spectacle preceded the contest with army regiments and navy units passing in review before Governor C. C. Young, Major General John L. Hinds, commander of the corps area, and Rear Admiral Thomas Washington, commandant of the 12th naval district. A 21 gun salute was given before the game.

The Idaho-Washington joint homecoming game at Pull, Wash., resulted in a score that carried some consolation, a 7-7 tie. The game was played on a slippery field, at Eugene, Ore. The Oregon State college eleven won the annual state classic by defeating Oregon 21 to 7. The losers managed to put over their touchdown in the last two minutes of play.

The Washington huskies and California clash at Berkeley in the principal game on the coast tomorrow. Southern California should have an easy time with Colorado in a game at Los Angeles.

In the Rocky Mountain conference game at Denver, today, Denver university defeated Utah Aggies 13 to 9.

Grange's Team Wins

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Red Grange's New York Yankees defeated the Pottsville Maroons here today 19 to 13. Touchdowns by Tryon, Molenda and Badgro, spelled defeat for the home team.

Grange played six minutes. The scoring for the Maroon was due to Pete Henry's field goal, a touchdown by Carr, the extra point by Henry and a safety by the Yankees.

PRINCETON-YALE GAME FEATURE OF EASTERN GRIDIRON BATTLES TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—(AP)—Championship hopes hinge in the balance tonight as eastern football teams all along the line mobilized for the most important battles of the season on the morrow.

Renewing a rivalry dating back to 1872—the oldest of the day—Princeton's unbeaten and untied eleven prepared to tackle Yale at the New Haven bowl in a struggle for survival among the pitch by loss of its ace, Bruce Caldwell, through eleventh hour ineligibility, Yale tonight was conceded an equal chance.

With promise of equally as large a crowd at the Yankee stadium, the light cavalry of Notre Dame deployed for battle with the heavy howitzers of the army in one of the most colorful intersectional spectacles of the year. Army has been beaten only by Yale and Notre Dame's single sign of human vulnerability was a tie with Minnesota last Saturday.

Eastern football will be pitted against western in two other battles of giants—the Navy against Michigan at Ann Arbor and unbeaten Pittsburgh against Nebraska on the home field of the Panthers.

With the fires of ancient rivalries burning more fiercely than ever, Dartmouth's powerful array that was halted only by Yale takes on its old adversary Cornell, at Hanover; rejuvenated Pennsylvania entertains Columbia; Harvard seeks revenge on Brown for a 1926 defeat by the "Iron Men" and Colgate invades Syracuse for their annual classic.

In a battle certain to have a bearing on the final eastern rating, New York university's undefeated "Goose-step Huddle" marches against Penn state at State College, Pa. Washington & Jefferson, another of those unbeaten rarities, has its hands full with a battling Bucknell eleven. Georgetown, leading scorer of the east, invades Boston college while a third strong Catholic college team, Holy Cross, is grappling Marquette in an intersectional set-to at Milwaukee.

Among the "Little Three" the sparks will fly although the title already belongs to Wesleyan. While the champion teams takes on Rochester, Amherst and Williams fight it out for consolation honors.

Yale vs. Princeton, blue ribbon battle of them all in excellence of the teams as reflected by their records as well as in tradition, this year finds the Bulldog and the Tiger with as powerful and closely matched elevens as they have ever flung against each other.

Even with the ineligible Caldwell's 182 pounds missing, Yale has a slight edge in weight which is most apparent behind the line. In the forward walls, where the game may be decided, the rivals are practically even at 192 pounds per man. With Johnny Garvey in for Caldwell, Yale has a backfield averaging 179 1-3 pounds to Princeton's 172 3-4. Eddie Wittmer, 175 pound sophomore candidate for all-American honors, is the backfield ace of this young Tiger team.

Riding against the Army for Notre Dame will be such stars as John Niemiec and Christy Flanagan who broke away for the only score in last year's game. The raid will be met by "a thin blue line" of sturdy veterans, led by such stars as Captain Harry Wilson, Sprague and Murrell.

CALDWELL INVITED TO ANNUAL YALE PARTY

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—(AP)—Even though ineligibility keeps him out of Yale's two climax games, Bruce Caldwell will be one of the guests of honor at the annual Eli party, held under the auspices of the Yale club of Montclair, N. J., in Nick Roberts' old Yale barn, on December 3.

Caldwell has been invited to attend, together with Capt. Bill Webster and all of the other Yale varsity players.

Tad Jones, who retires as Yale's head coach at the close of this season, is expected to give something of a farewell address to the Eli alumni, outlining his recommendations on the future coaching policy.

Another feature will be the presentation of the Montclair "Yale Bowl" to a distinguished alumnus who has won his "Y" in business, science or public service in 1927.

BURKE AND CONNELL WIN BEST-BALL MATCH

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Willie Burke of Greenwich, Conn., and Johnny Connell of Short Hills, N. J., flashed a brilliant rally in the afternoon round here today and won the annual professional 36-hole best ball tournament with a total of 133. After a best ball of 70 in the morning, they began dropping birdies and eagles in the afternoon to come in with 63.

The winners were closely pushed by Cyril Walker and Tim Barnes who finished in a tie for second place with Emmett French and MacDonald Smith with a total of 135. John Golden of North Jersey and Tom Kerrigan of Washington, and Ralph Beach of Atlanta who, with Leo Diegel of New York, and Fred McLeod of Washington turned in a total of 137.

MCTIGUE FIGHTS TO DRAW WITH GAINS

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Mike McTigue, of New York, former light heavy weight champion of the world, and Larry Gains, Canada's Negro heavyweight champion, fought ten rounds to a draw here tonight.

Nearly 10,000 persons, the largest crowd to attend a boxing show here in years, witnessed the contest. The decision of the judges was unpopular. Gains piled up a big lead in the early rounds but the New York battler got started in the sixth round and was the aggressor thereafte Gains weighed 190 1-2; McTigue 1. 1-2.

NOTRE DAME IS 7 TO 5 FAVORITE TO BEAT ARMY

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Notre Dame ruled favorite at 7 to 5 to turn back the Army on the gridiron tomorrow with even money in prospect in the event of a muddy field. The Cadets are said to be at their best when the going is heavy under foot.

Knute K. Rockne, the famous football figure, will observe his 400th game as coach of Notre Dame since 1917 with a record of 87 games won, five tied and seven lost. Rockne passed through four entire seasons of ten campaigns undefeated.

CALDWELL'S PLAYING WITH BROWN WAS NO SECRET

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 11.—(AP)—In a newspaper reporter's story of a Rhode Island village boy's success as a Yale football star lies the "mystery" behind the disclosure of Bruce Caldwell's gridiron career at Brown university four years ago that bobbed up this week to bar him from all further play at Yale.

Caldwell's right to play on the Yale team under the Yale-Harvard-Princeton agreement prohibiting any participation in "Big Three" contests by men who have played at other colleges was questioned last Tuesday when a reported at the Providence Bulletin set out to prepare a story of Caldwell's record on the gridiron. Whether Caldwell's Brown record was widely known or not, it was no secret to many and a newspaper story in the Providence Bulletin in connection with the Yale-Brown game on Oct. 15 said Yale would send Caldwell into the game "to battle his former teammates."

Yale won 19 to 6 and Caldwell made twelve points—Two touchdowns. Later with this as a basis, it was explained today, a reporter set out to write a feature story of the Rhode Island boy who helped so largely to defeat his "former team-mates."

In the preparation of the story a reporter raised the question as to whether Caldwell's play at Brown did not run foul of the rules and the opinion was expressed that it did not as the only agreement affecting the Yale-Brown game was the freshman rule. Inquiry at New Haven, however, showed that it did affect Caldwell's right to play against Harvard or Princeton, and from this inquiry Yale's action resulted.

AGGIES IN TOUGH BATTLE WITH RHODY TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Nov. 11.—In meeting Rhode Island State at Kingston, R. I., tomorrow in what will be the 20th football game between the two institutions since 1897, the Connecticut Aggies will probably find the supposedly weak Engineers tough picking.

In the opening days of the present campaign, after the Aggies had decisively defeated the Coast Guard Cadets and Wesleyan and after Rhode Island had been overwhelmed on two successive Saturdays by Brown and Rhode Island, it looked as though it would once more be a Connecticut year in the traditional series between the Aggies and Rhode Island.

As the season developed the Rhody eleven showed surprising strength until today it is considered one of the strongest ever turned out at Kingston, and one that will give the Aggies no end of trouble tomorrow. As a matter of fact, it is difficult to see wherein the Storrs team can be conceded any advantage in doping tomorrow's contest, and all indications point to a closely contested fray with neither team outscoring the other to any great extent. One thing seems certain; Connecticut can hardly expect to repeat her feat of last year, when Rhode Island was buried under a 34-0 avalanche.

The entire Aggie squad, along with the newly organized 28-piece band, and practically the entire student body will leave Eagleville tomorrow at 8 a. m. in a special train. Stops will be made at Willimantic and New London to pick up Aggie alumni and other followers of the team, and the train is due to arrive at Kingston at 11.30 a. m.

WEST ENDS TO PLAY JAIL HILL COLONIALS

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the West End Bulldogs will play the Jail Hill Colonials at Mohegan park. As this is the first game between these two clubs, a fast encounter is expected. The West Ends will picks their team from the following players: Tombari, Quarto, Urbinati, Nick, Mingo, Murphy, Boldrihine, Haggerty, Sullivan, eralski, Way, Finnegan and Hoffman.

After Basketball Games.

The Criterion Athletic club of Bridgeport has organized its 1927-28 basketball team and would like to book games with fives in this part of the state. For games communicate with E. W. Randolph, 404 Ridgefield avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

Winner Of National Pentathlon

Harry Flippen, of the Newark A. C., who won the national pentathlon title at Brooklyn, N Y He captured two events and placed second in the other three of the five-event championship. Flippen's total was three points, with Paul Courtois, of the New York A. C., second, with 14 tallies. Carlton Reid, of the Warinanco A. C., was third with 16 points. The A. A. U. National Pentathlon championship was an added feature of the Norwegian Turn Society's semi-annual games.

FUMBLED PUNT ENABLES BULKELEY TO BREAK EVEN WITH ACADEMY, 6 TO 6

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 11—A fighting Bulkeley eleven, their offense being the right toe of Frank Locke, got a 6-6 draw with their ancient rival, Norwich Free Academy here today at beautiful new Mercer field in one of the most stubbornly contested affairs in the long history of these struggles. Bulkeley today scored her first points this season. Bulkeley entered the fray as the underdog, but aggressiveness, with some kindly glances from "Old Lady Breaks" offset the previous record of the Academy.

Both teams got breaks but Bulkeley with one exception got those that counted most. Each had its touchdown as more or less of a gift.

Capt. Jack Marks plucked a loose ball out of midair toward the latter part of the first quarter and raced 50 yards accompanied only by three teammates for Norwich's six points. Kelly missed the try for extra point by dropkick.

Ellis, Bulkeley's wide awake left end pounced on a punt over the line that Tirrell had fumbled in the third quarter for Bulkeley's touchdown.

The attempt at the extra point by passing was smeared.

Both teams had other near chances at scoring and Norwich came within 2 inches of adding six points in the second quarter. To many it seemed that Brock had scored as he surged forward from the 2 yard line. For a moment the officials were in doubt but the final ruling went against the Academy and Bulkeley then kicked out of danger. In the closing moments of the game Locke's kicking and some poor work by Norwich in the forward pass line had the ball right under the shadow of the Red and White posts. Bernstein essayed a field goal from his 20 yard line but the ball came nowhere near rising over the bar.

To Frank Locke rugged, veteran halfback, and Ellis, who today started his first Academy-Bulkeley game, the local school owes much credit for today's work. It was termed a "moral victory" here tonight and some of the Orange and Black supporters were ever holding impromptu celebrations.

The first quarter was more Norwich than anything. After Kahn had received the kickoff and went back 5 yards to his 20 yard line, a pass McGlone to LaCroix was good for ten yards and first down, but Norwich then lost the ball on downs. Bulkeley punted to the Norwich 30 yard line and then intercepted a forward pass. On the first lineup, a line play the Orange and Black fumbled, the ball came flying out of the pile and Marks neatly slipped it beneath his arm and unmolested galloped to the goal line 30 yards away.

Bulkeley received and after making one first down had a punt blocked and Kahn recovered for the visitors at midfield.

McGlone tossed a pass into a Bulkeley man's arms at the 40 yard stripe as the quarter ended.

Locke punted to Tirrell, who went back to his 40 yard line. An exchange of punts followed and Norwich had the ball at midfield. Here it was that the Rose City crew staged its first real offensive of the day when McGlone on a 10 yard scamper and McGlone to Greene on two ten yard passes sent the pigskin down to Bulkeley's 20 yard line before a Red shirt fumbled. McGlone intercepted a pass on Bulkeley's 33 yard line and the drive started anew. A clever pass, McGlone to Vitaliano was good for 25 yards to the Orange and Black 5 yard line.

On the first lineup McGlone lost five yards on an attempted end run, a forward to Greene from McGlone made up this distance and three yards more to place the ball on the 2 yard line. The third down gained nothing and then on last scrimmage Brock hit center and for a minute everybody gave it up as being over but the final decision went against the Red and White and Bulkeley immediately booted out of danger. The kick went to the 30 yard line. McGlone tossed a long pass over the goal line and the pill went to Bulkeley on her 20 yard line. Bulkeley punted o midfield whence a pass to LaCroix was good for 10 yards and first down just as the half ended. The last few plays in this half saw but one regular Norwich back, Marks, in the fray.

Tirrell received the kickoff at the opening of the third quarter and went back 15 yards to the Norwich 25 yard stripe. The visitors lost the ball on downs and after several exchanges of punts, Locke finally got one off at midfield for Bulkeley. It sailed about 40 yards to the 10 yard line, Tirrell, running at top speed just tipped it and the ball rolled across the goal line where Ellis pounced on it for Bulkeley's first score of the year. The try for extra point was by passing but the thrower was viciously smeared by three Academy players after he had fumbled around and the score was set at the 6-6 tie. Many thought that Norwich was offside on this play and not a few left thinking that Bulkeley had won. Norwich received the kickoff and Tirrell went back 10 to his 30 yard line as the quarter ended.

Locke's punts kept the ball in Norwich territory most of the final quarter. Bulkeley showed little offensive, her backs were slow and the heavier line did nothing to brag about but her booter extraordinary was of large help.

The Academy was able to rip the Bulkeley defense to pieces at times during this period but fumbles or poor generalship undid all this play. Dashes by Jim Kelly and Jack Marks had Bulkeley worried but all their work went up in the smoke of the above mentioned mistakes.

Capt. Jack Marks gave another exhibition today that can stand besides his work of the Windham game. His tackling was of the most deadly kind while his offensive play was the best shown this year. Johnny Greene proved that he is the best end that this part of the state can offer for an All-State team by his stellar work and "Blub" Shea, husky tackle, Jim Kelly, also played well. Kahn and Mish also showed nice work for N. F. A.

As mentioned before Locke and Ellis can take much of the credit for Bulkeley's nice stand while Bernstein and "Pat" Casey also did well.

FORDHAM WINS FROM PROVIDENCE COLLEGE, 26-19

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 11—(AP)—The Fordham university football aggregation, with Major Frank Cavanaugh at the helm, won a thrilling 26 to 19 tilt here this afternoon from the light but aggressive Providence college team in the only college gridiron tilt slated for this part of New England. The defeat was the first sustained by the Providence outfit on its home field since Armistice day, five years ago when it was set back by Boston university.

Providence scored twice in the first period, once on a cleverly executed pass play and the second time on a recovered fumble which was converted into a score by quick work on the part of Nawrocki, Dominican tackle. Fordham countered with a touchdown by line crashing in the second period, and added two more in the third quarter as the result of a recovered fumble and a clever dash of 20 yards by O'Connor from scrimmage. Their winning score came as the result of fumbles by the Providence fullback.

The outstanding feature of the game was a 50-yard run by Heck Allen after taking a 15-yard aerial from Ed Lewis. Allen was suffering from a ruptured blood vessel in his left foot and was not expected to play and as a result his sensational run is all the more noteworthy.

ACADEMY PLACES THIRD IN CROSS COUNTRY MEET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Nov. 11.—The Academy's cross country runners met their first defeat of the season when they finished third in the annual run of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league here this morning. Their total was 48, one point behind Westerly. Chapman Tech led with 25 points while Stonington, in last place, had 54 points.

Wilcox of Westerly led the field.

STONINGTON BEATS WESTERLY IN ANNUAL CLASSIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Nov. 11.—Stonington High scored a touchdown in the second and third periods today and won 12 to 0 over Westerly High, its ancient rival. The field was wet and soggy, slowing up the play considerably. The O'Brien machine looked quite powerful in this hard fought affair and they plan to give Norwich Free Academy plenty to think about at Stonington next Saturday.

Westerly and Stonington meet again Thanksgiving day at Stonington.

LANG RIDES REIGH COUNT TO WIN AT PIMLICO

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—(AP)—Under a brilliant ride by Jockey Chick Lang, Reigh Count came right back today and won the Walden Stakes, worth $11,350, nosing out Petes Wrack at the wire in the banner race at the Pimlico track.

The victor, owned by Mrs. J. D. Hertz, was away next to the last and did not appear to have much chance at the far turn, but Lang never let him stop. Reigh Count was within striking distance in the stretch and Lang rode the colt hard, closing fast to win by a shade. Eugene S was a length behind Petes Wrack. The mile was run in 1:41.

Reigh Countpaid even money and was backed heavily. The colt's performance today was believed to settle all doubt that with a clear passage in the running of the Pimlico, he would have finished first.

J. N. McAden's Rothermel won by half a length from Rhinock in the $2,000 Civil Legion Handicap at Latonia over the mile and an eighth distance for three-year-olds and up. Decon came in to show. The time was 1:55 2-5.

Yale Wins From Harvard

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 11—(AP)—Yale took Harvard's count in an inter-class football game here today when the Eli seniors won over the Crimson seniors, 13-7. Elimination contests had earned the last year men in both universities the right to play in final class competition between the two colleges.

Hemingway scored the only touchdown for Harvard, with Ellis tallying the point after the touchdown in the first period.

Roby of Yale scored a touchdown in the first period and Miller gave the Blue another six points in the third stanza.

DARTMOUTH COMPLETES ITS SEASON'S FOOTBALL PRACTICE

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 11—(AP)—The Dartmouth football team burned its tackling dummy at the end of its last practice of the season today and is ready for the final game tomorrow against Cornell. Coach Hawley sent the Green through a light signal drill as its last bit of preparations for the Ithacans who are looked upon to give Dartmouth one of the hardest battles of the season.

The Indians are wary of Cornell's strength and are not being deceived by the large injury list issuing from Ithaca.

Gil Dobie's eleven arrived here today and held a short workout on the Dartmouth gridiron. Both teams rested tonight, Cornell here and Dartmouth at Cannan, twenty miles away where the Green eleven will stay until shortly before game-time.

CARNEGIE PILES UP BIG SCORE ON WESTERN RESERVE

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Carnegie Tech's football machine soundly trounced Western Reserve 45 to 0 here today, engaging in an aerial attack with which the visitors could not cope.

Tech scored soon after the opening kickoff when Harpster, Skibo quarterback, received the ball and galloped 88 yards for a touchdown. Harpster, in the second quarter ran the ball again 85 yards for another touchdown.

Basketball Challenge.

The Noank Chescents Basketball team would like to arrange games with teams in Norwich and vicinity. Home and home games are preferred with the C. F. C. five or the Eastern Conn. Power team. For games write Manager Neil Morrison, Noank, Conn.

TIGERS PLAY POLISH A. C. SUNDAY

The Greeneville Tigers seem likely to run into a stiff test Sunday afternoon at J. B. Martin park when the Polish A. C. formerly the Colonials of New London, furnishes the opposition, starting promptly at 2:30. The visitors have quite a reputation and should be able to make the Tigers travel every step of the way.

Crossman at left half, Perry at tackle, Barry at quarter and Jumbo Belgrade, 255 pound guard carry a large portion of their attack and defense.

For the Tigers the following lineup was given out Friday evening: Gay and Fenton, ends; Langevin and Butts, tackles; Christy and Rokosky, guards; Mileski, c; F. McGrath, qb; Hudson and Lupinnacci at the halves and C. McGrath, fb. Nelson, Herbert, S. Boyd, Stiegel, Copp, Tenant, Tombari and Bubbles will also be on hand ready for action.

There is plenty of parking space about the field and plans are being made for a large crowd at this, Norwich's only grid attraction over the week end.

The Tigers have hung up a nice record since they began representing Norwich years ago. The victories have far outnumbered the defeats during this club's lifetime and now with the confidence gained from the win over the Blackstone team, another victory is the desire of the Boyd-men.

All the old rivalry that comes to a New London-Norwich meeting will be added to this contest and it will act as a sort of post-mortem to the Academy-Bulkeley tie Friday.

The Whalers will have to keep an eagle eye on Charlie McGrath tomorrow for he has run wild to date this season. The Tigers seem well fortified for this struggle with practically all members in good physical shape.

Trolleys run right by the grounds and with good weather it looks like a big day for football. The Greeneville club plans some big doings in the remaining few dates of the season and this game should serve as a good starter.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week St. Mary's Catholic fair held in Breed hall, netted a profit of between $5,000 and $6,000. The fair was a complete success. The week, as a whole, was a quiet one in this city. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of November 1877, are as follows:

Monday, Nov. 1877—The fire seen in the west late Friday night proves to have been at Frazier's ice houses a little north of the fairgrounds, which were entirely consumed. The loss may be estimated at upwards of $3,000 with $2,000 insurance. The fire was supposed to be the work of an incendiary. The houses were nearly new and supplied with modern apparatus.

The City of Lawrence arrived at the dock yesterday, having failed to make her trip to New York. Her start was delayed Friday night by the weather and reaching Saybrook about 5 o'clock Saturday morning she was forced to put about by reason of the terrific gale and heavy sea. In going about she got into the trough of the sea and rolled and pitched frightfully. The marble tops of her steam radiators were thrown down and shattered and the pieces falling upon the lamp globes, which had been placed on the floor for safety, they were broken into a million fragments. The crockery in the kitchen was also broken.

It is said that the Colchester branch of the Air Line railroad has cleared over $2,000 since it was opened, besides paying all running expenses.

Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1877—The schooner Anna E. Sanford, from Philadelphia for this city, was run into yesterday forenoon off Blackwell's Island by an unknown schooner and had her foretopmast, flying jibboom and flying jib carried away. She will repair here.

The old reading room in Halls block, which has been hired by the Ladies' Temperance union, is now fitted up for the purpose of holding temperance meetings. Three hundred and 25 chairs have been placed in the room. Sunday morning J. L. Denison read from the Bible and was followed by Rev. H. Montgomery in prayer after which Rev. L. T. Chapman made an address.

Three patients were received at the hospital on Thames street yesterday and there's plenty more to follow.

A harvest concert is to be given by the Sunday school of the Universalist church this evening.

Wednesday, Nov. 7, 1877—There were 17 tramps at the police station last night.

The headquarters of the Colchester stage will be at The American house on and after today.

The first snow of the season yesterday afternoon. The flakes came quite fast at one time.

The Shetucket got the silver trumpet at the Catholic fair as the most popular fire company in the city.

Seventy adult singers and 50 juveniles participate in the forthcoming dramatic oratorio, Queen Esther.

The Aurora building on Water street has been purchased by Messers. John W. Stedman, H. H. Roath, William L. Brewer and D. P. Coon.

Thursday, Nov. 8, 1877—St. Mary's Catholic fair held in Breed hall was concluded on Monday evening. The number of tickets sold on Saturday evening was 1,210 and on Monday evening about 1,100. The fair has been a complete success and the profits are estimated to be between $5,000 and $6,000 but the exact figures cannot be known for some days.

Camilla Urso—A large audience greeted this charming and well known violinist at Breed hall last evening and received the treat they anticipated. Mme. Urso played with her wonted exquisite skill and completely bewitched her hearers.

The meeting in the temperance rooms on Main street last evening, was addressed by B. W. Tompkins and Rev. Mr. Montgomery and others.

Friday, Nov. 9, 1877—Our local astrologer is at it again. This time he says that the New York Herald is wrong in predicting a cold fall and early winter. He thinks cold weather will hold off till late.

John Brewster, representative-elect from Ledyard, was a member of the house 30 years ago, in 1847, again in 1891 and was also a senator from the 7th district in 1860.

The rain came in gusts last evening and at midnight the wind blew a gale.

Saturday, November 10, 1877—The Two Orphans will be played at Breed hall by Henderson's Dramatic company next Thursday evening. The reputation of the company needs no encomium of ours.

Mr. W. G. Abbott has volunteered to place gratuitously the books of the Otis library in systematic order, for which labor of love he merits thanks.

Patrick Connor who was thrown from the track at Thamesville a few days since narrowly escaped death is much better, though not entirely out of danger.

The water in the city reservoir was raised a foot by the storm which terminated yesterday.

The Rev. W. S. Palmer addresses the friends of temperance at the room at Halls block tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock.

ROCKVILLE

Rev. Stephen Bartkowski, for the past five years pastor of St. Joseph's Polish Catholic church was transferred by Bishop Nilan Friday to Holy Trinity Polish Catholic church, New Britain. Father Bartkowski came to this city in June, 1922, and has gained a reputation as a parish builder. His present parish numbers about 2,500 while his new church will have an enrollment of between six and seven thousand.

Father Bartkowski was born in Posnan, Poland, finishing his collegiate course there. He studied philosophy and theology at Louvain university, Belgium where he was ordained. He came to this country 21 years ago and had a parish in Suffield several years before coming to this city.

Fev. Sigismund Woroniecki, pastor of the Immaculate Conception church in Southington for seven years, will succeed Father Bartkowski in this city. Father Woroniecki is a graduate of St. Thomas's Seminary, Hartford, and of St. Bernard's Seminary, Rochester, N. Y., and was ordained in St Joseph's cathedral, Hartford. He organized the Immaculate Conception church with a handful of people. He was prior to that, assistant pastor of Sacred Heart church and St. Thomas's church, New Britain.

Mrs. Estella Lyman who has been visiting her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, the past two weeks, returned Friday to her home in Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Colt Harris and son Donald and Mr. Harris' father, Albert Harris of New London, Mrs. Hattie Ranney of Jersey City, were callers on their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. George Clark Sunday afternoon, going to Hartford to see the flood.

One side of the parsonage roof has been shingled and one side of the church roof is to be shingled. The Christian Endeavor society voted $75 out of its treasury Sunday night for the church roof.

The Liberty Hill Men's club held its November meeting in the church rooms Monday evening. Rev. Mr Wahn of Columbia and Professor Tucker of Storrs were speakers. G. B. Dimon, Robert Harris and George Caldwell furnished refreshments.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper was observed at the Exeter Liberty Hill church Sunday morning. The subject of Rev. L. L. Harris's sermon was, Jesus, the Bread of Life, John 6:35. The consecration meeting of the C. E. society was in charge of George Caldwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kinnaird of Hartford were guests Sunday of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird. Gordon Kinnaird returned to Hartford, leaving his wife to care for a few days for her mother-in-law, who is slowly recovering from a severe illness.

Mrs. Milton Windsor returned to her home in Plainfield Sunday after caring for her aunt, Mrs. John Kinnaird the past five weeks.

Rev. L. L. Harris was in Bridgeport Monday and Tuesday attending the state conference of Congregational churches.

The heavy rain Thursday and cloudburst Friday morning gave about four inches of rain. Monday was a cold and very windy and cloudy day with snow flurries in the morning, the mercury not going above 40 degrees. Tuesday morning the mercury stood from 18 to 20 above zero.

merchandise carried here is guaranteed!

In the quest for trade we never yield to the temptation to subordinate quality to price. On the contrary, we stress quality first and foremost, because quality is a fundamental of this business. We keep ourselves in the position to be able to guarantee everything that we sell. It must give the customer satisfaction—or we won't admit it to our stock. It must do more than "just pass muster." It must sustain our standard; uphold our reputation. It is possible to sell good merchandise at low price. But that depends upon many elements. Contact with the market policy of marking; measure of profit, etc. All the advantages to be gained we enjoy; and that means we own our goods at the lowest possible cost—and we mark them to sell at the lowest possible price. Of course, we cannot sell ten dollars' worth for one. Nobody can—and survive. But for the dollar you pay we not only give you money's worth, but we give you quality that is worthy your consideration

THE PRIME OF LIFE

Just as I thought I was growing old,
Ready to sit in my easy chair,
To wate hthe world with a heart grown cold
And smile at a folly I would not share.

Rose came by with a smile for me,
And I am thinking that forty year
Isn't the age that it seems to be,
When two pretty brown eyes are near.

Bless me! of life it is just the prime,
A fact that I hope she will understand,
And forty year is a perfect rhyme
To dark brown eyes and a pretty hand.

These gray hairs are by chance, you see—
Boys are sometimes gray, I am told—
Rose came by with a smile for me,
Just as I thought I was getting old!

LORD LOVEL

Lord Lovel he stood at his castle gate,
Combing his milk-white steed,
When up came Lady Nancy Belle,
To wish her lover good speed.

"Where are you going, Lord Lovel?" she said,
"Where are you going?" said she.
"I'm going my Lady Nancy Belle,
Strange countries for to see."

"When will you be back, Lord Lovel?" she said,
"When will you come back?" said she.
"In a year or two or three at the most,
I'll return to my fair Nancy."

But he had not been gone a year and a day,
Strange countries for to see,
When languishing thoughts came into his head,
Lady Nancy Belle he would see.

So he rode and he rode on his milk-white steed
Till he came to London town,
And there he heard St. Pancras' bells
And the people all mourning round.

"Oh, what is the matter?" Lord Lovel he said,
"Oh, what is the matter?" said he.
"A lord's lady is dead," a woman replied,
"And some call her Lady Nancy."

So he ordered the grave to be opened wide,
And the shroud he turned down,
And he kissed her clay-cold lips
Till the tears came trickling down.

Lady Nancy she died, as it might be, today,
Lord Lovel he died to-morrow;
Lady Nancy died out of pure, pure grief,
Lord Lovel he died out of sorrow.

Lady Nancy was laid in St. Pancras church,
Lord Lovel was laid in the choir;
And out of her bosom there grew a red rose,
And out of her lover's a brier.

They grew and they grew the church steeple to,
And then they could grow no higher;
So there they entwined in a true-lover's knot,
For all loves true to admire.

A LAST PRAYER

Father I scarcely dare to pray,
So clear I see. Now it is done
That I have wasted half my day
And left my work but just begun.

So clear I see that things I thought
Were right or harmless were a sin,
So clear I see that I have sought
Unconscious selfish aims to win.

So clear I see that I have hurt
The souls I might have helped to save,
That I have slothful been inert,
Deaf to the calls thy leaders gave.

In outskirts of thy kingdom vast,
Father, the humblest spot give me,
Set me the lowliest task thou hast,
Let me repentent work for thee.

AFTER CLUB 3 MET

Dear Social Corner Friends: I want to thank you for your help in waking up Club No. 3. Don't believe it will take another nap soon.

I have found one knife, a small package of drygoods, a large napkin and someone's dishes tied up in napkin. Also a Social Corner book.

Forget Me Never: Was the package yours?

Wisteria: Think book is yours.

Now who do the dishes belong to?

Golden Glow: Can you get Mrs. W's pen name, we were speaking about? Hope you felt no worse for the outing.

Sydney reached home safe. Hope C. H. B. is over that cold.

Best wishes.

AUNT SARAH.

HUNTING IN MAINE

Dear Social Corner: What trouble and hardship the high water is making! Our lake is out of it and although I have seen it quite high it is not afected by high water.

Our first snow fell Sunday night, the 6th. The open season is on for deer and hunters are busy seeing who can get the largest one. Orrin Richards ran into one which tried to obstruct the road at Lockeville. He was driving through there with his truck, a 250 pound buck stood in the road as he shot over a hill, which of course meant death to him.

My folks have been to Masardis and Oxboro and found more hunters than there were deer. But they brought home a 175 pound buck with 8 points—a beauty. Mr. B. F. said, bears were quite plentiful. A Mr. Gordon lost two nice sheep one night, and two more the next as the bears would not eat those they had already killed. They seemed to enjoy killing them, riding on the Aroostook river in a canoe through the rips.

Going to the black waters region looking for game, one of the party got lost in the big timber, for a couple of hours, but was soon found by a guide. In telling about it Mr. B. F. seemed to have enjoyed getting the deer to town.

They hung it from a pole carried on the shoulders of two guides for two miles.

The Black Water is a tributary to the Aroostook river.

There are a plenty of foxes as they are allowed to go unmolested. The month of October was an ideal one with roses and dandelion blossoms. Many houseplants have been blossoming as well as dahlias. Wild cats have driven the Canada lynx out of the northern part of the state and taken possession themselves. Moose and bear seem to be plentiful. The law is off on moose from Nov. 21 to 28 in Aroostook county only.

I enjoy reading all the good letters and most of all the poetry in Saturdays paper especially On the Shores of Tennessee.

What has become of Whirlwind and Foxglove? I hope Mr. F. is quite well again.

I think of you all even though I do not write you. Suppose it is vice versa.

Many thanks for your card Idalene, very thoughtful of you.

What has become of Joan?

I must close and go to town. Autos are a blessing when a body lives so far from trolleys. A wonderful day and I must make hay while the sun shines.

Many thanks for all the nice cards and letters I receive.

Trust everybody in and out of the Social Corner will enjoy a pleasant and happy Thanksgiving. Enjoy knowing the Corner is growing.

The way Ann Tenna has suggested getting money for church is certainly worth trying.

My sympathy to all in trouble and trust the New Year may bring many pleasant surprises and much joy to all.

We had a husking bee. The Optimistic club was here some 50 strong and the bushels of the loveliest corn we ever had, with many ruddy ears were the result. Much fun and laughter, a very merry crowd. A friend writes me from Barton, Vt., that she wished we were going to have another soon.

BALSAM FIR.

THE HOLIDAYS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Brothers: I know it's some time since I've entered your Corner for a chat so I thought it was about time I did my best by sending a few lines before winter sets in for good. Isn't this morning (Thursday) glorious? I was out for wood just before I sat down to pen these lines and how crispy the air felt. The earth crunched pleasantly underfoot where it had frozen and the sun warmed the air just enough to take the chill out.

I wonder how many of us have kept our resolution to make and buy our Christmas gifts early. I for one said I'd shop bit by bit during the summer for my gifts, but so far have only made one and bought two. How quick the holiday seasons are coming. They will all be here and gone before we know it. How joyous it will be for some and how sad for others. Many who sat at our table last year have gone to rest with their Maker. Many who exchanged gifts with us last season will do so no more. Many a mother who held her baby close to her breast has empty arms for the Holidays. That's the sad part of holidays. All we can do is trust to God's will and keep smiling.

By Jingo: I was certainly sorry to hear that "fire" had once more found its way in your home and I sincerely hope you have better luck in your new home. I must write you soon.

Kochia: Glad you enjoyed your visit at my home, hope I can have you all again soon. Didn't get you what I said I would as I haven't been to that store since.

Comfort: How your phone does ring today! Where are you? I don't see you go by any more, but see your daughter-in-law nearly every day.

Here is a pie I'm sure some one would like to try for Thanksgiving.

Tapioca Pie: I soaked 2 tablespoons of tapioca in 1 cup of water over night, then next morning added the juice and grated rind of 1 lemon, 1 cup sugar, yolks of 2 eggs, a bit of salt. I baked it in one crust same as cream or lemon pie. When done cover with meringue. It's certainly delicious.

Here's hoping the sick are on the gain and the well will remain so. I am as ever.

PHULLER PHUN

USING THE PRIZE CHECK.

Dear Social Corner Editor: Sincere thanks for the yellow slip, I think it is my third. Twice Twenty, Kitty Lou and some of the good and faithful writers must have a goodly pile of them. At first I wanted to put it into a typewriter fund for the benefit of those who have to read what I write but gave up the idea for the present in the urgent appeal from the New York Federation of Churches for the funds that make broadcasting possible. Their letters state a shortage and I am sure we do not want to miss the morning prayer service since WEEI has left off theirs.

The season of thanksgiving is close upon us and I feel that I have very much to be thankful for.

I enjoyed the meeting of Club 4 at Mrs. Burton's, very, very much. The Corner seems to be truly a "fellowship of kindred minds."

Gratefully yours,

THIRTY-TWO.

GREETINGS FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER.

Dear Corner Friends: Here I am after an absence of a number of weeks.

E. L. M.: What a laugh your last letter contained. It was a good cure for the blues. Come again with another, some time. Maybe I can give you a good one, too.

Lady Lou: I received the cards you, Huhins and Melissa sent me while on your trip. Thanks for not forgetting me. Had a very nice letter from Patches who is now residing in New York, telling of nice times she is having.

LINNETE: I heard something very funny about you Sunday. How it made me awile; it would also make you smile too if you heard it. Come on over and I will tell you all about it, then you can laugh too.

Black Eyed Susie: How are you? Hope you three are well.

SARILLA: Your card received and was very much pleased to hear from you. I have been wondering if you have had any baked pototoes lately. I have not, as it isn't just the right season for them now.

PAULA: How are you and what has become of you? Heard you are thinking of taking a trip to the big city. How about it? Hope if you do you wont forget to send us a card once in a while.

Interested Reader: Where, oh where, art thou, or what art thou doing? Failed to hear from you recently.

Skipper: Heard you have been on the sick list; hope now you are feeling better.

Y. Y.: I hear something rather nice happened in your family. The more the merrier.

Best wishes to al Corner members.

MAKING OVER CLOTHES

Dear Sisters: I have more than once wondered just why it is that a man will, if he must, be contented with two suits, while we women are constantly sighing for "new gowns to conquer."

In the first place, men's suits are usually dark, and of course much plainer than a lady's gay frock and in the second, they can effect apparent changes of costume by means of different neckties and shirts.

Yet after I reach this profound conclusion, I am no nearer solving the problem of clothes for women, and their reasons for wanting so many changes. Of course they all like pretty things, just because they do. And that's sufficient reason for any sane normal woman now, isn't it?

So my task is to see if I can help the readers of the corner by reading my article to see how extra things may be had without too much expense for slender purse, and the angle with which I am most concerned just now is of the worn frock that is too good to be discarded entirely and yet is quite definitely no longer fresh.

I can advance no Einstein theory in the matter. No can I lay claim to any new and remarkable discovery. But perhaps I can jot down a few points that may be a help in doing over that old dress.

First a plain frock can assume quite a different air if it be thoroughly cleaned and pressed. Then when it emerges looking ever so much more presentable little touches can be added that will do wonders for it. Let me say that you had been wearing it with white collar and cuffs. How would it be to adventure among dress trimmings.

Sometimes one can pick up a novelty braid which is broad and in fancy colors or bits of embroidery that could be made into new collar and cuffs. The entire dress would take on a changed appearance with this comparatively small and inexpensive alteration.

With a frock that is worn and spotted in the blouse but of which the skirt is still good, why not combine the skirt with a blouse of a color that matches or blends nicely. I sometimes think that one can find better values in blouses now than in almost any other article of clothing.

Another plan that often works well with a frock in which the skirt is badly worn, particularly if the frock be a silk one made on straight lines, is to cut the frock about 3 inches, well, four isn't so bad, below the waist. Then buy a yard and a half of cloth, of a color that matches. Cut this in half and sew the two halves together, making the width the same as the width of the upper silk part. Sew this on to the blouse at that three or four inches below the waist line which you have allowed for, and you have a silk and cloth frock which is both comfortable and smart.

An added touch may be effected by using the straight pieces you have cut from the side of your cloth for a collar and broad cuffs. A metal or silk girdle will give the finishing touch, and to all intents and purposes, you have a brand new costume.

KITTY LOU.

A SERIES OF MISFORTUNES

Dear Social Members and Editor: November is with us once more and some of the days are not as cheerful as those of October. This morning was dull and our first snow flakes fell, but did not linger long, leaving the day not so cheerful as it might be, and as I am somewhat at ease, my memory reflects back over the years that have passed and gone and of the changes that have taken place since I have known my section, also recalling other moves that have taken place before my time. I wonder if other writers have seen changes as they have come to my town and mostly were detrimental to us. Seems we have never had the prosperity that our sister towns have enjoyed. Not our good luck. Some years ago I remember when a saving bank was started in our village, it was known as the Lindy bank, but only lasted a short period. Older settlers proclaim that Mrs. Olive Branch put a curse upon our town, her heirs will come into possession of the land in the center of the town, where the M. E. church now stands, if anything should happen to the church.

One time these four mills were doing a prosperous business, but a little over a year ago the company went into liquidation, and all employes were forced to obtain work elsewhere. A few moved out. Then our large forests of stately pine and oaks were sold, and the sawmills and trucks are busy taking it out of our view.

Only a few days ago the downpour of rain, like a cloudburst, had to visit us. Water filled our streams to such an extent that two of our dams were washed away, threatening our other three. Water overflowed their banks, doing many thousands dollars damage to our roads, washing one bridge away and roads in our town for several days were almost impassable in several directions. One of the worst blows confronting us is the government wants to take our post office away, and give us rural delivery, but some good samaritan has got busy and circulated a paper to try to retain our local post office.

Some times I think that Mrs. Branch's sayings are coming true. During the past week our movie house was reopened, giving us some amusement after being closed for more than two years. Some, like myself, are still hanging on and living in hopes that some one will purchase these four plants and try and bring us back again where we were a few years ago, for our village is too well laid out to let it go down in history that this village once flourished, and then was allowed to droop and soon fade away.

During the summer, the state erected above the "Pine Lodge," on the road leading to West Greenwich, a beautiful cement bridge, costing $10,000, and we are in dopes of seeing the state road pass over this bridge.

The old saying is, time and tide change all things, but I think there are other things that come forth and cast a gloom before us. We are now just getting acquainted with our new force from the results of our last town meeting. Some one whispered it 's now New —. Perhaps it may be so. No one can really tell.

With kindest regards to all.

THE STORY OF THE WALLS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I have been wondering if you believed that walls have tongues, and could talk to you. I was told so a number of years ago and I found it was the truth. I never made mention of it, as I thought people would think I certainly had the knack of setting every thing and everybody by the ears, but at last I thought I would drum up courage, with Janette's help and write about it, and see if some of the Cornerites thought as I did on this subject.

I get loads of amusement and some information out of my personal belief that walls have tongues, because they talk right right out loud to me, wherever I go, and tell me things that help me to know the folks who live within those walls. The outside walls of a house "talk" too, but not intimately, unless they have sheltered a family for generations without a break. It's the walls of rooms that talk the loudest, and, be the folks rich, or poor, they do tell of habits, of tastes, of character.

I'm thinking of a certain house this very minute. You would guess by the shining whiteness of the entrance halls that a doctor lived there. It is an old colonial built house and the front hall goes up right through the house and the pure whiteness of the walls, the stairs, and the rich gleam of the dark polished floors shouts out loud of hospital connections.

But, once you are in the reception room, the walls begin to tell you things about the man who lives there. Pride of race is evident in the fine old family portraits that hang there, a refined taste is evident in the tapestry pannels that cover the plaster, and love of the out-of-doors speaks to you from the painted canvases, all of them selected scenes of field and wood, limpid streams or wide open waters. Being a doctor he ought to be interested in life, in people, in things that make life the rushing hurly-burly, it usually is. But his walls tell me he likes quietness, that he prefers the still quiet places, because of the sea pictures. I also know he's a restless fellow too, liking, in a measure, storm and struggle, and glorying in a good, hard fought fight, that means ultimate peace.

His walls say things, and so do the walls of another home. It's the home of a woman who cannot live enough. Her walls tell that, for they are hung with pictures of stirring events, people in action, rough and tumble pictures, and the paper against which they hang is red, toned down and subdued by black frames of the pictured scenes, yet made suggestive too by that very thing.

Her dining room is alive, too, for even these she has action all about her. No flower-decked china for her table, no reposeful dreamy pictures. From every point life shouts aloud to you, and you know she wants to live every minute; that keeping still, even to think is punishment to her.

And then there is another house Janette tells of. It is a quaint "salt box" house in a far off state. Outside, the walls tell of the old New Englander, who built their home and settled there. It calls to you from the road and, when you have entered, it talks right out loud of bygone times. Queer little prints on the walls, serious, even religious, in tone; casement windows break the speaking walls and help one to carry back to yesterday. But it is the walls, themselves, low pitched, sloping hung with the relics of those other days, that talk loudest, and keep talking after you have left the house itself far behind.

It's great fun listening to things walls will say, when you know they can talk. Forget your nervousness, your "fear" lest they have ears and open your own to the language of the walls. You'll get the habit of expecting them to tell you things, and you'll have many a surprising moment; many a revelation to marvel over when you have learned the trick of letting the walls speak to you of the people who dwell within them.

MAKING GRAPE JUICE

Dear Corner Folks: I sure am a big back slider but I am so busy and I think maybe my brain is getting dull. We all live so fast now days with so many things to take up our minds, it seems so we sometimes forget what we ought to remember and "maybe" remember what we ought to forget. I think maybe something is the matter with Kochia's brain, for we have not heard from him in quite a while although "Boy Friend" has recently seen him and says he seemed to be all right. I hope he has not been frightened so he can't write. We all know he is rather timid.

We have been very busy all the fall taking care of quinces and grapes and pickles of all sorts, besides all other work with mending and making new garments and making a few squash pies. Not so many this year for our squashes were not so plenty as usual, but a kind neighbor handed us a few one day. In all we have made about 40 so far. I've made quite a lot of grape juice, and such an easy way to make it! It's certainly very nice. May be you all know this way of making it but will tell you how so if there is any that don't know she can learn.

I put a large cup of grapes carefully picked from the skins into a quart fruit jar, then put in two-thirds cup of sugar, fill jar with boiling water, use new rubbers, seal quickly and in 3 or 4 weeks you will have a delicious drink without much trouble. I put up 15 jars. If any of you are this way come in and I will treat you.

I dread the cold weather this year, seems so more then ever. That goes to show I'm getting old but we ought not to find one bit of fault with anything when we stop and think how much better off we are than those poor people who have met with so many trials and losses from those terrible floods and fires. We all have troubles and trials, but after all they seem small beside the terrible things that happen, not so far away from us either.

It's too cold to sit on the piazza now, and how I miss it.

Thanksgiving will soon be here and we sure have much to be thankful for.

CLUB NO. 2 MEETS NOV. 16

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I write to invite Club No. 2 to meet at my house at Leonard Bridge, Nov. 16. Please bring your dishes and also something good to eat. As Aunt Sarah started the ball thought I would help to keep it rolling.

CLUB NO 4 MEETS AT PUTNAM, NOV. 17.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: Club No. 4 will meet Nov. 17 at my home, in Putnam. Take first street to the right above Bradway's store on School street, straight up Shippee hill, till you come to the yellow bow. Bring plate, cup, knife, fork, spoon and something good to eat.

I am sending in a recipe for

Chocolate Loaf Cake: One and a quarter cups sugar, ½ cup butter, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk, 1½ cups of flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 squares of bitter chocolate and 1 teaspoon baking powder sifted in the flour.

Frosting—One cup sugar, a little water. Boil till it hairs, then turn over the beaten white of 1 egg. Beat till cold, add a little vanilla.

Best wishes to all.

SOME CHRISTMAS HINTS

Dear Social Corner Editor, Sisters and Readers of the Social Corner: November is with us and I wonder if it seems to you the same as it does to me. It really is a joyous month for the housekeeper with the grapes and plums, a bumper harvest gathered from field and orchard. The housewife seems assured of an overflowing larder especially if she is a country housewife. Then too the enervating heat, the annoying insects of summer have taken their departure, and in turn we have a clear and bracing wind. The children have a good start in school, housecleaning is on the wane. The ills of winter are two months away. So far as I can see the housewife can drive straight ahead.

I wonder where she is driving, what is her destination or are we losing time following a wrong detour because we have failed to look up the calories. Did you know the old fashioned Thanksgiving dinners they tell me are not more. The housewife may think she knows every curve and signpost from bread to pie but with the home making highway, as with other paths there is a constant change and new development.

The care of children even in preschool years has been completely modified. Teachers in music may be of the best equally with the new teachers who must constantly watch her wheel. The whole subject of education in music has changed as radically as the site of the old mansion torn down and replaced by a modern bungalow colony.

New million dollar schools are being constructed by modern teachers who are graduates of the conservatory of music. The old teachers will either have to take up with new methods or be classed with the old.

House decorations have so completely changed that they are an entire new study based on modern trends in art, the vogue for color and the manufacture of radically different textiles and furniture materials and the actual technique of laundry work, cleaning rooms, mixing cakes, cooking itself, has been literally revolutionized in the past 20 years. Electricity has transformed simple hard processes into skilled machine operations.

Some one wrote me that they would like to have me offer through the Corner suggestions for little inexpensive Christmas gifts we will try. There is a peculiar delight, a special satisfaction, and good will in giving somebody something, to say nothing of the pleasure of receiving.

I know it is quite a problem as you say to make gifts where men are concerned. I always have an initialed embroidered one half dozen handkerchiefs (nice quality) and that does away with them.

Then you can get several pairs of "shoe-trees." You can purchase these at 10 cents each. Then buy a can of gold paint and one of silver, get a couple of brushes, give the toe and the heel a generous coat of one or the other colored paints. Buy 3 1-2 yards of quarter inch satin ribbon, wind spiral fashion (and very tight) around the metal strip, between heel and toe, fasten the ribbon very neatly under each end of the metal, very close to the wood. Then in the middle of the narrow strip of ribbon, covered metal place a pretty rosett of the same ribbon with tiny leaves and buds. Orchid ribbon was right pretty with the silver paint, apple green ribbon with gold paint; rose and gold are pretty, apricot and silver, baby blue and gold, and pink and silver. I figure each cost in the neighborhood of 35 cents, and to purchase one ready made with as good quality ribbon you would have to pay $1.25. Every one who saw mine thought them pretty. I think black paint on the heel and toe with orange ribbon, scarlet ribbon, yellow ribbon and rose ribbon, with a monogram placed on the toe of each tree would be quite a novelty.

Take a narrow edge of tatting with single ring and form picots, and attach the edge to a dainty rolled edge of the fine linen handkerchiefs. The linen or linen lawn is quite reasonable, when purchased by the yard. Medallions of tatting to put in corner of these handkerchiefs are pretty but of course that means lots of work, as the tatting that my sister uses for her tatting is very, very fine, as fine as ordinary sewing thread.

For children the handkerchiefs designed with colored inks are attractive. The working set can be purchased in the department stores. Full directions and designs come with these pen and ink sets. You can use the plain inexpensive white or colored handkerchiefs (ready made).

As bean bags for children. First make a little bag of ticking for the inside, 5x6. Use pretty cretonne of black sateen with cross stitch for the outside.

Round powder puffs on long sticks can be made for 10 cents. Wind the sticks with ribbon and have the powder puffs trimmed with lace and ribbon rosettes. They would cost the same as shoe trees.

I make pretty holders dainty enough to be brought to the table, yet practical, of unbleached cotton, bound in pastel shades, or of dainty shades in chambray, with monograms of contrasting color. I make a set of three in a little bag of the same shape with a loop for a handle.

Hope I have helped you.

KITTY LOU.

PROVIDING FOR CLUB DINNERS

Dear Corner Sisters: What lovely weather for this time of year! Wish it was to continue through the next six months. I don't like snow and slush to wade through.

I wonder if those sisters who are inquiring of Bay State for their badges know that Calla Lily's son made them. He made and delivered them several weeks ago, but like you he hasn't received his compensation for his labor and stock. I did not want you to think the fault was his neglect.

It will be soon, time for Club No. 2 to meet in the Buckingham Memorial on Nov. 16 and right here I would like to bring to the minds and notice of all who come that everybody is expected to bring an article of food for the table. Please make it more than a bottle of olives or a cup plate of pickles or relish. We must have a substantial food combination along with your relish. It isn't right for one to bring one pound of butter, another a pan of beans and some one else salad to feed the one who brings a bottle of olives. What goes with the dinner a more solid food must go along with it, for we want to feed all satisfactory and abundantly and not have it said I furnished food but not enough to serve. Our reserve funds are getting low owing to the heavy expense of club day. The returns in cash for dinner expense in full are not enough to pay the day's expense and it draws on our reserve funds.

So let's all do our part. If you bring a friend or neighbor please ask her when invited to make a cake, salad, or some food that we will need. Different hostesses have told me of two or three people coming together and only one bringing food. I think we will have one sister at the door to receive food and check up on it. I find this same trouble is in other clubs. Kindly accept this in a good spirit not as malice for I have to do this talking for the dining table and like to hear each one say what a lovely dinner we had and plenty. Our editor says each must furnish their part of food for these dinner or words similar.

KITTY LOU: I think if we all paused for a while we could find lots we are thankful for and that we do not realize how much we have to be thankful for to our Heavenly father.

Bonie: How are you? Lonesome of course for your dear companion who you just laid away. Our sympathy is extended to you, also to Amy's family in the passing away of Amy, and to all others in the loss of dear ones. Best wishes to shutins and a pleasant Thanksgiving to all.

CALLA LILY.

USING FAT MEATS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Maybe some will like to read this about the use of fat meats as a preventative of consumption, which I read quite a while ago, but think it is good for others to read also. There is so much said against the use of fat meats, and especially pork, as an article of diet, that I can not better close my remarks upon this subject than by giving the opposite opinions of those in high places, corroborated also by my own experience.

Dr. Dixon's observations on the use of fat meats connected with consumption are as follows:

"First of all, persons between the ages of 15 and 22 years, more than one fifth eat no fat meat. Second, of all persons at the age of 45, all, exceptions less than 1 in 50, habitually use fat meat. Third, of persons, who, between the ages of 15 and 22, avoid fat meat, a few acquire an appetite for it, and live to a good old age, while the greater portion die with phthesis consumption before 35. Fourth. Of persons dying with phthesis between the ages of 12 and 35, nine tenths, at least, have never used fat meats."

Most individuals who avoid fat meat, also use but little butter or oily gravies, though many compensate for this want in part, at least, by a free use of those articles, and also milk, eggs, and various saccharine substances. But they constitute an imperfect substitute for fat meat, without which sooner or later the body is almost sure to show the effects of deficient calorification.

A lady lecturer once said in one of her lectures. "Set a piece of pork before a lady; oh, horrible! the dirty, nasty, filthy stuff, give us chicken, clean, nice chicken." Now this lady, certainly was no farmer's wife, or she would have observed that the habits of chickens are ten times more filthy than that of the hog if it be possible; for even the hog's leavings and droppings are carefully overhauled by them and much of it appropriated to "Ladies meat." But their filthiness is no argument in either case, for nature's strainer, (the stomach) throws off all impurities.

Why do so many young ladies, young clergymen, and students die of consumption? simply because chicken or other lean meats, hot biscuit, etc., without exercise, make up the sums of their diet; when, if they would eat fat meat, with bread not less than one day old, scrub floors, saw wood, or other arm exercise, according to sex, an hour at each end of each day, they might be spared for years—perhaps to long lives of usefulness, to their families, congregations, or the world.

So far as pork is concerned as food the following rule may be safely followed. If it agrees with the stomach which is known by its digesting without "risings" as it is called, its use may be continued, but if it rises, lessen the quantity, and if it still rises, abandon its use altogether.

Best wishes to all.

MOTHER PRESTON.

MEETING OF CLUB NO. 5

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: On November 2nd, Dame Nature in a warm and sunny mood furnished an ideal day for the meeting of Social Corner Club No. 5 at Buckingham Memorial. The large attendance took advantage of the perfect day and came from nearly all points of the compass to the social sunny quarters of Club No. 5. I was much pleased to meet the friend and neighbor of long ago and the many visitors we were glad to greet and hope each and all will come again.

Prudence was hostess and with willing helpers served a delicious Social Corner menu, the seasoning of which was "Silent Is the Alien, Blind Our Hearts in Christian Love," and the palatable food with its appealing flavor had the satisfying effect to those present.

In the absence of Calamity Jane, Elva and Prudence were the entertainment committee. The afternoon program, mostly musical was opened with a prelude by Black Eyed Susie, gliding into several classical and inspiring selections and then back to the more familiar strains of dance music, and the merry ones were dancing Virginia reel. A short time previous to the reel the unique fancy dancing steps were ably executed by the experts present.

Mrs. L. A. Chapin, a talented soloist from New Jersey, favored us with several pleasing selections, both to many encores. The appreciative audience extended a rising vote of thanks to both brilliant pianists. Several humorous readings were given, one of which captured the bouquet of flowers. The hand and head stunt was very laughable. Then old time songs were sung carrying us back to the younger days.

As all good times come to a close and the lengthening shadows were creeping in, the social event was declared a thing of the past and each was on her way home finally.

TOPSY AND TISH AS HOSTESSES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Next meeting of Club 6 will be in Vet's hall, Westerly, where we held our meeting last winter, on Tuesday, the 15. Topsy and Tish, two of our newer members, are the hostesses and hope to see a large number present. Don't forget your dishes and something good to eat?

Crimson Rambler: Was so glad to meet you in town.

Y. Y.: I too went to see the big oak but, did not have that three.

E. L. M.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I have attended a couple of the Social Corner meetings and I have had a very enjoyable time. I should like to join the Corner and Club, No. 4, taking as a pen name.

LILY PAD.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor: I have attended a few of the Social Corner meetings and have always had a very fine time. I should like to join the Social Corner and Club No. 4, taking as a pen name,

CORENA.

NOT STOPPING WITH ONE LETTER.

Dear Social Corner Sisters:—Now, that I have become a member of the Corner, I suppose it is my duty to write as E. L. M. said, not to stop after I had written one letter. Haven't we had some terrible weather? I hope none of the sisters suffered a very heavy loss in the recent flood.

E. L. M.: The paint arrived O. K. and as my painter wasn't at home, I put the rest of the first coat on. My first attempt.

O. D.: Perhaps you will recognize me. I once lived in your village almost opposite your home. Do you know now who I am?

American Girl: You once was my Sunday school teacher.

Lady Lou: Your dressmaking was O. K. The costume would be sort of cold for this time of year, don't you think?

Eben Shirley: Did you get downtown the night of the last meeting, as you thought you would? I hope you did and also enjoyed yourself.

Just-A-Nut: I worked in the same mill as Mr. Just-A-Nut did at one time, until the mill closed.

Here is a recipe for a black chocolate cake which I like and most always have good luck with:

Black Chocolate Cake: Two eggs, 2 cups sugar, 1-3 cup shotening, 1 cup sour milk, 1 tablespoon soda, 2½ cups flour, ½ cake Baker's chocolate, dissolved in 1 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

I hope some of the sisters try this recipe and enjoy it.

Has any of the sisters, Melissa's address?

Carinda: I was awfully glad to make your acquaintance at the last meeting as Mr. Ravena had spoken quite a bit of you. Hope to see you at the next meeting.

Will now close, as my letter will be too long if I continue and perhaps there wouldn't be room for it.

RAVENA.

THE PLACE FOR A JOLLY TIME

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: The weather man was kind to us Nov. 1st and those of you who could not be with us, when we met at Buckingham Memorial missed a jolly good time. A goodly number was present. They came from South Coventry, Willimantic, Franklin, New London and way stations, all with a hearty handshake, and glad smile. As one sister remarked, "So social, and cheerful." Glad to welcome so many from other clubs.

Prudence was an ideal hostess and with helpers Kasha, Lonesome Pine, Alta and others served a delicious dinner, which we enjoyed, after singing Blessed be the Tie, with Dahlia at the piano. Then we had music and dancing or rather danced at it with a piano solo by Black Eyed Susie.

A friend of Olga's whose home is in New Jersey, (but is planning to come further north to live soon) came with Olga and favored us with delightful music and songs which we enjoyed very much. Different ones related short humorous stories. Think Olga was the belle of the ball. All agreed that we had a jolly good time. Nothing like a Social Corner meeting for aches, pains, and blues. If you don't believe it, just try it. We missed several of our members who are usually with us at our gatherings, but very likely they were being entertained on a larger scale. Made plans for our next meeting and hope it will be a howling success. Very best wishes for Social Corner club.

WURDY BELLE, (Club No. 5.)

WHAT CORNERITES MIGHT DO

Dear Social Cornerites: I haven't written for so long I feel as if I ought to contribute something. I would like to make some suggestions, if I may.

There are a agreat many ladies in the Social Corner who are handy with the needle and others who are good cooks.

Those who sew could make dresses for little dolls for children or little lamp shades and embroidered centerpieces and scarfs.

Those who cook could make all kinds of pastry. Each one could contribute a couple of jars of something that they have put up this fall. Putting all their work together the Cornerites could hold a fair and with the proceeds you could distribute to some poor and needy families you know, or the Cornerites could use it for their own pleasure. There are plenty of ways to part with it after you receive it. Also there may be some of the Cornerites getting married. It could buy wedding presents or even Christmas presents. Perhaps many of the Cornerites have children. The money could buy the several children and even the grown folks a Christmas present. Also it will buy birthday gifts.

There is still a better way to spend it. They are having a hard time in Vermont on account of the flood. The money could be given to some one that may take up that work. Perhaps the Red Cross will see to it. That is, if any families are very bad off and I think they are.

Perhaps the Social Cornerites will not consider by suggestion. Perhaps you are not organized to do that but it does no harm to suggest, does it?

ANDY.

RECIPES FROM TAFTS

Dear Members of Social Corner: Am sending in recipe for apple whip, which is nice for a change.

Apple Whip: Make any good plain cake in Washington pie tins and fill with following: Beat white of one egg, add confectionary sugar to stiffen, add a peeled and grated apple, flavor with vanilla. Beat stiff, until like whipped cream. Very good.

Concord Grape Juice Easily made: Sterilize one quart jars and keep hot, wash ripe concord grapes and pick from stems. In each quart jar, put 1 1-2 cups grapes whole, 1 scant cup sugar, fill with boiling water and seal quickly. Ready for use in three weeks. One could make it now before the Concord grapes are gone.

E. L. M.: I don't know about the wonderful cook, but I certainly like to be making something with sugar and spice and have it turn out nice.

Was glad you had such a nice trip.

TAFTS.

THE LOST AND FOUND

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I want to let you know about the dishes that were left at Atlantic beach after the picnic. Topsy and I stayed down for the evening and after the others had gone home we found three deep dishes, a plate and three spoons. I brought them all home and will take them to the next meeting of Club No. 6 on the 15th. I took them to North Stonington but found only one owner so had to bring them back home again.

We had such a good dinner up there. I am sure everyone enjoyed the meat pies, all smoking hot.

Topsy and I are taking our turn at the hostess game next time and everyone seems so ready and willing to help that I think we can promise you a nice dinner too.

I must rush this off or I will be too late.

HEART AND HANDS FULL

Dear Social Corner Folks: Having not been the best myself, was glad to see faithful Theodo made reports of the passing to the higher life of our sisters whom we shall miss.

Too, Midget left us in just one short

STOCK PRICES SHOWED GAINS ON BASIS OF FAVORABLE TRADE NEWS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Favorable trade news formed the basis for a sharp upturn in prices in today's stock market. Speculative interest was widely distributed, final quotations disclosing a long list of net gains ranging from 1 to nearly 13 points. Trading, however, was only moderately heavy in volume, the day's sales failing well below 2,000,000 shares.

The bullish effect of a $2.50 extra cash dividend on General Motors yesterday was supplemented by an optimistic forecast by Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president of the corporation, on his return from Europe today. The stock closed 2 3-4 points higher at 131 1-2, after having sold down to 128 1-2 on early profit-taking. The announcement of higher steel prices by two of the leading subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation brought fresh buying into the steel shares on the theory that orders, delayed by the long period of declining prices, would start in large volume when it became apparent that the bottom had been reached. U. S. Steel common closed 1 5-8 points higher at 137 1-4, after having sold 2 points below that figure.

The increase of nearly $13,000,000 in brokers' loans reported by the New York Federal Reserve bank had no appreciable market influence. Call money continued in plentiful supply at 3 1-2 per cent. and a slightly easier tone was apparent for the shorter time maturities.

Dupont, which owns about 25 per cent. of the General Motors stock outstanding and will receive more than $16,000,000 in dividends in the third quarter, was one of the strong individual features, soaring 9 5-8 points to 215 5-8. Warren Bros., which sold as low as 65 earlier in the year, jumped 8 1-2 points to a new peak at 167 1-2, and then reached 2 points on realizing. Foundation Co., which recently collapsed to a new low on the omission of the quarterly dividend, was run up more than 4 points at the expense of an overcrowded short interest. International Harvester closed 13 3-4 points higher at 236 1-2 after having duplicated the year's high of 37.

Lago Oil was run up nearly 3 points to a new high record at 36 1-4 on reports of accumulation by large financial interests. The bulk of this stock is owned by the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co., which recently has been centering its Latin American operations on Lago's Venezuelan properties.

Strength of the Mercantile and Mail Order shares was based on expections of heavy holiday trade, new peak prices being established by many department stores, Montgomery-Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Munsingwear, Arnold Constable and Bloomingdale Bros. Other issues to break into new high ground were American Can, Victor Talking Machine, Corn Products, Adams Express, Kelly-Springfield and International Match preferred.

Southern Railway touched another new high record for all time above $140 a share, up 3 points on the day, and gains of a point or two were recorded by Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and a few others, but the general run of rails failed to participate extensively in the upswing.

Cotton rallied briskly after its recent period of weakness on the unexpectedly large government crop estimate, final quotations being 35 to 55 points higher. The Chicago board of trade was closed in observance of Armistice day, so that the market's reaction to the surprisingly large corn figures was delayed another day. Coffee and sugar markets held steady.

A sharp break of more than a quarter of a cent in Japanese exchange, which touched a new low level for the year around 46.75 cents, featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Sterling and francs held steady.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

The coming Tuesday evening in the rooms on Broadway, Mercier assembly C. L. of C. will hold its second social meeting of this season. The committee in charge has secured Rev. William A. Keane who will speak to the members on the life and works of the remarkable man whose name the assembly honors—Cardinal Mercier. Everyone will recall what an inspiring address Father Keefe delivered last winter at one of the social meetings. It is hoped by the officers that everyone will make a strong effort to be present. Refreshments will be served.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA

The regular meeting of the D. of A. was held Thursday evening with Councillor Caroline Howard in the chair. Routine business was transacted.

The chairman of the supper committee reported $90 had been realized at the supper held last week. The whist committee reported $11 had been cleared.

First nomination of officers was held. It was voted at the next meeting Nov. 17 to hold a penny social. All friends of the order are invited to come.

SONS OF HERMANN.

A pinochle party was held Wednesday evening by Germania and Immergruen lodges, Sons of Hermann, and was largely attended. The prizes were awarded as follows:

Ladies— first, Mrs. Anna Schaffhauser, 8200; second, Mrs. Walter Streich 7810; third, Miss Irene Wholey 7500. Men—first, John Schaffhauser 8250; second, Frank Shelley; third John Leirich 7880.

REBEKAHS

Hope Rebekah lodge No. 21, held its meeting last week with N. G. Alice Brayman in the chair. Routine business was transacted, and one new application received for membership. There were 45 present. After the meeting pinochle was enjoyed by all.

The sale and supper which was held Oct. 29 netted $150 which it was voted to give to the Triple Link corporation toward the building fund.

The following were the committees who served: General chairman, Ivy O. Peckham; handkerchief table, Arlina Peckham, Gladys Bowers; towel table, Hattie Parsons, Edna Browning; apron table, Minnie Amburn, Eva Wilson; fancy work table, Lillian Tuttle, Grace Wiley, Mary Greene; food table, Mary Adams, Doll Buddington, Bertha Collins; candy table, Amy Coles, Alice Metcalf; canned goods, Ada Revell, Eva John; grab-bag, Lila Smith; ice cream, Frank I. Smith. Fruit cake donated by Mrs. Lillian Tuttle in charge of Ella Stapleton.

Centerpiece donated by Eliza Walker in charge of Alice Brayman.

Sofa Pillow donated by Lila Smith in charge of Ivy Peckham.

Fern donated by Geduldig in charge of Ora Spencer.

The supper in charge of Chairman Mable Wheeler, Mary Smith, Agnes Blackburn, Mary Harris, Mable Amburn, Ellen Walker; waitresses, chairman, Florence Maynard, Estella Stott, Mary Mills, Ethel Whitmarsh, Elsie Whitmarsh, Clara Saph, Annie Geis, Lila Smith, Faith Ryan; tickets, John O. Peckham.

The chairman of the committee wishes to thank all those who so willingly gave donations and their services for making the sale a success.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

Sedgwick's Woman Relief corps, No. 16, met at the Buckingham Memorial Friday afternoon with the president, Mrs. E. Grace Fowler, in the chair. After the regular reports had been read and approved the corps voted to pay their share of the bill for shingling the Buckingham Memorial building. The corps will entertain the department officers at the next meeting. For the next few weeks a series of whist parties will be held. Mrs. Dr Louise Atterbury read a paper entitled "Armistice Day"; Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Toothill spoke of the inspection at Danielson and told of the good work done by that corps. The corps closed with the Salute to the flag and the singing of America.

SOCIAL CORNER

week, after a serious illness. Midget was of an especially cheery, sunny nature, beloved by all who knew her, an everhelpful neighbor, a devoted little mother.

You all know Double Fuschia, Midget's mother. Well she has had her heart and hands full.

Midget left two dear little boys, the oldest four years. Double Fuschia has them.

These children, and her other two grandchildren, which some of you have met, are in quarantine for scarlet fever, all four having had it.

I am sure she would appreciate hearing from the sisters.

Love and sympathy to all who are passing through sorrows and trials.

As ever,

"NEIGHBOR EVEREADY."

GREETINGS FROM ANN TENNA

Dear Social Corner Members: The hers: As I have nothing else to do this dark, lonesome afternoon, thought I'd copy a poem about a cat that once came to me when I used to live in Danielsonville, a long time ago, and I was deeply interested in humane work at the time. This morning I listened in to "Cheerio" and had the pleasure of hearing the Prisoner's Song once more, a great favorite of mine.

Primrose: Please excuse me for not acknowledging the lovely card you sent me on my birthday with the beautiful chain of primroses on it. I'll be more prompt another time.

Nonsecpretty: I know you will like the story of a cat whose name was Peter which I am sending in to be published when there is a chance.

Nov. 9, 1927.

ANN TENNA.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Graham Brothers Car.

Graham Brothers, the truck division of Dodge Brothers, Inc., has announced the addition to its line of a 1-1-ton panel delivery car that is said to be a revelation in smartness of appearance and snappy performance. The new car is claimed to be exceptionally fast and it has a quick pick-up that makes it peculiarly adaptable to operation in heavy city traffic. Other notable features are the economy with which it can be operated, a short wheelbase which permits turning in a circle with a radius of less than 26 feet and the convenient way in which the body is built to facilitate loading and unloading.

The new Graham Brothers delivery car follows the latest trends in passenger car design in many respects. It is built to give the appearance of length and lowness, and riding comfort and ease of control for the driver have been emphasized in its construction.

It is powered by the famous "124" motor which was recently introduced by Dodge Brothers in its four cylinder line. Exceptionally quick acceleration and great speed were claimed for this motor when it was incorporated into the Dodge Brothers cars. These qualities were recently proved when a Dodge roadster won the stock car race for four cylinder cars on the Atlantic City Speedway with an average speed of 67.38 miles per hour. Specifications of the new delivery car, state the allowable speed at 40 miles per hour, which is exceptional for this type of service.

This motor develops 35 to 40 brake horsepower and features such advances in design as the five main bearing crankshaft, light alloy pistons with invar struts to control expansion, water pump at the rear of the motor and hot spot manifolding. The engine is equipped with air cleaner.

While the body is very low and the wheelbase is only 103 inches, allowing a turning radius of 19 1-4 feet, these advantages in appearance and ease of handling are secured at no sacrifice of adequate loading space.

The car is equipped with a single driver's seat which can be augmented by a folding taxi-type seat if a passenger is to be carried. The extra space provided by elimination of the full front seat allows room for the carrying of extra long bundles. The inside loading length, exclusive of this extra space beside the driver is 67 2-4 inches; the inside width at belt line is 48 3-4 inches while the inside height is 44 1-4 inches. The arrangement is such that the driver can reach his load from the front compartment as well as through the wide door at the rear which is provided with a substantial latch.

Handsome lines in the design of the body are set off by fine lacquer finish in attractive colors. The sides have a graceful sweep and are constructed of composition board covered with sheet metal with padding in between to eliminate rumble.

Cowl ventilator, rear view mirror conveniently located at the left of the driver, automatic windshield wiper and practically every convenience found in high quality passenger cars are standard equipment. The spare tire is carried at the side in the recessed left front fender.

The speed and fast acceleration of the new car are balanced safely by large external contracting rear wheel brakes with 14 inch drums and bands 2 1-4 inches wide and a powerful hand brake operating on the propeller shaft. The transmission is standard shift, selective sliding gear, three speeds forward and reverse. Spiral gear drive in the rear axle provides a ratio of 5.769 to 1 which means moderate engine speeds at comparatively high road speeds with resultant fuel economy and lessened wear to the power plant. Equipped with 29 by 5.00 inch, 8 ply tires, front and rear, the car is exceptionally low with adequate road clearance.

The new Graham Brothers delivery car is sold by Dodge Brothers dealers throughout the country and the makers point out that approximately 4000 well equipped service stations are ready at all times to give expert maintenance service.

Concert in Westerly.

Reinald Werrenrath, famous baritone, when he appears in concert at the United Theatre in Westerly, Nov. 16, will have a large audience of music lovers to greet him. Since the ticket sale was opened Nov. 4 the demand for seats has been great, and there has been no let-up, although there are still some good seats available.

NORWICH TOWN

State Supervising Agent of Schools James F. Connolly of Sentry Hill, will be in New London today (Saturday) on official business. Mr. Connolly, who was in New London last Saturday, and will be there again November 19, is in charge of the state teachers' examinations, being held the first three Saturdays in November, at Jenning's Memorial school.

Theodore Sterry of Otrobando avenue accompanied by Thomas H. Bacheler of East Town street, is to leave Monday morning, by automobile for Atlantic City. They will motor the first day as far as Mountclaire, stopping over to call on relatives of Mr. Bacheler. While at Atlantic City where they expect to remain about a week, they will visit Warren Stapleton, a former Norwich Town resident, who has been located in New Jersey, the past two or more years.

Mrs. Dewey Woodworth and little daughter Lorraine, returned the early part of this week to their home on Vergason avenue, following a few days' visit in Providence, also a visit of two days in Putnam. When returning, Mrs. Woodworth was accompanied by her cousin, Mrs. Richard Edge, in Knoxville, Tenn., whom she met while in Providence. After a visit of a week at the Woodworth home, Mrs. Edge will go from Norwich to Kentucky, where she is to reside. Her husband, who is superintendent of a large stocking factory, has recently made a change in business.

Mrs. Emma Welte, her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Welte of East Town street, spent on Thursday in Providence, motoring there.

Mrs. Charles F. Geer of West Town street, for several weeks a patient at Backus hospital, following serious injury to her left knee, remains about the same. Although unable to receive callers for the past two weeks, Mrs. Geer was visited Friday afternoon by her daughter, Mrs. Charles Hazelhurst who was accompanied to Norwich, from her home in Waterbury, by her brother-in-law, William Hazelhurst. Friends of Mrs. Geer were not admitted to the sick room, because she is so easily fatigued.

Miss Florence Browning, was hostess to the Norwich Town club, at an all day session Thursday of New London County home and farm bureau. Twelve were present for the regular November meeting. Miss Foster of New York, was the demonstrator. In the course of her helpful instructions she showed how to remove spots from all kinds of fabrics, etc. Especially interesting was the demonstration as to the proper way to wash and dry silk, woolen and rayon garments. The hostess, Miss Browning, served a fine roast-beef and vegetable dinner to Miss Foster, also provided all present for dessert jello with whipped cream, fancy wafers and coffee. Miss Browning is secretary of the Norwich Town club. The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, December 15th, when Mrs. Marion Dakin, sent out from Connecticut Agricultural college, at Storrs, will be the demonstrator.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE

TO ALL PERSONS LIABLE TO PAY PERSONAL TAXES IN THE TOWN OF LEBANON:

Notice is hereby given that I have a Warrant to levy and collect the Personal Taxes of 1927, each of such persons being assessed the sum of two (2) Dollars as a personal tax, and that said personal tax is due and payable on the fifteenth day of November, A. D. 1927.

Your attention is directed to Chapter 305 of the Public Acts of 1927, which imposes a penalty of one (1) Dollar upon each person whose personal tax remains unpaid sixty (60) days after its becoming due. This automatically raises all unpaid personal taxes, from two (2) to three (3) Dollars, sixty days after the date on which they become due.

All persons neglecting this notice must be proceeded against as the Statutes direct.

Dated at Lebanon, Connecticut, October 24, 1927.
GEORGE E. BRIGGS,
Collector.

TOWN OF HAMPTON
Personal Tax Notice

A warrant having been issued to me for the collection of Personal Taxes which are due and payable on November 15, 1927, (Chapter 305 Public Acts 1927) notice is hereby given, that for the purpose of receiving such taxes I will meet all persons liable to pay said taxes on Tuesday, November 15, 1927 as follows:—

From 10 o'clock a. m. to 11 o'clock a. m. at the store of Amos Stone, Clark's Corner.

From 1 o'clock p. m. to 2 o'clock p. m. at the store of Dwight Phillips, Hampton Station.

From 2:30 o'clock p. m. to 4 o'clock p. m. at the Town Clerk's Office, Hampton Hill.

Dated at Hampton, Conn., this 27th day of October, 1927.
DELIA C. L. WEEKS,
Personal Tax Collector.

PERSONAL TAX

Notice is hereby given to all persons liable to pay a personal tax in the town of Bozrah, that I have a warrant to collect the sum of $2 of each and every person liable for same. This tax becomes due November 15, 1927. All persons neglecting this notice will have $1 additional to pay after sixty days.

Dated at Bozrah, Conn., Oct. 27, 1927.
JOHN E. PROCTOR,
Tax Collector.

NOTICE

All persons liable to pay a Personal Tax in the Town of Franklin are hereby notified that I have a warrant to collect a Personal Tax of Two Dollars, said tax being due and payable on November 15 and according to Chapter 305, Public Acts, 1927, if not paid within sixty days, one dollar must be added.

For the purpose of collecting this tax, I will be at Burdick's store, Franklin, on November 15 from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., at my residence November 28 from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., and at the Town Hall in Franklin on December 5th from 10 a. m. to 12 noon.
F. T. DATE,
Collector.
Dated at Franklin, October 24, 1927.

NEW LONDON NOTES ARMISTICE DAY-- PARADE AND PATRIOTIC ADDRESSES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 11—Armistice day was celebrated here today with a parade and patriotic exercises, the latter being held at Williams Memorial park. Because of the fact that next year will mark the tenth anniversary of the ending of the World war hostilities, when it is planned to hold a mammoth celebration, the parade and exercises today were not as elaborate as they otherwise might have been. Today's demonstration however, was a good one, in which numerous military and patriotic organizations participated. All along the line of march thousands of men, women and children viewed the procession and thousands were at the park to listen to the brief addresses.

The parade formed on Bank street, corner of Reed street and started shortly after 10 o'clock. The marchers moved through Bank street to State to Broad street, and ended at Williams Memorial park.

The parade was headed by Chief Marshal Thomas E. Troland and a platoon of 30 patrolmen. Following came a platoon of members of the fire department, chief of staff and his aides, Captains Alfred Ligourie and Joseph Perone; United States Coast Guard band, and United States Coast Guard Academy cadets, regular army units, U. S. Camden band, naval units, United States Coast Guard units, section base No. 4; National Guard units; American Red Cross, Sicilian society, Christopher Columbus lodge, 464, O. S. of I.; Valtarotirrea society, Christopher Columbus band from Norwich; Tusana society, 192nd Field Artillery band, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, United Spanish War Veterans and Grand Army of the Republic.

At Williams Memorial park one of the bands played The Star Spangled Banner, which was followed by the invocation by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Mayor James A. May then delivered an inspiring address and this was followed by a patriotic address by Kenneth Kramer, of Torrington. Mr. Kramer extolled the valiant work of the American soldiers in ending the conflict through which Germany sought victory that she might rule the world. At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Kramer won rounds of applause. The program was concluded with America by one of the bands.

Mayor May in his address said in substance:

"Today, Armistice day, designated as a holiday by the congress of the United States, commemorates the ninth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice that terminated a terrible siege, a conflict that involved nearly every nation in the world, now written into history as the 'World war.'

"We have assembled today, not only to commemorate the signing of the armistice, but also to pay honor and reverence to those who sacrificed their lives through patriotic spirit, in defense of the principles of humanity and in defending the homes and lives of their fathers and mothers, sisters and brothers, citizens of the United States; and that we may impress upon the oppressing nations that the flag—the Stars and Stripes—was once hoisted to the uppermost point of the staff, and that it will remain there forever.

"During April, 1917, war was declared by the United States against the oppressing nations, and as if by magic, American inspiration and patriotism immediately displayed itself.

"Men and women, loyal to their country, offered their services, their property, their resources, yes, their lives, in the cause of humanity and in defense of their country, to preserve the rights and freedom of its subjects, as against the arbitrary, inhuman methods advocated and pursued by the oppressing nations in their method of principle and warfare, to gain supremacy of the whole world.

"Evidently the Ruler of rulers, ever watchful, was to be director in this battle amongst the people of the world, as to whether right or wrong should prevail. Right conquered.

"Throughout the world, all, whether victors or vanquished, upon this anniversary date should give thanks.

"It marked the cessation of hostilities, a condition that caused gloom and dispair in many households, regardless of on which side a nation was enrolled. A number of families in our own city shared to a large extent with other communities anxiety and sorrow during the war, and from its consequences, though injuries or death of one or more of their members.

"As mayor of the city of New London, I extend sincere thanks to the patriotic and civic organizations, and to all others that have assisted in today's exercises commemorating the signing of the armistice. I trust that the memory of all whose bodies rest beneath the soil in this and in foreign lands will ever be retained and that their valiant deeds and sacrifices in behalf of their country will never be forgotten. Also that those who served in their country's interest and defense, now living, shall ever be honored and respected for the services rendered and sacrifices made."

NEW HAVEN MAN FOUND WITH GIRL SENT TO STATE FARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 11—Irma Holloway, a roamer, was arrested early this morning at the rooming house, 26 Bank street charged with larcivious carriage. In the police court she was committed to the State Farm for Women at Niantic. The girl was arrested by Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolmen Thomas Lyden and Frank Philopena upon complaint of the proprietor of the rooming house. With the girl when the police arrived at the house was Virgil Richards, of New Haven and he was arrested as a witness against her.

John Gamble was presented on a charge of breach of the peace and intoxication. He was fined $10 and costs, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Gamble was arrested last night by Acting Sergeant William Graham upon complaint of Frank J. Ennis, a sailor. Gamble abused the sailor to such an extent that he finally decided to end the abuse by causing Gamble's arrest.

Jack Piscatella, 39 Truman street and Max Squire, 6½ Bank street, were charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances, but neither presented himself in court ed his bonds of $3 was declared forfeited.

Stephen W. Downey was arrested last night on Washington street by Sergeant William Babcock where he was acting strangely and he was locked up as a precautionary measure. Today he was released.

BOY AND GIRL, 17, MARRIED BY CLERGYMAN IN GROTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 11—It has become known that Lee McTough, 17, of Bank street, and Helen Case, also 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Case, 4 Sheeman street, who decided to elope last Wednesday were married by a clergyman in Groton. Mr. and Mrs. McTough are residing with the bridegroom's parents. The parents of Mrs. McTough opposed the wedding because they desired that their daughter delay marrying until she was 21. Because the parents objected to the wedding, the girl and her sweetheart decided to marry at once and going to Groton they obtained a license and when the time of five days expired, they were wedded.

TRIES ARSON IN REVENGE— ANDREW AUSTIN DETECTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 11—Andrew Austin, colored and married, a member of the United States Coast Guard, local section base 4, is technically under arrest charged with arson. He will be formally arrested when the boat he is on, the destroyer Trippe, returns to port the 17th inst. Austin, who is married and resides on Truman street, has made confession and in it he says that he attempted to destroy the house at 14 John street, occupied by Martha Kenton, because he entertained a grudge against one of the lodgers there. Austin, who was arrested this morning, was delivered into the custody of the coast guard authorities as he is a cook and his services were needed while the boat was at sea.

About last midnight, Walter Guilford, residing at 14 1-2 John street, was about to enter his home when he discovered a lively fire in the cellar of the Kenton house. He aroused the occupants and had a still alarm sent to fire headquarters. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and the Nameaug engine company responded. The fire was burning fiercely when the firemen arrived but a quantity of chemicals sufficed to extinguish it. After the fire had been subdued, there was a strong odor of kerosene and the suspicion that the fire had been of incendiary origin was reported to the police by Deputy Chief Edmunds. Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray was assigned to the case and he obtained clues that indicated that Austin was the incendiary. Today Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh made an investigation and Austin was brought to police headquarters and questioned. After a half hour's grilling of the negro, he admitted setting the fire and related his reason for doing so. Austin said that he purchased a gallon of kerosene several days ago and took it to a point near the coast guard reservation where he hid it. Shortly before last midnight, he decided to use the kerosene for the purpose it was purchased. He went to the hiding place of the kerosene and went to John street, where he watched an opportunity to enter the cellar of the Kenton home. As the cellar was open, it was an easy matter for him to arrange for the fire. Going into the cellar, he sprinkled the kerosene on a pile of refuse, but did not apply the match. He went for a walk and a short time afterwards, he returned to the cellar, ignited the pile of rubbish, leaving hastily. A few minutes afterwards, Guilford, on his way home, discovered the fire and summoned the firemen.

Robert Coleman was in the police court this morning charged with violation of the motor vehicle law in not having a license in his possession while driving. He was fined $5. Coleman was arrested last night by Automobile Officer Clarence Martin and a short time after being liberated, he returned to police headquarters with a license, which he had carelessly left in another coat.

Harold Gustafson, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gustafson, 41 Raymond street, who, with his parents and Mr. Gustafson's mother, of Uncasville, was seriously injured near Glastonbury about two weeks ago when their automobile was wrecked, was discharged at the Manchester hospital today. The parents of the boy and Mr. Gustafson's mother are still at the hospital and will be there indefinitely. The automobile was wrecked when it crashed against a tree. Mr. Gustafson attempted to close one of the doors that had opened and in doing so, he unconsciously guided the auto, which was traveling at a high rate of speed, against the tree.

Trainmaster William J. Riley, of the Central Vermont railroad, has been appointed assistant superintendent of the southern division, which comprises that part of the railroad between New London and Brattleboro. The office of assistant superintendent was but recently created and will relieve Superintendent E. J. Guthrie of many of the latter's duties.

Desk Sergeant James D. Gaffney is in charge of the night force of the New London police department, being called upon to perform that duty during the absence from the city of Lieutenant James C. Sullivan, who is in Chicago to attend the funeral of his brother, P. J. Sullivan, who died yesterday.

The continued case of Alfredo Zuccerelli, of Waterford, charged with violation of the prohibition law, will be tried in Waterford town court Monday afternoon. Zuccerelli's residence was recently raided by state police, Groton barracks and a 60-gallon still, a quantity of alcohol, mash and receptacles for the manufacture of alcohol were seized. It is reported that the still was not owned by Zuccerelli, but was the property of a New London man, who used the Zuccerelli house for the purpose of manufacturing the alcohol.

Capt. H. G. Hamlet, commandant of the United States Coast Guard destroyer force at this port, is in New York on official business. He will be absent from the local station two or three days.

Mrs. William H. Crawford, 5 Howard street, is entertaining her sister, Mrs. John Brown, of Bridgeport.

St. Joseph's Parish Women's Social club will probably hold weekly forms of diversion the remainder of the winter. Last night the club members, about 40, enjoyed bridge at St. Joseph's hall, Montauk avenue. After the playing, refreshments were served.

A meeting of the Groton League of Women Voters was held last night at the residence of Mrs. Harry Hays, on Fort street, Groton, for the purpose of deciding whether the league would continue or disband. It was decided to continue the league because of the more than ordinary interest the members are displaying in matters of a political nature.

The public schools and city employes had a holiday today, but all places of business, excepting banks, were open the entire day. Armistice day was observed in Groton, for a half holiday was declared by Warden George R. Hempstead. The schools were closed all day.

Miss Elizabeth May, of 78 Walbach street, Miss Mary Ferry, of 78 Walbach street, and Mrs. John Grigas, 25 Henry street, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Thomas F. Morton, former New London newspaperman, is improving, but slowly, at Home Memorial hospital, where he has been a patient several weeks. Mr. Morton underwent a serious operation and it will be several weeks before he is able to return to his home.

That "a general agricultural depression, calling for consideration as a national economic problem," has been found to exist, will be set forth in a report of the Business Men's Commission on Agriculture to be made public today, following an investigation lasting a year.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater.

A branding iron at white heat, pressed against the quivering flesh of a beautiful woman is but one of the dramatic touches of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Body and Soul," which completes a three days' engagement at the Broadway theater this evening. The picture is based on Katharine Newlin Burt's "The Branding Iron," vivid story of love in the Swiss Alps, and is interpreted by an all-star cast, including Aileen Pringle, Norman Kerry, Lionel Barrymore and T. Roy Barnes.

On Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, "The Garden of Allah," one of the greatest desert romances ever filmed will be the feature attraction at the Broadway theater. This is a Rex Ingram production for Metro-Goldwyn and was made in the sacred wastes of the Sahara, the locality in which the story takes place, it has authentic reality.

Alice Terry in the role of Domini, the girl who sends her lover back to the rigid seclusion of his cell even though she is rapturously in love with him at the time, has the greatest opportunity of her career. She is supported by Ivan Petrovich, a Serbian leading man new to American audiences, and a cast of continental players. Petrovich will doubtless become the new screen favorite on the strength of his portrayal of the monk who is torn between love for a woman and faith to his trust.

The weekly Kiddies Frolic will be held on the Broadway stage during today's matinee. This week the children will have an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to sing or recite and as usual ten beautiful presents will be given away.

Palace Theatre

When an act possesses such merit that it is discussed all over the city, then that act should be seen to be appreciated. Such is the calibre of the Clinton-Rooney and Band act which is playing its final performance at the Palace theatre today. In addition their are several other good acts on the bill and the feature picture starring Shirley Mason and Richard Arlen in "Sally of Our Alley," is unusually good.

Tomorrow evening brings to the screen the wonder dog "Silver Streak" in an action story replete with thrills and feats of daring, "Fangs of Justice." The associate feature stars Johnny Walker and June Marlowe in "Once and Forever," in which the entire female population of a little French village plot to drive out an orphan girl while her lover is at war.

In "One Woman to Another," which opens a three days' engagement Monday at the Palace, Florence Vidor makes her debut as a screen comedienne. The last few pictures made by Miss Vidor have called for some intensely dramatic roles, however, in "One Woman to Another" there isn't a single heave scene. The production is fast action throughout and there's a grin or chuckle in every scene, according to those who have seen the review. In addition to this corking good screen attraction five excellent acts will be shown for stage entertainment.

Strand Theater.

"Red Blood," showing at the Strand on Sunday evening is a romantic western melo-thriller featuring Al Hoxie, the youngest daredevil of the silver sheet. Eddie Barry who helped make Christie comedies famous plays the role of an erring son. Marjorie Wardfield has the leading feminine role and Lew Meehan is the villian. High voltage thrills and plenty of romantic excitement make this western picture a winner. See Theda Bara in her triumphant return to the silver sheet in "The Unchastened Woman," the supreme achievement of the screen's greatest emotional actress. Miss Bara plays the role of Caroline Knolly, the most beautiful woman in all Europe, the most talked of figure in gay Venice. She seemed the gayest, brightest woman in all the world as she fought the heart-breaking struggle for her husband's love. It is the strangest love story ever told.

Showing today and tonight are "Webs of Steel," and "The Silent Avenger." Coming Monday are "For Ladies Only," and "Border Blackbirds."

Breed Theatre.

"What Price Glory," the motion picture version of the noted play by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, completes its triumphant engagement at the Breed theatre tonight, where it has been playing to capacity audiences at each performance. It is your last opportunity to see Victor McLaglen as the swashbuckling, amorous Capt. Flagg, Edmund Lowe as the Beau Brummell of the Marines, Sergt. Quirt and Dolores Del Rio as the seductive Charmaine, and the many other stars of this exceptional photodrama.

Commencing at 1.30 this afternoon and continuing until 10.30 tonight, "What Price Glory" will be shown at 1.30, 4.00, 6.30 and the final performance at 8.40.

"The Missing Link," the supreme laughing thriller of the year, comes to the Breed theatre, tomorrow night for a run of four days. Broadway has acclaimed this jungle jamboree the funniest of all Chaplin's laughter pieces. It is a riot! A scream! You owe it to yourself!

Breed Theatre

At the Breed theatre Sunday afternoon the noted picture The Power Within will be shown under the auspices of the Norwich Luther league. This is a rare chance to see this very interesting picture.

Timely Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday, 4 P. M.

In keeping with the thought of Armistice day, a six reel moving picture feature will be shown at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the large gymnasium. The title of the picture is "Over the Top with the Allies." The picture was taken in action by the United States Signal Corps and compiled in one impressive whole. It portrays the history of the world war from beginning to its conclusion. It shows the reception given to the Allies in Paris, the American troops in the trenches on Christmas day, 1919. It features the activities of every allied country. It concludes with the bringing home of the Yankee division at the end of the war.

The picture is shown that those who see it may learn more and more to hate war, and that sentiment may become so strong against war that another such catastrophe will be impossible.

Suitable music will be furnished, and a brief talk will be given to impress a lesson of peace.

The public fourteen and over are cordially invited. Those udenr fourteen are not expected.

Next Week at United Congregational Church

The Brotherhood monthly meeting and supper will be held at the Community house at 6:30 Monday evening, with Henry A. Tirrell to give a talk on "Sportsmanship."
